THEATRICAL

BIRDS WITH EYES THAT CAN'T BEHAVE

PLAY OF BRILLIANT HUMOR AND ROMANCE AT GRAND TONIGHT.

"Some Bride" which comes to the Grand, today, Friday and Saturday is a play of brilliant humor and heart appealing romance in which Viola Dana is seen in a role of daring originality. The story is that of Patricia Marlow, a bride with "can't behave eyes" that lead her into all sorts of scrapes and causes her husband Henry, much anguish and needless jealousies. She swims, dances and flirts outrageously with other men and then is hurt and injured when Henry objects. They drift further and further apart until the dread Nemesis of married life divorce looms darkly before them. Trying to get out of a deadly morass of innocent intrigue into which she has fallen, Patricia at last devises a clever scheme by which Henry is made to see that he has some bride, and that all his fears have been groundless. The plot is full of unexpected and audacious incidents that makes a play of unusual fascination and entertainment.

LOVE CONQUERS DEVILTRY.

Monroe Salisbury Has Strong Play in "That Devil 'Bateese'."

Is deviltry hereditary? Friends of a black sheep son of a black sheep father say "Yes;" friends of a model son whose father had not been all that he should have, and had been much that he should not have been, answer unswervingly "No." It's a mooted question.

"Batiste" Latour, a French-Canadian logger, is a sympathetic, kindhearted sort of fellow who lets his anger and his eivl passions get away from him periodically, and who thus earns the sobriquet, "That Devil 'Bateese'."

After going through a series of adventures in which his good nature and his evil tendencies are alternately manifested, he sees a girl he likes, runs off with her and forces her to marry him. Then the devil in him is submerged, and he tries to win her love, which he does. And when a little boy is born to the happy couple, Batiste grins, and in his simple way voices his views on hereditary traits: "Ba gosh! dat leetle 'Bateese' he will be devil jest like hees fader."

Monroe Salisbury, Devil "Bateese" No. 1, and Devil "Bateese" Second Edition, will be seen at the Grand today, Friday and Saturday in Director William Wolbert's fascinating Bluebird, "That Devil 'Bateese'."

Umbrella Improvement.

It is the little things which make for perfection, we are told. An inventor has perfected a device which certainly shows a taste for perfection. No one is unfamiliar with the strip of tape with a catch which is used snugly to wind up closed umbrellas. When the umbrella is open this piece of tape dangles and pendulates in a way that undoubtedly is offensive to the dignity of some. The inventor in question has made an invention which provides means of stowing away the pendant into the interior of the opened umbrella by means of a snapping device.

The First Steam Engines.

The first known use of steam to drive a kind of steam engine was described by Hero of Alexandria, probably in the first or second century B. C. But the first real steam engines were those used at the end of the seventeenth and in the early eighteenth centuries for pumping water out of mines. Newcomen's engine was used in English mines about 1711.

Another Story.

A Glasgow antiquary recently visited a ruined castle and asked one of the villagers if he knew anything of an old story about the building.

"Aye," said the rustic, "there was anither auld story, but it fell down long since."—London Telegraph.

One of Many.

"Then you think you won no permanent place in her heart?"

"I'm just a notch on her parasol handle; that is all."

Summed Up.

Knicker—Of what does a shad consist? Bocker—A backbone, a wishbone, a funny bone and then some.—New York Times.

The grand maxim nowadays is "to work, always to work and still to work."—Leon Gambetta.

Right Hon. W. F. Massey, Premier of New Zealand, Was Born in County Derry

RIGHT HON. W. F. MASSEY, Prime Minister of New Zealand, and representative to the Peace Conference at Paris was born at Limavady, County Derry. While a mere child his parents emigrated to New Zealand, in 1862, leaving their son with his grandparents to complete his education.

At the end of 1870 he joined his father and mother in their new home, and for a time assisted in the work of the farm. Later he became an employe on a large cattle and sheep station, where he gained the experience which formed the groundwork of his successful career as a farmer.

At the age of twenty-one Massey struck out on his own account, and acquired a farm at Mangere, in the Auckland district, where he still has his home.

Taking a lively interest in public matters in his district led him into the wider field of politics, and in

PREMIER MASSEY.

1894 he was elected to the House of Representatives. In 1912 he became Prime Minister, and two years later found himself with duties thrown upon him heavier perhaps than any previous occupant of the office had been called upon to shoulder. The Empire was at war. He threw himself into the struggle with characteristic energy, and, within a fortnight of the outbreak of war, two thousand New Zealand soldiers were despatched to seize the German possessions in Samoa, the first enemy territory to be occupied by Empire troops.

After the flower of New Zealand's manhood had been mobilized, Mr. Massey turned his attention to the task of placing at the disposal of the Motherland the material resources of his country. The surplus food supplies were commandeered, and contributed in no small part to the feeding of the British army in the various theatres of war.

Thought It Was Onion.

The tulip craze of the seventeenth century was started by Holland to provide a market for bulbs which had been found to prosper in certain types of Dutch soil where scarcely any other crop would pay. Holland rulers, statesmen and merchants bent their energy and ingenuity to making England, France and Germany long for tulips. Their success was phenomenal and at the same time a boomerang.

All the world wanted tulips. Prices became fabulous. Common bulbs sold for $5,000 apiece; fine ones rose to $6,000. One ordinary Dutch town had $5,000,000 invested in tulips alone. Then came the reaction. The fad began to wane. Do what it would the Dutch commercial class could not maintain the enthusiasm, and Holland fortunes went down with a crash.

But while the craze lasted there was excitement enough and a strange mingling of tragedy and comedy. It is told that a sailor eating a salt herring, wanted an onion to go with it, and a companion, spying what he supposed was an onion lying on the table in the open cabin, said "There's one, take it. The captain won't care."

It was a $5,000 tulip bulb and the owner, coming up just in time to see the last piece disappearing the sailor's mouth, fell dead in a fit.

Clemenceau in Duel.

M. Clemenceau, the French Premier, is able to take very good care of himself when it comes to a duel with pistols.

It was after the uprising of the Communists of Paris 1871, and Clemenceau, who had been Mayor of Montmartre, had just been acquitted of the charge of not having done enough to save the lives of two generals. Scarcely, however, was his life relieved from jeopardy under the law than he was compelled to risk it, or so he thought, on the duelling ground.

Here, says Mr. Hyndman, Clemenceau was quite at home. But he used his skill with the pistol very moderately, being content to wound his adversary, Commandant Poussarges, in the leg.

None the less, the result was that he was committed to prison for a fortnight as a lesson to him not to act in accordance with the French code of honor in the future.

Being funny is the most serious kind of work.

CONSERVING MOISTURE

Many Valuable Crops Saved by Mulching.

This Season Especially Trying to Cream Producers—Great Losses Prevented by Cooling Cream During Hot Weather in Properly Constructed Tank.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

WATER is one of the essential requirements for the growth of plants. Its functions are a solvent and carrier of plant food, a food directly or indirectly for the plants and it helps to maintain the plants in a turgid condition, thus enabling them to stand more erect and resist the force of the winds. Also the evaporation of the water from the surface of the leaves equalizes the temperature of the plants. Thus water serves the plants in no small way, and so the farmer is always very anxious each spring that his soil have sufficient water stored within it to supply the growing plants during the next three or four months, when the rainfall may not be sufficient for their requirements.

The amount of water required for crops is rather surprising; in humid regions they require from 290 to 500 pounds for every pound of dry matter produced, and in dry climates the amounts are about double of these. Of the ordinary farm crops the legumes including clovers, peas and beans, use the most water, then comes potatoes next; then in order oats, buckwheat, barley, wheat, rape, maize and millet.

The water that the plants take from the soil exists in the form of thin films around the soil grains. If the soil be well drained and otherwise in good physical condition, these films will occupy about one-half of the air space of the soil, the other half being available for air, which is very necessary for the growth of the roots. The water in the form of films has the power to rise up through the soil grains in a manner similar to that of the rise of oil in a lampwick or water through a lump of sugar. This rise takes place more quickly and extends higher if the soil grains be fairly fine and in a mellow and friable condition, or in other words, be in good tilth. Water in excess of this film water should be drained from the soil, otherwise the soil remains cold and the air is excluded from the roots.

Conserving the soil moisture consists of getting as much as possible of the rains and the meltage of the snow down into the lower depths of the soil, and in the second place, preventing the water that rises to the surface during the period of growth from evaporating. The first can be secured by fall ploughing and in other ways making the soil surface as open and receptive as possible for the easy entrance of the water and the evaporation can be prevented to a large degree by keeping the surface, after the crops are sown or planted, well mulched. The soil mulch, one to three inches deep, is found to be very effective in keeping the film water from reaching the surface and there evaporating under the sun and wind. The surface of the soil, and this applies chiefly to heavy soils, should not be allowed to become crusted, as a crust on the top cracks open and allows the water to escape. The best illustrations of mulching and its good effects are found in every well-tilled garden, but to a large degree the practice is practicable on the farms by a judicious use of the harrow and roller. When the grain fields are rolled immediately after seeding, the harrow should be used; if power enough be available both may be passed over the field at once. Even after the grain is up 3 or 4 inches, should a heavy rain pack down the soil, the roller may be used to good advantage in re-establishing a mulch. The more frequently the corn and root fields are cultivated throughout the season of growth, the more effective the mulch will be to conserve the soil moisture.—R. R. Graham, B.S.A., O. A. College, Guelph.

The season of 1919 is likely to be one specially trying for those who desire to ship sweet cream, on account of the great scarcity of ice. In many localities, not a pound of ice was harvested during the winter season of 1918-19. The ice-houses are empty and there is nothing but water to cool the cream. On some farms there is a scarcity of water during hot weather which means added difficulty in cooling the cream.

The first thing is to have a cooling tank of some kind for holding the cream can. One properly built of cement, or wood and insulating material, is best. Failing this, a coal-oil barrel, with the inside burned to remove the coal oil flavor, sunk partly in the ground and having a cover will answer the purpose. This should be near the well so as to be convenient for pumping cold water into it.

Each lot of cream should be cooled at once after separating, and before mixing with previous lots. A separate pail or can should be used for this part of the cooling process. Allow the cream to remain in this special can set in the cold water, from one separation to the next, being careful to wash it frequently, as the warm cream will soon become tainted with the sour cream organisms, if this can or pail be not kept sweet.

Keeping pails, cans, etc., clean, and immediate cooling to 50 deg. F., certainly below 60 deg., and frequent shipment or delivery of the cream, are the main points in hot weather care of cream.—Prof. H. H. Dean, O. A. College, Guelph.

WORLD'S TOUR NOW FOR AMERICAN SOCCER TEAM

First Game Will be Played in the Stockholm, Sweden, Olympic Stadium

Toronto, July 24.—The delegates of the United District League met and decided that the date of the closing for transfers be August 1st. Arrangements were made whereby all clubs will have a copy of the council meeting minutes forwards to them each week. The following transfers were sanctioned:

R. T. Bates, All Scots, to Toronto St. [illegible]; P. H. Ruddy, Baracas, to Old Country; H. Williams, Willys-Overland, to Wm. Davies; F. Hutchinson, Sons of England, to Wm. Davies; M. B. Black, Old Country, to Toronto Scottish; A. Pringle, All Scots, to Parkviews.

The game between Gunns and Danforth United was ordered to be played.

It was decided to play the International game, England v. Ireland, at the U. of T. Stadium on Wednesday July 23, at 6.30 p.m.

Champions of the United States and victors over every Canadian club or picked team that has presented itself to date, the Bethlehem Steel soccer football club, reinforced by some additions from other clubs, will sail from New York to-morrow for a series of a dozen games in Scandinavia following which the team may go to Brazil for a six-game series with the champions of South America. The men who will depart for Gothenburg aboard the Swedish-Americans liner Stockholm, are:

Fullbacks—James M. Robertson, New York; Samuel S. Fletcher, John McD. Ferguson and James Wilson, all of Bethlehem.

Forwards — David R. Brown, Kearny, N.J.; Harry Jay Leo Ratican, of Bethlehem, former star of the St. Louis professional league; William Forest, George McKelvey and Thomas Cochran, Turner Fleming, Bethlehem; Archie Stark, Paterson, N.J.

The team is under the direction of Thomas W. Cahill, William Sheridan, manager of athletics for the Bethlehem Steel Company, will accompany the team as trainer. He will have an expert masseur in Sune A. Stearn, Ernest J. Viberg, of New York City, will serve as interpreter, traffic manager and correspondent.

First Game at Stockholm.

The first game will be played in the Stockholm Olympic Stadium on August 10. Five games will be played in the Swedish capital. Other games in Sweden will be at Malmo and Gothenburg. The All Finland team will be played at Helsingfors and Denmark's national eleven at Copenhagen. The games in Norway probably will be played at Bergen and Christiania.

Upon completion of the schedule in Scandinavia the team is expected to go to Brazil to play six games under the auspices of the Brazilian Federation of Sports. One of the principal opponents in South America will be the Flumenese Football Club of Rio de Janeriro, which has beaten a number of the crack Scotch and English teams and recently won the championship of South Ameria in a series in which Argentina, Uruguay and Chile entered strong teams.

Among the seventeen players to make the trip there are a sufficient number of capable baseball players Ratican is a brilliant infielder. Brown is first string pitcher for the Pastime A. A. Club, a leading New Jersey semi-pro. aggregation and George Tintle is a first class semi-pro. catcher.

The American nine is scheduled to play baseball games with Swedish teams in Vasteras, Gothenburg and in the Stockholm Stadium. King Gustaf V. will attend the first soccer game and also the first baseball game in the Olympic Stadium.

KINSTON GOLFERS BREAK RECORD

GUY SHANNON TURNS IN 35 IN 9 HOLES—NEW FEAT TO FOLLOW.

Kingston, July 22.—All amateur records for the local golf links were broken on Saturday by C. Guy Shannon, deputy postmaster, who turned in 35 in 9 holes. Mr. Newman, the professional, was the only one to equal this score, and following Mr. Shannon's match with Dr. Ross Mr. Newman made a remarkable feat when in nine holes he made 33 out and 34 in for a total of 67 holes. This score ranks with that of some of the expert players.

TO SET RECORD FOR '20 MILE MEDLEY

WILL SWIM CHANNEL—CYCLE ROW—ALL ROUND ATHLETE.

London, July 22.—Jabez Wolfe, the crack British distance swimmer, who purposes again to attempt the crossing of the English channel this summer, announced that before the trial he will undertake to set a record for a twenty mile medley event, in which he will walk five miles, cycle five, row five, and swim five in immediate succession. It is to be hoped he does his rowing and swimming in still water so that Americans can attack the promised mark under standard conditions. Usually intests of this kind the aquatic portions are staged in running water, and this makes the whole performance worthless as a record and useless as a means of comparison.

YANKEE AFTER WILDE

Chicago, July 23.—Another American boxer may soon cross the Atlantic to take a crack at Jimmy Wilde. The young man in question is Frankie Mason, of Fort Wayne, who claims to have beaten Pal Moore in a ten-round bout.

Mason, who is at present in Baltimore, declares that he has received an offer from the National Sporting Club of London for a twenty round bout with the little Briton, and adds that he probably will accept.

WALKS 100 MILES IN 23 HRS. 42 MIN.

DAN O'LEARY, AMERICAN, 78 YEARS OLD, MAKES RECORD.

Chicago, July 22.—Dan O'Leary completed his 100 mile walk yesterday at the Cub ball park in twenty-three hours and forty-two minutes, setting a record for 78 year old pedestrians.

The veteran started Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock and tramped steadily along through the night. He appeared none the worse for his long walk.

Several walks for amateurs were held as features of the "O'Leary day" program. Patrolman P. F. Martin of the 31st precinct won the five mile heel and toe match. David Kjeldsen of the Danish Athletic club won the ten mile running race.

MANY FIGHTS FOR CHAMPION DEMPSEY

ENGLAND AND AUSTRALIA BOXERS EAGER TO CONTEST THE WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP.

New York, July 23.—From an authoritative source abroad it was learned yesterday that Georges Carpentier and Joe Beckett, scheduled to box twenty rounds for the European heavyweight championship in London on September 2, have signed with Promoter Cochran, of the London Sportsmen's Club, the winner to meet Champion Jack Dempsey, providing the latter accepts Cochran's offer of $125,000 for the championship of the world, to be held in England on an agreeable date.

Cochran's representative, George McDonald, will visit these shores very shortly, it is reported, and, under instructions, will make every possible effort to induce Jack Dempsey to accept this lucrative match. An announcement made by Dempsey a fortnight ago in Chicago, was to the effect that he would meet the winner of that bout, but that the said contest would have to be fought on American soil.

Los Angeles, July 22.—Mrs. "Snowy" Baker, wife of the Australian sport promoter, called on Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight boxer, and Jack Kearns, his manager and offered Dempsey $100,000 to stage his next bout at Sydney, Australia. The offer was contained in a cablegram from Baker. Kearns told Mrs. Baker at this time, as he had a similar offer from Paris and was waiting for developments in that matter.

Peterborough Gun Club Weekly Shoot

ALL SHOULD BE THERE—PORT HOPE GUNNERS ARE COMING.

The Peterborough Gun Club will hold their weekly shoot on Friday evening and all members are urgently requested to be on hand when a couple of handicap shoots will be held. The executive of the club have invited the gunners from Port Hope to have a shoot with them one of these Friday evenings, and as the Port Hope shooters are going pretty strong, it will be up to the locals to get in some practice. Mr. Curvin and Stan Coon had a race for the honors last Friday evening, the latter winning by one bird. Some more excitement is expected at tomorrow night's shoot.

HUGE BOXING ARENA

Contracts have been awarded for building a boxing arena to seat 10,000 persons at East Chicago, Indiana, it is announced.

The Board of Aldermen recently passed an ordnance permitting ten-round bouts. Noble Morelli has been appointed boxing commissioner.

GOLF STARS PLAY AT HAMILTON FRD'Y

AN INTERNATIONAL EVENT OVER AMBITIOUS CITY'S FINE COURSE.

Toronto, July 24.—Foremost American Golf Clubs will compete in the international match with United States and Canada starting Friday morning at the links of the Hamilton Golf Club. This will be the first international match in nineteen years, and a high calibre of golf should result. W. C. Fownes, jr., of Pittsburg, who captains the American team, will bring a nifty aggregation to clash with the Canadian contingent, captained by the veteran, Geo. S. Lyon, of Lambton, who won the amateur golf championship eight times only to succumb this year at the hands of John Haddon, the young Scotch golfer of Toronto. Charles (Chick) Evans, jr., will likely play first on the American team in opposition to Geo. S. Lyon. Wm. McLuckie, who won the Canadian amateur golf championship a few weeks ago at Lambton, will likely stock up against Francis Ouimet, Boston, former amateur and open champion. Both these players are experienced golfers and know golf with its attendant intricacies. McLuckie has met and defeated the cream of the Canadian golfers, and should not hesitate at vanquishing Ouimet.

G. H. Turpin, Royal Montreal, who was defeated by McLuckie in the finals for the Canadian title, will in all probability play third, although there is a possibility that the draw might be upset a little, and have Turpin playing second and opposing Ouimet. In the event of Turpin playing third his probable opponent will be J. D. Travers, Montclair, S. J., Mr Travers is considered by many to be a wizard at the "old and ancient." He has won the amateur title four times, and the open once, which is certainly a proud record. Oswald Kirby, who competed here at the Toronto and Rosedale clubs, a few weeks ago for the benefit of the Red Cross, and whose home in is Englewood, N. J., may meet W. J. Thompson, of the Scarboro Club, who was defeated by McLuckie, the champion, but only after playing nineteen holes. These two players should provide an excellent brand of golf as they are both young and experienced players. Whether W. C. Fowne, the captain of the American team will battle in the fifth position is conjectural, but in the event of him deciding to play in the middle position the balance of the American team will likely include J. G. Anderson, New York; Robert Gardner, Chicago; former ex-amateur champion, J. E. Guilford, Boston; Robert T. Jones, Max Marston, of Crawford N. J.; E. M. Byers, Pittsburg, and George Ormiston. The draw, however, may be slightly changed in the event of Kirby and Marston not being able to make the trip.

The remainder of the Canadian team will likely comprise: John Haddon, Toronto; Fritz Martin, Hamilton; T. B. Reith, Montreal; Seymour Lyon, Toronto; F. G. Hoblitzel, Sarnia, and E. S. McDougall, Montreal. The Friday morning attraction will be a four-ball four-some, commencing at 9.30. In the afternoon a two ball match will begin at 2 o'clock. On July 29 and 30, the Canadian Championship will be competed for. Every amateur and professional is eligible and a record entry is expected.

GOLPHERS TO LINDSAY

Remaining Events of Regatta To-night

The remaining events of the regatta, which were left over from last Saturday's program will be held this evening at Rye's boat house at 7 o'clock. A large crowd enjoyed the races on Saturday and the events tonight promise to be as interesting.

The body of an unknown man was found on Grimsby beach by some of the crew of the steamer Macassa.

BIG HENLEY MEET TO BE LIVELY ONE

FRIDAY'S EVENT WILL MARK AN EPOCH IN HISTORY OF CANADIAN ROWING.

Toronto, July 24.—Indications are that the Canadian Henley, which is being held Friday and Saturday over the St. Catharines course, will mark an epoch in the history of Canadian rowing. The "old time" enthusiasm is back again, and several outside clubs have signified their intention of sending crews, which will make the regatta a lively one from a competition viewpoint. The influence of the Olympic regatta next year at Antwerp augurs well, and in all probability the C.A.A.O. may depart from its old practice of choosing a crew to represent Canada at Antwerp. All arrangements are now completed for the big day, and Toronto will look forward for the Dons and Argos to bring home the bacon.

Eastern clubs sending crews up are Ottawa and Brockville while the Detroit Boat Club will have two crews in its colors, always favorites on the old Welland course. Under the inspiration of Major J. M. Elson, who has taken a greater personal interest in the regatta than other chief magistrates of the Garden City, the course and its surroundings have been put in fine order and only favorable weather is needed to assure the success of this year's regatta for the visitors. The course is so sheltered that there is never any anxiety on the part of the oarsmen.

John Hanlan Dugnan, who won the junior singles in the Dominion Day regatta, will have a further try here in more ambitious company. He has his father, the professional champion of America, has no fear of the result this time either. Young Durnan and his father will go across the lake tomorrow, in order to become familiar with the course, which is rowed with a turn, except in the eights.

The officials for the regatta have been appointed as follows: Starter, Mulqueen, Toronto; assistant referee, S. F. M. Smith, Lachine B.C., Montreal; senior judge, Jas. Pearson, Toronto; assistant judges, Mayor Elson, (St. Catharines), Lieut.-Col. B. O. Hooper, M.C., (Hamilton). T. P. Galt (Toronto), W. J. Sanderson (Toronto), Capt. W. D. Burchall (Montreal); clerk of the course, Wilfrid Murphy, Port Dalhousie; assistant clerk of the course, R. L. Schram, S. Catharines; time keepers, Col. Barker (Toronto), D. B. Duffield (Detroit), Major Ivan McSloy (St. Catharines), J. D. Bailey (Toronto), T. A. Murphy (Toronto). Capt. Crawford of the Don R.C., Toronto, will have charge of the press boat.

Canada's Water Power.

An important feature of the water powers of Canada is their fortunate situation with respect to existing commercial centers. Within economic transmission range of practically every important city from the Atlantic to the Pacific, except those in the central western prairies, there are clustered water power sites which will meet the probable demands for hydro-power for generations.

Enjoyment Spoiled.

A little girl's mother had just bought her a bright red coat which she had never worn. There being a death in the family her mother dressed her and decided it not best to wear such a bright coat, so put on an old black one. As the child noticed this she began to cry and said, "If I can't wear my new red coat I sure won't have a good time at the funeral."

Steel and Iron.

Steel is a kind of iron which can easily be hammered out thin without cracking and can be made extremely hard by being heated and then cooled quickly. It is different from ordinary iron because of the amount of carbon in it. Wrought iron contains less carbon than steel and so it cannot be made so hard; cast iron contains more and so is brittle.

J. W. Ledyard has resigned as manager of the Beaver Consolidated and Kirkland Lake Gold Mines.

Arrangements For Meeting of Converts

PURPOSE IS TO GIVE HELPFUL ADVICE AND SUGGESTIONS FOR CHRISTIAN LIFE.

Arrangements have been completed for the meetings of the converts obtained during the recent evangelistic campaign held in the city by Evangelist H. D. Kennedy. The first of these meetings will be held tomorrow (Friday) evening in the Y. M. C. A. and will be addressed by Mr. Kennedy. The purpose of the meetings is to give the converts helpful advice and suggestions on the first steps in the Christian life. It is recognized that sometimes there is a tendency for some converts obtained in such campaigns to "blackslide" because of failure to give them assistance shortly after their conversion. The object of these meetings is to conserve the full results of the recent campaign.

The meetings will be continued for only a few weeks. Most of the converts have already identified themselves with some of the city churches, and all are being urged to do so. Those invited to tomorrow night's meeting, besides the converts, are the personal workers during the campaign and any others who became interested in the Christian life during the meetings.

TO UNVEIL MEMORIAL

King to Press Button at Balmoral for Cartier Ceremony

Montreal, July 24.—King George has consented to unveil the memorial here to Sir Etienne Cartier by pressing a button at Balmoral. The Duke of Connaught today cabled E. W. Villeneuve, President of the Cartier Centenary, of which the former Governor General was a patron, that His Majesty would unveil the statue by this method on September 6, the anniversary of Cartier's birthday. A wire will be run from Balmoral to connect with the Atlantic and Canadian cable lines, thus forming a direct electrical connection.

Work For Painters Scarce in This City

MEN ARE LEAVING PETERBORO —OIL $4 A GAL. AND PAINTS AWAY HIGH.

A journeyman painter phoned the Review this morning, to take his advertisement for work, out of the paper, as there is nothing doing in Peterborough, and he is going to shake the dust of this city from off his feet in search of employment elsewhere.

Mayor Duncan stated this morning that the man's 'plaint is perfectly correct. The prices of painters' materials practically prohibits house painting, he said: people positively cannot afford present day cost of having their premises renovated, and are postponing needed work. Oil before the war could be bought at 65c a gallon; today its price is $4 per; and all paints have increased proportionately.

Y.M.C.A. CLOSED

Owing to the fact that some repairs and alterations are being made to the building, the Y.M.C.A. will remain closed for about a week.

DANCING HALL AT BUCKHORN.

A dance will be held every Friday in the Dancing Hall at Buckhorn during the summer months. Private parties wishing to engage the hall may do so by applying to M. Pluard, Hall's Bridge P. O.

TALK OF BREAD RATIONS

Paris, July 24.—France may again be put on bread rations in September. It was said that the system of bread cards probably would be re-established in that month because of a possible shortage of wheat.

REPATRIATE HUNS

Amhurst, N.S., July 24.—Upwards of five hundred German prisoners left the internment camp here under guard for Quebec where they will board a transport liner for Germany.

The mine workers at Cobalt went on strike at noon, but the water and light plants are still being operated.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

MOORE—DOWNEY

At the George Street Methodist parsonage, yesterday morning, Mrs. Georgia Downey and Geo. Henry T. Moore, both of Peterborough were united in marriage, Rev. A. J. Thomas officiating. The happy couple will reside in this city.

CLARK—BEAVIS.

At the home of the bride's parents, Smith township, yesterday evening at 7:30, Maude E. Beavis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beavis, was united in marriage to Allan H. Clark of Peterborough.

The happy pair were attended by Mr. Harold J. Clark, brother of the groom, and Miss Mabel H. Christie. Rev. A. J. Thomas, of George Street Methodist Church, officiated.

Major Medd has been detailed by General Williams, officer commanding military district No. 3, to act as judge advocate at the sittings of an army court martial to be held at Kingston and will be engaged at that court for the rest of this week.

J. S. Milloy and wife were in town today. They are on a six weeks' vacation. Before leaving this city over four years ago, Mr. Milloy was on the editorial staff of the Review. He is at present editor of the Dakota State Journal.

Mrs. E. Morrison, accompanied by her granddaughter, Helen, of Fairhaven, Mass., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Hugh McWha, 249 Roger street.

Dr. McNulty and Mrs. McNulty have been spending the week at the Arlington, Cobourg, and leave today for a ten days' motor trip through the Niagara Peninsula.

Mr. A. C. Yokome and Mr. Daniel Simmons, the commedian, have left for Pigeon Lake on a fishing expedition.

Miss Genevieve Sullivan, who has been visiting in Toronto for the past week, has returned to the city.

MORE SHIPS COMING

Expect Forty-Five Government Ships Operating in Year

Ottawa, July 24.—Seven Canadian Government cargo vessels are now in commission, and thirteen more are expected to be ready for sea this year. The construction this year under the Government's ship building programme will amount to some 100,000 tons. By October, 1920, it is believed this initial programme will be completed and 45 ships of an aggregate tonnage of 300,000 will be in operation in connection with the Canadion National Railways through the Canadian Mercantile marine.

PUBLICITY THE CURE

For Bathers Who Appear in Immodest Costumes

Cardiff, Wales, July 24.—The City Council of Barry has decided to let the pitiless rays of publicity shine on bathing girls who wear immodest costumes. Beach inspectors have been instructed to take photographs of all mermaids insufficiently clad and post copies in public places. The Barry council took this step after two saucy sea nymphs had slapped an inspector who reprimanded them for bathing a la Mother Eve.

OFFERS EMPLOYES A PLACE ON COMPANY'S DIRECTORATE

St. John, N. B., July 24. — Some weeks ago the New Brunswick Power Company offered a place on its directorate to a member of the union of the company's employes. The union has decided not to accept now but to take up the matter six months hence.

OBJECT TO HOLDING ELECTIONS ON REFERENDUM DAY.

Windsor, Ont., July 24.—Protesting against the provincial elections being held the same day as the prohibition referendum the members of the Windsor and District Referendum Committee telegraphed Premier Hearst that the holding of the elections in September would inject politics into the prohibition issue.

PETERBOROUGH STUDENTS WHO EARN ENTRANCE TO COLLEGIATE

This City's Schools Established Record—Ninety Percent. of Scholars Pass the Midsummer Examinations

The folowing names are arranged in their order of merit, and their number reflects considerable credit on both our public school spector, teachers and scholars, at the entrance examinations recently closed. Peterborough schools establish a record for Ontario in that no less than 90 per cent. of their boys and girls have succeeded in passing, and this is conservative figuring at that:

DEMONSTRATION AT QUEEN MARY PLAYGROUND

On Friday Evening, July 25th, from 7 to 9, a demonstration of playground activities will be held at Queen Mary Playground. This playground is newly equipped with up-to-date steel swings, giant stride, teeters, sand boxes, volley ball, baseball outfits, etc. There is a steady attendance of enthusiastic children. The girls have their special interests and boys and girls are anxious to show their parents and friends, just what the supervised playground means to children.

All friends of the playgrounds movement are cordially invited.

The supervisors of King Edward and Central Schools will assist Mr. Tillotson and Miss Collinson, who are in charge of Queen Mary Playgrounds, in the group games, sports, etc.

It is hoped to have a band in attendance.

One hundred thousand small black bass were planted in the St. Lawrence in and about Alexandria Bay.

MAN HAS CHOICE OF THE WHOLE DOMINION

FAR-REAHING PRIVILIGES OF PROVINCIAL LABOR BUREAU.

The Provincial Employment Bureaus are doing good work in placing willing men in employment. Peterborough's branch, with Hugh Robertson at its head, has, since its establishment found positions for a large number of mechanics, laborers, and men in many other callings. Just now he can place 200 bushmen at good wages.

In this connection there are central clearing houses in the several provinces, from which applications for positions not readily found may be circulated widely, so that a man has the whole Dominion of Canada to choose from. All employers of labor and employes should give the bureau every assistance, and go to the bureau in preference to all other agencies. In every town of over 10,000 population there is a branch bureau and other towns have suboffices. It costs nothing and gives employers and labor the maximum of satisfaction. Its advantage to the government is very clear, the records of the various bureaus being a reliable account of the labor situation. Where numbers of men of certain trades are out of work it is possible for the government through the erection of public works to create a demand for the surplus labor.

CHANGE OF VENUE FOR EX-KAISER

HOUSE OF LORDS OBJECTS TO HIS TRIAL IN LONDON.

London, July 25.—It is possible that former Emperor William may not be tried in London, according to an announcement made in the House of Lords by Earl Curzon of Kedleston, Government Leader in the Upper House.

The Lords passed the Peace Treaty and the Anglo-French Treaty through all stages. In the course of the discussion Viscount Bryce deprecated holding the trial of the former German Emperor at London.

Baron Buckmaster said there were grave reasons why the Government ought not to pursue any farther the project of trying the German war lord. It was certainly unfitting, he declared, to ask an English Judge to sit on such a tribunal to administer a law he does not know by procedure and has never been defined, in a court he does not control.

In his reply Earl Curzon said he thought the Kaiser in exile in no way comparable with Chrles I. or Napoleon. He was unble to imagine that a man who had ignominiously fled his country could be turned into a martyr or a hero by a trial, while his continual presence near the German border might be a political danger.

It might be, however, that the trial would not be presented in London. No final decision has been reached, and the chances of the trial becoming a spectacular show and disturbing public opinion and the daily national life were competent and important considerations. Even if the trial were within the shores of Britain, it by no means followed that London would be the place selected.

HULL VOTES STRONG FOR BEER AND WINE

AFTER "DRY" YEAR RESIDENTS DECIDE TO LOOSEN UP REGULATIONS.

Hull, Que., July 25.—After a year in the "dry" column, through a local option vote, the city of Hull has voted to come under the beer and wine regulations of the Province of Quebec. The voting, which began on Monday and ended last night, resulted in 816 for and 103 against beer and wine. The Provincial Government will be asked to allow the issue of beer and wine licenses at once, although under the local option bylaw none could be issued before May 1 of 1920

AT [illegible] ARE UP IN REVOLUTION

TROOPS HAVE STARTED MOVEMENT FOR SEPARATION FROM SERBIA.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, July 25.—Despatches from Agram and Gratz report a serious military revolt in Croatia. The revolt is taking the form of a movemnt for separation from Serbia and the formation of a republic. Violent combats occurred Tuesday and a large part of the garrison revolt. Thirty persons were killed and many wounded.

Troops are leaving their units, officers and subalterns are tearing off their insignia and the army is in a state of dissolution, advices say. The Serbians are trying to suppress the revolution by the use of troops, both Serbian and Croatian.

QUARTER OF A MILLION COAL MINERS IN ENGLAND WILL RETURN TO WORK

Men Accept Terms Offered by Lloyd George and Sir Eric Geddes—Settlement Came in Time to Avert Serious Shortage of Coal.

London, July 25.—The strike of approximately a quarter of a million men in the coal mines which threatened to paralyze many industries was settled today.

The settlement will come none too soon. Evidence is accumulating hourly of how heavily the coal shortage is pressing on all industries and public services. The Government has already stopped the export of coal from Cardiff and the railways had plans laid for a severe restriction of their services to begin Monday if the strike was not settled.

No Threatenings of Any Kind

A satisfactory aspect of the strike is the fact that there have been no disorders or threatenings of any kind and no attempt to hinder the naval men who have been engaged in keeping as far as possible, the mines from flooding. The situation with regard to pumping and ventilation underwent a great improvement during the course of the day.

There have been some extensions of the strike movement, but at the same time many strikers had resumed work, notably in Nottinghamshire, where it was announced last night that the strike is ended.

Miners Meet Premier

The Executive of the Miners' Federation met Premier Lloyd George and other members of the Government in an effort to settle the dispute in the Yorkshire coal fields. The Premier was attended by Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister for National Service and Reconstruction; Sir Robert Stevenson Horne, Minister of Labor, and officials of the Coal Labor Department of the Board of Trade.

"Of course, we are ready for a settlement, but not on the Government's own terms."

No settlement was reached at the morning session of the conference. The conference adjourned until evening to allow the miners' representatives time to consider further Government proposals on the question of piece rates, growing out of the advance in the price of coal

Government's Proposal

The Government proposed that, acting on the basis of the interim report of the ankey Coal Commission, to the effect that the reduction of output, through reduced hours, would be less than 10 per cent, the Government was prepared to see that the piece workers should not suffer any loss in earnings, and that the piece rates would be increased by an amount; which, on the average, was found necessary to correspond with the 10 per cent reduction in hours.

Robert Smillie, the miners' leader, said the Executive body of the federation would meet this afternoon to consider the proposal.

Pumping Situation Better

The pumping situation in the Yorkshire mines was pronounced satisfactory with the exception of one important mine. Two hundred sailors are now manning the mine pumps without interference, and attention is being given to the operation of the ventilation systems in the deeper pits of South Yorkshire, where the fans have been stopped since the strike began.

Sir Eric Geddes, Minister without portfolio, who is on the spot representing the Government, has received satisfactory replies from the Lord Mayor of Leeds and other municipalities whom he asked to see that the supply of coal was economized. The supply at Leeds is virtually exhausted and the outlook for householders is serious.

Anthracite Coal Is And Will Be Scarce

Now that the war is over the minister announces that a Government Fuel Controller no longer exists, and neither will there be a civic fuel commission this winter.

Anthracite coal is, and will continue to be, a scarce find in the stove grade and people may as well make up their minds to turn a mixed grade of stone and nut as last season.

BULGAR DELEGATES ARE ON THEIR WAY TO PARIS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, July 25.—The arrival of the Bulgarian peace delegation in Paris will make peace a day later than was expected. The delegation, which was to have reached Paris this morning, according to the original plan, stopped over a day at Lausanne, Switzerland. It will arrive here tomorrow morning.

STRIKE OF DOCKSMEN OVER IN NEW YORK

OFFICIAL OF SHIPPING BOARD BRINGS ABOUT TO SPEEDY SETTLEMENT.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, July 25. — The announcement of the settlement of the marine workers' strike was expected to be made today. Raymond B. Stevens, vice-chairman of the United States shipping board, who came here Monday, has since had conferences with representatives of both seamen and operators, and intimated that practically the only things necessary to the complete compromise are the signatures.

CLEAN SWEEP MADE BY P. E. I. LIBERALS

CAPTURE TWENTY-SIXX OUT OF THIRTY SEATS IN ELECTION.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., July 25.—The Liberals swept the Province in the general election today, capturing 26 seats out of 30. The only Conservative survivors of the debacle were Hon. A. E. Arsenault, Premier; Hon. James A. McNeill, Commissioner of Public Works; and Hon. Murdock Kennedy and J. D. Stewart. This was the most one-sided election since Confederation, when the Liberals won only two seats. When the House dissolved the parties stood: Conservatives, 18; Liberals, 17, and one seat vacant.

Such a sweeping victory was unexpected by both sides, although the result of the Federal elections, when all four Liberals got the majority of the home vote, afterwards changed by the soldiers' vote, foreshadowed a Conservative defeat today.

Soldiers Voted Liberal.

Returned soldiers did not take an active part in the contest, but it is evident that the large majority of them voted Liberal. Fine weather brought out a very large vote. There big turnover in Charlottetown, Liberals capturing both seats by a large majority, the Labor men going with the Opposition. Dissatisfaction with the administration of the Public Works Department, especially neglect of roads, with the administration of the Agricultural Department, and with the proposal of the Government, to levy additional taxation told against the Conservatives. People also looked with disfavor upon the Highway Bill, fearing that the payment of the 60 per cent. asked for by the Federal Government would be too heavy a burden.

In addition to the spirited campaign waged by J. H. Bell, the Liberal leader and his lieutenants the prevailing spirit of dissatisfaction and unrest, and the movements among farmers against existing conditions are said by the Government to be largely responsible for its defeat.

TERMS OF SETTLEMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

An official report issued after the conference held today between Premier Lloyd George and the executive body of the Miners' Federation said that an agreement had been reached and that the principles laid down by the government in its proposition has been adopted. The Government's proposition, based on an interim report of the Sankey coal commission that the reduction of output through reduced hours would be less than ten per cent, afforded the government an assurance that piece workers should not suffer any loss in earnings and that piece rates would be increased by an amount which on an average was found necessary to correspond with a ten per cent. reduction in hours. In order to carry out this agreement, says the report, it was necessary to fix a definite average of reduction in working time resulting in the introduction of a seven-hour day, and after the next examination of figures it was decided to accept forty-seven minutes as the basis for this calculation.

ANOTHER ST. CAR AND MOTOR CAR ACCIDENT

J. T. LANG'S AUTO DAMAGED—THESE ACCIDENTS COMMON OCCURRENCES NOW.

The motor car driven by Mr. J. T. Lang was hit by a street cr at the corner of London and George streets at noon today.

Mr. Lang was proceeding north on George street, when he saw another automobile coming south on George much faster than the law allows. Wishing to turn east on London he decided, however, that he could not turn ahead of the on-coming car. He then put on his breaks, but was carried a short distance past the corner. While trying to back up to turn the corner a street car running north struck him on the fender badly damaging the side of his car and loosening his front wheels. The damaged auto was towed away for repairs.

COMBUSTION IN MANURE HEAP ORIGINATES FIRE

BRIGADE CALLED TO EXTINGUISH FLAMES IN REAR OF BYERS' STORE.

Spontaneous combustion in a heap of manure at the rear of Byer's store, Brownton, at noon today, started a fire which might have proven disastrous had it occurred in the middle of the night when all were asleep.

The fire brigade promptly responded to the alarm, and found flames bursting from manure that had lain in a shed at the rear of the stables for a month. Chemicals quickly extinguished the blaze before any material damage resulted.

BOLSHEVIK ARMY IS BEING DRIVEN BACK

MANY SOLDIERS ARE GIVING THEMSELVES UP TO ESCAPE STARVATION

London, July 25.—The Bolshevik army is being driven back to Petrograd by the northern Russian army and Finns. Many Bolshevik troops are turning over to the anti's to save themselves from starvation.

Employes of the Corper Products Co., of Montreal, have gone on strike for 35c per hour.

CHANGES IN MOTOR VEHICLE ACT WHICH ALL AUTOISTS MUST HEED

Amendmenst That Make For Public Safety—Act Will be Strictly Enforced

Citizens will be glad to learn that the Vehicle Act has been amended to make accidents still less frequent. Motorists will do well to notice the following rules, because they are now law, and as such will be enforced:

Every motor vehicle used for commercial purposes must be equipped a mirror securely atached to it and placed [illegible] so as to afford the driver of such motor vehicle while driving or operating the vehicle a clear view of the roadway in the rear and any vehicle which may be approaching in the rear.

No motor vehicle shall be driven upon a highway in a city, town or village at a greater speed than 20 miles per hour nor on any highway outside of a city, town or village at a greater speed than 25 miles an hour nor at any intersection or curve where the driver has not a clear view of the traffic at any reater speed than 10 miles an hour in city, town or villoge or 12½ miles per hour outside a city, town or village. The councils of ony city, town or village may set aside any highway or part thereon on which motor vehicle may be driven at a greater rate of speed for purpose of testingt he same and may pass a bylaw regulating and governing the use of any such highway.

No person shall hire or let for hire a motor vehicle unless the person by whom such motor vehicle is to be driven licened to drive a motor vehicle as required by this act or a person to whom a permit has been issued by sections of this Act or a person to whom a certificate of competency has been issued by the Minister of Public Works and Highways.

Al persons who buy, sell, wreck or otherwise deal in second-hand vehicles shall keep a record of all motor vehicles sold, bought or wrecked shall keep such information as will cause such vehicles to be easily identified and shall transmit weekly to the Department of Public Works and Highways a statement showing all motor vehicles bought, sold or wrecked by him during the week, and such information with reference thereto as may be required by the department.

No persons shall buy, sell or wreck or otherwise deal with any motor vehicle where the manufacturing serial number or identifying mark has been obliterated or defaced or is not readily recognizable.

When any motor vehicle is placed in the possession of any person who buys, sells, wrecks or stores motor vehicles and the same remains in his possession for more than two weeks without good reason, such person shall forthwith at expiration of such period (two weeks) make a report thereof to the Minister of Public Works and Highways.

Bylaws may be passed by the councils of any funicipalities on the conviction of offender or on the order of judge or police magistrate before the conviction is heard a reward of not less than $20 to any person who pursues and apprehends or causes to be apprehended any person stealing a motor vehicle within the municipality. The amount payable shall be in the discretion of the judge or police magistrate, but not exceed the bylaw.

NEATEST AND CLEANEST TOWN IN WHOLE OF CANADA

This Is How A Peterborough Old Boy Characterizes This City.

Mr. J. C. Smith, who was a school teacher her for some eighteen or nineteen years, is in the city on an extended visit from Brantford. He says he likes Brantford very much and that the western end of the province is booming right ahead. On returning to Peterborough he noticed again that our city was one of the neatest, cleanest towns he has ever been to. As he has travelled much this is a boost for Peterborough.

C. B. Thompson, St. Thomas, has been appointed as instructor in manual training for Windsor.

DENY RUMOR OF TROUBLE

Order And Peace Now Said To Prevail In Jugo-Slavia.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, July 25.—Rumors of mutiny and other troubles in Jugo-Slavia were denied officially at Laibach, in Jugo Slavia, acording to a despatch received today from Laibach via Vienna and Basle. The despatch said that it was officially stated that order and tranquility prevail throughout the country.

Eight Liberals Out Of Total Of Nine

WILL BE AT CONVENTION OF PARTY IN AUGUST

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, July 25.—As a result of the defeat yesterday of the Conservative Government of Prince Edward Island Province, eight of the nine Provincial Premiers of Canada, will be delegates, it is expected, in attendance at the National Liberal Convention in Ottawa from August 5th to 7th. All Provincial Parliaments except Ontario, are now Liberal. It is believed that two chairmen will be selected for convention, Premier Quin of Quebec and Premier Murray of Nova Scotia. Regarding the leader to be selected, it is understood that while the Western members will insist on a Western man, Hon. Mr. Fielding seems to be the favorite of the Eastern Liberals.

EXTEND TRADE RESTRICTIONS

Lloyd George Says its Impossible to Give Trade Policy Effect Now.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 25.—It is impossible at present to give legislative effect to the government's trade policy, Premier Lloyd George said today. He suggested that trade restrictions expirin in September should therefore be extended.

MINOR CHANGES IN THE BRIDGE TO BE RATIFIED

The City Council and its Board of Works will meet Monday evening, when minor changes made by the city in the plans for the new bridge will be ratified by Council if approved of by Consulting Engineer Frank Barber.

Busy Next Week.

Next week will probably usher in considerable activity at the approaches to the new bridge.

Mayor Duncan says that numbers of men are applying to him for work but a large percentage of them are men not fit for heavy labor.

The superintendent of the work, or whoever is in charge, is the proper person to apply to.

TEN DAYS ALLOWED TO COMPLETE THEIR WORK

Chief Enumerator, J. F. Strickland has received instructions from the department to the effect that each enumerator is allowed ten days from the date of his appointment to complete his work. As the enumerators in this city were appointed July 22 they will be on duty ten working days from that date. The enumerators in the townships are not yet appointed and the work cannot be completed before August 1 at the earliest.

BELLEVILLE'S SCHOOL RATE.

The board of education of Belleville has asked the city council to provide $66,500 for the high and public schools of the city for the ensuing year. This is an increase of nearly $10,000 over last year, owing to increases in salaries.

RADIALS FOSTER GROWTH OF CITIES

RURAL POPULATIONS DECREASED FOR LACK OF RADIALS, LIGHT AND POWER

While Peterborough Street Railway is named a radial system, its radiation is under a cloud, so to speak. It does not even connect the east with the west and until it does so East City need not look to substantial growth. Ready and cheap transportation is the life of a city and fosters its growth, and radial connection with surrounding villages enhances the prosperity and expansion both the urban hub and its radially-connected communities.

Peterborough Street Railway does not pay, it is declared by Sir Adam Beck. And why? It is mainly an up-and down-town concern of short distances, convenient as a business medium in competition with motor cars and bicycles. It shuts up Sundays, when people dress up and want somewhere to go as well as to church, and it has no suburban recreation spot which workingmen and their families can reach of an evening after working hours. Connection with Chemong would make Chemong popular with the masses and prove an appreciable source of revenue; a feeder to Crawford's Grove, a beautiful spot with a short distance of Peterborough, would carry the people there in crowds during the summer and most likely result in a village springing up at that point. And amusements at Jackson Park should prove magnetical to a pleasure-loving public.

If these propositions are characterized as dreams by some, they were dreamed of at the incipiency of our street railway, when the term "radial" was adopted; and why should they not materialize here as well as elsewhere?, the principle of radial feeders and attractive objective points is applied to all progressive street railway systems, without which many of them would be as much of a financial failure as is Peterborough's railway.

Not only Peterborough, but Ontario has been asleep in regard to the crying need for good roads and radials. The Hydro-Electric Commission and the Legislature are wide awake to this fact and now Mayor Church of Toronto endorses their plans in regard to radials and good roads in the following declaration:

"They are not a luxury, but a necessity. The returns before the war showed that Ontario's rural population had decreased by half a million as a result of the lack of transportation, cheap light and power. Campare rural Ontario with similar districts in Michigan, Ohio and other States where they have good roads and radial systems. What has been the result? They have a series of cities and many villages between urban places and the population thrived."

And these are Ald. Edgar's views also. As chairman of the City's Railways Committee, he is keen on radial railways and expension of the Peterborough system and has every confidence that with business enterprise applied to its management, the system can be made self-sustaining and dividend earning.

OTTAWA MACHINISTS GO BACK TO WORK TODAY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Jul 25.—The machinists strike in this city, which has lasted eleven weeks, collapsed today, when the strikers returned to work on the employers' terms. The men who went back gained none of the points raised and they return to an 'open shop."

WILSON TO TOUR COUNTRY

Before He Presents Anglo-American-Franco Treaty to the Senate.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, July 25.—President Wilson does not now plan to present the defensive treaty with France to the Senate until after he returns from his tour of the country. This statement was made today at the White House.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

FRIDAY, JULY 25, 1919

CIVIC HANDICAPS.

"A CITY THAT IS set on a hill cannot be hid."

Peterborough, like Rome and Lisbon, crowns seven hilltops. Peterborough has seven chances to keep itself in the public eye, unless the citizens obscure the vision by hanging a curtain of privacy around it. The electric sign on the top of the Quaker Oats building can be read for miles by those coming into the city by boat, railway, auto or horse vehicle. Having gone to the expense of producing such a beacon, the directors of that company do not nullify their own enterprise by clapping an inverted bushel measure over the illumination. Neither does the wise man light a candle and put it under the bed.

All of which philosophy, gleaned from the highest existent authority, is an argument in favor of publicity and advertising. The man who starts a business and then declines to take the public into his confidence, will find himself like the city in the valley or the candle light flickering in darkness that might easily be avoided.

FIGHTING THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

PRESIDENT WILSON is not meeting with opposition to his European program from the Senate alone. Leading newspapers in the United States are fighting the adoption of the League of Nations by the Americans. One of the leaders in this revolt against the presidential action is the New York Sun, which, with biting sarcasm, writes of the return of Mr. Wilson to the nation that placed him in the highest office in its gift to resume the discharge of the duties which belong to that position. The Sun prints a clause from the Declaration of Independence, under the heading, "A History and a Prophecy," the object being to institute a comparison between President Wilson and the late George III. The clause reads as follows:

> "He has combined, with others, to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our Constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving assent to their acts of pretended legislation."

Dealing with the return of Mr. Wilson to the United States, the Sun says, editorially:

> The Hon. Woodrow Wilson arrives in the United States after an absence which, with the exception of his brief visit between February 24 and March 5, has lasted since December 4, 1918: seven months and four days.
>
> All Americans will hope that Mr. Wilson, returning at least temporarily to duties to which he was chosen by a people accustomed to seeing their President at the traditional and official post of the Chief Magistrate, finds himself in good health.
>
> If Mr. Wilson should have a reciprocal interest in the well being of the people of the United States we can assure him that, physically, mentally and spiritually it is bully. Not even the indifference displayed by Mr. Wilson toward this country, with which he ultimately confessed he was unable to keep in touch, has made the country indifferent toward his remarkable adventure. Perhaps it has not kept in touch with him, but it has observed him at a clarifying distance, and it has kept in touch with itself.
>
> It would be unfair to expect Mr. Wilson to discover at once, in a day or a week, with eyes that have been focussed on matters almost entirely foreign, the true attitude of America toward himself and the curious policies he has advocated, the humiliating surrender of American sovereignty he has supported, in his attempt to carry out the ambition that is represented in his covenant. It will take time for him to learn the real state of public opinion in a land from which he has been absent so long.
>
> Meanwhile if he has brought back in the George Washington the cadaver of the Fourteen Points or Principles, we suggest that it be sent at once to Barren Island. Nobody knows how long the cool spell will last.

MANAGERS AND OTHERS.

(Toronto Times.)

THE PETERBOROUGH REVIEW believes that many industrial captains are not suited for the task of managing men, and suggests that they are better equipped for driving oxen. In this fact it finds a potent cause of unrest. Another observer may declare with equal reason that the congenital laziness of some workers and the crying incompetence of others is the secret of uneasy relations between Capital and Labor. It is difficult to prove that one side is all-wise and the other all-foolish or that human stupidity has been segregated in the one party. There are managers and foremen who would drive the best mechanic into a state of sullen hostility. There are men at a bench who send the boss daily to his wits' end.

All that can be done is to build for the future on averages; to provide for the welfare of the average worker, and to consider the interest of the average employer. The community, or the State, cannot help the Bourbon manager or the mulish worker. Each is an affliction to his associates, a cause of suspicion and anger, and a drag on progress. The I. W. W. soap box orators declare that all capitalism is robbery. The full-fed Bounderbys complain that all Labor is tyranny. Both are wrong. In Canada the worker and the employe are just People. They come of the same class. They have been educated, generally, in the same public school. They have the same ideals. Each has a passion for a fair deal. Both want to work.

No form of agitation which promises fat idleness for the laboring man can succeed in this country. The people know that all wealth comes from production and that production means intensive work for everyone engaged—from the office boy up to the boss. In Canada there is a hearty contempt for idleness, whether the idler is the short-winded wife of a rich man or an apprentice, "born tired." Bolshevism is a creed of ignorance and laziness. The first I. W. W.'s were tramps and hoboes. Not striking, but working, is the natural activity of Canadians.

We believe that no good can come of any agitation which tends to sow suspicion between employers and employes. In so far as a manager oversteps his prerogative and walks unjustly, to that extent he injures the revival of business. In so far as a worker lies down on the job or defies reasonable authority, to that extent prosperity is delayed. Only by co-operation and forbearance between the classes can the waste of war be replaced, and our immense losses in wealth be repaired.

Of course, we are forced to agree with the Times that there are two sides to this as to every other question, that the fault is not confined to one particular party. But whereas the foreman can make short shrift of the incompetent or indifferent workman, the latter, even if efficient and faithful, is forced to tolerate the man in authority over him, no matter how arbitrary or tyrannical.

GIVE IRELAND A CHANCE.

(Brockville Recorder and Times.)

THE STATEMENT of the matter of home rule for India recalls with emphasis that the long delayed boon for Ireland should be granted. The question of home rule for Ireland is not new. For years that part of the British Empire has been denied the right of self government. Surely no person will contend that Ireland is not as capable of governing itself as India. The fact is patent to any unprejudiced person that the claim of Ireland for the right of self-government is inalienable. That country has proven its genius for government if only given a chance. Designing politicians have deliberately upset the purposes of self-government in Ireland for their own selfish ends. Ireland has suffered long and will continue to suffer perhaps in the cause of freedom. The war was launched against tyranny in its ugliest form. The Allies combatted against the power of might over right. They fought for the rights of the smaller nations, and there is no good reason why the Irish should not be allowed to participate in the principles of the rightful victory so achieved. We in Canada know the results of responsible self-government. True believers in the highest form of democracy are in favor of the Emerald Isle having the right to govern itself. The war has changed many aspects of things and it should prove the pivot in giving to Ireland its rightful position in this world—the boon of responsible government.

NEW HOME RULE SOLUTION.

THE LONDON TIMES suggests as a solution for the Irish problem that two legislatures be established in that country, the one in the north, the other in the south of Ireland. The idea meets with so hearty an approval that the wonder is that no newspaper or statesman ever thought of it before.

The Irish problem, like the temperance question in Ontario, has all these years served its purpose. It has been preserved as a political issue, as a football for the parties to kick around the arena when they require exercise, as a subject of debate in campaign or Parliament, as the occasion arises.

There would be in the Irish situation, as the London Times would have it, nothing more anomalous than in the Canadian Confederation. There would be nothing more, either, suggestive of disruption of the British Empire. Two races in Quebec dwell together in commendable harmony. Two races in Canada outside of that province can live in unity if the agitator can be effaced.

The Home Rule Act, passed in 1913, and which, but for the war, would have been given effect January 1, 1915, excluded Ulster. The people of that section were assured the right to associate themselves with the new order if they elected to do so later. Ulster under such an arrangement would be in the same position as Newfoundland with regard to the rest of the British possessions on this side of the Atlantic. The latch string hangs on the outside of the Federation door. The invitation for Newfoundland to enter the family circle still stands. Because Newfoundland elects to remain apart does not bring upon her the enmity or oppression of the neighboring provinces. Ulster's situation under the order already provided by the British Parliament would be identical with that of the only British colony left in America.

Great Britain is a signatory to the League of Nations, the exalted object of which is to shield the weak and preserve world-wide peace. In this mission England has the co-operation of the greatest nations on earth. That being the case, no difficulty should arise in the matter of preserving domestic harmony. Canada forms an illustration of what may be accomplished in the government of divergent elements of population, that sections legislating apart can still live in peace.

Atlantic City Under Prohibition

(By Benjamin De Casseres.)

Atlantic City is the evidence, ladies and gentlemen, that the American people can grow into decency without the iron mitt."

It was old Sam Gale who emitted this sociological saw. He was at the wheel on his boat, the John E. Melrer II., and we were, on this sizzling July afternoon, making straight for the horizon. Captain Sam Gale is, as any old residenter of Atlantic City can tell you, the whole works at the jetty of the grand fleet of mosquito water fliers at the Inlet. For fifty years he has sailed grandpa, sonny, and grandsonny out over the sand bars, around Brigantine Beach, and down to the White Elephant. His two kid brothers, George and Charley Gale, have boats also, but as they have been only about forty-nine years sailing the seas, Sam thinks they ought still to be playing baseball on the back lots. Since Attorney General Palmer's agents swooped down on Atlantic City and dusted the bars of everything except the 2.75 water sickled o'er with the pale cast of chemicals, the boats of the Gale boys are about the only things thereabouts that are half-seas-over.

At Atlantic City in Summer and at Palm Beach in Winter almost since the birth of both resorts there has been no phase of American life that Captain Sam Gale has not come in contact with. His observations to his audience when he is at the wheel are always "under the skin." He has learned his human lore, like hundreds of seamen, from the hundreds of thousands he has carried in storm and sunshine. It is said that prison and the sea strip the civilized being to the narrow. There is a fundamental huddling instinct in the human soul that floats to the top in cells and boats. The smaller the boat, the greater the trepidation and exchange of confidences. There is a democracy of instinct and action and speech that reduce human beings to their uncoated and unflanneled sleeves. Sam Gale has studied, unconsciously-maybe, the evolution of American manners and morals just in this way for fifty years. And when he makes an observation, it's a private distillery to a glass of goat's milk that it has something in it of the vigor and mathematical precision of the tides and the stars.

The observation quoted above of old Sam squares exactly with what any visitor to Atlantic City for the last thirty years knows. Atlantic City is, par excellence, the representative American city during the months of July and August. Coney Island is essentially New York's. Revere Beach is essentially Boston's. The lake front in Chicago is essentially of the Windy City. The only near rivals of Atlantic City is cosmopolitanism are the Pacific Coast resorts, but the population that feeds the New Jersey city by the sea is probably fifteen times that of the California seaside cities.

Summertime is the period, by common consent, for physiological reasons which would make a nice essay by itself, when the human being relaxes his manners and his morals to the utmost consistent with the most primitive police regulations. Hot weather loosens brakes. And those who remember how loose the brakes were in Atlantic City twenty-five years ago and how they have gradually tightened up without any outside pressure will assent to the truth of Skipper Sam's dictum, that the average American needs no iron mitt—constitutionally fisted or otherwise—to make him decent. And what is true of Atlantic City is true of the whole American people.

"There was a time," said Sam again as the boom swung toward Spain, "when seven out of ten men got on my boat here with flasks in their pockets, and on Sundays the crowds I took out were half loaded before they got on and jagged to the scuppers when I landed them. Within late years, long before they put over prohibition on us, not one passenger in twenty—yes, not one in fifty—that I carry has anything on his hip, and on Sunday I do not carry one intoxicated man or woman in a hundred. Is there any rum on board now?' he asked, negotiating a roller that looked like Davy Jones' own private make.

Chorus: "No!"

"The American people vindicated again!" said Sam, twirling the wheel a la roulette.

Without a doubt. As dead as Bret Harte's West is the America of drinking orgies, open gambling, parading street vice, and all-night corner singing quartets. They've moved into the "movies." The dives that peppered Sixth Avenue, Chatham Square; the Barbary Coast, out in Frisco town; the Levee in Chicago, the Hooligan Midway in the Ninth and Vine Street district of Philadelphia, and the Yoshiwara of Boston are all "pulled" now in million-dollar studios, where "Bill" Hart and "Kitty" Gordon and Dorothy Gish revive for us the "palmy days" when "everything went" and our nights were just one series of high jinks after another. It's like looking at ancient history.

Twenty-five years ago the great attraction in Atlantic City was Schauffler's mammonth beer garden. It was on North Carolina Avenue near the Pennsylvania Railroad station. One the site at present is a near sky-scraping office building. The triumph of the Golden Calf over old man Gambrinus. Schauffler's, with its uniformed military band on the platform in the middle of the garden, was the rendezvous in those days of the gilded youth—sans oxfords and soft collars—of Philadelphia. From 8 P. M. till 2 A. M., and on Sunday mornings till later, wine and beer were guzzled to an extent unknown today, (that is, before the 1st of July). Everything went in those days, as it did at Coney Island and Gloucester. Hotel registers were bourgeois. To get up before noon meant that you worked for a living. A vacation in Atlantic City was a spree or a debauch that lapped over into the return home.

"My boat was a regular psychopathic ward in those days," said the Captain as we swung around toward home opposite the big Steel Pier.

It was not many years ago that Atlantic Avenue, the Broadway of Atlantic City, "went" all night. It was a decayed and seedy Paris, with its organs, bands, wheezy wind instruments, and chemical soubrettes. Every kind of "game" flourished openly. There was the swell brace man from New York or Philadelphia, the little tin-horn and the barroom gambler, who would throw dice for hats.

The Boardwalk south of the Casino was given over to the dives, music halls, and gimmills. Vice flourished openly. Doyle's, Gouvenatur's, and Flanagan's razzledazzle—ask any visitor of those day to Atlantic City and he will make a grimace of disgust. Curious thing, everybody looked on at this abominable mixture of a tin-horn Monte Carlo, a Whitechapel Moulin Rouge, and West Street ginmill with good humor and complacency.

Further up the Boardwalk, beyond the Casino, where the "elite" were corralled, the orgies in some of the oceanfront hotels were gilded and painted to look like "recreation," but beneath they were as bad, and even worse, than those on the southern side of the Casino.

America was loose and untained, the rowdy among the nations, and Atlantic City was, as it is today, its faithful mirror. But it is another reflection we Americans get today if we look at ourselves in that mirror. There has been no "clean-up," no raids, no violent spasm toward virtue. For New Jersey is, as we all know, a Peck's Bad Boy among the forty-eight. She believes in personal liberty to the limit. When Philadelphia closes up, Camden always makes the signal of radiant hospitality, as Jersey City and Newark do to the thirsty Sunday morning Manhattanite. New Jersey will have nothing to do with amendments to anything. She will not take orders from the outside. Her nickname is "Spain." She is only in the Union on condition. She ratifies her own likes and nothing more. But if "Jersey lightning" describes her impenitent Rabelaisian morals "Jersey justice" also asks you to take notice. Try to get anything over on her because she's easy, and you'll find yourself a member of the Warden's circulation library.

Atlantic City is now the spick-and-span city of the country. She is clean without being puritanical, she is "open" without hypocrisy, she is pleasure-loving to her last resident inhabitant without being noisy or vulgar; in a word, she is what the American has today become and would become to a much higher degree if the uplifters, the bigots, the kill-joys, and the water souses could be persuaded to deport themselves to some sanctimonious Utopia at the other end of anywhere.

If New York is "Bagdad-on-the-Subway," Atlantic City is Bagdad-by-the-Sea—a colorful, decorous, quiet Bagdad, a poised and restrained Bagdad. Pleasure is here now more of a purely mental and emotional state than a purely boisterous physical state, as of old. The giant carrousel at South Carolina Avenue and the Boardwalk, which was packed at night with bejeweled and bejaded Fashion, is long no more; in its place has come the rolling chair, where one reads, sews, converses, or stares and evaporates in the eternal mystery of the sea.

The symphony concerts on the piers have taken the place of the loud-mouthed soubrettes and the horror of the nerve-shattering tomtom. The Broadwalk book-stores are crowded, and in their windows one reads the names of Tolstoy, Thomas Hardy, Galsworthy, Conrad, Freud, and Schopenhauer. And these books are bought, read and discussed on the pavilions and in the hotels.

South Atlantic City was never "cleaned up" it just evolved. People got sick of the moral stench. The nostril is great progressive. For miles today this Midway of the East is lined with shops, Japanese ring games, and, at the very worst, the chop-suey garden. The "dives" have given way to great bath-houses. It is hard to find a beer sign down there, although licenses in Atlantic City may be had for the asking. The people simply don't care much about it—but they want it when they want it; and that's another tale.

The morning dip; the yacht, automobile, or airplane ride in the afternoon ;the rolling chair with your "home paper," (From Vancouver to Tampa,) the symphony concert, the "movie" or the promenade in the evening; bed at midnight or before—that is the life in America's great cosmopolitan resort today. Always avid of novelty, the Boardwalk would be taken off its feet if it ever saw a "drunk" along that ten mile promenade. It is as rare a sight as a prohibitionist spendthrift.

"Mans 'a curious cuss," said Captain Sam over his seidel of beer at the Inlet pavilion. "Leave him alone and he'll go decent; rough-house him and he'll back-slide. I fear for a 'dry' Atlantic City. They'll begin to hanker for the old things—maybe."

"Don't believe it, Sam," said Charley Gale, throwing in his soda-pop with one jerk of the arm; "the countrys gone dead sane, and for that reason, take it from me, that Eighteenth Amendment was dead before it was born. The country doesn't need to be told what to do and what not to do—it's doin' it."

7% Cumulative Redeemable Sinking Fund Preferred Shares

The Preferred Shares are redeemable in full at par July 1st, 1941, or in full or in part at any prior date, after July 1st, 1922, either by drawings at 110 or in the open market at a price not in excess of 110. The Preferred dividend accumulates from 15th July, 1919, and will be payable quarterly 1st days of January, April, July and October. A sinking fund of 2 per cent. per year on the Preferred Share issue will be established commencing 1st July, 1921. Said Preference Shares are issued upon the condition that the Company covenants that no Mortgages, Bonds or Debentures will be issued by it having priority over the said Preference Shares excepting with the sanction of the holders of not less than two-thirds of the said Preference Shares for the time being issued and outstanding. It will thus be seen that the Preference Shares are practically the equivalent of First Mortgage Sinking Fund Bonds.

MONEY OF U.S. EVENLY DIVIDED WOULD YEILD SMALL INCOMES

Only $71 a Year for Every Man, Woman and Child in the Country, Far Less Than Sufficient to Live on

Persons in favor of a strict division of national or international wealth are usually rather dreamy in their consideration of the matter, and as a usual thing cherish in their minds the thought that such a division of spoils would bring them all up to the level of the very rich whom they profess to despise.

It is generally conceded that the United States has great wealth in proportion to its population than any other country. And yet if wealth were divided equally in the United States the individuals coming into possession of their proper share would not be able to live lives of leisure or even partial leisure.

Take it, then, that everything went smoothly in the industrial revolution that production was as usual and there was no loss of effort to be compensated for. Then consider the wealth of the country in relation to its population.

According to an estimate of the wealth of the United States made in 1912, the total was $187,789,071,090. The kinds of wealth included in this estimate were as follows: Real property both taxed and exempt), farm implements and machines, live stock, gold and silver (coin and bullion) manufacturing machines, tools etc., railroads and equipments.

This constituted one group with a total value of $143,139,573,114. The next group of properties included street railways, telephones, Pullman and other cars, shippings canals, irrigation enterprises, privately owned power stations. All these properties were valued at $10,265,207,321.

All other property, including agricultural products, manufacturing products, mining products and personal clothing, furniture ornaments, carriages etc. was valued at $34,334,290,655.

It may be surprising to many of us to know that the value of the live stock in the United States was more than 100 million dollars in excess of the value of manufacturing machinery, tools, etc. Clothing and personal ornament item amounted to 2½ billion dollars, and furniture, carriages, etc., to more than twice this amount.

According to the last census the population of the United States in 1918 was 105,118,467.

If a simple division of property were made on a basis of these figures, which are the best obtainable, it would give to every man, woman and child property to the amount of $1,785.98.

This, of course, is a great deal more than most of us possess, but we could not hurry off and spend it to have a good time or replenish our wardrobe or refurnish our apartments.

It would have to be conserved in order that public utilities might be conducted, the helpless cared for, etc. No one could live on the interest of this sum, as it would only amount to $71.43 a year at 4 per cent. and would not be paid under a universal division form of government.

No one could wallow in luxury on $71 a year. And then, besides, perhaps no interest would be paid.

On the whole, an earnest investigation of general finances, worked out with the help of the almanac, does not seem to bring forth hopes that most of us will die rich, even if the industrial revolution arrives and succeeds in 'turning them out as has and giving to them as hasn't'"

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieves the Ailments of Change of Life.

"During Change of Life I had hot flashes, dizzy spells and every month I was wild with misery I had a constant dull pain, and would always feel tired. I suffered in this way for five or six years and was treated by a physician and took different remedies without benefit. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me and I took it, and I believe I would never have been well if it had not been for the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I am recommending your medicine to all women ailing as I was, for I think it will carry them safely through the Change of Life, and relieve the ailments that come at that period."—Mrs. ALEXIE C. NANGLE, Galatia, Ill.

Women who suffer from nervousness, "heat flashes," backache, headaches, and "the blues," should try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and if complications exist write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their 40 years' experience in such cases is at your service.

"Wait and See."

Bolshevist propaganda at home is quite different from that which the Bolshevist foreign office sends to other countries. In Russia its purpose is, according to the most recent samples, to create enmity against capitalism, constitutional methods of government and all forms of thought in Russia that are opposed to bolshevism. Great Britain and America are described as on the verge of upheaval, with the Labor leaders of the past steadily losing power and the Bolshevist leaders of the present steadily gaining. The Bolshevist army is reported to have conquered Germany, and to be engaged in battle with the armed forces of the rest of the world, which it is defeating. The underlying thought that the propaganda for home consumption carries is that all goes well with bolshevism; that it is conquering the world; and that, even if things do not look so rosy at home, the people have only to wait a little longer and complete victory will prove that bolshevism is the solution of every social trouble. The people, in fact, have only to wait and see what they will see. Whether or not they will see what they are promised is quite another matter.

MINISTER OF EDUCATION CODY EXPLAINS EDUCATIONAL PLANS

Has a Long Article in New York Sun Dealing With Policy in Regard to the Ontario Schools.

Hon. Dr. Cody, Minister of Education, has written for the New York Sun a detailed statement of his educational program for this province, and the article is published in the Sun with three-column prominence. By way of introducing Dr. Cody to its readers, the Sun prints the following sketch of his life:

Hon. H. J Cody, D.D., LL.D., Minister of Education for Ontario, who contributes the following article to the Canadian section of the Sun on the present educational situation in Ontario, is one of the outstanding of the younger statesmen of the Dominion. Dr. Cody has been a conspicuous success in the church life of his province, and is one of the few cases of a minister of the Gospel leaving his pulpit to enter Parliament. As a matter of fact, he has not left the pulpit altogether, being still rector and sometimes preacher at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Bloor street, Toronto, one of the foremost churches of the city, and which has been brought to its present high state of success from very small beginnings by Dr. Cody himself.

Dr. Cody, who is a native of Oxford County, Ontario, has singular gifts of oratory and personality. When he became Minister of Education about a year ago much was expected of him, as he took over a run down department, regarding which there was much agitation and discontent. His plans for betterment were long in abeyance, but in the session of the Legislature recently closed he announced new policies which have attracted much attention, and to which reference is made in the following article.

Dr. Cody's Article.

In the earlier days of the war the term "reconstruction" was used to express a return to the conditions of July, 1914. The practical tasks of reconstruction were the two related problems of demobilization and restoration—how to get men as quickly as possible from their war positions in the army or in industry back into their old niches in civil life, and how to free employers and employed from the restrictions and control of war with a view to restoring the methods of the past. But as time went on and the deeper lessons of the struggle were being impressed on men's souls, the word "reconstruction" took on a deeper meaning. Men sought for more than a simple return to pre-war conditions. There grew the ideal of a better world after the war. By war achievements there was developed an enlarged sense of what is possible and a quickened sense of what is just. Not the old conditions, but better conditions for all, is the aim of a true reconstruction.

The basis of reconstruction is the conservation and development of our human resources. All plans for commerce, industry, agriculture — all plans for the general utilization of our material wealth depend upon the intelligence and character of the people. Reconstruction is thus inextricably bound up with the broad subject of education.

Lessons of the War.

The importance of education has received fresh illustration from the world cataclysm of war. We have seen on a colossal scale the power of education over the souls and the minds of men. It has been able to poison the spring of national life, to change and degrade national ideals, to minister to monstrous vanity and egotism. Education, applied with persistence and pedantic pertinacity, is the most formidable instrument in the modern world for the control of conduct and the molding of purpose. We have seen also that the application of science to industry and commerce can enormously develop the markets of a nation and increase its wealth.

Technical and industrial education is a necessity if a country is to hold its own in world competition. Nothing but the best product sold and pushed in the most effective way, can win a world market. This best product can be secured only by the best management and the most skilled labor, and these once more are linked with education. We have accepted as one of the aims of the war the making of the world safe for democracy. We believe that this on the whole is the noblest and safest form of government. But we equally realize that if the world is to be safe under democracy, then democracy must be intelligent. Of all forms of government, democracy can least afford to neglect universal education.

Especial Value of Children

All educationalists, indeed all thoughtful people, have long since recognized that the most effective service to the State can be rendered through the education and care of the young. Early formation is better than later re-formation; prevention is better than cure. It is easier to train the child aright than to restore the adult. The age of the rights of man was succeeded by the age of the "rights of women." Now we are living in the age of the "rights of children." Chief among their rights is the right to a sound education. But the appalling losses of our choice young men in these recent years have further enhanced the value of the present generation of children.

War and influenza between them so writes the medical correspondent of the London Times, have accounted for the deaths of 18,000,000 young men throughout the world. The children of today deserve special educational care, both because of their added obligations, through the passing of so many of the world's young manhood and because of the altered world into which they will grow up. The state must therefore discharge its duty to the full, no matter what the cost, toward the conservation of the child. This means not only the preservation of life but the best use of life and the fullest development of native gifts.

Broader Meaning of Education

We construe education to mean more than the imparting of knowledge and the training of the mind. Its broad scope covers bodily health and fitness, mental culture, devotion of spirit and social efficiency. The German educationalists thought of civilization in terms of intellect; the British, in terms of character. Which ideal is the safer and worthier, history has already pronounced.

Efficiency in itself is no more moral than lightning. From what motive does it spring? To what aim is it directed? The proper place of efficiency is as the servant of a moral ideal. Apart from such an ideal efficiency may be an evil and wicked instrument which in the end works woeful disaster. In the early days of the war, the organized efficiency of Germany, brutal and immoral, was hammering at the doors of human civilization and had almost beaten them down. But the free peoples held the enemy down until their moral ideals could evoke their own efficiency and form of organization. When this was accomplished the end was in sight.

Our educational activities must serve various purposes. They will cultivate the mind by liberal studies and aim to produce a trained intelligence. They will inculcate moral and patriotic ideals. They will also seek in some degree to prepare the pupil for his life work. His training will be both practical and theoretical. During the past year we have had to contend with many disturbing influences, but notwithstanding these interruptions much has been accomplishel.

Several acts for the improvement of the education system were introduced during the last session of the Legislature. These acts contain many new features which have been brought out from the standpoint of the child. The right of the child to a full development for service has been recognized, and provision has been made in the legislation brought down to create opportunities for such development.

Amendment to School Laws

Prominent among the enactment introduced are:

1. An act to amend the school laws.
2. An act respecting compulsory school attendance.
3. An act respecting consolidated schools.
4. An act respecting the school attendance of adolescents.

The amendments to the school laws provide for new features which have been found necessary to advance the welfare of the pupils attending the schools of the Province. Arrangements have been made for medical and dental inspection in the public and separate schools. The results thus far accomplished by the doctors and nurses entrusted with this work have amply demonstrated the wisdom of the course adopted.

The act respecting compulsory school attendance provides that every child in the Province of Ontario between 8 and 14 years of age shall attend school for the full term during which the school of the section or municipality in which he resides is open each year, unless excused for reasons which may be deemed sufficient for his non-attendance.

The act respecting consolidated schools provides that agreements may be entered into for the consolidation of school sections composed of portions of townships and incorporated villages, or for the consolidation of any of these with any of the other. There agreements shall be proved by the rate payers in each section, and of any village or union school section or provisional school section as set forth in the act.

In the act respecting the school attendance of adolescents new ground has been broken. After a careful survey of the whole question I concluded that it was in the best interests of the youth of the Province to extend the period of compulsory education. I felt that the need for the most complete possible service form every individual was at this time more urgent than ever and that there was a growing necessity for continuing the education of the youth in order to get full value for the money spent on his elementary training. Space does not permit of an exhaustive analysis of this act. Suffice it to say that two plans have been adopted by different countries for the extension of the period of compulsory education of the youth beyond 14 years of age:

(1) To provide for compulsory full time education beyond the period of 14 years age.

(2) To provide for part time education.

The aim of this act is to combine the essential features of these two plans in so far as they are applicable to Ontario under present conditions.

To Keep up High Standard

Never in the history of the Province has the demand for advancement along education lines been so persistent. Realizing that in the main those demands were just, I determined to meet the growing requirements by providing an adequate means whereby the youth of our country would be able to obtain the education training which would best prepare him for the particular vocation to which he might aspire.

The Province of Ontario has a historic system of education. It was a pioneer in education organization and extended the benefits of free elementary teaching to every child in the community. It is Ontario's ambition to keep her traditional position of primacy in all sane educational advance. The achievements of Canadian soldiers—half of whom came from this province—bear witness to the high standard of intelligence among the youth of our land. Our aim is to keep this standard high—to train up a generation strong in body, disciplined in mind, skilled in hand, honest and reverent in soul—worthy citizens of this fair land.

"Education," as Mr. H. A. L. Fisher has well said, "is the eternal debt which maturity owes to youth," we are seeking to pay this debt as generously as we can. For who can estimate the capacity and influence of a nation of thoroughly well educated, well disciplined men and women?

BEER INTOXICATING.

With Two and Three-quarter Alcoholic Content, Is Ruling.

New York, July 25.—Beer of 2.75 per cent alcoholic content is held to be intoxicating within the meaning of the war-time Prohibition Act in a decision returned by Federal Judge Thomas I. Chatfield, of Brooklyn, in a test case brought by the government against Martin Schauber, of New Haven, Conn., who was charged with selling beer in violation of the war-time prohibition law.

PREMIER BACK THIS WEEK.

Ottawa, July 25.—According to advices received, the Prime Minister may not be back in Ottawa till the end of next week. He is now spending a few days at Murray Bay on the St. Lawrence.

J. H. Cheaney, Stoney Creek, was found dead in a field, having bled to death from an old blood poisoning wound.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

JOHN D. ROCKFELLER IN HIS YOUTH ASPIRED TO BE A SKILLED MUSICIAN

Tackled the Piano But Failed Dismally and Then Took to the Oil Business.

New York, July 25.—When John D. Rockefeller was a little boy oil meant nothing to him. It is to be assumed that he knew it was something the women folk put into lamps, but his interest was entirely passive. He decided that he'd become a musician. Whereupon he selected the piano as the medium through which he would hand the world his genius.

He attacked the Rockefeller piano with vigor, six hours each day that defenceless instrument was subjected to the whims and fancies of young John, until finally Mother Rockefeller took a hand. Mr. Rockefeller admitted yesterday that the result of the daily sessions drove his mother crazy. He added that he in turn was driven out of the house and that his mother was the persuader.

Decided to Leave Art

Thus baffled John D. decided to leave art flat. Whether to spite his family or because he had to go to bed in the dark by way of punishment he decided to go into the wholesale oil business—and look what happened! It's enough to make anybody hate music. Think what might have happened to Bobby Edwards if his mother had been firm about ukeleles.

But, as startling as these facts are, they become puny by comparison with secrets about the Rockefeller life that follow. Eddie Goldman's fifty piece New York Military Band (estimates cheerfully furnished for weddings, dances outings and private parades, etc.—advt.) were the guests of Mr. Rockefeller yesterday, and just to be a good fellow Eddie induced the gang to play a few selections. They held forth in jazz and the classics until Mr. Rockefeller and his family were entirely satisfied that Eddie was there, and then their host regaled them wih facts that will immediately be appropriated by every Socialist in the country for the fall campaign.

Eddie's men were a bit at odds about Mr. Rockefeller's precise words but they were unanimous in their statements that he let fall the fact that not only is oil good for lamps and machines but it is one of the principal reasons for his living to be eighty years old. Mr. Rockefeller drinks it.

Secret of Oil Price Rising

Next fall the radicals are going to dig up this fact and insist that here, at last, is the reason for any increase that may come to pass in the price of oil. They may neglect to specify that it is olive oil, but a sincere Bolshevist is not going to quibble about nonessential facts when fundamentals are the issue.

Mr Rockefeller told his audience that his health was juvenile and that this spoonful of olive oil mixed with nine holes of golf daily were wholly responsible.

"Yes," chortled Mr. Rockefeller as he shook Eddie's hand, "and I hope you live to be eighty and be well, and I hope you live to be ninety and be well. And then I hope you live to be one hundred and then you will just begin to live, for that's what I expect to do."

You can see for yourself what the socialists are going to do with that sort of stuff as an aspiration.

Then the oil king told Eddie and his fifty piece New York Military Band about the piano and Mother Rockefeller.

"I have loved music always," he said. "I never could understand, though how a man could make notes and write music without playing the instrument."

Whereat the earnest lad who plays the bass drum for Eddie knocked the assemblage cold as follows:

"And believe us, Mr Rockefeller we wish we could make the notes you make."

When order was restored the band played "Onward Christian Soldiers." At Mr. Rockefeller's request they played "Smiles."

"You see," he declared. "I'm up to date. I like to be with grandchildren growing up."

STYLE IN GLASSES

There's new and correct things in Glasses, just as there are in dress. At present the very newest and most popular style in glasses are the shell rims. They are made to suit every kind of lens, but are largely intended to be used on the large cut lenses. They are rich and handsome looking. Dr. Fowler has a large selection of them.

CANADIAN HENLEY AT ST. CATHARINES TODAY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

St. Catharines, July 25.—The contestants are all here for the Canadian Henley which opens on the old Welland Canal, this afternoon. The weather is excellent this morning, course is in good condition and the oarsmen who made trial trips today expressed the hope of being able to break many rowing records.

Sam Brown, alias Sam Blume, was arrested in Sydney, N.S., charged with stealing $6,000 worth of diamonds.

WONDERFUL WATER ELECTRIC DISPLAY

MOST BEAUTIFUL, REALISTIC AND GORGEOUS EFFECTS EVER SEEN

And still they go, in hundreds, every evening to Polack Bros.' Big Shows. Instead of waning in attraction, as most similar tented combinations do, this aggregation of entertainment and exhibits grows day by day in popularity.

A Thing of Beauty.

The La Rose Electric Fountain easily predominates as being the leading and most elaborate attraction of the Polack Bros. 20 Big Shows, which are exhibiting here all this week. The public cannot realize the beauty and magnitude of this wonderful outdoor attraction and how it can be carried from city to city, so quickly constructed and made ready for operation at the opening performance.

The fountain is the invention of George La Rose, who has spent almost a lifetime perfecting this creation and it is the prize of the owner, Mr. I. J. Polack. It is the only one of its kind ever presented by a carnival company. It is a wonderful water, electric and pyrotechnical display, a massively constructed structure of iron and cement, and is operated by electricity and hydraulic power. It requires an extreme force of water to bring out the mystifying effects.

Three women add to the beauty of the production and a concert band is used to accompany the rhyth of water as it flows in many colors over the forms of the living statues. The performers appear in the very midst of a rolling, tumbling, tumultuous water cascade on a hydraulicly operated stage, producing the most beautiful realistic and georgeous effects from water and electricity imaginable. The performance is finished with a display of fireworks which are exploded from within the fountain while the water is following in full force.

New Riding Device.

Another large crowd was in evidence last evening and the many new and novel attractions which decorated the Midway were well patronized. "Over the Falls," a new riding device, is one of the chief joy rides on the Midway. Barrels of fun is in store for those who seek the sensational trip over the falls.

Everything that goes to make up an attractive and interesting Midway is represented, the pink lemonade, peanuts, popcorn, chewing gum and the well-known "hot dogs," which takes all hours as a quick lunch around a circus. The shows will close their engagement in this city tomorrow.

VERA IS GIVEN SHORT TERM AT JAIL FARM

FRIEND OF LATE FRANK McCULLOUGH PLEADS GUILTY IN COURT.

Toronto, July 25.—Pleading guilty to escaping from custody, Vera de Laveile was sentenced to two months in the Jail Farm on that charge and a similar sentence was imposed on her by Judge Coatsworth on the charge of aiding and abetting Frank McCullough to escape. The terms are to run concurrently, thus the girl will spend only two months at the institution. She promised His Honor that she would not try to escape.

Less than a dozen people were in court when the girl was arraigned. There were only two of her friends present.

After reading out the charge of escaping from custody to her, His Honor asked her what she pleaded and Mr. W. H. Horkins replied "Guilty."

Addressing the woman, Judge Coatsworth then said: "I have considered the circumstances connected with this case and I don't feel that I ought to impose a very heavy sentence, poor McCullough is gone. The thing is all over and I suppose you have suffered a good deal in connection with it in one way or the other, so I am going to impose a sentence of two months at the Jail Farm on each case, that of escaping from custody and that of aiding McCullough to escape. The sentences will run concurrently."

Payments in pensions to disabled Canadian soldiers and dependents amounted to $21,983,160, for 14 months.

The organization of a Personal Liberty League in Chatham is not an improbability, and it is understood a large number of prominent citizens will be behind the movement.

VOLCANIC JAVA.

The Place Where "Hell Blew the Lid Off."

The recent eruption of the Klot (or Kalut) volcano in Java cost 40,000 native lives, destroyed 20[illegible] acres of crops, principally rice, by its flow of hot mud, and did millions of dollars' worth of damage by the falling ashes in regions outside the devastated districts.

Volcano-made in the first place and constantly being remade by them, Java has more volcanoes than any area of its size in the world. Estimates of the active and extinct craters range from 100 to 150. Everywhere in Java, in the huge crater lakes, in fissures that now are river beds, even in ancient temples half finished when interrupted by some fiery convulsion, are evidences of cataclysmic forces—such turbulent forces as now are in continuous hysteria in the Valley of the Ten Thousand Smokes in Alaska and burst their crusted surface cage intermittently in Java.

The "treacherous Klot," as the natives call it, all but wiped out the town of Britar, but even its devastation, as reported to the State Department, was mild compared to the violent upheaval of Krakatoa in 1883. Then Mother Nature turned anarchist and planted a Gargantuan infernal machine on the doorstep of Java. Krakatoa is a little island in the Sunda Strait, between Sumatra and Java. Australians, as far from the explosion as New York is from El Paso, heard the terrific detonation; more than half the island was blotted out, parts of it were flung aloft four times as high as the world's highest mountain, and to touch bottom below the water's surface, where most of the island had been, henceforth required a plumb line twice as long as the height of the Washington monument. Skyscraper waves flooded adjacent islands and rolled half way around the earth. Every human ear-drum heard, though it may not have registered, the air waves as they vibrated three or four times around the earth.

Krakatoa levied a smaller toll in human life than Klot, because of its isolation, and many of the 35,000 deaths from Krakatoa's eruption were at far distant points by drowning.

"Naturally the native religion is fatalistic. A free translation of an inscription on an old tomb runs:

> "What is the use of living, of kissing lovely flowers,
> If, though they are beautiful, they must soon fade into nothing."

In the native folklore are innumerable stories of the earth opening up to swallow a dancing girl. Such tales betoken another physical feature of the island fraught with human tragedy. Not only has it steaming vents, spouting geysers, sulphur lakes, but great chasms open and close, and they have been known to swallow villages.

Founding of Siberia.

In 1582 Yermak, a Cossack chieftain, with chosen warriors set out to subdue a powerful Tartar tribe east of the Urals. Tsar Ivan IV sent orders for the expedition to return. But it was too late: Yermak and his men captured the city of Sibir, the stronghold of the Tartar chief, and this city become the nucleus of Siberia.

POPULAR MOVIE STAR AT GRAND MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY.

A smashing climax involving Mae Marsh in a decidedly different role is the feature of the star's newest Goldwyn Picture, "The Bondage of Barbara," which comes to the Grand Theatre Monday Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Marsh in boy's clothes climbs up to the attic of a roadhouse, where her brother is kept a prisoner. He has been placed there by the men responsible for a theft, which Barbara has paid for with a year of her life in the reformatory. She takes her brother's place and induces him to go to the district attorney and explain everything.

When his captors find her they seek to hurry her out of the place. It is then that Miss Marsh puts up a fight such as will amaze the admirers of the erstwhile portrayer of altogether feminine types. She proves a match for the two men, her struggle being brought to an end only by the arrival of those cognizant of her plan to bring the criminals to justice.

AT THE GRAND

"That Devil Bateese," a picture play of strength and tragic vim was shown at the Grand last night. It's the sort of a picture that can thrill you to your heart's content but it can do more than thrill. It can draw back the curtain and afford a glimpse of a phase of life that could hardly be visioned even by the most vivid imagination. Rebellion, love, romance, these are the moving forces in this play and throughout the entire depiction one is being unconsciously influenced in favor of human nature, a faith that is precious in this sceptical age.

The main object of the story seems to point to the fact that the root of all contention and hard feeling among people is purely misunderstanding, that once the deep wells of understanding are unlocked, once the "put yourself in his place" idea gets full play, hatred and petty quarrelling is impossible. The production has a certain historic merit that is well intermingled throughout the scenes, interwoven with humor and thrills. This part of the play educates without imposing. In fact nowhere in the play does anything impose on the intelligence—a strong point in a production of this kind. It's realistic, It's alive, It's highly strung, with a note of strong, genuine feeling, that, here and there surges up to the summit of intensity and yet is pleasing in its very simplicity. So thoroughly do the artists live ther parts so beautifully real and unconscious is their interpretation of the different characters, that one almost forgets it's the make believe. The central artists around whom the story revolves, possess great depth of charm and magnetism, and such poise that they can be unspeakably serious in the midst of the most ridiculous situations, making the thing more laughable still. They certainly are clever pretenders.

One beautiful feature of the program is the perfect shading of the music tone, to harmonize with the picture. In the first place the music is the best of its class. When the scene is noble or classic the music expresses the same sentiment and expresses it well. On the other hand, if the scene depicted is of the jazz type the music is the same, but it is good jazz, perfect as to technique and tone and well blended with the thought of the picture. Those who delight in a production of quiet elegance will be a little disappointed in "Some Bride." It's atmosphere is not by any means quiet, although it does attain to a certain elegance by sheer force of originality and those who like this kind of thing will find it is just the kind of thing they like. It is full of a rollicking humor, that can make fun out of situations fantastic and otherwise. Viola Dana, the star of "Some Bride," is extremely pretty and charming, but one can't help but feel angry at her for the way she provokes her gentlemanly serious-going husband, almost driving him to desperation sometimes.

STAR OF "PLAYTHINGS" COMING IN NEW PLAY

FRITZI BRUNETTE TO APPEAR IN BLUEBIRD'S "THE VELVET HAND."

Fritzi Brunette, whose sincere dramatic work thrilled the thousands who saw "Playthings," is starring at the Grand Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in a Bluebird photodrama that will lilt life's symphony on your heartstrings.

It is called "The Velvet Hand," and is a story of an Italian peasant girl who swore the oath of the vendetta to kill the man who slew her brother.

How she found a great love in the brambles of life and how she changed her oath at the last minute forms the theme of this delightful photodrama.

Fritzi Brunette was not known as a Bluebird star before "Playthings" was filmed. Now she has a sincere friend in every person who saw her dramatic revelation of a woman's soul.

Her personal charm and drawing power is greatly enhanced in "The Velvet Hand" by the sterling dramatic worth of the play.

NEW ABBEY BELLS.

Symbolic Chimes Will Be Heard at Westminster.

The King and Queen, accompanied by Princess Mary, visited Whitechapel recently to take part in the ceremony of the casting of the first of the new bells for Westminster Abbey.

A donor who remains anonymous has arranged for a general restoration of the Westminster Abbey bells, and in the process of refitting the peal it has been discovered that the casting of four new bells will be necessary. For this purpose the metal of one old bell will be used but the other three are to be made from entirely new metal, and it was for the purpose of witnessing the casting of the first of these that their Majesties and the princess went to Whitechapel. They were attended by Major Reginald Seymour, and were received by representatives of the casting firm, Bishop Ryle (Dean of Westminster), Mrs Ryle, Mr. Knapp-Fisher, (Receiver General of the Abbey), and Mrs. Knapp-Fisher. The works were visited in their normal condition, and all ceremony was dispensed with.

The foundry honored by the royal visit was that of Messrs. Mears & Stainbank in the Whitechapel road. These founders have had a continuous existence in Whitechapel since 1570 (and the present premises have been occupied since 1738. Their Majesties examined with much interest the remains of a bell which was cast at the works in 1594 for Staplehurst, in Kent, and which was sent back for recasting three hundred years later. Pieces of metal were shown upon which the name and trade mark of the original head of the foundry, one Robert Bott, were cast, and it was pointed out that the present day productions had exactly similar marking except for the necessary alteration of initials. In answer to an inquiry by the King it was stated that there was now no Mears and no Stainbank, although the old name was retained. In one part of the works there were displayed a couple of bells which were reputed to have been rung from a London steeple in celebration of the defeat of the Spanish Armada.

The restored peal may properly be termed Westminster Abbey's peace bells, and one of them is named "Pax." The bell of which the royal visitors were to witness the casting is to replace one which will be preserved by the Abbey authorities as a relic of peace year.

When the royal party arrived all was in readiness for the casting ceremony, and they took their stand in the centre of the foundry surrounded by the workmen. A mould made from a mixture of loam and fireclay, was placed in position and over it was lowered the outer casting into which the molten metal was to be poured. Four crucibles filled with bell metal were ready for the operation, and when the contents had been carefully skimmed to remove all impurities, the liquid metal was poured into the receiver. The Queen and Princess Mary had expressed a wish to take some actual part in casting, and for their benefit two small moulds had been prepared near to that for the great bell and taking ladies of the same metal they filled their moulds, each casting one bell. These small bells when finished will be sent to her Majesty and to her Royal Highness as mementoes of their visit.

The King's Peace Bell bears the inscription "The Lord of Hosts is with us." Another of the four new bells is to be named "Truth," and will be inscribed "There is none other that fighteth for us." The treble or smallest bell will be named "Faith," and its inscription is to be "Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory." The fourth bell, to be named "Pax" will be recast from an existing Abbey bell as already stated.

Their Majesties were asked to permit a photograph of themselves to be taken with the bell as a foreground, and when they had taken their positions the King remarked: "But we are not to be here alone. The workmen are much more important than we are, seeing that they have made the bell." Some of the principal workmen then joined the group, but the Queen noticing that others were left out beckoned to each, and asked that all might be included.

As the King and Queen left the spot where the Peace Bell had been cast they noticed a number of small bells suspended on a sort of screen, and a workmna, taking a beater, played upon these a number of musical selections.

Sleepless Eyes.

All fishes which sleep do so with their eyes open, as they are not provided with eyelids, and cannot, therefore, close their eyes. From experiments made it was discovered that some fishes have no preference for the night time, but sleep equally well during the day, says a writer in the Post-Intelligencer of Seattle.

They may be observed resting quite motionless for periods, apparently in sleep, except that, having no eyelids, they are unable to close their eyes to exclude all influences from without.

The hare also sleeps with its eyes open, for the simple reason that its eyes are unprovided with eyelids. Instead of these there is a thin membrane which with certain birds folds like a curtain in the corner of the eye, and, by an instantaneous action, flies back when sight is required, leaving the eye immediately and fully open for the exercise of sight.

Some birds, such as the eagle, also have this membrane, which, when at rest, lies in the corner of the eye, folded up like a drawn curtain.

LACROSSE PLAYERS ARE REINSTATED

REGISTRATION COMMITTEE ONTARIO BRANCH A.A.U. OF C. DISPOSES OF APPLICATIONS.

Toronto, July 24.—The applications for reinstatement of lacrosse players who took part in the O.A.L.A. series have been finally disposed of by the Registration Committee of the Ontario Branch, A.A.U. of C.

The following players who took part in less than two games and have been out of all sports for a period of one year were recommended as being extenuating cases of the O.A.L.A., and under these conditions the Registration Committee passed on those recommended by the lacrosse association, and they are now eligible to take part in all recognized amateur athletics.

The following are the applications approved:

St. Catharines players—Corby Richards, George Crow, John Wiley, J. C. Immel A. McGlashan, Geo. Overholt.

Maitlands—Jos. Dwan, Geo. Dowling, Thos. Robinson.

Wm. Lavelle of St. Marys, who played part of a game with Torontos in 1910, was approved on recommendation of the O.A.L.A., and his having furnished affidavit.

The case of the Diamond B.B.C. under whose auspices a boxing show was held recently, was laid over until next meeting to allow of them clearing the appeal in question up.

The Union were not successful in winning the Marathon Trophy they were after, and other sources will be looked for to provide a permanent trophy in a modified Marathon race.

The Ontario boys' track and field championships will probably be held on September 20th, under the Union auspices.

BELLEVILLE PLAYS PETES TOMORROW

HOME BOYS MUST WIN OUT TO STAY IN THE RUNNING

The big game between Belleville and Peterborough tomorrow afternoon promises to be a hummer. The following players are requested to practice tonight and be in uniform at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 o'clock: Kirn, Mulhern, Frost, Jackson, Swanston, Head, Rose, Cherrett, Cavanah, Long, S. Wade, Clancy, R. Wade, Heenan and McCarney.

The Petes have to win tomorrow to stay in the running. If they win tomororw it will put them on even terms with Belleville, and the prospects will be bright for a chmaplonship. Manager Solomon returned to the city today to put his team in the best possible condition for the struggle.

NO DEFENDER FOR INTERNAT'L CUP

TORONTO YACHT CLUB EXPECTED TO MAKE A CHOICE IN A FEW DAYS.

Toronto, July 25.—Whether Tommy Turall of the National Yacht Club, with an Aykroyd boat, or Walter Windeyer of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, with Dug. Addison's Grew built dinghy, will be called upon to defend Jim Douglas 'International Dinghy Challenge Cup at R.C.Y.C. course Aug. 2 and 4 is something the Selection Committee—Wm. Johnston, president of L.S.S.A.; Inglis, president of the Ward's Island Association; Commodore Roberts, of the National Yacht Club—have not yet been able to decide, though young Windeyer won two of the final trial traces yesterday.

The wind was light, and Windeyer in a slack-sides light air boat, with a lightweight "crew" aboard, won both. Turrall at one time had a nice lead on him in the first race, but a winds shift brought Windeyer up on the windward buoy and he won by 75 yards or so. In the second race he was always best and won by over 100 yards.

Even with those two victories the committee hesitated to name Windeyer as the defender, for, while he is Turrall's superior in light air, the latter beats him far worse in moderate and fresh beezes than the latter does in the softer winds. The question is which is the better man for all weathers. Turrall is a veteran at the dinghy sailing game, and the importance of the contest against the Yankee champion or the emergencies which arise in a race would not fluster him. His experience steadies him. Windeyer is only a youngster, but he has already shown himself to be cool and heady, though his experience is limited. It is a difficult task for the committee to separate this pair, so arranged another series for Saturday and Sunday.

Twelve-Footer Ready.

George Aykroyd, designed and builder of the 12-foot dingheys for the challenge for the International 12-foot dinghy cup at Charlotte, N.Y., the port of Rochester, has about completed the hull of the boat for the Toronto Canoe Club syndicate, and the small boat experts who have seen her are delighted. She looks like a powerful little thing forward, but amidships she shows a nice easy section which presages easy passage through the water in anything which will heel her down a plank or so. The W. G. Reilly boat will be ready next week.

A letter fro mthe Genesee Dinghy Club says that new dates for the 12-foot dinghy race will be named wher the Genesee contingent arrives here August 1 for their challenge race for the Douglas 14-foot cup. They are well satisfied with their new 14-foot dingheys for the Douglas challenge. Rowlands will likely sail the challenger.

DATES FOR CUP GAMES

As was expected British Columbia and Alberta will not play in the Connaught Cup series, so Manitoba and New Ontario will play off for a winner, Quebec and Ontario to do likewise. This would mean two games in Montreal between the winners of East and West, goals to count. Tentative dates set are August 14 and 16.

OVERFLOW REGATTA EVENTS ARE RUN OFF

ANNUAL REGATTA A SURE THING—PRIZES PRESENTED —CANOE AND MOTOR BOAT CLUB.

The large crowd which congregated at Rye's boat house last evening to see contested the remainder of the events left over from last Saturday's regatta upholds the conviction that Peterborough will support her annual regatta. The events last evening were as interesting, if not more so, as those which so many enjoyed last Saturday.

Program and Prizes.

The results of last evening's races were:

Boys' single canoe, 18 years and under—R. Allan, W. Ash.

Boys' single canoe, 14 years and under H. Cardwell, W. Ash.

Boys' swimming, 14 years and under H. Thorndyke, D. Kitchen.

Hurry-Scurry—J. Carlisle, A. Elliott.

Crab race—J. Carlisle, H. Cardwell.

Tilting—H. Allan and G. Lee.

Bang and go back — "Rough Chops," owned by Mr. Smith; "Jiaora," owned by J. R. Rootes.

Prizes Presented.

After the events last evening the prizes for the entire regatta were presented. All those interested are asked to attend a meeting at Rye's pavilion Monday evening at 8 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a canoe and motor boat club.

LINDSAY GOLFERS GO TO DEFEAT

BUT EXCEL IN HOSPITALITY TO PETERBOROUGH VISITORS.

Some twenty-five Peterborough golfers motored to Lindsay yesterday afternoon to contest a match with the latter club on its own links.

The match was interesting both to golfers and spectators, and some fine strokes were made. Lindsay's combination, however, did not show up to advantage against their visitors, who ran up a score of 15 as against but six for the home players.

Hospitable Lindsay.

The Lindsay golf club certainly know how to entertain their visitors, and yesterday they did so handsomely. An exceedingly delectable high tea was served in their comfortable club house, and a hundred and one of those social courtesies extended which make for the pleasure and comfort of guests from out of town.

The ride to and from Lindsay, with ideal weather favoring, proved a pleasant one indeed, and Peterborough golfers reached home at about 9 o'clock delighted with their trip to hospitable Lindsay.

CAN THE WORLD STARVE?

One Authority Answers With an Emphatic "No."

Will the time come when the world cannot feed its inhabitants? Not, according to a writer in the magazine Power, if the farmer goes about the business of increasing production on scientific lines. To quote:

"Mr. Crooks, a great English landowner, after studying the question carefully, came to the conclusion that during the last seventy years there was an average increase of six million bread-eaters a year, and that at such a rate the time might be foreseen when, all the arable surface of the globe being used up, there would of all necessity be a bread scarcity. The year 1931 was given as the approximate date. But that was before the war.

"Though the danger does not seem very threatening as yet, it is advisable to lend a willing ear to the patient investigators who point out the remedy before it is too late. Prof. H. Coutant, well versed in agricultural questions, has contrived a method which would procure a harvest ten times greater by using ten times less fertilizer. This abrupt statement seems at first somewhat paradoxical; not so when you follow the professor's simple and practical demonstration.

"Why waste on acres of ground tons of fertilising substances that are mostly absorbed by weeds, whoreas the tiny grain of wheat drains an insignificant portion of them? We should blush for shame at the thought that in our century of intense life and culture, cereals are still left to strive or die in the same old way as five hundred years ago! Instead of always breaking up new lands for the raising of crops, let us turn to the old and increase their output. Each grain of wheat should yield not one but thirty or forty ears; and in its turn each ear should contain not merely thirty, but sixty new grains.

"Those figures are not given at random, they are the fruit of experiments such as were witnessed by Dr. Emile Rey, the Senator of the Department du Lot, M. Felix, professor of agriculture at the Professional School of Vierzon, etc., and many well known men specialized in the domain of farming.

"Not only cereals, but potatoes, vegetables, flowers, etc., can be treated in the same way, though, of course, the proportions of fertilizer used vary somewhat for each different species. As an example, fifteen especially prepared tubercles have produced 275 pounds of potatoes.

"Now for the general principle. Any grain or tubercle contains a nutritive reserve that will feed the new germ until its roots can take from the environment all the principles it needs. Why not increase the reserve? Why not saturate the grain with some fertilizing substance, feed it forcibly, and only plant it afterward? A few pounds of manure will bring about superior results to those formerly obtained by hundreds of pounds. The tonic fixed by the starch of the grain is merely a solution of salt of potassium nitrate (18 grams to a litre of water. Between twelve and thirty-six hours are necessary for complete saturation: the grains then drop to the bottom of the jar. In the case of tubercles, another formula is used—23 grains of potassium nitrate plus two gram of copper sulphate for each litre of water; according to their size the potatoes are to be immersed from two to five hours.

"To insure a still better result the cereals should then be powdered with a mixture of copper sulphate and lime; and once the tubercles have been thoroughly dried, the operator will sprinkle them with sublimated flower of brimstone, which keeps them free from disease.

"To those who follow his advice Prof. H. Coutant promises a harvest such as they have never yet beheld."

Some Odd Postage Stamps.

Imagine a postage stamp which though actually used for franking letters, was yet never sold! This is the curious story attached to the original Egyptian Expeditionary Force (commonly called the Palestine) stamp.

As a precaution against speculation, it was not placed on public sale in the usual way, but was affixed by the postal authorities themselves to letters upon which postage had already been paid.

In some war collections, too, may be seen a typewriter stamp, headed "G.R.I. — Long Island," and of the face value of one shilling. This unique production was "issued" by the British Civil Administration of Chustan, Long Island, in the Gulf of Smyrna, during its occupation in 1916.

The most singular feature of the stamp is that it was absolutely superfluous as such, because the correspondence of the British forces did not require prepayment and the natives could not be allowed, in the circumstances to communicate with the outer world.

Many London firms preserve Russian stamps which were designated to serve as currency and then be used for postage. Printed during a temporary scarcity of small change and of three values—ten, fifteen and twenty kopecks—they bear on the back this inscription: "Having circulation on a par with silver subsidiary coins."

Just as remarkable is the British Honduras stamp of 1915. When a consignment of stamps was ready for despatch from London to British Honduras, a number of German raiders were at large on the Atlantic, and there was a risk that it might fall into the hands of the enemy and be used to rob the British revenue.

So the stamps were overprinted with a moire design, that they might be easily identified. The Germans, however, did not capture the stamps and they were sold in the usual way.

An Anzac Memorial.

The Anzacs who helped Great Britain to defend Egypt during the war are to have a memorial in the shape of a huge equestrian monument on the banks of the Suez Canal. The placing of the monument on such a site, with associations going back to the dawn of time, will be a striking footnote to history, so to speak, as the Anzacs literally came from the ends of the earth to the land of the ancient Pharaohs, and the monument to their valor and loyalty will almost be within sight of monuments which Herodotus saw, and not very far from scenes connected with the Mosaic account of events in the earliest years of recorded time.

The Jacana.

On some of the islands of the Pacific, in tropical South America, is the beautiful bird known as the jacana. It is famous for its so-called love dances, which appear to be executed by the males to excite the admiration of the female birds. When the mating season approaches the jacana will single out its favorite lady and try to win her admiration with all its bewitching manoeuvres. In the dance the wings are spread and worked in such a manner that the beautiful colored feathers produce a brilliant effect.

Natural Curiosity.

Nature has placed one of her curiosities on the location of a former sugar mill on the island of Trinidad. The plant has since been reduced to ruins and is overgrown with vegetation. The old solid chimney is intact and up through its center one of the quick growing trees of the tropics has sprung, spreading its branches out of the top of the huge chimney and is now in full bloom.

How Criticism Helps.

Censure and criticism never hurt anybody. If false they can't hurt you unless you are wanting in manly character; and if true they show a man his weak points and forewarn him against failure and trouble.—Gladstone.

The "Breeches" Bible.

"Then the eyes of them both were opened, and they knew that they were naked and they sewed fig-tree leaves together and made themselves breeches." The quotation constitutes a version of the Adam and Eve story of Genesis. It was taken from the rarest of the various editions of the Bible known as the "breeches" Bible. It was printed in London in 1615 by Robert Barker, "printer to the king's most excellent magestie."

As if the fact that Adam and Eve were naked, and had decided to don breeches, were insufficient, a footnote on the subject was introduced. It specified that the breeches "were things to gird about them."

Reference books say that it was the most popular Bible that ever appeared in England and that for sixty years it held its own against all rivals, contesting the ground with authorized version.

Arthur Fredenburg, Woodford, was accidentally shot in the lung by his cousin.

INCREASED TEACHERS' SALARIES GOOD MOVE

RESULT—PETERBORO FILLS ITS VACANCIES, WHILE OTHER BOARDS HAVE THEIR TROUBLES.

The Peterborugh Board of Education made no mistake in revising this summer their schedule of teachers' salaries commensurate with the high cost of living. For several years past it has been difficult for boards of education to secure and hold, especially hold, good teachers, their salaries being totaly inadequate to meet economic conditions. At the end of each school term the papers have been literally crowded with advertisements for teachers, and teachers seemed never satisfied, and were, and even are, ever alert for a remunerative charge. Their salaries in past years have not been in keeping with the cost to them of earning their diplomas, hence a spirit of restlessness existed.

It is gratifying to learn that while many boards of education are today experiencing considerable difficulty in securing competent teachers for the next school term, Peterborough's board has found no trouble in filling the vacant positions for next term, beginning September. And this, unquesionably is due to its revised salaries schedule, amended to make teaching in Peterborough "worth while."

Lindsay in Trouble.

Lindsay's board of education is in an embarrassing position in this regard. The members find that to get competent teachers is a difficult matter, and it is stated that no less than twenty meetings of the board and committees have been held lately to scan applications and settle on teachers. The acceptance of many teachers has been secured by mail, only to be cancelled by the next mail, when it was made known that they had been induced to remain at their old jobs.

On one occasion Secretary Knowlson secured a telegram from a teacher accepting a position on the Lindsay staff, and hardly had he finished reading the same when he was called on the telephone by the same teacher who cancelled his acceptance as he had been granted a higher salary to remain where he was.

KINGSTON MAN MISSING.

B. E. Hills of Kingston has been missing since Wednesday afternoon, and is thought drowned. At 3:40 he rented a skiff, and this was last seen off the shore. At 5 p.m. an empty skiff containing the missing man's coat and hat, which were folded neatly on the stern seat, was found near the island. Hills came from Belleville some months ago and was in the employ of James Read, undertaker, since his arrival here.

Holiday Happenings At South Beach

Last Friday evening a Peace Dance was given at South Beach Hotel, by the genial host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brooks. The large dining hall was specially prepared for dancing and in the afternoon, the musicians, Mr. George J. Musgrave and Mr. Eccles arrived from Toronto to furnish the music for the occasion. About nine o'clock, the guests began to arrive and soon a large crowd were enjoying the dance. The music was delightful and so full of life and spirit that the young people were most enthusiastic and applauded the musicians very heartily.

Among the guests from Peterboro who were present were Mr. and Mrs. E. TWENTY-SEVEN GRAY DORT CARS SOLD IN THREE MONTHS

Generally Characterized as the Sturdiest and Prettiest Car on the Market

During the last three months the Duffus Garage has sold no less than 27 Gray-Dort cars, with prospects that this number of sales will be considerably augmented before the season closes.

Owners of these cars and motorists in large numbers characterize the Gray Dort as the sturdiest and prettiest car on the market, and this is borne out in the above reported number of sales..

REV. R. A. SCOTT IS CALLED TO OMEMEE

PRESBYTERY MET THIS MORNING TO ARRANGE FOR INDUCTION SERVICES.

At the regular session of the Peterborough Presbytery held in this city today the attendance was light owing to the fact that so many ministers are on their vacation.

Rev. J. I. Craw, of Springville, was voted into the chair to aid in the absence of Rev. James Rollins, the moderator. The others present were Rev. D. A. Thomson, clerk, Hastings; Rev. Dr. Lee, of Millbrook; Rev. J. P. Jull, of Lakefield, and Rev. Hugh Brown, of Warsaw. The elders in attendance were Messrs. F. G. Sandy, of Omemee; and R Harrison, Peterborough.

The business disposed of was the call extended by the congregation at Omemee to Rev. R. A. Scott, of Hillsburg, a call signed by 100 members and 22 adherents this practically making it unanimous. The stipend is $1050 a year with a manse, and it was decided to ask the Augmentation Committee for a grant of $450 a year in order to bring the compensation up to $1500, the minimum set at the recent meeting of the general assembly.

Rev. Dr. Lee will support the call before the next meeting of the Orangeville Presbytery in which Mr. Scott is at present located. Provisional arrangements were made for the induction services, the date of which will be set later. Rev. James Rollins will preside and address the new pastor; Rev. Dr. Lee will address the people, and Rev. W. A. Gardiner, of Baltimore, will preach the induction sermon.

The clerk, Rev. D. A. Thomson, was instructed to forward the call to the Orangeville Presbytery, and to notify all those interested as to the date set for the induction services.

After the session the ministers and elders dined at the Munro House.

MATTHEWS-BLACKWELL ARE WINNERS IN PETERBOROUGH CITY BALL LEAGUE

War Veterans Defeated Last Night by a Score of 9 to 2—Rather A Slow Game

The Matthews-Blackwell Baseball Team are champions of the city League. They defeated the War Veterans team last night by a score of 9 to 2, and then captured the honors. They started the season with the slogan "first to organize, first at the finish," and they did the trick.

The league race has been universally interesting this year, Jake Solemon's Orientals chasing the champions al lthe way.

The game last night was rather uninteresting, for while Frost was pitching one of the best games of the season, his team-mates were hitting Daynard, who worked most of the game for Matthews-Blackwell the night before, in Port Hope. Foley relieved him but was hit hard in the fifth when the champions garnered 3 runs.

CAPTAIN WIDDIFIELD PUBLISHES FIRST INSTALLMENT OF HISTORY OF 93RD

Cooperation of Members of That Famous Unit and Their Friends Is Requested to Make the Work Complete—Book Will Be Valuable Addition to Current War Literature

At the request of the members of the G.W.V.A. officially preferred last winter, Capt. C. R. Widdifield has for some time been engaged in writing of record of the 93rd Battalion, one of the best Canadian units that ever crossed the seas during the late war. The members of that battalion, as well as their friends, are asked to co-operate with Capt. Widdifield in order that the work may be complete.

The following are some of the opening paragraphs prepared by Capt. Widdifield. The book will be completed as soon as the author receives the necessary information of the rest of the boys, which information is not as yet in his possession:

LIEUT.-COL. T. J. JOHNSTON,

The order for the mobilization of the 93rd Canadian Infantry Battalion was issued from Ottawa on the first day of November, 1915.

At this time it was found by the military authorities of Canada that the system then in operation for obtaining recruits for the Canadian army was not working satisfactorily, and some other system had to be enforced if Canada were to do her full share in this great international war.

The new method inaugurated at this time, was to have each county or union of counties raise a complete battalion, and for this purpose to systematically organize the whole county for the obtaining of recruits.

The 93rd Battalion was one of the first, if not the very first Battalion, raised in Canada under this method, and was the outgrowth of a nucleus of men already recruited for the 80th Canadian Infantry Battalion, which was at that time training at Barriefield.

Commanding Officer Mills.

The first commanding officer of Peterborough's own battalion was Lieut.-Col. Joseph Mills, who at the time this unit was first organized, was in France, being an original 2nd Battalion officer, going there with the rank of major and was subsequently promoted to the rank of Lieut.-Col. Col. Mills, however, was not in command of Peterborough's battalion very long, as soon after his return to Canada, he received a staff appointment. The next and last commanding officer was Lieut.-Col. T. J. Johnston, who practically had command of the unit from its inauguration, and remained at its head till the same was broken up a year later in England.

This unit recruited throughout all the winter of 1916, having its headquarters at the city of Peterborough, with detachments in Apsley, Lakefield, Havelock and Norwood, and about the first of June, 1916, moved to Barriefield, where it remained under canvas till the 12th of July, 1916, when it entrained for Halifax enroute for England. While in Peterborough County the battalion always received a good name from everybody, and always behaved themselves as individual members, like gentlemen and soldiers, taking part in all the social entertainments and in all other ways mixing and making friends with the civil population. During the winter the battalion organized a hockey team, which won its group in the intermediate series of the Ontario Hockey Association, and was eventually returned as military champions of the Province of Ontario.

LIEUT.-COL. J. T. MILLS,
the first commanding officer of the 93rd Battalion, later promoted to a staff position.

Many people will remember the day when the boys left Peterborough for Barriefield as never before in the history of the city was there such a crowd at the Grand Trunk station, as there was that day, and the boys left with the feeling that their future events would certainly be appreciated by the people left behind. While in Barriefield the 93rd Battalion was recognized as one of the best disciplined units which had ever encamped on those famous old grounds, and their knowledge of drill and military manuvers were in the same class.

After several different orders and

who is preparing a history of the 93rd Battalion

VOTERS LISTS IN THIS DISTRICT WILL BE MUCH LARGER THAN EVE

Chief Enumerator J. F. Strickland and His Subordinates Working Like Trojans—Will Call at Every House Three Times—Widest Publicity Will Be Given Lists When Completed,

Chief enumerator for this electoral district, Mr. J. F. Strickland, reports splendid progress by his staff of sub-enumerators in listing all people of both sexes qualified to vote at the prohibition referendum. All local sub-enumerators are working like Trojans and no stone is being left unturned to cover their whole field with complete satisfaction to all concerned. Mr. Strickland is proving himself a big man for a big task and has risen to the occasion admirably. Already he is able to declare that the list turned in by him will prove the largest in this district's history, due of course, in no small measure, to the large number of returned soldiers, and also to the women's franchise, covering all females over 21 years of age.

Call Three Times.

The chief enumerator's instruction to his subordinates is that they call at every address three times. Finding no one at home at either call, a card will be left, and this can be filled in and sent to his office. Any person in doubt as to their position regarding the list can phone Mr. Strickland, Bell No. 151.

Lists Will Be Printed.

In the case of people out of town, slips are being left at their homes or are being forwarded to them to fill in and return to the chief enumerator. In not a few cases, personal letters have been sent to such people where it is known where they are holidaying and their names have been properly placed on the lists.

But ample opportunity will be given to everyone to see that his or her name is placed on the lists before any vote is taken.

The widest possible publicity will be given to the lists, and every list will be printed, rather than type-written, as was formerly the case. These lists will be published in such a way that everybody will have an opportunity to see that his or her name is entered on the lists in time.

Widest Publicity.

Copies of these lists will most likely be sent to each member of the Provincial House and the same number to each defeated candidate in the last election. Other than this, lists will be posted in every post office, in every public library, in the office of every municipal clerk, and in the office of every Division Court Clerk. Moreover, two copies will be sent to every enumerator in the province so that those who know him may see that their name is put on the list if by any reason it may have been left off inadvertently. Every means will be resorted to that the widest publicity to the prepared lists so that when the Appeal Boards open their sitting people all over the province will know whether it is necessary for them to appear before the Boards to see that their names are properly entered before the vote on the referendum is taken.

Toronto Lists Completed.

The work of Toronto sub-enumerators is practically completed, and generally the lists are much heavier than ever before. Major McBrien in Parkdale, for instance, stated that he had between 27,000 and 28,000 names as compared with 9,000 or 10,000 formerly. Other districts report about the same proportion of increase.

HARVESTERS FOR WEST

Arrangements are being made to bring 17,000 harvesters from Eastern Canada the first train load to arrive in Winnipeg about August 7th.

MAY LINK GRAVENHURST WITH TRENT WATER SYSTEM

Enterprising public men are now boosting a project for linking up Gravenhurst with the Trent Canal and incidentally with Peterborough. They declare it would be immeasureably beneficial to Gravenhurst and the Muskoka Lakes by enabling wealthy yacht and motor launch owners to cruise up to the lakes from various lake points in the United States and Canada.

In this connection the Gravenhurst Banner says:—At present this class of tourists, while appreciating the beauty of the Muskoka lake region, do not desire to be landlocked in these waters, preferring to take their boats to southern points in the winter. An open waterway from the region would undoubtedly mean the addition of a large number of wealthy Americans to the district. At the request of Dr. P. McGibbon, M.P., the government has had a survey made of a proposed canal route between Lake Muskoka and the Trent Canal at Washago, and an estimate of the cost prepared, and we understand that they have the project under consideration.

Union Of Women Workers Will Head Labor's Holiday Parade

Preparations Made for the Celebration of Labor Day September 1st—Organized Workers Will Show Greater Strength Than Ever Before

The Labor Day Committee of the Trades Council held a meeting last night and made further progress for the celebration of Labor's national world-wide holiday on September 1. There has been no celebration of the day since before the war, and this year Peterborough will witness the greatest demonstration of the kind ever staged in the city.

The feature of the day will, of course, be the parade of the different unions, the members of which will form at Central Park about one o'clock and march through the principal streets to Riverside Park, where the program will be completed. One of the features of this parade will be the union of electrical workers, composed entirely of women, who will hold the place of honor at the head of the line of march. The 57th Band has been engaged for the afternoon. There will be floats in the parade, and it is likely that a special prize will be offered for the union making the best showing both as to numbers and general appearance.

Thanks to the courtesy of Dr. Wightman, Labor has always had an option on Riverside Park for its annual holiday. There will be races and other athletic events, and a baby show will be part of the program. A local physician is to be asked to act as judge of the wee tots. Oratory will be barred, the day being devoted entirely to relaxation. A tug-of-war will be held between the members of the different unions. There will be refreshment booths on the grounds. It is proposed to close the holiday with a dance at night if the Armories can be secured for the occasion.

Arrangements are under way to have the Lindsay and Peterborough baseball teams meet in a double header, morning and afternoon.

The Machinists' Union, one of the largest in the city, and one that has been organized since the last celebration of Labor Day in this city, proposes to spend $200 for a banner to carry in the parade, and otherwise plan to make the showing of the day. The delegates to the Trades Council will form a unit by themselves, ranking next to the members of the women's organization.

The Printed Program.

The printed program, which is now almost ready for the printers, will be a handsome souvenir of the event. It is filled with the advertisements of the leading business men in the city, who were most generous in their responses to the appeal for co-operation. These programs will be distributed several days before the celebration among the various stores and will be well worth reading and preserving. A list of every union in the city with the date of charter, and the names and addresses of the presidents and secretaries, is also contained in the little volume. A. J. Bolwell, President of the Trades Council, is in full charge of this feature, and in order to facilitate the work requests that every local secretary in the city send him the name and address of its president and secretary, and if possible the date of their charter, to 165 Hunter street east.

There are now twenty-five labor unions in Peterborough. This is more than double the number that existed at the time of the last celebration, and the list of members has more than trebled in that time.

Central Association Pass Resolution, to be Forwarded to Rir Robert Borden, Declaring That They Will No Longer Support Union Candidates—Cat Calls For H. C. Hocken

The death knell of unionism in politics as far as the Liberal-Conservative party of Toronto is concerned was sounded in no unmistakable manner at a crowded meeting of the Central Liberal-Conservative Association. This meeting, without one dissenting voice, passed a resolution, which will be forwarded to Sir Robert Borden, informing him that the Liberal-Conservatives of Toronto will no longer support candidates of a union policy of government, but will throw their whole weight behind the men who announce themselves in favor of straight Liberal-Conservatism and the National Policy as laid down by Sir John A. Macdonald.

The Resolution.

The resolution, which was moved by David Spence, president of Ward 6, and seconded by J. W. Siddal, president of Ward 3, reads as follows:

"Whereas this Central Liberal-Conservative Association of Toronto answered the call to support Union Government in Canada during the period of the war, and whereas peace has been now proclaimed: therefore be it resolved that this association place themselves on record as being firm believers in and supporters of that traditional policy that has ever governed the actions of the Liberal-Conservative party in our Dominion, and pledge our loyal and active support to the standard-bearers of that party in the future." The resolution was unanimously adopted by a standing vote.

Dual Vote Not Wanted.

In regard to provincial politics, the association declared itself as opposed to a vote on the referendum and legislative candidates on the same day. The adoption of such a policy, it was said, would be suicidal to the Hearst Administration, and in order to throw their weight against the adoption of any policy of that kind it was decided to send a strong committee to wait upon Premier Hearst and his Cabinet for the purpose of discussing the whole matter thoroughly. It was decided, if the Provincial Government did decide to hold a simultaneous election on the two questions, that a general convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the province would be called before the election took place.

Jeered Mr. Hocken.

On the whole the meeting was a quiet one, all members being in accord on the various questions as they arose. Tumult, however, broke out when Mr. H. C. Hocken, M.P., began to address the meeting. The member for Parkdale met with a decided coldness on the part of the meeing, and when he went out of his way to branch from a criticism of the provincial administration to support Mr. N. W. Rowell's allegiance to Sir Robert Borden and the Union Government, the meeting became so riotous that only the interference of the chairman, Mr. J. T. Edworthy, succeeded in calming the storm. Mr. Hocken, who was very vigorous in his defence of the Union Government, struck no answering chord in the hearts of his audience, and when he made the statement that it would be impossible to separate Mr. Rowell and Sir Robert Borden in future policies, his voice was drowned in the jeers and protests which came from every part of the room.

Resignation Regretted.

Mr. A. H. Birmingham, who has been secretary of the Central Association since 1909, tendered his resignation. It was accepted with regret and many eulogies of the excellent manner in which he had performed his many duties, were sung. His resignation was merely caused by pressure of business.

WARSHIPS PASS THROUGH

Panama Canal Can be Used for Naval Purposes, Experts Say.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Panama, July 26.—Four U. S. dreadnoughts were lifted through the Gatum Lake yesterday and are anchored in fresh water at Gatum level preparatory to resuming the voyage to the Pacific ocean Sunday. In the opinion of the United States naval staff, the practicability of the Panama Canal for naval uses is thus demonstrated.

FREIGHT EMBARGO LIFTED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, July 26.—The Grand Trunk embargo on freight into Toronto, imposed owing to labor troubles with teamsters, has been resumed except in the case of perishable goods for consignees who have not arranged their own cartage.

WANT RADIAL RAILWAY FROM LINDSAY TO FENELON

All Municipalities Awakening to the Need of Better Transportation.

The Fenelon Falls village council is wide awake to the advantages of radial railways, as evidenced in the following resolution passed at a recent session:

Brown Braden—That this council, having in view the proposed introduction of the hydro-electric power and light facilities into this municipality as per petition at present being considered by the Hydro Commission, would also place before that body the unique advantages that would come to our township by the introduction of the electric radial railway from Port Perry to Lindsay and thence northward through Victoria county.

FRENCH PROTESTANTS INSIST ON PUNISHMENT OF THE EX-EMPEROR

Write President Poincaire a Note Protesting Against Claim For Mercy Set Up by Descendants of Hugenots in Berlin

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, July 26.—The Temps publishes a note which the Protestant Federation of France has addressed to President Poincaire in answer to a letter sent him some days ago by the Protestant community of Berlin, asking democratic France to right its wrongs toward the Huguenots driven from France in 1685 by sparing their benefactors the Hohenzollerns. The note of the French Protestants expresses surprise that Berlin Protestants, claiming to be of Huguenot extraction can raise their voices in favor of the former German Emperor in an attempt to protect him from having to face the verdict of civilized nations for what occurred several centuries ago. The note says it does not disprove the fact that the Kaiser has committed, against humanity crime for which he must personally answer.

"We are astonished," the note concludes, "that German Protestants have not demonstrated against probable devastations in Northern and Eastern France the destruction of cathedrals and deportation of old men, women and children."

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

CIVIC HANDICAPS.

THE SPIRIT THAT pervades the villager or the provincial nurtures in him the delusion that it is only the man who has been born in the same district as himself who can possibly know enough about things in general to carry him through the night, and that only the natives can possess the proper quality of devotion to the interests of the community. The immigrant either from afar or from another region within the confines of the same country is usually an object of suspicion if not contumely, to the man who has never travelled beyond the limits of his native district. The latter is given to estimate the worth of his fellows by a single standard, the length of his residence in a given place.

It is probable that if the choice of the place of their birth had been left to all Canadians, they would have been unanimous in their selection of Peterborough for that auspicious event in their career. But this is a circumstance controlled by fate. Why not be charitable in this regard and look upon other than local nativity as a misfortune rather than a fault? It is easily possible that even the victims of such a misfortune may be neither a boob nor a man unable to work up any degree of interest in the welfare of the community of which fate has made him a resident. The village or provincial spirit will handicap any city in which it is nurtured. The boast, "I have lived here all my life" or "I have lived here over fifty years," may not, after all, be the best possible recommendation. There are things in this world that the philosophy of the stay-at-home has never pictured even in dreams; there is knowledge that can be acquired only in the big university of life.

THE DIFFERENCE.

A RETURNED SOLDIER, whose home is in the Ottawa district, killed fifty-two Germans while in the service of his Empire, and for this feat received the Victoria Cross. After he had been mustered out he killed an Austrian in a fight with bare fists, the tragedy being enacted in his own neighborhood. Now the man who won the highest of all military decorations for the taking of life in war is lying in jail on a charge of murder with the shadow of the gallows hanging over him.

THE HIGH PRICE OF MEAT.

HUMANITY IS OFTEN comforted by the reflection that the misfortunes of our neighbors are as heavy as those which we ourselves are called upon to bear. That is a solace, scant and unchristian as it may be, that is not denied the Canadian people now as they groan and sweat under the high cost of living. Over in Europe conditions are worse. Across the border in the United States they are at least as bad. There, according to the New York Sun, the meat problem is giving anxiety to everybody. The consumer is troubled by the high retail price. The stock raiser is troubled by his inability to sell his cattle. Ordinarily he could afford to hold his live stock for a while, feeding and fattening it; but grain prices are now so inordinately high that if he doesn't get rid of his cattle they will, so to speak, eat him up. The department of agriculture is troubled because it knows that if there isn't a profit for the stock raiser in his cattle he not only will sell them off on any terms to stop his heavy feed bills, but will quit raising any cattle at all. Then the country will be without beef.

It is, indeed, an extraordinary situation when for the first time in years there is an abundance of beef on the hoof and in the packing houses—an actual oversupply—but such high retail prices that the burdened public will not eat meat.

The cattle raisers, the packers and the department of agriculture want to stimulate the consumption of beef. They want to teach the people that with so large a supply in the country they no longer need to save beef either for our own soldiers or for the hungry peoples of Europe. But the trouble is—and it is a mighty big trouble—that the Canadian people aren't cutting down their consumption of meat because they think it is needed abroad. They aren't cutting it down because they think there is a shortage in the west or anywhere else. They are cutting down their consumption because they are not willing to eat it at the prices demanded for it.

It is true that when consumers quit one article of consumption because of its price they usually turn to another article of consumption with an increased demand which also drives its price up. When bread got dear the consumers made a rush for potatoes and made potatoes very dear. Then they made a rush for rice and made rice very dear. In the same way they turned from beef to fish and made even ordinary codfish dearer than the choicest cuts of beef had been once upon a time.

Nevertheless the fact remains that the people by their self-sacrifice during the war have learned that they can do with a great deal less meat-eating than they ever before dreamed was possible. They are not going back to their former degree of meat-eating unless meat can be made cheap enough to appeal to them. Just as they turned from sirloin steak to codfish steak they may turn back from codfish steak to sirloin steak when it becomes a better bargain or when it becomes nearly a good enough bargain, the superiority of beefsteak to codfish steak considered, to tempt them. Otherwise they will not.

Nor will it suffice to say that the retail butcher can easily untangle the economic knot. Maybe he could if his other costs went down as the price of beef went down in the packing house and the price of steers went down on the range. But his other costs don't go down. They don't even stand still. He goes on paying more, not less, for his labor. He goes on paying more, not less, for his rent. He goes on paying more, not less for the feed of his horses used in his delivery service. He goes on paying more, not less, for his fuel, for his light, for his taxes, for his insurance—for every single thing necessary to the conduct of his general business and the selling of his specific beef.

There was a time, with all other costs normal, when the prices which the retail butcher paid for his beef at wholesale largely determined, or at least could determine, his charges to consumers. This isn't so any longer. All his charges are so high, so abnormally high, that his beef can go down, and down, and down, and yet this decline be more than offset by the rise in his other costs.

What is true of the butcher is true of the grocer and the candlestick maker. What is true of them is true of every other trader compelled to deal—if he stays in business—on the basis of pennies in cost of material but dollars in cost of handling it.

THE 93RD BATTALION.

CAPT. C. R. WIDDIFIELD was some time ago selected for the task of preparing a history of the 93rd Battalion, a work for which he is eminently qualified. He was one of the most distinguished members of that unit himself and reverted in rank in order to get into active service when the battalion was broken up in Europe. Capt. Widdifield was afterward wounded while on duty at the front and was later invalided home after an honorable record.

The 93rd Battalion was an organization in which all took a local pride, composed as it was of residents of the city and county. It was one of the best units, both as to enlisted men and officers, that ever crossed the seas. A complet history of that battalion will be prized by every resident, no matter whether the interest in the unit was personal or not. The casualties were heavy and a large number who crossed the seas with the 93rd never came back. It is fitting that the memory of these martyrs shall be preserved in the records. Friends of the fallen can help Capt. Widdifield in his important task by furnishing him with information that is available in no other way. Everybody able to do so should render the captain a helping hand so that the records of the gallant members of Peterborough's famous battalion may be complete.

AN ELECTION INEVITABLE.

THE PUBLIC are asked to accept the assurance that there will be a general provincial election this fall, and the party leaders should govern themselves accordingly. There is little time left for preparation. The days are passing swiftly, and in a few weeks the voters will be asked to render another verdict. The authority for this statement is beyond all question. There is no longer any excuse for delay. Candidates in the various ridings are being selected, while as yet the committee charged with the duty of setting the party machinery in motion in this district have, so far as heard from, made no move.

All the details of the coming election have not yet been arranged. It is not yet settled whether the election will be held on the same date as the temperance question is submitted to the people, and this fact has caused a difference of opinion among the leaders at Toronto. If it is decided that the two events be separated, then the election will follow the referendum in as short a time as the law allows. Twenty-three days must intervene, and it is probable that the legal time limit will not be extended.

The very fact that the issue before the people is not to be decided on the old party lines calls for special preparation. The coming contest is not to be of the old partisan variety. The electors are to be divided as they never have been before. On the one side will be found those who insist upon the right to live according to their own ideas. On the other side in solid phalanx will be those who insist just as strenuously that all shall live after the fashion that they themselves set. It will be such a division of forces, such a contest as the Province of Ontario has never before witnessed. No matter how many parties may be in the field, there will be but one outstanding issue to be decided.

THE IRISH AGITATION.

(Wall Street Journal.)

If there were not something highly unreal in this Irish agitation, in a country the least burdened and the most prosperous of any in Europe, it would be unnecessary to point out that had the inhabitants of Ireland been Englishmen they would have seized their independence centuries ago and nothing could have stopped them. Murdering an occasional policeman is not the way to secure independence, nor does it convince the world of a united desire.

THE VISION OF THE FAITHFUL RUTH

The following vivid version of the Old Testament story of Ruth was written by Evangelist H. D. Kennedy of this city at the request of one of Canada's most noted elocutionists, who wished to use it in his work. It is also intended for recitation purposes in church entertainments:

Ruth's Vision.

Come back with me into olden times, and I will show you a roadside scene. Three women stand—one old, two young. Who are they, do you ask? Listen! and I will tell you. One is Naomi: old, friendless and poor; one is Orpah: young, beautiful and fair; the other is Ruth: virtuous and true. See! They gaze on each other. Hark! Naomi speaks—with pleading tones she beseeches the others to return to Moab. Will they go. Look! Orpah, with loving face and tearful eye, kisses her mother dear, then turns away, not that she loves Naomi less, but that she loves Moab more. On, on, she goes; but see! she stops, once and again, and, looking back, sees Ruth locked in Naomi's arms and hopes that she will come. On, on, she plods, with heavy step and lonely heart, till she reaches her cabin home. She retires for the night, the lamp still lit, the door unbarred. Hush! she hears a step, "'Tis Ruth! 'tis Ruth, my sister dear; I knew that she would come. Listen! But no; the step it passeth on." She tosses on her bed, but cannot rest, and the night wears on. But look!—does she sleep? Yes, Orpah sleeps. Hush! I hear her sob, and in the morn I see her wake. She feels for Ruth; but, lo! Ruth is not there; Orpah is alone. And now let us return to the roadside scene.

Behold once more Ruth in Naomi's arms! Naomi speaks! in tender tones she pleads with Ruth to return. "See!" she says "thy sister is gone and she will need theee with her in her home." Does Ruth obey? Methinks I hear her voice praying that she may stay. I hear her say, "Naomi, listen awhile to me, and I will tell thee all. Rememberest thou not the day when thy husband lay dying?—how thou didst kneel by his bedside with heavy heart, and thy cup of sorrow seemed more than full? Mother, I watched thee that day and heard thee pray, and as thou didst intercede, thy face didst shine, and a joy appeared to thrill thy soul as thou didst rise from his bedside, didst wrap him in a shroud and lay him in the tomb. Oh! yes, Naomi, thou didst let thy light shine in that dark hour and reveal to me thy confidence in thy God. 'Tis thrue, Naomi, thou didst walk among the daughters of Moab like a queen and glorified thy God. And oh, my mother, dost thou not recall that other day when I, a broken-hearted wife, knelt by the dying bed of him I loved? And oh, how dark it seemed—the clouds hung thick o'er my head; my sun had set and no star of hope appeared. I gazed upon that face and saw the brightness fade, the eyes began to stare, and I felt the hands grow icy cold. I beseeched the gods of Moab, but they heard not my cry. I was alone, and my grief was greater than I could bear, when, dear mother, thou camest and didst kneel by my side; tenderly didst thou put thine arm about me and didst whisper in my ear, "Daughter, look up." I obeyed; I raised mine eyes unto the hills from whence came my help; my eyes were opened, and by faith I saw a cross; and upon it a Form like unto the Son of man: on His brow a crown of thorns, and as I beheld I heard Him say: 'Daughter, thy sins which were many are all forgiven.' and I felt the burden of my guilt roll away, for He said: 'I have borne thy sins in mine own body on the tree.' As I still gazed, the cross disappeared, and far beyond I saw seated on a throne the same Form, yet now in glory He appeared, as the 'Lily of the Valley fair' and the 'Rose of Sharon sweet'—to me the Sun of Righteousness with healing in His wings, and lo! a great multitude stood around His throne and and sang the praises of His name.

"As I yet beheld, I saw him whom I loved stand in raiment white amongst the throng; with gentle hand he bade me come, when lo! the voice of the King was heard hushing the harps of gold and stopping the songs of praise. I saw Him bending toward me and heard Him say, 'Daughter, be of good cheer, for I have borne thy griefs and carried thy sorrows,' and as He spoke my heart grew calm and a flood of light engulfed my soul, and underneath were the Everlasting Arms. Then once more I saw him whom I loved, stand in flowing robes and on his head a crown, and I longed to go; but I heard the loving Saviour's voice from His throne in heaven say: 'Daughter, wait; in my Father's house are many mansions; I am here preparing a place for thee.' As I listened, He spake on and called aloud: "Oh daughter of Moab, rejoice, for he, for whom thou didst mourn is not dead, but liveth evermore.' Then didst hope rise within my breast, for I, though Moab's daughter, and not of Israel born, saw a wideness in God's mercy like the wideness of the sea, and I trusted Him to bring me safely home.

"And now, Naomi, turn me not away from following after thee, for although thou are homeless, friendless and poor, yet will I go with thee, and where thou lodgest will I lodge, for I, too, am but a pilgrim and a stranger in the earth; but I know if my earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved I have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. Oh! send me not back again to the gods of Moab, for they are cold dead things, made of wood and stone. Entreat me not to leave thee, from following after thee, for thy God shall be my God and thy people shall be my people, and naught but death shall part thee and me." And Naomi, overcome by the pleadings of Ruth, yields and the curtain falls and the scene is changed.

Fifty years roll by. Come abain with me to the land of Moab. We enter a lowly cot, and on a dying bed see a wasted form. Her hair is white; her face is pale; her eyes are closed; her friends and neighbors gather around to see her pass away. Hush! she speaks. Listen! what does she say?" Ruth never came! Ruth never came! Oh! if I had only gone! Oh! if I had only gone! But now too late, too late!" Poor Orpah! Look at her as the clouds hang o'er her pillow! Hark! Hear her cry. "I'm lost I'm lost! I'm lost!" as her feet touch the chilly Jordan and its dark waters o'erwhelm her soul. Down, down, down, she sinks, into the blackness and the gloom! Hush, ye sons of men! Hear her wail, from the eternal flame, as she looks across the gulf that's fixed and, on the farther side, sees again in Paradise Ruth in Naomi's arms. Be still! oh, hear her call!—"Naomi, oh, Naomi send Ruth that she may dip her finger in water and cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame!" But Naomi answers: "Daughter, remember that on earth thou didst choose Moab's pleasures and her gods and Ruth choose that better part, and now she is comforted, whilst thou art tormented." And Orpah shrieks in dark despair till her voice is hushed. From this black scene let us turn back to a brighter one in Canaan's land and Bethlehem's town.

Another death-bed scene—See! a woman lies, with silvery hair and queenly face. Her children gather round. Hush! be still! Her heart throbs fainter and fainter, when lo! what is that I hear?—a shepherd's harp, and Israel's sweet singer sings: "Though thousands shouldst walk through the valley of the shadow of death, thou shalt fear no evil: for thy God is with thee; He is thy keeper and thy shade upon thy right hand, therefore shalt thou abide in the cleft of the rock and under the shadow of His wing." When, lo! the place is filled with heavenly light and two angels appear in shining apparel and hover o'er her pillow. With tender touch they lift her, and soar away—up! up! up! Look! look! look! They bear her away on their snowy pinions to her immortal home. The gates of pearl, they swing ajar; they sweep through the streets of gold, and Ruth clasps hands with her mother dear, who has beckoned her to come, and they walk together this very night in their eternal home. They sit beneath the tree of life that stands beside the throne and drink of the river sparkling bright, that flows in the land where there's no night; they're clothed in garments pure and white; they live in a mansion fair, and crowns are on their heads so bright, which they'll forever wear.

"This watch will last you for a life time," remarked the jeweller.

"Nonsense!" retorted the customer. "Can't I see for myself now that its hours are numbered?"

Belle: The idea! You should have had a hatpin to stick him with."

Nell: Oh! he didn't need to be spured on.

"Do you consider it a moral wrong to cheat a lawyer?" asked the person who is always looking for a chance to start something.

A New One On Teacher

Miss Decorous had made a special study of Biblical history, and she addressed the Sunday School class thusly:

'Now, children I have told you all I can concerning the nations which were driven out by the Israelites. They were the Hivites, the Hittites, the Jebusites, the errizites, the GirGasites. And let me see—yes, the Amonites. Can you remember them all children. Now you look puzzled Rosie. Have you any questions to ask?"

No, teacher,' came the sly reply, "except that you haven't told us about the fleabites."

FEMININE LOGIC

We asked the young lady across the way if she was a votary of equal suffrage and she said not yet, but she belonged to the association and was working hard for it.

THE CAUSE OF BACKACHE

ONLY IN RARE CASES DOES BACKACHE MEAN KIDNEY TROUBLE

Every muscle in the body needs constantly a supply of rich, red blood in proportion to the work it does. The muscles of the back are under a heavy strain and have but little rest. When the blood is thin they lack nourishment, and the result is a sensation of pain in those muscles. Some people think pain in the back means kidney trouble, but the best medical authorities agree that backache seldom or never has anything to do with the kidneys. Organic disease may have progressed to a critical point without developing a pain in the back. This being the case, pain in the back should always lead the sufferer to look to the condition of his blood. It will be found in most cases that the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to build up the blood will stop the sensation of pain in the ill-nourished muscles of the back. How much better it is to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the blood than to give way to unreasonable alarm about your kidneys, any doctor can make tests in ten minutes that will set your fears at rest, or tell you the worst. But in any event to be perfectly healthy you must keep the blood in good condition, and for this purpose no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get there pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It's easy for any one to borrow trouble but when it comes to borrowing happiness — well, that's different.

Brag may be a good dog, but there is no more bravery in him than there is in a society poodle.

FORMAL OPENING CITY PLAYGROUNDS

VISITORS SAY THEY EQUAL THOSE OF MANY OF THE LARGER CITIES.

The formal opening of the city playgrounds last night at the Queen Mary grounds was a big night for all. About 500 children and 70 to 75 adults, mostly parents of the children, were present to participate in the games or enjoy witnessing them. Although this was the formal opening of the grounds they have been in operation in the daytime since July 1st. Beginning next Monday night all three playgrounds will be open from 7 to 9 in the evening for working children and visitors.

Six Supervisors.

All six supervisors were present last night, and worked with that quiet enthusiasm that appeals so well to the children. All kinds of group games were indulged in, showing delighted parents the wholesome sport their children are being taught. Many visitors were surprised to find that we had right in our city a playground which can compare favorably with those of any big city. The west end ground is perfectly situated on a high hill with all natural conveniences.

Untiring Enthusiasm.

Although great credit is due the supervisors for raising the playgrounds to such a high state of efficiency, they say that they could do very little without the untiring enthusiasm of the public-spirited men and women who are on the committee.

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by

MANSFIELD F. HOUSE

(Copyright.)

(In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and store articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general. All phases of store management, buying, accounting, advertising and retail salesmanship will be dealt with, not theoretically but by descriptions of methods actually in use by successful merchants.)

Sell the "Self-Starters," Robidoux Advises

[illegible] the busiest druggists in [illegible] Middle West, "Em" Scanlan, [illegible] of the proprietors of the Robidoux Pharmacy of St. Joseph, Mo., and it's his own fault. And he's [illegible] to tell that the first six months in 1918 [illegible] the store doing [illegible] per cent of the [illegible] of the first six months of their taking over the store two years ago. The first six months of last year brought an increase of [illegible] per cent over 1917.

Mr. Scanlan and F. W. Rudolph took over the store it had pegged along for a score or more of years with a solid reputation and low rate of turnover.

Mr. Scanlan manages the store. He used one stunt after another to popularize the store. He started bargain advertising to get the women to the store. Now his weekly advertisement runs as high as forty-six inches. Starting with three people, he now needs twenty-two to handle the business.

One source of increase in sales has been the addition of new merchandise to sell. An actress one day called for a new soap. It was not in stock. But when Scanlan learned from her about its merits a wire was on the way in a half hour for an initial supply with a complement of advertising material. The store got the jump on it.

One day a woman called up to ask about a solution to preserve eggs. It was unknown to Scanlon. But he asked that woman enough questions to learn its properties; now he sells barrels of it annually. Every magazine is read thoroughly by him to get the first crack at the new articles and lines being introduced. About these Mr. Scanlan's own words tell the story:

"I always look over the magazine advertising very carefully," he says. "I make a note of any new item that we can use in our store regardless of whether they are exactly in our line [illegible]. We pass up anything that [illegible] inside the retail class.

"Without waiting for a salesman I always write the manufacturer asking [illegible] to submit his proposition [illegible] and [illegible] his line [illegible] some quicker [illegible] advertising material and other help.

"Nationally advertised goods furnish the line of least resistance. My time is worth a lot of money to me and I can sell nationally advertised goods in about one-tenth the time required to sell other lines. And the customer feels that she has bought an article she knows all about. It is therefore, very seldom that there is any comeback.

"It is true that I am not making the percentage of profit I would on unadvertised merchandise, which is the common argument against nationally advertised goods. But I am making many sales in the same length of time and more customers by the advertising bringing new people. Incidentally, I might mention that as my volume increases my percentage of expense decreases. My experience along this line goes through every department in this store. The nationally advertised lines are 'self-starters.'

"We figure here that a nationally advertised article is half sold as soon as shown. All we need to say is, 'Yes, we recommend it,' or, 'Yes, it enjoys a good sale.' And the fact that we have the goods so advertised, and do not hold them, but push them early, has established a reputation for us as being an up-to-date store. When a woman sees an article advertised in her magazine and it appeals to her she figures right away that the Robidoux has it.

"We are busy here. Each salesperson has several customers waiting during the busy hour of the day. We would never get along if we had to do all the selling and ignored the goods that are half-sold."

Send Bills even to Those Who Don't Owe

A furniture man of Kansas City has the O. K. credit customers' names on addressing plates. Each month this list is run off on the addressing machine on statement heads. The bookkeeper runs through her books and enters on the statements the accounts as they stand. "Window" envelopes are used to mail them, thus saving the work of hand addressing.

As the bookkeeper comes to names that have no accounts against them she puts them aside until she has finished and then turns the bunch over to the addressing department. The department has a machine that prints in typewriter type and very rapidly. The statements bearing the names of the people who owe the store nothing are imprinted by the printing machine, each month with a different piece of copy. Here are three that were found to pull well:

"No doubt it is a satisfaction to you to find that we have nothing on our books against you. Won't you please keep in mind the fact that your account is one we appreciate, and any time you are in need of furniture, rugs, draperies, [illegible] doors, lawn swing, [illegible] or anything that we have [illegible] find a [illegible]."

"We missed [illegible] last month [illegible] don't find a cent on our book to enter in the statement. But we do [illegible] to you in advance [illegible] something it [illegible] to watch for. That [illegible] Draperies Sale. It will not be advertised until a week from next Friday, but if you will come in any time before then you will find the selection better, and no crowds, and you may enjoy the 20 per cent discount that will be advertised at the sale."

"Not a cent do we find on the books under your name this month! So here's one first-of-the-month statement you will be glad to get. We trust that you have nothing against us. Have you? If you have it will be [illegible] who will be favored if you will come down and give us the opportunity to make the matter right. We try to tell everybody that a transaction to satisfy us must satisfy our customers. But sometimes people forget. You do not have to put up with anything that isn't 100 per cent right that you get from us. Will you remember that? And accept our thanks for your patronage of the past."

The Store of 10,000 Items

In these queer days when the druggist sells package handkerchiefs, the book store trades in seeds and garden tools and the hardwareman stocks razors and shaving soaps the poor public is somewhat perplexed as to which way to turn.

A Kentucky pharmacy, recognizing the shifting boundary lines, recently ran an advertisement listing odd kinds of merchandise he sold, such as collar buttons, fishing tackle, flashlights, "Boston garters" etc. Needless to say, the sales of such articles picked up considerably.

What's the Dope?

A New York druggist has discovered a new way to attract neighborhood attention to his stock. On the back of handbills he has printed the word "Dope." These handbills are [illegible] and [illegible] until they are [illegible] wads. But always the word "dope" appeals. The wads are slipped into large capsules and are then distributed. The word can be read through capsules. When the capsules are opened to learn what the dope [illegible] the handbill is ready for perusal.

OWES HER LIFE TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

The Wonderful Medicine, Made From Fruit Juices and Valuable Tonics.

MADAME ROSINA FOISIZ

[illegible] St. Rose St., Montreal.

"I am writing you to tell you that I owe my life to 'Fruit-a-tives'. This medicine relieved me when I had given up hope of ever being well.

I was a terrible sufferer from Dyspepsia—had suffered for years; and nothing I took did me any good.

I read about 'Fruit-a-tives'; and tried them. After taking a few boxes, I was entirely well. You have my permission to publish this letter, as I hope it will persuade other sufferers from Dyspepsia to take 'Fruit-a-tives' and get well".

Madame ROSINA FOISIZ.

Task for Mamma.

Ben was visiting his aunt, who so far forgot herself as to use a "swear word." The youngster was horrified, and upon arriving home he began to tell his grandfather about the occurrence. When he reached the place in his story where the "swear" had to be repeated he stopped and said appealingly: "Mother, won't you say it just once so grandpa can hear how awful Aunt Sue sounded?"

Plodders Have Their Uses.

It is the men who have had vision who have moved the world forward. The rest of us are plodders. We are good plodders and we all do the best we can, but we are really followers in the footsteps of others. If we follow well, and if we plod patiently and tirelessly we also may claim our meed of praise. Also we shall surely be given our reward.—Exchange.

Red-Tapeism.

A young detective was enthusiastic but inexperienced. Rushing into his chief's office in great excitement, he cried, "I've found the murderer! I've got him cornered so that he can't escape!" The chief regarded him with withering scorn. "Allow me," he said, "to draw your attention to the fact that at present we are looking, not for the murderer, but for clews!"

On Riches.

I cannot call riches better than the baggage of virtue. For as the baggage is to the army, so is riches to virtue. It cannot be spared nor left behind, but it hinders the march; yea, and the care of it sometimes loseth or disturbeth the victory. Of great riches there is no real use, except it be in the distribution; the rest is but conceit.—Bacon.

The "Lazy" Zulu

THE Zulu, one of the finest members of the Bantu race, inhabiting Zululand, a territory lying to the north of Natal in South Africa, provides much food for thought and reason for questioning. He is to be met with outside his own country, especially in Natal, where his intercourse with the whites is frequent and fairly intimate. He still preserves many of his tribal traditions and is but very briefly removed from his able and warlike progenitors who made the life of the early settlers no easy one. Brave, fearless, intelligent, and of beautiful physique, they were no mean defenders of their land.

To-day they far outnumber the white section, and living side by side with them, offer the student of human life in all its phases, a wonderful series of antitheses in eugenics, economics, ethics, religion, and philosophy of life. It is crime of no small magnitude for the "superior" white to pass hurried sentence upon and judgment of banishment against Bantu standards of living and to condemn as false his philosophy of life.

His standard of living, as might be expected, is "lower" than that of the whites. His food is very largely farinaceous; corn meal predominates; little meat is consumed save on special occasions. His hut is simple and well adapted to the climate, and his clothing likewise. In spite of this, it is certainly begging the question to use the accepted term of "lower" without comment.

It is true that his life is far, far simpler, for his needs are immeasurably less and his days are filled with a spontaneous happiness and zest of life seldom seen elsewhere. His fund of sheer life-joy is unapproached by the ruling race.

His code of ethics was for long a high one. Before he was introduced to trial by jury and the technical plea of "not guilty," he would nearly always admit a crime when taxed with it. Until his contact with the whites became more intimate, his morals, in the narrow sense of the word, were good. Even now he shows a readiness to "play the game" that is refreshing. Of religion there is no need to speak here.

His philosophy of life is one begotten by the sun and open air, nurtured by a genial, generous climate. His economics [illegible] the result of his philosophy — [illegible] distinctly, his philosophy of life is not dictated by economics — this in itself is noteworthy. They were a race of happy children, but civilization is showing its influence.

The Zulu has often been termed lazy, and various expedients have been tried to induce him to work. The most successful influence has been to create a demand for modern "necessities" and "luxuries." The result has not been happy. To obtain these new toys he has had to leave his kraal and migrate to the industrial centres, such as Johannesburg, Kimberly, and Durban, where he must live a life utterly alien to him; must conform to rules, seemingly arbitrary; must learn to esteem as priceless things of no worth. It is pathetic to see a fine Zulu man rigged in a reach-me-down suit, polished shoes, smart hat, and even carrying a cane. To see a woman adopting a corresponding style is tragic, more so when their fine natural bearing and physique are remembered.

A modern and fairly well developed system of education is contributing to the complete upheaval of native ideas. Most of the work done by the Government and by the many societies is admirable, but it often seems that the white is far too prone to take for granted that his life philosophy is the only one, and with this as a postulate to introduce the thousand and one corollaries of thought, manner, custom, dress, food, and pleasures.

It is freely admitted that it is impossible to segregate any section of the world's population or for any to preserve uninfluenced its own life and thought, but nevertheless we allow little self-determination in the individual mental sphere, nay, rather so arrogant are we that we make any influence upward impossible.

From the Zulu standpoint, we daily forge for ourselves fresh chains; we gather in congested areas and then demand rapid means of getting in and out; we adopt a type of education to conform to our ideal of a "full" life and thus produce abnormal hypersensitive mental states; we fill our houses and lives with nonessentials, from his point of view and by him so little needed that he has to be goaded into desiring them. We ask him to barter his natural freedom and lightness of spirit with its gloriously happy laugh for social conventions and amenities useless to him. He seldom stays continuously at his work for more than six months. He returns to his kraal as though to breathe for a while; again he is called lazy.

The pedantic theologian who in early days debated the standing room [illegible] as a needle's point took themselves seriously; we smile today. What will be the verdict of 400 years hence on our feverish activities and the lazy Zulu?

Meanwhile he is nationally unhappy. Is it too late for us to cease studying the native as an interesting survival of early untutored humanity and to study ourselves from his standpoint? Such study would profoundly influence our methods of handling the "lower" races throughout the world, and possibly recall to our midst the laugh of the kraal.—The Christian Science Monitor.

Do Not Spoil Milk By Careless Handling

July heat is trying on milk — upon the right handling of our Pasteurized milk after delivery from our wagons, depends its quality and keeping qualities.

Protect it from the air—keep in as cool a place as possible and don't pour the left-over milk in the cream jug back into the milk bottle — all these steps help to make our milk a sample of purity and safety.

As to the comparative value of our Pasteurized milk as a food, it gives more for the money than any animal food you use, as follows:

Protein	Energy
1 qt of milk is equal to 7 ounces of sirloin steak.	1 qt of milk is equal to 11.3 ounces of sirloin steak.

To Keep Young.

The great enemy of youthfulness is the drying up process, and this is why we should not only keep as much as possible with the young, but should enter into their joys, their plays, with zest and enthusiasm. We should romp and play with them, interest ourselves in the things that delight them, instead of pushing children away from us and restraining them all the time, regarding them as a nuisance and a bore. Children were given us to keep us youthful, to keep our sympathies fresh.

Peculiar Lawsuit.

Here is a queer cause for a law action. A man who was insane determined to throw himself out of the window of an asylum. He made several attempts and was prevented by the servants. Put in a new apartment, he tried again, jumped out of the window, fell on the lawn and injured himself seriously, but, strange to say, the shock cured his mental disorder. At once he sued the officers of the asylum for negligence. The plaintiff was nonsuited.

Novel Alarm for Mines.

The United States bureau of mines has developed a novel means of giving alarm of danger in all mines where compressed air is made use of throughout the workings. A cubic foot of ice weighs 57.5 pounds, or 30 cubic inches weight almost exactly one pound. A good way to estimate the weight of a rectangular block of ice is to multiply together the depth, breadth and thickness in inches and divide the result by 30, the answer being given in pounds.

Who's Who On The Council Board

ALDERMAN EDGAR

Born in the County of Down, 12 miles from Belfast, North Ireland, Ald. John Edgar is an approved Ulster man, pro-British, and an opponent of Home Rule for Ireland. He is Protestant by faith, a member of the Church of England, and a consistent Orangeman. He came to Canada 29 years ago, and to Peterborough in 1909, when he entered into the commission business, with his brother, Mr. Jas. Edgar, which business he has conducted under his own name since his brother received the appointment as postmaster in 1911. Prior to his Peterborough citizenship, Ald. Edgar taught Public School two years at North Bay and served a term as chairman of the School Board at Burk's Falls, in the Parry Sound district; he also enjoyed that community's confidence one year, as councillor, from which office he resigned to acept the corporation's treasurership. In public life he has the courage of his convictions, talks clearly and explanatory on subjects of public interest, and no man or corporation is too big for him to openly oppose when convinced that his advocations are for the community's weal.

ALD. EDGAR.
Chairman Council's Railways Committee.

Fourth Year as Alderman.

Ald. Edgar is now serving his fourth year on the Council Board with one year's lapse between terms. He first assumed aldermanic office in 1915, was defeated for re-election in 1917, and was sent back to Council in 1918. While always keeping a fatherly eye on the interests of Peterborough city, generally, he is a South Ward man, his home being on Sherbrooke street, where in a skilfully cultivated garden he indulges pronounced horticultural tastes every spare moment of his time.

Street Oiling.

As an alderman John Edgar has fathered several civic measures of some moment, one of which is the oiling of streets, which modern method of laying the dust and preserving the roads, he was the first alderman to move for in the Board of Works of 1915. In this he had strong support from ex-Ald. Saunders.

C.P.R. Foot Bridge.

This was a crying need for some years, and Council after Council had been unsuccessful in securing the project's consummation. Ald. Edgar, however, in 1915, advocated the creation of a new committee—that of railways—and as its chairman (the only chairmanship he has held or hoped for) he left no stone unturned to gain the C.P.R.'s consent to this footway alongside their new steel bridge. On leaving the Council in 1916 he left this question settled so far as arrangements with the railway and for the bridge's construction were concerned; and on his re-election in 1918, he found the bridge erected and others enjoying the credit for thus creating bridge connection between East and South City, at a point fully appreciated by all concerned. In 1918 he also had the pleasure of moving for the last payment in connection with this foot bridge's construction.

Railway Extensions.

In 1915 Ald. Edgar agitated for street railway extensions and received every assurance from Hydro-electric that they would be made; but it was not until the fall of 1918 that under his chairmanship, the Monoghan Road extension was laid. This gives better service to Jackson Park and from the south-west to central city without changing. He is a strong advocate for radials, has secured the assurance of more street railway extensions, and also the promise of a definite and easy proposition from Sir Adam Beck by which this railway may be assumed by the city as a munical-owned public utility.

Sanitation For All.

In the fall of 1916 Ald. Edgar forcefully advocted the connection of all properties with sewers where such were available in the interests of sanitation. His plan was that all owners of rented houses should be forced to connect with sewers and install bathrooms in same; and that small owners who could not afford immediate payment for such improvements should be municipally assisted in this way, the city to make their connection with sewers, install the needed plumbing, and allow the owners to pay for same in instalments, stretching over ten years. His idea was that small owners thus accommodated should give security for their debt, registered against the property, and pay their instalments quarterly, with their water rates, to the Utilities Commission. Although not getting this measure through Council Ald. Edgar has the satisfaction of knowing that Dr. Clinton, District Officer of Health, on his last visit here, recommended the same plan, but on a five years' repayment basis.

In 1918 Ald. Edgar held out for the Quaker Oats paying school taxes on all extensions to and improvements on their mills, and this netted the city an additional $16,000 in revenue last year, to be augmented this year now that extensions are completed.

He also opposed the Mt. St. Joseph sewer bylaw, the successful appeal against which cost the city $800 in legal expense. In fact he has strongly opposed any property on the boundaries using city privileges while paying taxes into another corporation.

Last year Ald. Edgar advocated that all municipal supplies should be purchased by tender where practicable. This principle was adopted by Council, and in one instance where, in the absence of tenders, the price asked for a certain material was $5 the gallon, it was purchased at a competitive charge of only $1.10 and later as low as 80c.

The Big Bridge.

It is on Ald. Edgar's motion, seconded by Ald. Turner, that a start is at last made on the new Hunter street bridge by the Russell-Townsend Co. He was the first one to advocate that they get this contract; he never for one moment wavered in his conviction that their tender and ability to satisfactorily perform was worthy of preference.

Plumbing Inspection.

As to plumbing inspection, Ald. Edgar is strong in his insistence that it shall be properly performed, leaves no stone unturned in this direction. [illegible] always ready to support any movement by Council which will make for approved plumbing.

Hot Water for Sick Headaches

Headache of any kind, is caused by auto intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood, through the lymph ducts, excites the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilide, aspirin or the bromides which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drank before breakfast for a while, will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache but will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar, and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness, constipation, or sour acid stomach, begin the phosphated hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

Results are quick and it is claimed that those who continue to flush out the stomach, liver and bowels every morning never have any headache or know a miserable moment.

TORONTO FAIR NOTES

H. R. H. the Prince of Wales will spend three days in Toronto during the Big Fair. He will open the August 25th, in the open air, where Exhibition on Monday, August 25th, in the open air, where many thousands may see him, and will remain in the city until Wednesday, spending all or part of three days at the Exhibition grounds.

In order to accommodate the Canadian War Memorials paintings at the Canadian National Exhibition, an extension of 130 x 30 feet to the Fine Arts Gallery is necessitated. Some of the paintings are over 20 feet long.

Romney's portrait of Joseph Brant bought by the Canadian Memorials Fund at the public auction for $27,500, and the famous "Death of General Wolfe," generously presented to the Fund by the Duke of Westminster are among the paintings to be shown in the War Memorials exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition this year.

Every phase of labor and organization required by the exigencies of modern warfare are shown in the Canadian War Memorials paintings to be exhibited at the Canadian National Exhibition this year.

The "Hell of Death" that faced the Canadians at the second battle of Ypres, when they were set against the first German gas attack, is vividly portrayed in the War Memorials paintings to be shown at the Canadian National Exhibition this year.

It will cost the Canadian National Exhibition over $25,000 in salaries, transportation charges and board to [illegible] the British Grenadier Guards Band out for the two weeks of the Big Fair.

One whole building will be devoted to Canadian war trophies at the Canadian National Exhibition, while the big guns, aeroplanes and other large relics will be distributed around the grounds, giving the Big Fair a truly atmosphere.

The victory spirit will dominate the Canadian National Exhibition this year, and the Dominion war trophies, the Can. War Memorials paintings, Grendier Guards band, and German U-boat will furnish a real khaki background for the event.

German Samoan Islands

In South Pacific Ocean

Are Small But Interesting

THE German Samoan Islands, for which New Zealand is to hold the mandate, according to preliminary summaries of the peace treaty, are interesting.

Samoa, called by former geographers the Navigators Islands, from the skill in navigation shown by its inhabitants, consists of four principal bits of land lying in the South Pacific, nearly midway between New Zealand and Hawaii.

The number of islands in the group may, by counting the smaller, be increased to 11, or even 14, but only Savii, Upolu, Tutuila, and the three usually included under the general term Manua, are important.

All are verdure-clad and inhabited, and in appearance and shape resemble immense green hats, the interior representing the crown being mountainous, while the brim or shore is covered with cocoanut palms, breadfruit, banana, and other tropical trees, which furnish the native food.

At some prehistoric period the peaks of a submerged mountain chain running northeast and southwest have been lifted from the depths of the ocean by the upheaval of volcanoes now long extinct. Accumulations of soil brought by heavy rains from the mountains meet the evergrowing reef, which prevents easy approach to the land except in those places where fresh water streams, forcing their way through, form openings in the coral barrier.

Between reef and shore a lagoon, varying in width from 200 yards to two or three miles, provides a secure highway for coast and inter-island traffic. The entire length of the group, if Rose Island be included, is little less than 300 miles.

The native inhabitants of the islands are of Polynesian stock and are clearly related to the natives of both Hawaii and New Zealand. For practical purposes these natives may be divided into four classes. At the head stand the chiefs, who are hereditary in the sense that they must belong to certain families, but elective in that they exercise authority by virtue of titles conferred on them.

The Tulafale, talkingman, is their executive officer, who [illegible] their [illegible] in eloquent language, and is frequently the central figure in the district and the source of authority. Below him and above the lowest class, composed of what are known as the "common people," are the native teachers and catechists, who wear more clothes and do less fighting than the rest of the population.

There is nothing in the dress or bearing of a high chief which enable a foreigner to distinguish him, but he is isolated from the rest of the people by a system of rigid etiquette. No one may hold up umbrella or do certain kinds of work in his presence, and a special vocabulary is set apart in which to address him. The common names for food, an ax, a pig, etc., are tabooed in his presence. His face, his anger, and other attributes are described in an entirely different set of words from those used for ordinary men.

Hedged about as he is, the chief, in his intercourse with persons not of his rank, has come to depend largely on his "talking man" who, like his chief, is elected from certain families in which the office is hereditary. As a rule, no one is elected who has not a gift for oratory, which is a common talent in Samoa.

The powers and duties of the "talking men" are considerable. They are men of much dignity of carriage, and as they stand leaning upon a staff of office with a "fue," or fly flap cast over one shoulder, with which occasionally to emphasize their remarks, they compare favorably in appearance with the orators of a nation more civilised than themselves.

Soldiers to Emigrate.

Everything tends to show, says the London Chronicle, that when the boys get home many of them will not stay there. The war has bred in many love for an open air vigorous life, and hundreds of soldiers awaiting demobilization do not regard a return to the desk or the office with enthusiasm. A very large number are thinking of emigration, hoping to find a fuller, freer life, with perhaps a spice of adventure, in lands across the seas.

Miss Cheshire, who is in charge of the employment agency run by the Overseas Club in Aldwych, said that they are being overwhelmed with inquiries from young soldiers who are anxious to try their luck in the colonies or South America. "There are queues of them from morning to night," she said.

Most of them are young fellows who joined the army straight from school, and they want to strike out a new line, in a new land. Without having any definite aim they all seem to think there is a bigger life waiting for them in the colonies; and as they all possess the spirit of adventure they are keen to try new conditions.

"We are able to help them a good bit," said Miss Cheshire. "We have 11,000 corresponding secretaries scattered all over the world, and they are able to supply us with very complete information as to labor conditions and business openings. In many cases we feel justified in advising inquirers to go out and try their luck, particularly if they have a little capital. And we are able to tell them which places need a lot of capital and which do not."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE CONTEST FOR AUTO

NEW DIAMOND RINGS AND OTHER PRIZES STARTS OUT WITH RUSH.

The automobile and diamond ring voting contest, which has just been announced by the management of the Grand Opera House, promises to be a very interesting one, and the interest manifest so early in the race is very pleasing to the management of the theatre. The prizes are to be a 1919 Chevrolet touring car, which was purchased from the Manning garage, who are exclusive agents for the Chevrolet. In addition to the automobile a $100.00 diamond ring and a $50.00 diamond ring will be given as second and third prizes, which were purchased from the Warne Bros. jewelery store, and can be seen on display in the windows of their store. The automobile is valued at $990.00 and the diamond rings at $100.00 and $50.00, each making a total of $1140.00 in prizes that will be awarded to the three contestants that have the largest number of votes by the 15th of August, 1919. This is without doubt the shortest contest of it's kind where prizes of such value are offered. Each detail of the contest has been worked out in such a way that each and every one entered in the race will have the same opportunity to win the automobile. Already a large number of names have been entered to compete for the prizes, and, no doubt, many more will be received today, the fact that the campaign lasts only two weeks and a half, which is a very short time for prizes of this value to be ca-ed, is an incentive for the contestants and their friends to get busy early in the race. A coupon, which is good for 5 votes, is given with each and every paid admission at the box office, and when the holder of this coupon writes the name of the contestant that they wish to vote for on it and drop it in the ballot box, it will be added to the contestant's curtain count, which will be shown at the Grand Opera House every day at each performance. No contestant will be permitted to compete as a representative of any club, church, labor or social organization, with the intention of turning the prize that they win over for the benefit of the organization. This restricton is made so that it will be fair to all, and so that each contestant will have the same opportunity to win. Be sure and get your votes every time you go to the theatre and cast them for your favorite, or better yet, enter the contest yourself. just fill out one of the nomination blanks and drop it in the ballot box at the theatre, and be sure and see the contest manager and have the plan of the contest explained to you. All contestants that wish to take an active part in the campaign will be furnished with a free vote book if they call on the campaign manager Monday morning. All of these prizes will positively be awarded to the three contestants that have the largest number of votes by August 15th, 1919, regardless of the number of votes that the contestants may have, so get in the race and get a good start and keep it up until the 15th of August and be the winner of the automobile, or one of the diamond rings. On another page of this issue you will find a complete list of those that have been nominated with the number of votes that have been cast for each up to date. If your name is not included in the list be sure and nominate yourself today.

STYLE IN GLASSES

There's new and correct things in Glasses, just as there are in dress. At present the very newest and most popular style in glasses are the shell rims. They are made to suit every kind of lens, but are largely intended to be used on the large cut lenses. They are rich and handsome looking. Dr. Fowler has a large selection of them.

DOCTOR ADVISED HIM TO TAKE IT

A. F. ROBERTS, SUCCESSFUL CATTLE DEALER, GAINS 16 POUNDS IN 60 DAYS TAKING TANLAC.

"One of the best doctors in Colorado advised me to take Tanlac and it has not only overcome my troubles but I have gained sixteen pounds since I began taking it sixty days ago," said A. F. Roberts, who lives at Rocky Ford, Alberta, Canada, a few days ago.

Mr. Roberts is one of the largest cattle dealers in his section of the country, and before moving to Canada a short time ago he had spent most of his life in Colorado, U.S.A.

"I can now understand why Tanlac enjoys such wide popularity both in Canada and the United States," continued Mr. Roberts, "and since it has done me so much good, I know that it is a very dependable medicine and deserves all the praise that is being given it. For the past two years I have suffered from stomach trouble, and when I commenced taking this Tanlac, it was almost impossible for me to retain anything I ate. I was very nervous and never got a good night's sleep, and finally got so weak and rundown that I was hardly able to get about. I often had dizzy spells, and was bothered a great deal with constipation.

"My physician certainly knew what he was doing when he prescribed Tanlac for me, for it has done the work for me, as I am as healthy and strong now as I ever was in my life. In fact it has done much more for me than I expected it would do. I have a fine appetite and everything I eat agrees with me perfectly, and I never have the slightest sign of stomach trouble of any kind. I am no longer bothered with constipation, and never have those dizzy spells any more. I have regained all my strength, too and that nervousness has left me so I sleep like a log every night. In fact, I am simply enjoying perfect health again, and I give Tanlac credit for it all."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

TRINITY AND ST. ANDREW'S SERVICES TOMORROW

The union services of Trinity and St. Andrew's Churches will be conducted on Sunday by the Rev. F. E. Malott. He will preach in Trinity Church in the morning on "Waste and Repair." His evening theme in St. Andrew's Church will be "What the Psalmist Said to His Soul." Mr. Treneer, the talented organist of St. Andrew's Church, will have charge of the music. The aim is brief, helpful services for the summer months. All are welcome.

To Get Rid of Roaches.

The United States department of agriculture considers ridding a house of roaches important enough to give instructions how to accomplish this. Mix equal parts of sodium fluoride and flour (or starch). Use like ordinary roach powders, forcing it into crevices, sprinkling it around drain pipes, etc.

Faults.

Do not think of your faults; still less of others' faults; in every person who comes near you, look for what is good and strong; honor that; rejoice in it, and as you can, try to imitate it; and your faults will drop off like dead leaves, when their time comes.—Ruskin.

Could Verify Statement.

"There are songs," said the musician, "that never, never die. They go ringing down the ages." "That is true, sir," Brown replied. "For the past six months and upward I have heard my daughter try to kill two or three each evening, but they never, never die."

Natural gas conveyed in bamboo tubes was utilized in China years ago, and one of their writers mentions boxes which repeated the sound of persons' voices that were dead—a machine similar to the phonograph.

MEMBERS OF FARMERS CLUB ARE LAYING IN THEIR SUPPLY OF COAL

Five Car Loads Brought in and Are Being Distributed Among Local Farmers—Will No Longer Depend on the City Dealers.

The Farmers' Club has recently accomplished something worth while for its members. The farmers will no longer depend upon the city dealers for their supply of coal, to be told so often that there was no coal for the residents of the county until all the city consumers had been supplied. The local club has recently brought in five car loads of coal, and members are laying in their supply, the coal to be distributed as it was spoken for when the order was sent in. Some of the farmers have already laid in their winter's supply and will not be in any sense beholden to the city dealers.

Price of hard coal today ... $11.50
Year ago 10.50
November 15, 1918 ... . 11.50
Winter of 1918-19 .... 12.00

Probable price this winter, $13.00 to $14.00.

Shortage in the United States this year to date, 10,000,000 tons.

From a financial standpoint it will be a wise move for every person to get coal in early—as early as possible anyway—for local dealers expect the price to be from a dollar to two dollars a ton dearer this winter than last. Then, again, according to the manager of the Standard Fuel Co., Toronto, there is a decided shortage. The anticipated increase in price, it is pointed out, depends principally on the labor situation. Higher wages and the emigration of about 35,000 alien miners to European countries is responsible for the present increase of a dollar a ton. Thousands of other miners are preparing to leave for Europe. In the United States only 40,000,000 tons of anthracite coal have been mined so far this year, or approximately 10,000,000 tons less than last year for the corresponding period.

From information gathered at a number of the largest dealers in Toronto about the same quantity of coal has been delivered to date this year as last. It is stated that a large percentage of those living in the residential areas have their winter's supply in, while many who buy in small quantities are waiting for colder weather.

There is quite a run on stove coal, about 80 per cent. of the people ordering this variety. The majority of them are disappointed. For the past few days none of this fuel has been delivered. Those who are willing to take egg and pea or chestnut are having their orders filled, while the others will have to wait indefinitely.

If coal goes to $14 in Toronto, the price in Peterborough, owing to the difference in freight, will likely climb to $15. The wise consumer will not delay in securing a supply as soon as possible.

Ivory Mats.

There are but three mats of ivory in existence. The largest one measures eight by four feet, and although made in the north of India, has a Greek design for a border. It is used only on state occasions, like the signing of important documents. The cost of this precious mat was almost incalculable, for more than 6,400 pounds of pure ivory were used in its construction. Only the finest and most flexible strips of the material could be used, and the mat is like the finest woven fabric.

Life's Turning Point.

When you get into a tight place, and everything goes against you, till it seems as if you couldn't hold on a minute longer, never give up then, for that is just the place and time the tide will turn.—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Pity the Manicurist.

Of course you have your little worries and moments of vexation while going about your daily tasks, but suppose you had to listen to all the flubdub and mushy talk a manicurist has to listen to while she goes about hers?—Macon Telegraph.

MINERAL OIL
For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the highest in quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE. There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased, as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative, and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

The Oldest Newspaper.

Benjamin Franklin contributed much to the development of journalism in colonial days. An editor at the age of 16 and a prolific writer, he was identified at some time or another in his life with many of the newspapers which flourished during this period. The oldest newspaper in the United States, which has been continued without interruption of issue or change of name, is the New Hampshire Gazette. It was first published in Portsmouth, N. H., in 1756.

Place of Fat Men in History.

Fat and fame have not very often been combined, perhaps because stout men are generally inclined to be easy going and therefore lacking in that push which brings a man to the fore, says London Answers. The only great statesman one can recall who was really a fat man was Charles James Fox, as can be seen even by his effigy in the palace of Westminster, where he would make three of his great rival, Pitt the younger.

Deservedly Valuable Pen.

One of the best-known pens in the United States is owned by Isaac F. Reed of New York, who at one time refused to sell it for $750. Its value arises from the fact that, aside from having been used by both Lincoln and Grant, it was made from a carved box in which young George Washington kept parts of his surveying instruments. The box itself was made from the lid of a desk that belonged to the captain of the Mayflower.

The Eyeglass Glide.

It was at a formal dancing party, and I was dancing with a young man who wore eyeglasses. I soon felt something cold slide down my back, and my friend said, "Pardon me; my glasses have fallen down your back." Needless to say I escaped to the dressing room and had the glasses removed and returned to him.—Chicago Tribune.

Age of the Bagpipe.

It is wrong to suppose that the bagpipe is associated only with Scotland, for this instrument is centuries old and has always been known in Asia. People danced to the music of the bagpipe in the thirteenth century, the painter Raphael pictures a bagpiper, and didn't the Pied Piper of Hamelin play the same instrument?

FAIRLY LARGE LOCAL MARKET THIS MORNING

Prices Remain High—Butter 60c lb., Eggs 52c.

The market this morning was fairly large and offerings plentiful, many farmers came to town who otherwise would have stayed at work were it not for the rain. The prices:

MAE MARSH in "The BONDAGE of BARBARA" Goldwyn Pictures

GRAND, MON., TUES. AND WED.

"THE BONDAGE OF BARBARA" REVEALS LIFE AS IT IS

Mae Marsh insists that everyone is held in some sort of bondage. It may be happy bondage as occurs in her new Goldwyn Picture, "The Bondage of Barbara," but it is bondage nevertheless.

Everyone who works for a living is usually working for some one else as well, she says. And she points to any number of her friends among the stars who have a mother to support and often brothers and sisters. So it is with other people who are not stars. Girls in shops, waitresses and practically wherever a girl is found employed, she is devoting a portion of her earnings to the support of some one who, in most cases, should be self-supporting.

It is the protecting instinct in the feminine sex, Miss Marsh goes on to say, that is responsible for this. They simply must look after someone, if it is necessary to earn money to do it rather than merely keep house for them, why, girls seem only too glad to do that.

"The Bondage of Barbara" is typical for this reason. The heroine supports a younger brother, who is more interested in idling than in making a place for himself. The fact that Barbara does not rebel, but goes on working for enough money to suffice for both is true to life, according to the slim star. It happens every day.

Happily, in the play the youth comes to his senses, and we are led to suppose that he settles down and begins to pay back all that he has accepted from his sister. In conclusion, Miss Marsh says that more and more photoplays are coming to reflect real life, not the jumble of highly colored incidents that served to entertain some years ago.

TERRIBLE VENDETTA IN "THE VELVET HAND"

Where is Charlie Ross.

What became of the little Philadelphia boy who so mysteriously disappeared over a quarter of a century ago and has not since been heard of?

Although the case is the one unsolved mystery in eastern police annals it is believed by veteran officers who have worked on the case that the child was taken by agents of the Italian vendetta, the most terrible and infallible secret society of the ages.

If you would see the solemnity with which the sworn agents of this society set about to do the bidding of their conscience, go to the Grand Theatre Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday and see Fritzi Brunette in "The Velvet Hand," her brilliant and beautiful Bluebird photodrama.

The story is from the pen of Edith Barnard Delano and was produced at the Bluebird studios under the direction of Douglas Gerrard.

Remember, "The Velvet Hand," is at the Grand Theatre. See her in a fierce battle against a man whom she believed to be the slayer of her brother.

Popular Song Is Set on Its Legs by Organization, Artifice and Manifold Talk

THE songs we hear whistled by the street-boy, or the ballads hummed by wealthy girls in the drawing-room, seem to have arrived quite naturally at their popularity, don't they?

As a matter of fact, each song, before it appears in the music-sellers' window has probably had a career full of incident, says Answers.

The public wants new songs, and requires them of a certain type; but for the rest its mind is largely made up for it by the music publishers, who cater for the public's need, and who, in their turn, depend on the work of the composer and the author.

The author writes songs and lyrics which the composer sets to music. Both these craftsmen are aware that for the general public they have mainly to provide tuneful music and words that make a direct appeal.

With their knowledge of what has sold, the path of the lyrist and composer is fairly clear. They know the publisher will accept songs of the right nature. The procedure is as follows:

The lyrist writes his poem and sends it to a composer who sets to music that type of lyric, be it a song of love or humor, a barrack-room or sea-faring ballad. If the composer deems the offered words suitable he weaves his melody round the words, and pays the lyrist a set sum of money for it.

Often certain lyrists and composers suit each other, and work together. In other cases, where an author is well known and standardized, the composer may approach him first.

The composer, possessing now the theme for his song, "sets" it. He proceeds with the completed work to a publishing firm which caters for that class of song. The publisher's office is probably one of a suite of offices or a room behind a music shop. Here the composer sits down to the piano, and plays over the tune to the publisher's editor.

This gentleman, having himself sold me "popular hits" for years, has developed an acute instinct for the right thing. If the song appeal to him as likely to make a hit and be a quick seller, he occasionally buys the sole rights of the song. But more often, as its popularity is still to make, he either pays a certain sum, with royalties to follow, or works solely on royalties. By royalties, the composer receives so much on all songs sold.

The song, accepted, it is printed and published. One would think the music publisher's work now ended; but it has merely begun. The serious business of booming the song is the most strenuous part of his duty.

Briefly, the publisher has to advertise his song, as any other wares are advertised.

One method is by inserting in newspapers and trade periodicals an advertisement, which takes the form of the opening musical bars of the verse or refrain, together with the words of the lyric.

Another way is to send out lists, regularly made up, of the publisher's latest songs.

A good firm, in more elaborate style, will arrange, at one of the principal London concert-rooms, a series of concerts. A tour on the same lines is arranged for the provinces, and the chief towns of Great Britain are visited. For these concerts, well-known singers of each voice, the front rank of the profession, are approached by the publisher.

If these artists accept the engagement, it is understood that they sing songs published by the firm fee-ing them, and they are expected to introduce into their repertoire one or two of the new publications.

In the case of a firm publishing more popular songs and music hall "stuff," the pull of such songs has already been tested to a certain extent in the following fashion:

For a suitable consideration, or with the idea of trying over a "find" for his own turns, a singer has introduced them on the stage as his encore or third song. By the applause gained the singing quickly gauges the commercial value of the effort.

If it shows signs of gaining public favor, the publisher pushes the song to the utmost. During the seaside season, he will get it similarly introduced at pierrot shows.

But the greatest opportunity arrives with the pantomime months. The publisher will then approach the pantomime producers, and arrange with them for a scena of the song to be made. Thus, a song of which the theme is, say, poppies, will be staged with a cornfield or hedgerow background, and the singer and chorus will be dressed in the colors or semblance of the flower.

And so, as a result of organization, artifice, and manifold toil, the popular song is set on its legs, and started for a long run.

Canada's Longest Tunnel.

The longest railway tunnel on the American Continent is the Rogers Pass tunnel on the Rocky Mountain division of the Canadian Pacific line, which is five miles in length and runs under Mt. Macdonald, in the Selkirk range. It was constructed at a cost of more than $10,000,000. Previous to its being put through, the Hoosac tunnel on the Fitchburg division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, 4¾ miles in length, was the longest tunnel in America.

Y.M.C.A. and Tzecho-Slovak.

A new and interesting picture of Y.M.C.A. work in the war finds its way into print in the story of a private in the Tzecho-Slovak army, which was part of the Russian forces, and later fought against the Bolshevik. To these Tzecho-Slovak soldiers, the writer says the Y.M.C.A. workers were known as "our uncles from America," and they "lived with us like our own boys and kept us jolly in the most difficult times." The particular "uncle" who was with the private's company had traveled in Bohemia before the war, and put his observation to good use in making Bohemia sausage and smoked meat until "the whole army wanted uncle's sausages." Throughout this Tzecho-Slovak army the "uncles from America" earned the gratitude of the institution that had sent them overseas, and every one of them, says the grateful private, has been kept on the roll of the regiment that he "uncled."

China and the Y.M.C.A.

That the "Y" hut of war-time days in France is a good thing which should be preserved and copied in China is the decision arrived at a conference of some 69 Chinese Y.M.C.A. secretaries who were appointed to work among the hundreds of thousands of Chinese coolies employed as laborers in France. It was the first time that any of them had come in contact with the work of the association and they have been so impressed by the work accomplished that they have decided to carry on the work of the association, which now reaches chiefly the higher classes, among the coolies and others. China was well represented at the conference. Delegates came from widely separated parts of the republic, such as Manchuria, Shanhing, Kiangson, Chi-Li, Hupeh and many other places.

Planting Fruits in North.

In the north and wherever the winter conditions are severe on plant life, either from temperatures, driving winds, or other causes, fruits are usually planted in the spring as early as the soil can be put in suitable condition. It is important that they be set out while the plants are dormant and before the buds have started.—Weekly News Letter.

Executions Went On.

Some years ago the executioners of Canton struck against striking off any more heads unless they were paid an extra shilling for each head removed. The prisoners in the condemned cells were anxious that the strike should continue until the crack of doom, but the authorities climbed down and the executions went on as merrily as before.

Disliked Church Bells.

It is not everyone who regards the bells of London with affection. Keats expressed his dislike of the Sabbath bells in a sonnet, and there is a story of a man who was with difficulty dissuaded from becoming a Mohammedan in order to escape [illegible] on which was opposed to the ringing of church bells.

TORONTO WINNERS IN CANADIAN BIG HENLEY REGATTA YESTERDAY

Long Looked For Aquatic Event Open Under Favorable Auspices

Henley Course, July 26.—A sunny sky, calm water and but little wind help to make the weather conditions ideal for the first day's racing this afternoon in the Canadian Henley. What little wind there is will help the oarsmen on the home stretch. There are ten events on the programme including half a dozen finals.

The hope that some of the Philadelphia crews or individual oarsmen would be on hand was not fulfilled. Competition promises to be fairly keen, however. There were less than two hundred people present when the gun went off for the first race at 2.30 p.m.

The course has been thoroughly cleared and everything is promising for the creating of new records.

FIRST RACE
Junior Four Finals

1. Dons; 2. Argos; 3. Ottawa, 4. Buffalo.

Time: 9 minutes, 20 seconds.

SECOND RACE
140-lbs Four, Final

1. Dons; 2. Argos.

Time: 9 minutes, 51 2-5 seconds

JUNIOR SINGLES
First Heat

1. Carter of Dons; 2. Sewell of Argos.

Time: 10 minutes, 15 seconds.

Second Heat

1. Price, Dons; 2. Huestis, Argos; 3, Carol, Westside, Buffalo.

Third Heat

1. Durnam, Argos; 2. Moran, Dons.

Time: 10.23.

Owing to the seat of Durnan's boat becoming unplaced his race with Moran of the Dons had to be re-rowed after the pair had only proceeded about fifty yards.

On the re-start the son of the old champion sculler got away well and was two lengths ahead on the turn. Durnan kept his smooth stroke and although Moran put up a good argument, Durnan had no trouble in winning by four lengths and thus breaking the Dons' winning streak.

ROY HUTCHINSON AND STAN COON HIGH GUNS AT SHOOT

Weekly Shoot Peterborough Gun Club —Good Shooting.

The Peterborough Gun Club held their weekly shoot last night at their traps, and some very good scores were made. Roy Hutchinson and Stan Coon were high guns with 21 out of 25, after some nice shooting. Below are the scores:

JOHNNY GRIFFITHS DEFEATS JOHN TILMAN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Denver, July 25. Johnny Griffiths of Akron, Ohio, was given referee's decision over Johnny Tilman of Minneapolis, in a 15 round bout here last night. The men are welter weights.

KNOW A GOOD TEAM.

On Monday evening Jake Solomon of this city will visit Lindsay. The Lindsay Post says he will be accompanied by his speedy ball tossers for a big do-or-die exhibition game between the Potes and the Greybirds. Abbie Hill will be on the hill for the local squad, and the strongest possible team will back him up.

This is a twilight game called for 6:15 p.m., and thirty cents pays the way.

SWIMMING RACES HIGH PARK, AUG. 16

CANADIAN AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIPS TO TANK AROUSE INTEREST.

The Canadian Amateur Swimming Association has sanctioned the long plunge, 200 yard free style and a ladies' speed race to the High Park Swimming Club, 2000 Bloor Street west, to be held August 16. The annual tournament of the club will also be held on this date.

The High Park Swimming Club is a young club, organized five years ago and has grown to be one of the largest clubs in Canada. The officers of the club are all wide awake men and have put on a programme surpassed by no other club. Their members have won many championships, including the city water-polo championship. Their polo team has been undefeated for three years. The boys, however, can take defeat as well as victory without making excuses and loss of temper and are always there with the handshake with anyone who can defeat them.

The club will be represented by A. Flint, C. Cronin and F. Koken at the Canadian Amateur Diving Championships held at the Toronto Swimming Club and are confident of winning out as they ran first, second third in the City Championships. Two of the High Park's best divers are still overseas, the Chillcott brothers. It is hoped they will return before the second of August.

OBJECT TO STANDING ARMY.

Stratford, July 26. — The Trades and Labor Council, at its regular meeting passed a resolution protesting against a standing army of ten thousand men for Canada as a needless expense. It was also resolved to circularize all labor councils in the Dominion asking their co-operation in urging Premier Borden to make a clear definition of his policy as regards Labor.

LAST CHANCE TONIGHT TO ENJOY VISIT TO CITY OF PLEASURE

Polack Bros.' Stupendous Combination of Tented and Open Air Amusements Close After Tonight's Performances.

The crowds at Polack's Big Shows last night were again stupendous, testifying to the merits of this big entertaing features:

This big circus, wild west and carnival, which has been the outdoor amusement feature of the city during the past week will come to a close with this evening's performances. The Polack Bros.' 20 Big Shows have been exhibiting at the Exhibition grounds playing under the auspices of the Peterborough Agriculture Exhibition Board.

Larry Boyd, general manager of the shows, said last evening: "The patronage has been greater than expectations. Peterborough has been one of the smallest cities we have ever played, but the attendance has far surpassed some of the larger ones in the States. It is indeed gratifying to note the way in which the public have lefted our Midway boosting for the various attractions, which has, no doubt, been responsible for our successful engagement. The newspapers have also came forward in a generous way indorsing the shows and we certainly look forward to a return engagement next year.

"A special Saturday matinee performance will be given this afternoon, commencing at two o'clock, and Victor's concert band will give a concert in the city at about the same hour.

"The La Rose Electric Fountain, Princess Wenona's Wild West Show and the big circus side show, as well as the other attractions have pleased and entertained all who had the opportunity of witnessing the various performances."

Pair Were Arrested in Parry Sound—Prosecution Dropped.

Midland Free Press: Ridges Dusome, of Parry Sound, aged thirty-five, left that town on the 9th, accompanied by Miss Bessie Lane, 14. On the 10th they were married at Coldwater; on the 11th they were arrested, and on the 12th they returned to Parry Sound.

A wire from Parry Sound notified Chief Wright of their disappearance. He and his officers were consequently awaiting the bridal pair. They were first recognized on King street by a jitney driver Friday evening and a few minutes later were taken into custody by Policeman Hoy. The chief of police from Parry Sound took them back to that town Saturday.

After arriving at Parry Sound the parties adjusted their differences and the prosecution was dropped.

TO REPEAL THE PACT.

Congress Preparing to Increase the Protective Tariff.

Washington, July 26.—Immediate repeal of the Canadian Reciprocity Act, approved by President Taft on July 26, 1911, was decided upon by the ways and means committee of Congress. This is the first tariff revision definitely agreed to by the Republicans since gaining control of Congress, and is a step toward throwing a high protective wall about American produtcs.

INTERNAT'L CRACK GOLFERS IN MATCH

OUIMET AND EVANS ARE FAVORITES ON THE TAMAHAC, ANCASTER, LINKS.

Tamahac Golf Links, Ancaster, July 26.—The international match between the [illegible] Canadian and American golf teams opened yesterday on the links of the Hamilton Golf and Country Club at Ancaster, with a [illegible]some, four ball match. Guilford, the Boston player, was the only man of Captain W. C. Fownes' American team, who did not report today. Francis Ouimet, whose attendance had been in doubt, arrived this morning in time for the opening event and was a gallery favorite from the start.

As a starter, Robert A. Gardner of Chicago, and Max R. Marston, of Philadelphia, teed off with Seymour Lyon, Toronto, and Fritz Martin, the Hamilton south paw.

Chick Evans, was paired with E. M. Byers the Pittsburg player against Wm. McLuckie, the Canadian champion and W. J. Thompson of Toronto. Some excellent golf was uncovered in this match and the round was closely contested. The Amerians were one up at the turn.

Francis Ouimet's putting was continually the object of the gallery admiration. He was paired with Anderson, the New York entry, against Geo. S. Lyon, captain of the Canadian team, and G. H. Turpin of Montreal. At the ninth hole the United States stars were three up, having won three of the four last holes.

One of the prettiest matches was that between Bobby Jones and W. C. Fownes and S. G. Hodinzel and John Haddon, the two Canadian players. The Canadians held their renowned opponents very well and were all square at the turn.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

Mr Wm Rodd, employed at the Boving plant, Lindsay, was the victim of a painful accident. He was engaged operating a planer, and on stepping up on the machine to see if it was cutting satisfactorily his foot was caught and badly crushed. Had the foot penetrated another inch it would undoubtedly have been severed.

Strike Balked Legislators.

A strike once brought a legislature to a standstill—no less than the house of representatives at Washington. The officers of the house had notified the stenographers that their pay would be cut ten cents a folio, and the short hand writers immediately struck, forcing a suspension of the sitting until matters were amicably arranged.

Wonder of Plant Life.

A species of the acacia tree attains a height of about eight feet. When full grown it closes its leaves together in coils each day at sunset. The [illegible] will flutter violently if touched [illegible] of the branches [illegible] the tree will emit a nauseating odor. The natives call it the "angry tree."

The Frigate Bird.

Naturalists aver that the frigate bird performs most of the business of its life on the wing, feeding, the collection of nesting material, and even sleeping. The spread of its mighty wings is immense, and it can fly [illegible] miles an hour without seeming to move.

Beginning of Auto Craze.

In September, 1895, there were on file in Washington more than 500 applications for patents on automobiles. Three hundred different types of motor vehicles had been built or were in process of construction at that date.

Sympathy.

Sympathy [illegible] our life with [illegible]. The fisherman on the ocean [illegible] is not alone when he remembers the [illegible] longings which are arising [illegible] to heaven at home for his safety. [illegible] not alone [illegible] greet him on his [illegible] open him as he [illegible] on the [illegible] lent [illegible] is not alone when he [illegible] home [illegible] which he is preparing to address to them.—F. W. Robertson.

First Thrift Day.

The first thrift day in America [illegible] August 11, 191[illegible] the first time one special day [illegible] in the interest of [illegible] a proclamation by Governor Johnson. The occasion marked the opening of the thrift congress held at the Panama-Pacific exposition by the American Society for Thrift.—Thrift Magazine.

Indian Tailor Bird.

A very curious nest is made by the tailor bird of India, a tiny yellow creature. To escape snakes and monkeys this bird takes a dead leaf, flies up into a tree, and with a fiber for a thread and its bill for a needle sews the leaf to a green one hanging from the tree. The sides are sewn up, an opening to the nest thus formed being left at the top. The leaf, apparently hanging from a twig, would never be taken for a nest.

Unlucky Thirteen.

A correspondent suggests that the origin of the "unlucky thirteen" superstition is to be found in the casting lots by Haman to discover a "lucky day" for the destruction of the Jews. The 13th was certainly a most unfortunate selection in this case and the story was so popular in the middle ages that it may really have given rise to the superstition.

Friendship That Lasts.

Friendship is apt to creep away into some corner of the temple on whose shrine love has descended. This mild affection is but a twinkling taper that will burn steadily on, perhaps unseen amid the dazzling glory of love's supernatural lamp, to be found shining benignantly when the lamp is shattered.

Barbadoes Island.

Barbadoes island is the most easterly of the West Indies. George Washington took the one foreign journey of his life to Barbadoes with his invalid brother, Lawrence Washington. It is the most densely populated in the world, averaging 1,120 people per square mile.

Garrulous Husbands.

"Don't expect a wife always to be the listener," advises Winifred Black. Certainly not. Wives have to sleep occasionally. The fact is, the law ought to punish those garrulous husbands who talk their wives to death.

Eagle Is Threatened.

The existence of the bird which is the emblem of America is threatened. An Alaskan law places a bounty of 50 cents on every bald eagle killed. The result is that in 19 months over 5,000 eagles have been killed. The bald eagle is charged with destroying salmon, young deer and game birds.

Strength.

Said the observing cuss: "The kid [illegible] despair of his parents [illegible] frequently develops into the kind of business man who raises the mortgage off the old home place as soon as he gets in the harness."

A 200-Foot Dive.

The greatest depth ever reached by a diver is said to be 2[illegible] feet. The greatest depth at which useful work has been done is 182 feet. Sponge and pearl divers, working without armor, frequently descend to depths of about 150 feet.

Christian Unity.

He who takes hold of one end of the litter on which a hurt brother is prone must not pause to question the name and affiliation of the man who takes hold of the other end.—The Christian Herald.

Each Works to Same End.

The ease, the luxury, and the abundance of the highest state of civilization are as productive of selfishness as the difficulties, the privations and the sterilities of the lowest.—Colton.

Daily Thought.

There is no man so good, who, were he to submit all his thoughts and actions to the law, would not deserve hanging ten times in his life.—Montaigne.

Hurt by Injudicious Friends.

If a cause be good, the most violent attack of its enemies will not injure it so much as an injudicious defense of it by its friends.—Colton.

The Bungler's Way.

To do evil, that good may come of it, is for bunglers in politics as well as morals.—William Penn.

Lest You Didn't Know.

Twenty-Eight Children Between 4 And 14 Years At Summer Camp

God-Given Work by Peterborough Health Association Gives Pleasure and Fosters Health—Food, Recreation Nursing Care as Free as Air.

The children who are being cared for at Jackson Park summer camp by the Peterborough Health Association are having the time of their lives. Lots of company, lots of eats, lots of fun, and plenty of rest is the program for those under the care of Nurse Dixon.

Planned Before War.

One year before the war started the Health Association decided to do something for the small children of this city, not in a position to get a summer outing. Realizing that what children mainly need during the summer season is fresh air, wholesome food and fun, they erected a tent at Jackson Park and invited those who wished it, to take advantage of the privileges offered. Although, they took care of quite a number of children that year, they were forced to abandon their camp until war was over on account of the financial stress upon the people for other causes.

Twenty-eight Children.

But this year there is nothing to interfere with their plans, and a camp larger than ever has been established at the park. There are at present 28 children between the ages of 4 and 14 who spend their days out there, and those in charge, report the number is rapidly increasing. This is certainly an excellent attendance considering the camp has been in existance only a few days.

The camp is very clearly and perfectly sanitory. Each child has his or her own towel and washes thoroughly before each meal under the supervision of the nurse. No sick children are allowed to attend, the object being to give a good outing to those who can not get one otherwise; and not that the camp shall serve as a hospital. Each child is carefully examined when he or she first comes to the camp, and if suffering from any disease perhaps was unknown to his parents, he or she is promptly put under medical care.

Bus Ride Each Day.

In the morning Miss Dixon calls for her charges in a bus, and takes them to the camp. After they have cleaned up they get a good substantial breakfast, and are sent out to play. They are taught to play baseball and many other games. At noon they have dinner, after which they can play for a couple of hours and then they go to a neat little resting tent supplied with cots, where they have a good rest. Toward evening they play for a time, have another good meal, which the cook provides, and then all are taken home again in buses.

Free as the Air.

The children go there absolutely free of charge, the Health Association assuming the financial burden. Donations for this worthy cause are very acceptable. If you do not wish to contribute money, fresh eggs, vegetable or treats of any description will be appreciated by the committee.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Capt. C. R. Widdifield left this morning to spend the week-end at Stoney Lake.

GIRLS' CONFERENCE AT BURLEIGH FALLS

BUSINESS SESSION WAS FOLLOWED BY AN ENJOYABLE HOLIDAY OUTING.

A very busy place was the Y. W. C. A. Camp at Burleigh Falls over the week-end, when representatives of the Girls' Inter-Sunday School Council of Peterborough gathered for a conference, which commenced on Saturday afternoon with a business session, followed by a hilarious swimming party.

The evening gathering of the girls on Sunset Rock was addressed by Mrs. R. E. Dingman of Toronto, and the quietude and the beauty of the sunset added much to the inspiration of Mrs. Dingman's quiet talk on the unifying of a girl's life. Later a bonfire was lighted, and the girls' disported themselves in queer and curious costumes. A procession was formed such as never was seen on city streets.

On Sunday morning, through the kindness of several neighbors with launches, the girls turned out in full force at the morning service at Juniper Island and sang a chorus. In their white middies and white skirts they presented a pleasing picture.

The session on Sunday afternoon was an informal one. Miss Nina Yeomans, of Belleville, girls' work secretary from the Dominion Council, Y.W.C.A., talked in an interesting and enthusiastic manner on the subject of the C.G.I.T. standard for girls. A song service as the boats floated around in the sunset concluded the day.

The conference sessions on Sunday were group talks, and a concluding business meeting, when recommendations from the conference were framed, to be submitted for consideration by the Girls' Council in the fall. The chief object of the conference was to make plans and suggestions for the further advance of the organized work among the 'teen age girls in the Sunday schools, and in this respect the conference was a success, while the out-of-door fun and activities made the week-end a thoroughly enjoyable holiday.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

Cholera infantum is one of the fatal ailments of childhood. It is a trouble that comes on suddenly, especially during the summer months and unless prompt action is taken little one may soon be beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine in warding off this trouble. They regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus prevent all the dreaded summer complaints. They are an absolutely safe medicine being guaranteed by a government analyst to contain no opiates or narcotics or other harmful drugs. They cannot possibly do harm—they always do good. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CAPT. WIDDIFIELD

many delays, the unite broke camp and on the night of July 12th amid cheers of other battalions marched from Barriefield to Kingston where in two detachments, the battalion started on their first steps for foreign shores.

The journey to Halifax lasted for two days, and on the night of the 14th, July, 1916, the trains pulled into the station, where the next day they boarded the Empress of Britain, and that night steamed out of the famous old harbor, and everyone then really realized that he was taking a journey; the outcome of which was very uncertain.

The journey on the boat lasted ten days with no disagreeable happenings as the water was as smooth as a billard table all the way.

Arrive at Liverpool.

On the arrival of the ship at Liverpool, the battalion entrained for a destination, which was only known to a few, and which eventually turned out to be the small village of Westenhanger, in the County of Kent.

The camp was two miles distant from the station and known as Otterpool camp, the place of one of the first air raids over Great Britain by the Hun, and where only a short time before several soldiers were killed by a bomb dropped from a German machine.

The camp was nicely situated on high ground. However, the accomodation was not of the best, and not nearly so good as we had in Barriefield.

Unit Broken Up.

The battalion remained there until some time in September, when those who had already not been drafted to some unit in France were amalgamated with the 39th Battalion at Sandling, which unit afterwards became the 6th Canadian Reserve Battalion. It was at this time that the famous band of the 93rd Battalion, which had so often delighted the people of Peterborough with their music, was broken up, and after much trouble and many disputes, the instruments of the band were sent to Peterborough where they rightfully belonged. It was while at Otterpool that all the men underwent their final medical inspection, and some of the men were declared unfit for actual front line work, while others were found unfit for any service in France whatsoever, and for this reason many never got any further than England, and eventually returned to Canada at an early date.

Scattered Far and Wide.

The reader will remember that the units at the front, which the 93rd reinforced at this time, were very numerous and scattered throughout all the Canadian corps, however the reason for this is as follows:

At the time of the war when the battalion arrived in England, no systematic plan for reinforcing front line units was in force, such as afterwards was formed, and any unit in France which needed more men were liable to obtain them from any quarter in England where there happened to be Canadians stationed.

The plan which was afterwards worked out, was to form reserve battalions or regiments in England, which reserved battalion always supplied men to the same units in France. According to the port or district in Canada where the men came from. Thus if this plan had have been in operation in July, 1916, the 93rd Battalion would have been taken over by the 6th Canadian Reserve Battalion. The Eastern Ontario regiment, and would have been divided as reinforcements among only a stated number of units, in the firing line instead of being drafted among so many.

The units for which the 6th Canadian Reserve Battalion trained men were at first the 2nd and 21st Battalions, however, early in 1918, the 38th and Princess Pats were added to the list.

Work of Medical Officers.

Before commencing the personals it might not be out of place to mention the services of the medical officers. Majors J. H. Eastwood and C. S. Cameron, who, between them examined all the candidates for enlistment into the 93rd Battalion, and who were always ready and willing at any time to perform their share of the work in this respect.

As a sample of the personals the following will suffice Lieut.-Col. T. J. Johnston:

Enlisted in the C. E. F. on the 5th day of September, 1915, and was appointed senior major of the 80th Battalion, and took charge of recruiting "D" company for this unit. When the 93rd Batalion was formed he took the same position, and on the appointment of Lieut.-Col. Mills to the staff, was appointed commanding officer. He was in France with the 18th Battalion, returning from there on the 9th day of January, 1917, and eventually to Canada, where he was honorably discharged on the 28th day of May, 1917.

Forest fires are still raging in the northwestern sections of Michigan.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Starting Monday morning, July 28th, all those entered in the contest, and those who wish to enter, will be furnished with free vote books if they call on the contest manager, at the Grand Opera House. With one of these vote books you can easily secure thousands of votes in a day, and the books are free to all who wish to take an active part in the campaign, so be sure and come in Monday morning and get you a coupon book, so that you will get an even start with the other candidates, for remember, the time in which you have to collect votes is very short, as the contest closes August 15th, 1919. The names and number of votes that have been cast for each, will be shown on the screen at the Grand Opera House each day. The soliciting of votes, in, or around the theater, will not be allowed, and anyone violating this rule is subject to being withdrawn from the list. This restriction is made so that each individual contestant will have the same opportunity to win. Three of Peterborough's prominent citizens will have charge of the counting of the votes, and the awarding of the prizes.

Be sure to come in Monday morning and be one of the first to get one of the free vote books, and start saving the votes at once. Phone number in the contest department at the Grand Opera House is 200.

HUNGARIAN SOVIET TROOPS ABOUT TO ABANDON THEIR SUPPORT OF BELA KUN

Soviet Leader in Bad Way—Has Nothing But Paper Money of No Value—Allies About to Break Off Negotiations With Hungarian Government—81 Revolutionary Leaders Shot in July.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, July 28.—Troops of the Hungarian Soviet Government at Budapest were said to be about to abandon support of Bela Kun, head of the Communist Government there, according to advices received here today from Vienna. Bela Kun's financial embarrassment was reported to be very serious. It was said the Soviet leader had nothing but paper money which had ceased to have any value.

Paris, July 28.—Commenting on the Allied message to the Hungarian people promising the lifting of the blockade and food relief if a government with which the Peace Conference could deal was substituted for the Bela Kun government; the Paris newspapers make the point that this action by the Supreme Council is tantamount ot breaking off all negotiations with the Hungarian government as at present constituted.

Eighty-One Shot.

Geneva, July 28. — During the month of June eighty-one Hungarian revolutionists against the present Hungarian Government were shot or hanged by the order of Bela Kun, according to a statement in a copy of Bela Kun's organ, the Voros Ujhag of Budapest, which has just been received here. The newspaper presses the Hungarian Communist leader to take a strong attitude.

Revolt Subdued.

Paris, July 28.—Regarding recent reports of mutinies of garrisons at Croatia, a Belgrade despatch today declares the revolt was purely local and quickly subdued. It adds that there are proofs that the mutinies were brought about by agitation on the part of foreigners.

SIR HENRY L. DRAYTON OFFERED POST AS MINISTER OF FINANCE BY PREMIER

Hon. Arthur Meighen Still Mentioned, However, For Same Portfolio—Announcement From Sir Robert Borden Not Expected Today—Sir Henry Also Named as President of Government Railways.

Ottawa, July 27.—From what is believed to be good authority, it has been learned that Sir Henry L. Drayton, Chairman of the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners, has been offered tehe portfolio of Minister of Finance by Sir Robert Borden. This confirms the rumors floating around for ten days. Whether or not he will accept, is not stated. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Minister of the Interior, hitherto considered the likeliest candidate, is now Acting Minister of Finance, but there has developed in certain financial circles objected to his appointment, and these views have been pressed on the Prime Minister. His chances are [illegible]dered good.

It is not exp[illegible] Robert will make any announcements tomorrow as to Cabinet changes. Provision has first to be made for constituencies and by-elections for the new Ministers, whoever they may be. Appointing Hon. Arthur Meighen to be Minister of Finance would solve this difficulty. Some say that Sir George Foster will retire, and Sir Henry Drayton be returned from a Toronto constituency. This reckons without Sir George Foster and the Conservative insurgents against Unionism.

There is strong advocacy of Sir Henry Drayton to be President of the Government Railways.

Sir Robert Borden arrived at the Capital at a late hour Saturday evening. The Prime Minister, who is looking well after his short holiday, will be at his office in the east block on Monday, and will attend the sittings of the Cabinet during the day.

The impression is also growing that there may not be so many changes in the personnel of the Government as had been predicted in some quarters.

LABOR MEMBER DIES

Allan Studholm, Member For East Hamilton, Succumbs to Stroke.

(Canadian Press Despatch).

Hamilton, July 28.—Allan Studholm, Labor member for East Hamilton in the Legislature, died this morning from a stroke, which came last week when he was attending a football

He was borne in Birmingham, Eng., in 1846. For many years he was only Labor member in the Ontario House.

STOWAWAY TO PEACE MEET

Boston, Mass., July 28. — William Monroe Trotter told an audience here how he disguised himself as a mess boy and worked his way to Paris to present the message of the National Equal Rights League to the Peace Conference after the State Department had refused him a passport.

"With the message of twelve million colored people I trudged the streets of New York in search of a job on a steamer bound for France. I learned simple cooking so that I might qualify, and finally got a place.

"I was not allowed by the ship's officers to land, but I eluded them and although ragged and hungry and in need of funds, I made my way to Paris.

"Although an interview was denied me by President Wilson, I succeeded in sending a formal protest to the Peace Conference and a petition to every member of the assembly at Versailles."

PREPARATORY WORK ON NEW SCHOOL UNDER WAY

Fully Equipped and Ready for Use September, 1920.

The members of the Board of Education Building Committees are working strenuously to get the building of the new school under way as soon as possible. The plans and specifications have all been drawn up and sumbitted to the Department of Education, at Toronto, who were delighted at them.

The new school, which is so much needed, will be one af the most up-to date in the province. A meeting of the board will be called this week and tenders will be called for. If possible the board wish to start work on the new building this fall and do as much as possible during the winter to make sure that it will be fully equipped and ready for use by September, 1920.

On the advice of the inspector, the science labatory of the local collegiate is being torn up and re-aranged. The laboratory has sufficient apparatus to cover the course assigned by the department but its arrangement was not up to present day standard. The board are sparing no effort to make this laboratory one that will rank with the best in the province.

The King Edward School is being roughly overhauled and painted. A new fire escape is to be built on this school because it is a three storey building. Some of the other schools need some repairs but the season is too busy to allow time for it.

Sudden Death of Lacrosse Goaler

FATAL TERMINATION TO CORNWALLS-NATIONALS GAME IN MONTREAL.

Montreal, July 28.—There was a fatal termination to the lacrosse game here today between Cornwall and Nationals at the National grounds, when Happy L'Heureux died in the dressing room of heart failure while his team mates were finishing the second quarter. L'Heureux died as the gong sounded for the rest period, and the famous goal keeper started on a rest from which there is no returning. L'Heureux did not complain of any illness until after the finish of the opening period, which he asked to have a substitute go in to give him a rest during the second period. Medical attendance was called in and the doctors attended with L'Heureux until he expired, the doctors giving as the cause of death heart failure. L'Heuerux was one of the most prominent lacrosse players in the game at the time of his death. He has always played with Nationals.

KILLED BY FIRE EXTINGUISHER

Chicago, July 28.—Wm. Loeser, 43 years old, 4437 Champlain avenue, president of John Loeser & Co., mattress manufacturers, was killed as the result of the explosion of a chemical fire extinguisher with which he atempted to put out a small fire in the basement of the building at 1623 to 1627 South Wabash avenue.

The fire broke out in the basement at noon. Mr. Loeser rushed to the flaming corner and applied the chemical extinguisher. Suddenly the apparatus blew up and Mr. Loeser was burned and knocked to the floor. He was rushed to St. Luke's Hospital, but died shortly after arriving there.

HUN SUBMARINE AT SOO

Thousands See Underwater Craft on Way Up Lakes.

Sault. Ste. Marie, Ont., July 27.—The ex-German submarine U-C 7, tied up this morning at ferry dock on the Canadian side of the St. Mary's River, and remanied here until 3 this afternoon, during which time thousands of citizens visited the vessel, which is being accompanied up the lakes by the S. C. 411, of the United States Naval Service. The boat had to go into drydock for repairs on arrival at the Soo. It left this afternoon for the head of the lakes.

TWO DROWNED IN LAKE

Canoe Upset in Storm Yesterday — One Lad Had Narrow Escape.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Kingston, July 28.—Wm. Eason, aged 18, and Clifton Drury, also 18, both of Kingston, were drowned, and their companion, Sterling Gibson, had a narrow escape when their canoe upset in a squall on Lake Ontario yesterday. Gibson managed to swim to shore.

FOUR COUNTY TOWNSHIPS UNITE ON GOOD ROADS PLAN

Duncan McFarlane Appointed County Superintendent—Salary $1,500.

At a special meeting of the County Council the combined townships of Belmont and Methuen joined North Monaghan, Otonabee and Asphodel, in the good roads system. This unites all the southern end of the conty in this movement and completes the link from Durham to Hastings. Reeve Griffith of the combined townships stated that Belmont had taken a definite step in favor of the system and the majority of the farmers of Methuen were willing to fall in line.

Duncan McFarlane, who has had a good deal of experience in road work was appointed county superintendent with a salary of$1,500 per year.

DID NOT OFFER PEACE TO GERMANY IN 1917

M. RIBAT, THEN FRENCH PREMIER, DENIES THE ASSERTIONS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, July 28. M. Ribot has denied absolutely the assertions of Mathias Erzberger of Germany, that the allies made a propostion through the Vatican, to make peace with Germany in 1917. On the contrary, says Ribot, who was French Premier and finance minister at that time, France and Britain, in a polite note to the Pope declined proposals on the ground that they provided insufficient guarantees for Belgium.

HOTEL BURNED.

Amsterdam, N. Y., July 28.—The Manhattan Hotel and the Morrel House adjoining, at Sharon Springs, were destroyed by a fire which started in the kitchen of the former. The loss is estimated at $200,000, one-half of which is in jewels and the property of guests in the hotels.

MOVEMENT TO ORGANIZE AN INDEPENDENT PARTY

Beyond question it is learned that a great many men in this city are under the impression that the enumerators in their rounds are taking votes on the Prohibition Referendum. It should be distinctly understood that such is not the case. These enumerators are merely compiling the voters' list, from which each man and woman enrolled thereon will be entitled to vote in the referendum at the polls the same way as any other vote is taken. Of course, it is important that your name be enrolled on the list being prepared by the enumerators, or subsequently added thereto, before voting day. And see to it that you are not overlooked.

INDEPENDENT PARTY.

In this connection it is understood that a general movement is on foot to organize an Independent party with one plank in its platform — opposition to prohibition. Those responsible for this movement, while not advocating the public sale of strong liquor or even open bars, or any measure that might foster drunkenness, take the ground that they are going to have some measure of freedom in a so-called "Free" Canada, or know the reason why.

TWO NEGROES ARE KILLED IN RACE FEUD AT CHICAGO; FIFTY PEOPLE ARE INJURED

Trouble Arose at Bathing Beach—Police Attacked by Mob—Declaration That Many More Deaths Will Result Unlsss Injustices Are Righted—Delegation of Colored Bishops Plead With President Wilson.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, July 28.—The situation in the black belt of Chicago, where race rioting late yesterday resulted in the death of two negroes and the injury of perhaps fifty or more whites and blacks, including four patrolmen, was under the control of the police early today.

Accounts of the origin of the trouble differ, but the version accepted by the police today is that fighting started at 29th Bathing Beach where whites and colored people are accustomed to swim in Lake Michigan, although the two races are separated by an imaginary line. This version of the affair says that a negro boy on a raft crossed the boundary line, and that while boys threw stones, knocking the colored lad into the water, he was drowned. After this fighting began and trouble broke out further when near the centre of the colored district.

Police Attacked.

John O'Brien, policeman, was attacked by the mob at 29th and Vat street, after he had tried to rescue a fellow policeman from a crowd of negroes. Several shots were fired in his direction and he was shot in the arm. He drew his revolver and fired into the crowd, three colored men being hit, and one of them died later in a hospital.

Will Kill More.

Chattanooga, July 28.—The declaration that before the negroes of the country again will submit to many of the injustices which we have suffered at hands of white men, they will have to kill more of them than the combined number of soldiers that were slain in the great world war, is made in a letter written to President Wilson, by Rev. J. G. Robinson, presiding elder of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, at Chattanooga, and made public here today. The letter written by Rev. Robinson, who is cited as spokesman for a delegation of bishops and laymen of the African Church, which presented pledge of loyality to president Wilson at the outbreak of the war, appeals for the President's support in behalf of preventing linchings and to force the Southern States to place negroes on juries.

Shot at Workers.

Chicago, Ill., July 28.—Trouble between whites and negroes was renewed in the Chicago's black-belt today when Moses Thomas, negro, fired several shots at a wagon load of white workers, being taken to southside factory. When an attempt was made by whites to disarm him, a mob rushed to his assistance. The police quickly rushed disturbance and reported that nobody had been injured.

SEVEN THOUSAND HUN PRISONERS FILLING IN TRENCHES ON EAST COAST

Authorities Experience no Trouble With Germans—Many Working Good at Agriculture—No Zeppelin Crews Among Hostages—All Will Soon Be Sent Home-

London, July 27.—British plans for repatriation of German prisoners of war are complete. These plans, of course, are subject to arrangements to be made by the joint Prisoners Commission to meet in Paris.

Up to July 23, prisoners held in Great Britain numbered 84,604. This number included 170 army airmen, 2,908 sailors, 14 naval airmen and 4,306 civilian aliens.

Many Repatriated.

The majority of the sick and badly wounded and those suffering from shell shock have already been sent home. Several boat loads containing the last of these cases have recently been cleared. Among those on board were Captain Karl von Mueller, Commander of the cruiser Emden, Admiral von Reuter, who was held prisoner to answer for the sinking of the German fleet at Scapa Flow, and a son of Admiral von Tirpitz.

The prisoners are scattered throughout the country, with the exception of Ireland. They are kept in internment and work camps. Twenty-six thousand of them are now engaged in agricultural pursuits and 7,000 are employed by the military authorities, filling trenches mainly on the east coast. They are paid up to two pence an hour, the same as British soldiers.

Behaving Themselves.

The authorities are experiencing no trouble with the Germans and they are described as good workers, especially along agricultural lines. All of them are more or less homesick, particularly the officers. A few escapes have been reported, but probably only half a dozen have succeeded in getting out of the country.

There are no members of Zeppelin crews among the hostages as they were all repatriated through exchanges during the war.

20 THOUSAND YORKSHIRE MINERS IN ENGLAND STILL OUT ON STRIKE

Derbyshire Men However, Have Accepted Settlement and Return to Work

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 28.—All miners in Derbyshire who went on strike last week returned to work today as result of a settlement of the mining dispute reached between the Miners' Federation and the Goverment.

In Yorkshire, however 26,000 miners are still on strike. Herbert Smith, the leader of the Yorkshire miners, who remained alloof from the conference last Friday in London, at which the settlement was reached, maintains that employees must make next move toward effective readadjustments, arranged between the Federation and the Government.

UTILITIES NEW STATION

The Peterborough Utilities Commission are making preparations for building a house for their chief operator on the property formerly owned by the Carnagie estate but procurred by them last winter. They are contemplating building a filter station on this property this fall, if possible.

DISORDER IN STRASBURG.

Berlin, July 28.—Disorderly conditions in Strasburg, the capital of Alsace, are reported in advices received here. Sanguinary conflicts between the French military and civilians are alleged to have occurred.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

MONDAY, JULY 28, 1919.

SIR EDAWARD CARSON'S SPEECH.

SIR EDWARD CARSON is a man of marked ability, an eminent lawyer, and an ex-minister of Great Britain. Such a man should at all times be expected to take a grave view of all public questions, and to lend his influence for the promotion of peace and goodwill in the nation. Especially should he and all other prominent men be expected to do so at a time like this, when so much is occurring throughout the world to make for disorder and to add to the difficulties of all men in authority. Some allowance may be made for the intensity of his utterances in earlier years on the Irish question. But in the light of the failure of the many efforts to find a solution of Ireland's problems, and in the light of the dangerous situation created by the wide success of the Sinn Fein movement in Ireland, it would have been reasonable to hope that men like Sir Edward Carson would see the necessity of guarding against the utterance of sentiments of an inflammable nature. Unfortunately Sir Edward has not shown a disposition to serve the interests of peace. He has made a fierce speech which is certain to serve the ends of the Sinn Fein party. He has made a savage assault on Sir Horace Plunkett and those associated with him who have been earnestly struggling with Irish difficulties and endeavoring to find some ground upon which the Irish people might come to an agreement, some form of home rule that could be acceptable. Sir Horace and his associates have been trying to work out a scheme of home rule something like that which we have in Canada, a scheme for the creation of a "Dominion of Ireland." Of the sincerity of Sir Horace Plunkett's desire to find a solution of the Irish problem there is no room to doubt. He has in many ways given evidence of his devotion to Ireland, and of his desire to make the Green Isle a contented and happy section of the British Empire. Sir Edward Carson and his Ulster friends, if they could not see eye to eye with Sir Horace, might at least have recognized the purity of his motives and have allowed him time to put the new project in shape. Instead of such a course, Sir Edward has violently assailed Sir Horace, treating him as no more loyal than the Sinn Fein party and threatening to call out the "Ulster volunteers," an illegal body, organized, before the war, to resist home rule. The speech will be hailed with satisfaction by every Sinn Fein member, who will point to it as evidence of bitter hostility to Ireland, and it will dishearten all those who have been laboring to find some settlement of the Irish question.

Sir Edward Carson fails entirely to make any constructive contribution to the Irish situation. He has nothing to propose, except to let things go on as they are. And yet it is plain to every fair-minded observer that a do-nothing policy means a perpetuation of a condition in which Ireland must at every moment be a source of immense trouble and expense to the British government and a menace to the Empire at large. Something must be done to meet this increasingly dangerous situation in Ireland. But one looks in vain to Sir Edward Carson for any helpful suggestion.

NEW PARTY IN GREAT BRITAIN.

IF HEREDITARY INSTINCTS count for anything it is not surprising that the idea of a new party, to be known as the "Centre Party," in Great Britain, comes from Mr. Winston Churchill. His father, the late Lord Randolph Churchill, made himself at one time notorious by constituting himself, along with a few others, a Fourth Party. This in its components was a brilliant combination, and in the British House of Commons was a thorn in the side of the government of the day. The little group became something of a power in the House, so much so that it was found politic to make overtures to it, with the result that it became eventually absorbed in the Conservative party, with Lord Randolph Churchill attaining cabinet rank as Chancellor of the Exchequer in the administration of the late Lord Salisbury.

But be this as it may, it is not surprising that something in the nature of a new political move should have arisen in Great Britain. Political conditions there are very much analogous to political conditions in Canada in the fact that in both countries there are coalition governments. These were both called into being for a like purpose, for carrying out a united policy for winning the war. That accomplished, political divergences naturally emphasized themselves. Old time Tories of the type of Hon. Walter Long and Progressives of the type of Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Winston Churchill could not mix any more than water and oil could mingle.

To the British mind, however, as experience has shown, coalitions have not been popular. They have had no duration. It is very doubtful if the present Government in the United Kingdom would have been returned to power were it not for the popular cries, identified with the punishment of the ex-kaiser and the indemnity from Germany, been introduced in the last general election. The result of the bye-elections which practically all went against the Government, and where the former issues were not so prominent, gives color to this view.

The Centre Party in its name suggests a happy medium. The move is explained as having originated in the necessity of fighting bolshevism. This may be its presumable motive. It would be probably more correct to view it as an expression of shrewd politicians like Mr. Winston Churchill that a union government could not look with certainty to anything of permanence, and something else would be therefore necessary. The name of Lloyd George as leader of the new party is suggestive. With his pronounced progressive views, it cannot be said that the atmosphere of the present cabinet is altogether congenial to him. The idea of a new party, judging from its source, carries a confession that a Unionist party in Great Britain cannot be depended on to be strong enough to hold its own in the future against other contending elements.

APPEAL FOR SUPPORT.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE has written to Mr. Alderman Matthews, the Coalition candidate for Swansea East, hoping that all sections will rally to his standard and achieve a great victory, adding that the peace signed at Versailles marks the first milestone on the road to construction "upon which it is now our duty to travel."

"The ratification of this treaty," which may be expected shortly," he goes on, "will bring relief to war weary and suffering people. World military despotism, which has ever been the worst enemy of the progress of democracies, has at last been uprooted from the soil of Europe. In its place we have in sight an enduring peace. We are, however, still confronted with grave problems affecting the prosperity of the people of Great Britain."

Mr. Lloyd George speaks of what the Government has already accomplished, and concludes that he has reason to look back with profound gratitude upon the support he has always received from his fellow-countrymen, feeling confident that he will not look in vain for a continuance in this most critical moment.

THE FUTURE OF LIBERALISM.

SPEAKING OF THE FUTURE of Liberalism from the Western standpoint, the Lethbridge Herald says that policies as they are identified with particular political parties may be said to have been in a dormant state during the years when the war was on. In a national crisis political affiliations have been cut adrift with the direction of men's minds to one great national policy, that of winning the war. Like everything else during the war, political parties have been disintegrated. But that does not imply that they have been destroyed. There is much evidence around to dissipate any such belief.

Political parties are at present, to judge by the signs of the day, in the process of reconstruction and evolution. The coming Liberal convention in Ottawa points to this. The convention is an important one. Much hinges on the spirit in which it is conducted. Liberalism as a policy in keeping with its name hangs in the balance.

In Liberalism, as it is understood, we have seen a strange contradiction in the line of action taken by men who have constituted themselves a Liberal Opposition in the House of Commons. We have heard expressions of policy by men like the leader of the Opposition, which run counter to the fundamental principles round which Liberalism is built. We have noticed what is distinctly a reactionary attitude. But though this has been somewhat blatantly proclaimed, there is no reason to suppose that the progressive policies have gone out of Liberalism. The Liberals of British Columbia, for instance, in the highly progressive platform adopted at the convention in Victoria, for submitting to the convention in Ottawa, gave denial to this. There are other contentions in which progressive platforms were, likewise, adopted.

If the Progressives swing the convention at Ottawa, a bright future is opened to Liberalism. Should this be so, the selection of a leader will become a very important consideration. The leader will have to be one attuned to the policy. He will have to be one who will naturally fit in with it. A progressive policy with a reactionary leader would be nothing short of a solemn farce. In the policy adopted and in the leader selected lies the future of Liberalism.

SO SAY WE ALL.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

Now that the war is over Sir Sam Hughes says that he will be able to talk more fully. Lord save us all! Amen.

FERVENT AND RECENT.

(Washington Post.)

There is nothing quite so fervent as the sympathy which pro-Germans have for down-trodden peoples in allied countries. It's recent, too!

IMPORTANT.

(Brantford Expositor.)

The future of the Liberal party, and of Unionism as well, for that matter, depends very largely upon the leader which the Liberal convention at Ottawa selects.

NEW OUTRAGE ON THE RHINE.

(Ottawa Journal.)

Every returning German prisoner must take a bath at the border, is the order of the new German government. We contend that this is another unprovoked outrage on the River Rhine.

AT ONCE.

(Toronto Star.)

With peace officially declared there ought to be restoration of the regular processes of the law and of safeguards to liberty which British justice affords. There is no longer any excuse for strong arm methods, extraordinary searches, and arrests without cause.

A RAP AT ROWELL.

(Galt Reporter.)

The Hon. N. W. Rowell is slated to become Minister of Health. Watch him push his friends into the service—a good job for Jones and a good job for Brown, without civil service interference. The honorable gentleman needs no coaching. He knows the ropes.

"SQUIRREL" WHISKEY.

(Guelph Mercury.)

A couple of girls in the theatre on Saturday night were discussing "squirrel whiskey." It was suggested by the picture, of course, and they wanted to know what it was. Well, it's hard to keep track of all the brands, nowadays, but "squirrel" whiskey seems to be so named because it makes one feel just as frisky as the little animal, and its imbibers as hard to catch by the police.

What Rural Prosperity Means

The crop harvested by the farmers represents real wealth newly created. It does not represent a mere transfer of property from one person to another at perhaps an increasing valuation, but is something which has come up out of the ground, which is the source of all wealth.

The fact that the farmers are prosperous will make every one else share in the prosperity. Before the grain can reach the market it must give employment to thousands of farm hands and teamsters, or, in these days, chauffeurs. This in turn means employment in the upkeep of equipment from horseshoers to automobile experts. Then comes the rail transportation, which will tax the carriers to capacity and means increased earnings for the railroads, enabling them to buy steel for betterments and extensions. Ships will be kept busy carrying the grain abroad and employment will be found for clerks and bookkeepers to do the accounting.

But now the farmer fares forth to spend some of his new wealth. He purchases new farm equipment, including machinery and tractors, to say nothing of pleasure vehicles, and the automobile industry feels the impetus of the new demand. The steel mills are again called upon to furnish material, and the railroads to haul it, and again to haul the finished product back to the farms. The farmer's wife also fares forth to indulge in gowns and luxuries of which she only dreamed in earlier days, and the textile mills are rushed to capacity and the railroads are again called upon to haul the new material and the finished product. The farmer's son and daughter now attend college, and the higher education, with its broader outlook on life, makes for a stronger nation. At the same time they become accustomed to luxuries and a higher scale of living, which are reflected back on the farm in increased purchases of things that quickly step over the line from luxuries into necessities. Gravel for visitation and sightseeing comes more frequently and the hotels of the cities are overcrowded.

The rest of the farmer's money is also put to use. A great many of them have ventured into speculation and seem to have got away with it. Even the money which the more conservative put carefully away in the bank to draw interest becomes immediately mobile, and furnishes capital in the form of bank loans for the extension of commercial and industrial enterprises. And even those farmers, now happily few in number, who yield to the blandishments of the get-rich-quick swindlers, add their quota to the general prosperity by placing their money promptly in circulation.

Industry, upon which the farmer and his wife have called to supply them with these luxuries and necessities, also responds to the impetus. Labor is kept employed at high wages, and the worker and his wife, and his son and daughter, yield to the same impulses for advancement and improvement which additional wealth makes possible. And so from the bounty of Nature and her gift of new wealth to the community, because it is real wealth and legitimately acquired, there radiate the blessings of prosperity to the whole people, so that regardless of all other conditions there is founded a prosperity that is real.

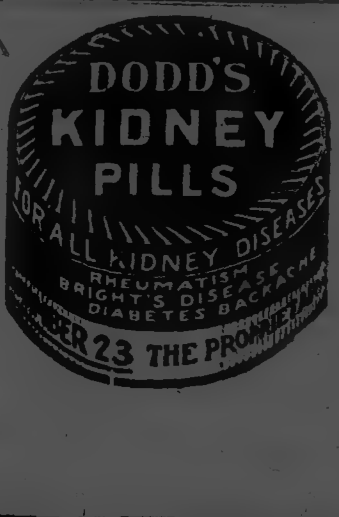
J. J. MOORE, Clerk.

Mike Carrio and Joe Nanatti, Italians, of Hamilton, were dismissed for lack of evidence on a charge of murdering Vasile Lasurer, an Austrian.

Preparations are being made to provide 600 beds in the Ottawa Exhibition grounds to accommodate delegates to the National Liberal Convention.



CITY OF PLEASURE SAYS GOOD-BYE

Polack Bros.' Big Show concluded a 5 days' engagement here Saturday evening, when the exhibition grounds were crowded with a joyous, happy throng of sight-seers and pleasure-seekers. They have enjoyed splendid business in this city, and have decided to return again next summer. A phenominal feature of their sojourn in Peterborough is that while attendance the first night was gratifyingly large their receipts on the second night doubled those of the first.

These mammoth tented attractions left town yesterday morning between nine and ten o'clock for Hamilton, per the Grand Trunk, via Port Hope and the lake shore. At the Ambitious City they exhibit and perform under the auspices of the Great War Veterans' Association. From Hamilton they return to Toronto.

The shows loaded up on their flat cars at the Grand Trunk sidings, between Charlotte and King street, in an orderly and methodical manner; without unduly disturbing the customary quietness of a Peterborough Sabbath.

The genial and courteous management left deeply impressed with this city's cleanliness and evident spirit of progress, and had many kind things to say of those citizens with whom he came in business contact, and of the people generally.

WIT AND WISDOM

Mrs. Jones read from her evening paper that John Smith died Saturday.

"But he died Friday," interposed her husband.

"He died Saturday," retorted his wife, "it says so here. I thought it was Friday myself, but I went out and bought six more copies of the paper to be sure and it was the same in all of them and they wouldn't make the same mistake six times."

On the first day of school in an Ohio town the teacher of the first grade was securing the names of her pupils.

She came to one whose father was noted for his profanity and said: "What is your name?"

"Bobbie Hughes," was the reply.

"Do you know your A-B-Cs?"

"Hell, no! I've only been here five minutes!" was the astonishing answer.

They were strolling on the pier.

"I spent my honeymoon here at this resort," said he.

"That is the happiest time of one's life, I suppose?" said she.

"Oh, yes; one is so ignorant of the future."

Ina—"But perhaps he was bashful. You should have thrown out some hint that a kiss would not be objectionable."

May—"I did everything possible. I told him I had such a sort throat, that I couldn't scream whatever happened."

"I'm all in the dark," said Mr. Hardup, "about how those bills are to be paid.

"Well, Henry," said she, as she pulled out a colored one and laid it on the pile, "you will be if you don't pay that one, for it's the gas bill."

"She is a proud beauty. Last night we parted in anger."

"Going to make up?"

"I guess so. But I think I'll stay mad about a week and spend some of thy money on myself."

TO-DAY'S STORY

Forty-four years ago a lad just growing into manhood stood on the street-corners of Toronto and sold jewelry to all persons who would listen to his chatter and be convinced. He did this because he had to live and because it offered him the best inducements at that time to use his strong personality in convincing persons that what he had was worth while.

When the jewelry business begur to wane he peddled soap from door t door. Later he accepted a job as a clerk in the store of John L. Meikle now of Port Arthur; but this faile to be entirely pleasant for this young undersized, industrious chap and h went on to Port Arthur, where h was given work by the late James Conmee, for forty years prominen in Canadian politics. From there h journeyed to Winnipeg and thence t the States, where he has continued t move until today he is head of a mil lion dollar corporation and one of th most famous inventors in America.

That man is Marshall B. Lloyd. H spent his early boyhood at Walter Falls and then moved to Meaford, o the Nottawasaga Bay, where he bega his business career by spearing fis and selling them from a wheelbarro in a house to house campaign. T he moved onward until today he ha the record of revolutionizing thre great lines of industry.

Marshall B. Lloyd began his inven tive career when a boy, but it was no until he put out a new method an machinery for weaving wire be springs and other wire goods that h was given any recognition in the in dustrial world.

Fourteen years ago he moved t Menominee. He went there fro Minneapolis, where he was conduct ing a baby carriage factory. Financi stress kept his factory from growin as he hoped. In order to relieve th situation he again turned his brain t inventing. A few months transpire and he brought forth a new proce and machinery for making steel tub ing from flat steel. When he told o his plans to officers of the Steel Co poration they called him "crazy." La er they paid him many thousands o dollars for using his inventions.

With this money Mr. Lloyd aga plunged into his baby carrige work. I this trade, as in woven furniture an baskets where reed or fibre are use all of the weaving had been done b hand. This is true since the very ea liest days. No man had been able t change the method or build machin ery which would correct the costl slow and imperfect hand-weaving sy tem.

Marshall B. Lloyd put his brain t work and some time ago he brough forth a new method and loom wher by reed or fibre weaving is now do thirty times faster than by hand. Th work is more smooth, is cheaper a perfect, and the plant is said t the greatest producer of carriage the world.

Not long ago the Hon. G. M. Manifold of the Australian legisla ture saw a one-armed man operat the Lloyd loom. He convinced th government of Australia that it wa needed there so they paid $250,00 for the Australian rights. It is be used in giving employment to re turned crippled warriors.

Mr. Lloyd was Mayor of Menom inee, Mich., for two terms, durin which he improved political gover ment to such an extent that he w nicknamed "Efficiency" Lloyd. Th name clung to him and he is now ge erally known by that name.

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSK
(Copyright.)

(In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general. All phases of store management, buying, accounting, advertising and retail salesmanship will be dealt with, not theoretically, but by descriptions of methods actually in use by successful merchants.)

ROCHESTER, N. Y., HAS ELABORATE "COFFEE SHOPPE"

Somewhere in his famous diary Samuel Pepys tells of arraying himself in his "best black cloth suit, trimmed with scarlet ribbon, very neat, and with my new cloak, lined with velvet, and a new beaver, which altogether is very noble, and with my black silk knit canons (knee ornaments) which I bought a month ago." All this finery the old diarist put on for his daily visit to his favorite coffee house.

That was 250 years or more ago. Since that time the world has seen great change. The coffee houses that were the stopping places of men about town fell into a decline. Their recent modern successor has been the gilded cabaret, with dance floors, skating rinks, jazz bands and beauty choruses. Out somewhere in the caverns behind the green baize doors were men who could mix a hundred varieties of drinks, each one to be served in distinctive shaped glass and each one with a name that might have been coined by an inebriated opera. Coffee? Yes, it could be had, but only in a very small cup and just as an excuse for brandy or creme de cocoa or benedictine.

Then came the cloud cast by prohibition and with it the return of the coffee-house idea.

Rochester's (N. Y.) first institution that looks back to the "good old days" is the Coffee Shoppe, which was formally opened in June by the Odenbach Company.

This twentieth-century coffee shop is a proper setting for the twentieth-century man and maid. Even old Samuel Pepys, should he chance to stray in, would heave a seventeenth-century sigh and regret that he had been born too soon.

On English Plan

Rochester's first coffee house is not exactly on the old English plan, for the man and woman of today demand more food and less talk than did their ancestors. There has also been a development of the athletic side of the people and smoky walls and bare wooden benches no longer attract, except possibly in Greenwich village.

The shop is done principally in black and gold, with a black and white tile floor. The lighting is from gold-colored lanterns. Extending across the back of the shop is a wide window of stained glass with orange-colored curtains, and under it is a long, low bench, upholstered in black and gold velour. The small tables are of black ebony, with gold striping. The walls are of gray, with here and there a panel of gay French cretonne. The serving girls wear a uniform that is of the same color as the [illegible] of the walls. Large decorative bowls filled with flowers of gold and black complete the scheme.

The fountain luncheon connects with the Coffee Shoppe proper by an arched doorway at the rear. Here the woodwork is of mahogany and at the rear of the room is the [illegible] kitchen, where white-aproned chefs prepare the food in sight of the diners.

At the front has been installed an elaborate fountain where all sorts of cold beverages may be obtained. In addition to all this, there is an attractive candy counter, the supplies for which are made fresh daily in full view of the public.

FIRE SALE BOOSTS VALUE OF LOCATION

Merchants seeking an outlet for bargain offers of which lack of space forbids proper development in regular quarters might take a leaf from the book of experience of the G. A. Kinney's branch at Hazelton, Pa.

The Kinney management leased a storeroom where a fire sale had been in progress and where genuine bargains had been sold for months. The public was educated as to the location of the storeroom, and when Kinney's opened their shoe-bargain branch the sales force had to be augmented because of the rush.

Moral: Rent a store where a fire sale has been held.

SCHRECK'S RENT LIST HELPS SELL FURNITURE

FREE—Strangers in the city or families contemplating moving are invited to call for free rent list showing location and giving complete information about desirable vacant flats and apartments. F. W. Schreck Furniture Company.

A classified ad like the one printed above appears every day in a Milwaukee newspaper and is the means by which hundreds of new customers are brought to the furniture store mentioned each month.

The "rent list" is a twenty-four-page and cover booklet, 3½ by 6½ inches in size, in which is printed each week information about vacant flats and apartments in Milwaukee. The Schreck store has been issuing a new edition of this little booklet each week for several years and can trace a great deal of business directly to this source.

The list is given free to any caller but a grown-up must apply in person for one. None will be mailed or given to children.

Of the rent list, Clarence Schreck, who started it, says:

"We have a young lady in the office who handles all who call and ask for a list. She is familiar and hence when a woman who does not know the city comes in our young lady can advise her on the kind of neighborhood that surrounds whatever flat she selects, how to get there on the car and all the other things of interest. Naturally this makes the woman feel obligated to us in spite of the fact that we never give out a list or pass along suggestions with an air that indicates we expect to get business.

"We find that men and women who call for the list appreciate our helpful suggestions so much that if they are in the market for furniture they will invariably broach the subject. Occasionally we do go so far as to suggest to a woman, for instance, if she says that she intends to 'fix up some rooms to take lodgers to help pay the expense of a larger apartment' that we will be glad to show her our stock and help her pick out what she needs. But that is a far cry from trying to get business from the people who come in and request a copy of the rent list. The [illegible] to follow in the wake [illegible] matter of course."

Clerks' Tips Lead to Added Profit

A plan to utilize the numerous "tips" for merchandise which patrons make from time to time has been worked out by the Lansburgh & Bro. store in Washington, D. C. In an article appearing in the Ell Bee Monthly, the house organ of the firm, this request is made of employes:

"No doubt you have calls almost daily for merchandise to be used in new or unique ways. Won't you please call them to the attention of the advertising office, as perhaps we can use some of these suggestions to make our publicity more interesting. [illegible]

"[illegible] illustrate what we mean. It was discovered recently that men with small feet were buying boys' shoes in our shoe department. An ad was inserted to this effect and the day after the ad appeared about fifteen pairs of shoes were sold. And every day since have been coming for the boys' shoes. This hint will no doubt lead to bringing several thousand dollars to Lansburgh & Bro. during the coming year.

"There are just as good 'tips' all over the store, and if brought to the attention of the public will bring extra dollars to your department [illegible] busy."

Here's One Store That Loves Fat Men

The Scranton, Pa., Dry Goods Company has started a special service for fat men in its clothing department.

Clerks are trained to handle these obese patrons with tact and diplomacy, no reference is made to "corporations" and the advertising plays up the fact that refunds or new clothes are assured to those who find their togs don't suit after they take them home.

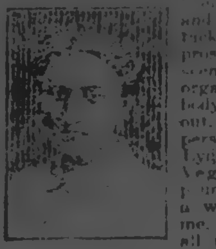
NERVOUS PROSTRATION

May be Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—This Letter Proves It.

West Philadelphia, Pa.—"During the thirty years I have been married I have been in bad health and had several attacks of nervous prostration until it seemed as if the organs in my whole body were worn out. I was finally persuaded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made a well woman of me. I can now do all my housework and advise all ailing women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I will guarantee they will derive great benefit from it."—Mrs. FRANK FITZGERALD, 25 N. 41st Street, West Philadelphia, Pa.

There are thousands of women everywhere in Mrs. Fitzgerald's condition, suffering from nervousness, backache, headaches, and other symptoms of a functional derangement. It was a grateful spirit for health restored which led her to write this letter so that other women may benefit from her experience and find health as she has done.

For suggestions in regard to your condition write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.



SAW HUMOR OF THE SITUATION

Commanding Officer, Dreaded as a Martinet, Proved He Was Not Altogether a "Bear."

There is a certain major-general in the A. E. F. who is a great stickler for discipline and military forms. Most generals are that, but this one is a regular martinet. The soldier who fails to salute and to "snap it out" when the general is around is in for an extended spell of that intensive form of culinary labor known as "kitchen police," or for something worse.

One afternoon the general was driving along when his car met a soldier on foot. The enlisted man stared hard at the vehicle and its august passenger, but made no move to extend the required courtesy.

The general was indignant. He ordered his driver to stop and hailed the plodding private in his best military voice.

"What do you mean by failing to salute me?" he roared.

"I beg your pardon, sir, but I didn't know you were a general," apologized the soldier, standing at attention.

"You didn't know I was a general, eh? Well, didn't you see those two stars on my car? Don't you know what two stars mean?"

"Yes, sir, I know what they mean. They mean that you have two sons in the army," said the "buck."

The general told this story himself that evening at the staff mess and now his aids and the other staff officers know that he isn't such a "bear" as they had thought him.

WAS A NURSE IN FOUR WARS

English Woman, Veteran of Many Previous Campaigns, Served in World Struggle.

Mrs. Teresa Eden Richardson, who died recently at Bath, England, was a worker in the hospitals of four wars. She held the South African medal, the Order of the Crown of Japan, the Japanese Red Cross Order of Merit, two Greek medals and the 1914 Star.

During the South African war, says the London Times, Mrs. Richardson nursed at a hospital at Bloemfontein, when the epidemic of enteric fever tried to the utmost the resources of the medical staff. Afterward, through the Japanese minister, she was attached to the Red Cross society of Japan during the war with Russia.

Later she nursed at Athens during the war between Greece and Turkey, and when the present war broke out, being then sixty-eight years old, she went to Brierfort, near Brussels. After the German armies had occupied that place she nursed at one of the hospitals of Antwerp throughout the bombardment, she and her maid being the only persons who remained at her hotel. Mrs. Richardson was one of the last to leave the town, escaping down the Scheldt in a coal barge crowded with refugees. The privation endured at this period seriously affected her health and she was compelled to abandon further attempts to render help in Red Cross hospitals in London and Nice.

KEPT TRADITIONS OF ARMY

British Government Made Wise Move When It Refused to Create New Regiments.

It was a wise decision on the part of the British government to create no new regiments when they entered the great war. Instead, the number of battalions in existing regiments was increased. Many of these regiments were very old, and about them hung the traditions of a glorious past. In uniting himself to such a body as the Royal Scots, the Welsh Fusilier or the Black Watch, as the case might be, a man unconsciously lost the sharpness of his own individuality in the eager desire to conform to the traditional characteristics of a great company. He was, in a way, no longer John Doe or Richard Roe, but the Royal Scots, the Welsh Fusiliers, guardian of the usages of an age-old organization, exemplar of its soldierly conduct. Proud of his regiment, he was taught to prove his pride in his manner and dress.

It was with the view of emphasizing every detail of this pride that British military authorities decided to replace the bronze buttons of uniforms with buttons of brass, which the soldiers are required to polish daily. Even in the trenches officers and men must shave daily, and when, after a week of hard fighting and sometimes short rations, the remnant of a battalion is relieved, it is required to march at attention with parade-ground precision, as it leaves the trenches for its holiday rest in the rear. It is this rigid subjection to every detail that has in part made possible the heroic stand that British troops have made against a more numerous foe. Their lines bent back, but they did not break; they lost bit by bit the ground they fought over, but never their fighting spirit, their cohesiveness, their esprit de corps.

SAW FAR INTO THE FUTURE

Men Predicted Coming of the Telegraph and Airplane as Far Back as Seventeenth Century.

One hundred and four years ago, at this season, the war of 1812 was practically over. Peace was signed at Ghent on the evening of December 24, 1814, and then things moved fast, according to existing standards. December 26 one of the American secretaries left Ghent for London and January 2, 1815, he left England for New York, where he arrived some time in February, and his news was immediately delivered to the citizens by printed handbills. Other cities, however, had to remain in ignorance during the time it would take a fast rider to urge his galloping horse over the roads between them and New York. The telegraph was not yet invented, says Christian Science Monitor, although Joseph Glanvil, a seventeenth century preacher with an interest in the possibilities of invention, had told the Royal society that "to confer, at the distance of the Indies, by sympathetic conveyances may be as usual to future times as to us in literary correspondence." Glanvil, by the way, also told the Royal society that "to those who come after us it may be as ordinary to buy a pair of wings to fly into the remotest regions as now a pair of boots to ride on a journey."

Boy Babies Arrive.

From Reading comes the news that Berks county babies are very largely male. If there are those who consider this a phenomenon, they are little acquainted with history. It is the universal experience that immediately after any war the birth rate rises and males are in the majority. This is the way in which nature cares for her own, although no scientist has been able to give any satisfactory explanation of the fact.

Unless this reproduction of the destroyed sex was universal we should soon have a one-sided world in the matter of sex. We have had wars from time immemorial and many of them have been extremely bloody, but the average of the sexes has been maintained to the satisfaction of humanity.

Nature is good to her own and preserves by curious methods a balance which is beneficial to the race. Twenty years from now the world population will be greater than in 1914, even if it is not, as some claim, already greater, in spite of the loss of 6,000,000 or more lives.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Valuable Tree.

The beech, which is found in the temperate zone in Europe, America and Asia, is valuable in medicine for the creosote distilled from its tar. Creosote, creosote carbonate and guaiacol are medicines used to supplement the hygienic measures which have done so much to reduce the death rate in sufferers from pulmonary tuberculosis.

A Chateau of Dark Memories

ST. GERMAIN-EN-LAYE, the scene of the peace negotiations with Austria, is described by a correspondent in the Manchester Guardian. We read:

"The decision of the French Government to house the Austrian delegates in the old Chateau of St. Germain-en-Laye pending the discussion of the terms of peace with Austria-Hungary shows discrimination as well as an element of poetic justice.

"Those who visited Paris in the days before the war and made pilgrimage to the ring of small towns—Marly, Maisons, Lapete, St. Germain and Versailles—hold memories of umbrageous avenues, royal forests and lordly chateaus. In this district the splendor of the ancient regime still exists. The paved street of St. Germain, the noble houses of stone, jeweled with exquisite windows and delicate balconies, curious lamps and richly decorated interiors, speak eloquently of the entertainment and delight of the eighteenth century aristocrat. Richmond and Hampton Court are the English equivalents of this aristocratic quarter. St. Germain stands high above the Seine.

"It is a rare jewel in a setting of old chestnut trees. Below, the sparkling river describes an immense semi-circle. Louveciennes, the former home of Mme. de Pompadour, is nearby, but the famous Pompe of Marly that disturbed her rest with its clanking chains has been replaced by a modern contrivance. As one walked through the streets making mental notes of architectural features, the importance of good taste in building matters made a forcible impression on the mind. There was a cycle repair shop with a floreated ceiling in the manner of Louis XV, and almost every building now devoted to business contains substantial evidence of former glory.

"If the streets and avenues are charming, the aspect of the chateau is grim and forbidding. It is to some extent reminiscent of the Bastille, but the buttressed walls and giant articulations afford relief to the sombre mural treatment. As far back as the twelfth century St. Germain was a favorite summer residence of the kings of France; to-day it is an attractive resort for Parisiens and it is a congenial centre for English residents. The chateau owes its origin to a fortress built on the ground by Louis le Gros between the years 1108-1137 to command the River Seine at this point. A distinctive feature of the assemblage of stone is the small Gothic chapel, which was completed in 1238 by Pierre de Montereau. The visitor to the present chapel is depressed by the dour expression of the architecture, which makes a striking contrast to the cheerful design of the other chateaus of the period. St. Germain as it stands today is a product of the passion of Francis I for building.

"The romantic monarch celebrated here his nuptials with Claude, daughter of Louis XII. The architects, who received instructions in all probability direct from the king, employed brick for the building, which stands to-day shorn of the spacious gardens which Du Cerceau shows in the original drawing, now in the British Museum. Louis XIV was born under the roof in 1638, and after the death of Anne of Austria returned hither to escape the uncongenial atmosphere and restrictions of Paris. He had no real affection for the place and constantly paid tribute to the merits of the old chateau at Versailles, finally resolving to employ Mansard to design and erect the grandiose palace. The exiled James II found an asylum here after the revolution of 1688, and from this year until his death in 1701 numerous plots and intrigues were hatched favoring a second restoration.

"Finally we come to Napoleon I, who converted the place into a school for cavalry officers, and after his deposition it was used for a time as a military prison. During the reign of the third Napoleon agitation was rife concerning the restoration of the old chateaus, with the consequence that Pierrefonds was repaired by Viollet le Duc, and St. Germain underwent complete restoration on the lines of the original plans between the years 1862-1905. Apart from the general character of heaviness, the architecture of the chateau has considerable merit. There are features recalling the fantasies of Chambord, combined with others of pure Italian origin. There is a courtyard of irregular shape, in some respects a legacy from the earlier fortress. The steep pavilion roof of the period is conspicuous by its absence, balustrades, terraces and cupolas of graceful shape, combined with massive chimney-stacks, usurping the place of traditional features. To the Austrian delegates fresh from the fantastic lines of Viennese architecture, the place will be in the nature of a courthouse, and under the circumstances its selection has a subtle meaning.

"Two peace treaties were signed there—the treaty between Charles IX and the Huguenots and the treaty between France and Brandenburg in 1679."

Good Manners.

The Earl of Chesterfield's last words were characteristic: "Give Dayrolles a chair." Dayrolles was a friend who had called to make his customary inquiries about the earl's health and had arrived just before the latter's death.

THE REVIEW

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said:

"After all what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to in it than in Life Insurance.

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man sixteen years of age took out a 15 years Endowment (No. 210,800) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years and he now has, through that investment, an immediate estate of $3495.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15 PER CENT COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said, and he might have added (no better place than the Sun Life of Canada)—"there is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

FIGHTERS GOT THEIR "EATS"

The service of supply of the American army receives a lion's share of praise for our victory. Needs of men in the trenches and on the fighting line were well cared for. Hot meals were served to them to an extent unprecedented in any other war. Under barrage fire and gas attacks, however, hot food could not be carried forward. To meet this difficulty sealed containers were provided, each holding sufficient food for 25 men for a day. These containers were absolutely air tight to prevent poisoning of food by gas. They contained a dry, hard corn bread, corned beef, corned-beef hash, roast beef, salmon, sardines, salt, sugar and coffee soluble in cold water, together with the necessary can openers. Each container weighed 107 pounds and was cleverly camouflaged for its trip to the firing line. An emergency ration similar to the "iron ration" of the British army was provided for the Americans. This was the ration they carried over the top and used only in dire extremity. It consists of ground meat and wheat pressed into a cake, and a block of sweet chocolate. The cake can be eaten dry or stirred into cold water. One cake boiled four minutes in three pints of water makes a nourishing soup, in one pint of water an acceptable porridge. The S. O. S. relied upon its mighty accumulation of foods from America for everything except fresh vegetables. It was almost independent in this respect, however, for 16,000,000 pounds of dehydrated vegetables were contracted for in the United States.—Thomas F. Logan in Leslie's.

Praise "Stars and Stripes."

Newspaper men, magazine men, literati and, in fact, everyone in America interested in catching the spirit of the Yank invasion of Europe, should by all means read copies of that great voice of the American expeditionary forces, the Stars and Stripes. Letters from pals and relatives paint little intimate tableaux of the extraordinary life of the Yankees in France, but a few copies of the Stars and Stripes can rear an atmosphere which hundreds of excellent letters could not begin to comprise. The editors, by their work, show that they are regular fellows. They have the viewpoint of the buck private, as well as that of the gray-haired executive with the silver stars on the shoulders.—The Quill.

Wiping Out Wild Beasts.

One of the efforts of the state government of Arizona and the federal government in their campaign for the eradication of predatory animals, which cause large losses in range stock, is the employment of skilled hunters. Thirteen are now in the employ of the state and federal governments.

One of the hunters within two months has killed 11 mountain lions. Another killed 55 coyotes within a month.

No "Can't" in Banking.

The vice president of a big San Francisco bank remarked recently that they had run their business without any bank after the fire of 1906, without any money before the issue of clearing-house certificates in 1907 and without any men in the war-time influenza epidemic of 1918, offering further proof, if proof be needed, of the resourcefulness of bankers.—Pacific Banker.

REFORMS IN BURMA.

Preparations Are Being Made For Responsible Government.

Any study of the reform proposals recently put forward by the Burma Government must lead to the conviction that, however much one may disagree with specific proposals, or the way in which specific issues have been settled, the general effect of the scheme is to carry out in Burma the policy announced by Mr. Montagu for the whole of India in his famous speech in the British House of Commons on August 20, 1917. In this speech, it will be remembered, Mr. Montagu made the momentous announcement that responsible government for India was the definite aim of the British authorities, and that it was the intention of the Government to set about the achievement of this aim at the earliest possible moment.

The proposals of the Burma Government are in full accord with the spirit of this statement. They make a practical beginning, and a very effective practical beginning, providing for virtually complete self-government, where it can be exercised at once, with the least possible risk of untoward consequences to the community as a whole, namely, in simple local matters; whilst associating the Burman in the government of the country right up to the highest and most responsible positions. It is, however, in the opportunity which the proposals afford him for the management of his own local affairs that the Burman will surely find the scheme of the highest value. What the people of Burma, like the people of India, most need is some measure of political training, and some opportunity for securing it. No better school could be provided for this than the local parliament, in which each member has such a direct and immediate interest, and in which the criticism of the electorate is able to make itself so quickly felt.

Such a school, in its first grade, is certainly supplied under the scheme in the circle board, to which each village is to send one elected member; and, in its second grade, in the district council. This council will consist of elected members of the circle boards, who will be solely responsible for such important functions as raising local revenue as well as incurring expenditure, whilst they are to have complete jurisdiction in the district allotted to them. From these district councils, moreover, the official is to be entirely absent, and, as the Government statement justly points out, this means that such control as is necessary must be exercised from without and not from within. In the towns, the situation is to be met along the same lines by applying the Municipal Act to all urban areas of sufficient size. Finally, if the urban councils or the district councils get into difficulties, provision is made under the scheme whereby assistance can be rendered them, from time to time, by the loan of Government officers as experts.

The whole plan gives evidence of the most careful thought, and perhaps its greatest recommendation is its courageous recognition of the fact that it is better to run the risk of mistakes being made by the people in their efforts to govern themselves than to safeguard the people against mistakes at the expense of their political education.

Trawlers of North Sea.

"The northeast coast of Scotland is pacific in climate, as compared with the Atlantic storminess that rules the sea-girt land on the west," writes William Elliot Griffis in "Bonnie Scotland and What We Owe Her," and he goes on later in the same chapter to speak of the trawlers of the North Sea.

At Aberdeen "twenty-five millions of dollars' worth of food is extracted annually through the fisheries in the deeper waters, which have been improved, first by the method of beam trawling, begun in 1882, and then by the steam line fishing in 1889.

"How full the North Sea is of these trawlers those know who have seen them and kept pace with the efforts of philanthropists to minister to the needs of the men on board the ships. In recent years we have learned, moreover, how soon, in time of war, these toilers of the deep are called upon to show their courage as well as their industry, and have thus realized the danger ever surrounding these modest heroes. In the world war of 1914-18, the trawlers have not only caught fish, but in their new capacity, as mine-sweepers, have kept the North Sea measurably free."

Rev. Dr. Salem Bland made a statement in Broadway Methodist Tabernacle respecting the hostile attitude of some members of the congregation toward his preaching on labor problems.

Afghans Invaded India Because They Believed British Were War-weary

ANOTHER of those well-known "little wars" of Britain, which are responsible for the fact that the empire always has more soldiers in her army and on her retired list who have seen active service than any other nation in the world, has been interesting Canadians. What is not generally understood is the reason for the unprovoked invasion of India by the Afghans, their declaration of war upon Britain at a time when Britain was readier for war than ever she was before in her history, when the Afghans had not one chance in a million of accomplishing any object but killing a few soldiers or murdering a few settlers, and perhaps paying the price of their independence for the exercise. Ignorance is the explanation. The Ameer of Afghanistan thought that Britain was war weary, that she had no heavy guns in India, and that if he made a successful sortie the Indian population would rise in rebellion. Maybe some Bolshevist or German agent told him; maybe he saw it in a vision, for the Ameer is subject to dreams.

The story of the antecedents of the rising is told by Mr. J. W. McLoughlin, of the Joust Engineering Co., who has been in Jelalabad for a year superintending an installation. The trouble began with the staunch loyalty of the late Ameer to Great Britain. He resisted all efforts of the war party, who desired that advantage should be taken of the European war for an invasion of India. Haldhullah remained firm, however, and so a plot was laid to assassinate him. The leaders in the conspiracy was Aminullhah, the present Ameer, and second son of the murdered king; his uncle, Nasrullah Khan, the commander-in-chief of the army, and a number of high officers, belonging to the powerful Shalbar family, of which the commander-in-chief also is a member. But it appears that the Ameer had got wind of the plot and was able to take care of himself for some time, or until those too close to him were seduced.

Nasrullah immediately proclaimed himself regent, and the eldest son of the murdered Ameer, Naidullah, had to acquiesce, for he was surrounded by enemies, and if he had protested would have met his father's fate. The body of the late Ameer was then buried by the plotters on a waste piece of ground in Jelalabad, trodden on by every passing coolie, and grazed over by wandering cattle. The eldest son protested, and as a slight concession the body was exhumed and buried on the golf course. Now, the Ameer had been very fond of golf, but the game was detested by his entourage, whom he had insisted should also play, or if not play, act as caddies, and perhaps their idea was that if the Ameer was buried there no Afghan would frequent the course. Then Aminullah the second son, called the nobles of the kingdom to Khabul, officially informed them of his father's death and announced that his uncle, Nasrullah, must henceforth be recognized as Ameer.

But the nobles appear not to have been in the plot. They asked questions about the assassination. They demanded to know if Nasrullah or Naidrullah had made any efforts to discover the murderers. The second son admitted that they had not. The nobles then suggested that they were cowards and neither of them fit for the Ameership. "What's the matter with making Aminullah Ameer?" demanded one noble with a long white beard. "It looks good to me," responded another venerable chieftain, and being put to a vote it was decided that Aminullah, instead of being a mere second son, should be a regular Ameer. Immediately preparations for a hostile demonstration against India were made, for it appears that most of the Afghan leaders of whatever faction, were keen for a fight with the British. But in the meantime the soldiers in the Jalalabad garrison, who had always loved the murdered Ameer, came to the conclusion that his death had not been properly investigated or avenged, and they set up a court of their own. They arrested the commander-in-chief of the army and all his family, which is one of the most powerful in Afghanistan, and seemed on the point of executing them when the Ameer intervened.

He told the soldiers that he admired their zeal, but that the condemned men should be handed over to him. They agreed, but when they reached the Ameer, he set them free and treated them as heroes. In deference to the soldiers, however, a scapegoat had to be found and he was discovered as the colonel of the late Ameer's guards, a man of no particular family or influence. There was no evidence against him except what the Ameer found in a dream, but the colonel was nevertheless executed. This healed the unfortunate schism in the army, and the movement against India was hurried forward. The commander-in-chief was reinstated, and by virtue of his superior intelligence or villany became the practical ruler of the country. Mr McLaughlin, who was having considerable difficulty in leaving the country, was able to have a chat with the commander-in-chief, whom he warned against the suicidal folly of provoking Great Britain. The Afghan leader, however, showed himself completely misinformed, for he waved aside all considerations of big guns, armored cars, airplanes, and machine guns, and replied that as all the fighting would be done at close quarters, at which the Afghans were superior to the British, there could be only one end to the war. The end was not far off.

WOMEN IN CHURCH.

Anglicans In England Are Yielding to Claims

The British woman after a long period of agitation against the limitations placed on women by the authorities of the Church of England, has won through.

The first conference of the House of Laywomen has just been held at Coventry under the new constitution, the chair being taken by the Bishop of Coventry. There was an attendance of over 200 members.

The chief discussion centred around women's part in ministerial work. The claims put forward favored the ordination of women as priests and their being allowed to give lectures in church on Biblical subjects and their right to read lessons and preach.

The bishop stated that the bishops of the church were to receive from the Dean of Westminster a report on the things which women might be permitted to do. The bishop's attitude was one of sympathy towards such ministrations, and perhaps in a short time he would be able to indicate certain ways (not affecting the regular services) in which women could help in the ministrations.

He should, however, require women to be licensed in the same way that clergymen and lay readers were licensed, and that meant individual character and fitness. He deprecated any hurried action in the direction indicated, and regretted the action of Miss Maude Reydon in acting contrary to the wish of the Bishop of London in speaking at St. Ethelburgh church on Good Friday.

Although the Church of England has hitherto relied on St. Paul's dictum in which he says, "I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence," the British nonconformist churches have not been so strait-laced. Even where they have objected to a woman preaching they have permitted her to give an address which has usually been a sermon without a text except that within a few moments every person in the congregation could have quoted a text to fit the sermon.

The Congregational Church already has several women ministers, and any church in that communion that desires to appoint a woman pastor has only to get the permission of the superintendent of the district.

The Free Church Council, finding that men candidates for the ministry are fewer than of old, and that women pastors are putting new life into the churches, are recommending that women should be admitted to the theological colleges at which they should go through a two years' curriculum preceded or followed by two years' training in social work in a settlement.

Book Famine.

With barely an exception the public libraries of Great Britain are crippled for want of funds. In many places 2,000 to 3,000 volumes are out of circulation because they are too tattered, and there is no money to pay for re-binding. Many libraries have reached the starvation point as regards books.

The cause of the trouble is the limited spending power in the Libraries' Act which passed more than sixty five years ago. The amount allowed to be raised for this purpose is roughly 20 cents for every $100 of rent paid in the district of the local authority.

In the poorer districts this library rate does not produce enough to provide even the building to house the books, and the greater number of library buildings have been erected by private donations. Two men were answerable for the great majority, Andrew Carnegie and Passmore Edwards.

The war has been answerable for the present situation in a measure. Prices of all publications have risen, re-binding costs have doubled and salaries of staffs have had to be increased.

The local authorities in some districts have already closed down the branch libraries. But the others are now considering an application to Parliament for power to increase their library rate by 200 per cent.

In Prime at Thirty.

Early youth is not always the best age for ball games, judging from the records of champions of the past.

In regard to cricket, for instance, players seem to be in their prime at about 30.

W. G. Grace, C. B. Fry and Ranji were wonderful at 30, while J. B. Hobbs, perhaps, reached his zenith just before the war, when he was just over 30. The same remark applies to Barnes, the famous Staffordshire and England bowler, who, when he was doing such wonders from 1912-14 was nearing his 40th year. Again, George Hirst was 35 when he scored over 2,000 runs and secured over 200 wickets in the season of 1906.

H. L. Doherty was 25 when he won the first of his five lawn tennis championships. A. W. Gore was 33 when he was successful in 1901, and he won again seven or eight years later. He is the only player who has ever won a lawn tennis championship at the age of 40, although Norman Brookes scored victories at 23 and 36.—Tit Bits.

Fence 1,200 Miles Long.

Stretching across Western Australia is a rabbit-tight fence, said to be the longest in the world. It extends for a distance of twelve hundred miles without a break except for gates. It begins in the temperate regions and ends in the tropics, and sometimes for nearly a hundred miles it does not pass a human habitation. The fence is divided into sections, each of which is under the control of an inspector. These inspectors have boundary riders, whose duty it is to constantly ride up and down their section of the long barrier and keep it in effective condition. Since the fence was erected it has prevented hordes of rabbits from over-running and devastating the region beyond.—Family Herald.

"TREASURES" IN THE CELLAR

Cleaner Finds Many Things Stored There, With More or Less Interesting History.

Health drive is on this week, and every good Brooklynite will go down in his cellar and clean out all the rubbish and useless stuff except possibly the furnace. When one is engaged in this sort of work he runs across lots of old forgotten stuff.

He unearths crayon portraits of Uncle Hiram and Aunt Maria, made with an air brush in exchange for 100 coupons and $2. They were intended for the parlor, but reached the cellar after throwing the old family canary into convulsions; and there is the wreck of the old whatnot that grandma gave you. It used to stand in the corner of the parlor, filled with old family pictures, sharks' eyes, Indian bead work and other terrible monstrosities that children gazed upon with awe. And as you come across it you remember that the first thing you did after dear grandma passed away was to hustle the whatnot down below, back of a pair of motheaten portieres.

And you find your pair of white flannel trousers that you wore to a picnic and sat down in on a blackberry pie. And you recall the trouble and embarrassment you had getting home, and of how, when you had the trousers cleaned, the big stain turned green and the trousers went into the discard. And you run across the first silk hat you ever wore, which made you look like an undertaker, and the vase which you smashed and blamed on the cat, causing an innocent feline to lose a good home; and the tie your wife bought you, on which you deliberately spilled ink, for which no one could blame you.

And so you go along rooting out one old article after another, piling them in heaps to wait for the ashman and the junkman, humming that old hymn, "Sic Transit Gloria Mund"

NOT ARDENT WORDS OF LOVE

At First, Though, It Would Seem That Salesman Was Addressing His Adored One.

"No one ever loved you half as well as I do," he said to her.

She made no answer.

"How did you come to love me?" he pleaded. Still the girl refused to speak, although she smiled encouragingly at this.

"Your name is written on my heart. The world is dark without you. I've built a bungalow for you and me. Let us fly to an isle in the tropic sea. The kiss you gave me set my heart on fire."

The girl was not offended. She scowled a little but not at him. She seemed in deep thought. Suddenly she looked into his pleading orbs.

"No," she said. "Nothing like that."

"My Oola-loo's girl. When—"

The girl shook her head and left the counter.

Was It a Caveman Rarebit?

Exploration of caves in South Berkshire, Conn., resulting in the discovery of stalactites and stalagmites, big white spiders weaving their webs, bats incrusted in the crystals and a submarine brook, made Jack Newboy of Lenoxdale recall the day that he went rabbit hunting in the Patterson woods.

Newboy's dog chased a rabbit into a cave. Jack waited outside for results. He waited two hours, called the dog and, getting no results, went home. He found the dog was at home and had the rabbit. Pat, his brother, explained:

"I was fishing on a lake not far from the shore when I heard a commotion in the water nearby and was surprised to see a rabbit in the water. As I watched the dog came to the surface, swam after the rabbit and captured him."

Cure Bent Backs by Suggestion.

Suggestion plays a great part in the cure of physical ills of soldiers. According to Lieut. Col. A. F. Hurst, all men suffering from bent backs can be cured by persuasion and re-education.

The patient is told that his posture is a bad habit formed when his back was painful. He is asked to stand with his back to a wall, with his heels touching it. His shoulders are then gently pushed back till they touch the wall.

In most instances the soldier finds that in a few minutes he can stand erect without support, and after walking a few times in the same posture his cure is complete.

Aviators' "Sport" Forbidden.

What promised to develop into a highly exciting sport has just been cut off in its infancy by Gen. William L. Kenly, head of the army aircraft service.

He has issued an order forbidding army aviators, either on duty, at practice, or flying for pleasure, from shooting wild ducks and other fowl with machine guns. The practice not only gave the birds small run for their money and endangered the lives of people for two miles around, but wasted quantities of costly ammunition.

Putting It Prettily.

A great big soldier boy had picked a little bit of a girl. When a fellow "joshed" him a bit, he said: "Yes, Bill, she would have been taller but she's made of stuff so choice and fine and scarce that the Lord just naturally couldn't find enough of it here to make her any bigger."

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

REALLY NO SECRET

Power to Charm Lies in Forgetfulness of Self.

Women Who Fascinate Have Simply Developed the Art or Power of Putting Others "On Good Terms With Themselves."

A vivacious woman writer seeking the secret of feminine fascination, finds it in the art or power some women have of charming others by putting them, as a bluff Britisher phrased it "on ripping good terms with themselves." Is not this a characteristic of almost all those persons, men and women, whom we like the best and enjoy the most? Do they not, either by artifice or by instinct, endeavor to make the people they meet feel that they amount to something, know something, have some excellence, attractiveness or interesting qualities, and thus put them on pleasant terms with themselves. The persons who are least adept at this or least inclined to try it are the self centered, self important people completely absorbed in their own affairs and not wise or well bred in little worlds of which they are the centers, and may be said in a certain sense to revolve about themselves.

This is a characteristic brought up from lower forms of life from which we are ancestrally derived and only in part outgrown. For most animals the only concerns of the least importance are those which directly affect themselves. They are egocentric. The things that touch them make up their world and they have no interests outside of that. More than any other animal the dog can sink his personality, so to speak, subordinate himself and make his master's interests his own. Only infrequent individuals of other species can or will do this. Hence dogs as a rule are more companionable for men than any other living creatures below him in the evolutionary scale.

But to return to human beings, Josephine was the most beloved and charming woman in France because she took a genuine and kindly interest in the affairs of all with whom she came in touch. She was outgoing, inclusive in her sympathies and thus counteracted antagonism created by Napoleon, who was self-centered to an extraordinary degree. Not to multiply examples, does not experience teach all observant people that in selflessness lies the secret of charm? Are not the lovable people those whose love goes out spontaneously, or appears to? Is not egocentricity, entire absorption in themselves, a characteristic held in common by most of the people who get on one's nerves? Kind hearts are more than coronets, said Tennyson.

More attractive, therefore, than beauty or the brilliancy and glitter of intellectuality is the drawing power of kindly consideration for others. Fascination is born of the heart, not of the mind; and whether instinctive or acquired, would seem to be the art of entering into the lives of others and putting them, as the Englishman said, on good terms with themselves.—Rochester Post-Express.

She Knew Better Anyhow.

A certain small town, seven miles from somewhere else, as the crow flies, boasted only two physicians, Doctor Smith and Doctor Brown. There was considerable rivalry between the two knights of the pill and powder and when Doctor Smith received a very urgent call from a young farmer about four miles in the country, he left an office full of patients, cranked up what has to be cranked up and was off.

When he arrived at the farmer's house he found that a three-year-old "farmer" had cut his finger. The doctor was chagrined when he saw the "serious" nature of the accident. He thought of the office full of patients he had left and had visions of them walking in single file to the office of Doctor Brown.

"It was very, very silly of you to call me on this case," he said, somewhat testily, to the farmer's wife.

"I know it was, but Doctor Brown was out."

Strained His Telescope.

"Why don't you make use of it sometimes, James?" a neighbor asked.

"It used to be a good 'n," James said sorrowfully, "but it's broke now."

"Broken?" the neighbor asked. "How's that?"

"Well," James replied, "it was such a good'n that I could see the old church steeple five miles away quite plain, but Joseph, the scoundrel, got the lend of it and tried to make out the steeple of the Methody chapel more'n ten miles away. He tried and tried and couldn't, so that he strained my glass and it's never been right since. Drat Joseph."

Commander a "Good Fellow."

One of the home-guard boys had on a uniform that was too large for him. While waiting on the station platform for the train to come the commander noticed this boy and coming up to him turned him around and around, looking him over on every side. Finally he said: "Young man, that suit does not fit you."

The boy, not realizing to whom he was talking, promptly retorted: "Well, that is no reason why I should be made a windmill of, is it?"

Luck favored him and the commander laughed.

WHILE attention has been fixed on the ethical aspects of the invasion of Belgium in 1914, people forgot the political and military aspects of that question as they presented themselves in theory in the days before the war. One of the surprising things in that episode has always been the apparent unreadiness of the French General Staff for such a move. Was the French command relying on a German treaty to protect the Channel ports? If so, why this example of unsuspected naivete in European politics, which has shown itself so expert in ninety-nine maxims of Machiavelli, only to prove wanting in observing the hundredth, the one, namely, that if you are protected on the right wing by a fortress and on the left by a promise you may expect the attack to come through the promise?

As a matter of fact, if we are to believe the exposition which M. Mayeras makes of the situation in Le Populaire, the French strategy of August, 1914, has a history which goes back to 1911. At that time Gen. Michel was forced out of the high command in France and the ascendancy passed to Gens. Pau, Castelnau and Joffre. The change in personnel was the result of differing views of the military possibilities of the future. Gen. Michel belonged to the school which foresaw the attack through Belgium, which favored the fortification of the Franco-Belgian frontier, and a united front from the Channel to the Alps. This view of things also implied certain changes in the theory of French military organization. For a front so extended many more troops would be required in the standing army than for the shorter front, Meuse-Lorraine-Alsace. Hence a Three-year Service law, but also, still from the military point of view, reliance on the vast citizen army to supplement the standing force. This view also implied a certain political attitude toward the war. Under it France would wage a war of national defence for the integrity of her territories.

GEN. CASTELNAU.

It was the official or professional view of the war that triumphed in France in 1911: no additional expense on the Belgian front, massed attack through Alsace and Lorraine with regular troops, holding the second line soldiers in reserve and the public spirit carried on by the "war for revanche" and the recovery of the lost provinces. Gen. Lebas, just before the war, supported by Gen. Peroin and M. Vandame, Deputy from the Nord, presented a memorandum to Gen. Joffre protesting against the disarmament of Lille. Gen. Joffre avoided the interview and passed the deputation up to Gen. Castelnau. In waving aside the prophecy of an invasion through Belgium, Gen. Castelnau uttered a celebrated sentence: "We cannot hope for such luck." This confidence rested on a simple calculation of German resources: to meet the Russian advance and the French attack through Alsace (which came off in August, 1914, according to plans), the Germans would have not more than twelve divisions left for the offensive through Belgium.

When the "luck" which Gen. Castelnau despaired of came, it was backed not by twelve divisions, but by thirty-two. Fortunately the French official error was balanced by the German mistake of driving at Paris instead of at Boulogne. While the French professional campaign collapsed beyond Mulhausen, the French citizen army was preparing for the Marne; and the enthusiasm that France could never have aroused abroad with her armies on the Rhine she gained again from her magnificent resistance on the defensive.

Many morals could be drawn from this narrative. But to keep exclusively to history, the people found wanting in 1914 were the professional military strategists of Berlin and of Paris.

FROM WAR TO PEACE IN AUTO INDUSTRY

As a single industry the automobile trade did more than its bit to help win the war. Not only did manufacturers come up to specifications in quantity and quality of delivery, but they built better than it was thought they knew how. Proof of this was given the other day when, at an auction of old army cars in France, the French and the English bid higher prices for the cars than they cost the American Government new. An army of men was employed to run these trucks and cars on the firing line. They gained more experience in a month of that sort of work than they could have gained in a lifetime of peace work.

The rolling stock will be left abroad, but the men are coming back. They are being released daily from the military service, and are returning in large numbers to civilian life. There is no lack of work for them to do. For the fleet of American trucks now coming into use for additional transportation facilities all over the country need just such men—men who have learned how to act in any emergency, who feel almost immediately the idiosyncracies of every motor, who have acquired an efficiency under shell-fire that will make them leaders in their work in peace times.

Col Arthur Woods, Assistant to the Secretary of War, who is in charge of the re-employment work for ex-service men, announces that a number of such men are now available for private employ. The automobile industry will not lose this opportunity of obtaining men who, to their pre-war ability, have added the exceptional training and experience of months on the firing line. These men will be in demand, and can be obtained through governmental agencies, who will put them in touch with employers who need their services.

WAGE VIGOROUS WAR ON BALL GAMBLERS

THE GIANT OFFICIALS' CAMPAIGN TO BE CARRIED ON ALONG BROADER LINES.

New York, July 26.—The campaign which the Giant officials have waged against the two-bit bettors who frequent one section of the Polo Grounds grandstand is about to be carried on along broader lines than have been followed heretofore, so that the fans may soon hope for deliverance from the annoyance which the tactics of the undesirables have created. The force of detectives engaged by the club for the purpose of stamping out this element has been increased and in future those who are apprehended in the act of making books on the games will be forcibly ejected from the grounds without delay.

"It is our purpose to get rid of those fellows," said John McGraw the other day. "They have no place in baseball and we are determined that they shall have no place in the Polo Grounds. Their actions are enough to disgust the real fans who come up here to enjoy a ball game. It isn't always an easy matter to get the goods on them, but those who are detected will get short shrift, I can assure you."

MRS. MORGAN GAINED 22 POUNDS

WAS TOLD THAT OPERATION WAS ONLY HOPE—TANLAC RESTORED HEALTH.

"Anyone who had noticed the dreadful condition I was in can readily see the wonderful change Tanlac has made in me," said Mrs. E. M. Morgan, residing at 1817 Norton street, Kansas City, Mo., in telling of the remarkable benefits she has derived from the medicine recently.

"I have actually gained twenty-two pounds in weight on five bottles of Tanlac," she continued, "and have improved so much that my neighbors often speak of it. My health had been all broken up for more than a year, and I was so nervous that the least noise would upset me. My appetite left me, and what little I did eat would sour on my stomach, causing gas and intense pain. I would bloat terribly, and during these times my heart would palpitate frightfully, almost cutting off my breath, and I was so weak and dizzy that I could not walk a block without stopping to rest. I was badly constipated, had raging headaches, and was losing weight and strength all the time. I would roll and toss most all night, unable to sleep, and would get up in the mornings even more tired than on going to bed. I was constantly under treatment and all the time taking some kind of medicine, but nothing helped me and I finally got right down in bed.

"At the time I got Tanlac I had been confined to my bed for a month. I had been told that an operation would be necessary, and was almost in despair, as I always had a horror of the operating table and the knife. Up to this time I had not thought seriously about Tanlac being good for me, although I had often read the wonderful results others claimed to get from it. But being so anxious to avoid an operation, I decided to try Tanlac and sent for two bottles. Well, before I had finished my second bottle my appetite was better, the gas stopped forming on my stomach and I did not suffer from shortness of breath and palpitation any more. Now, to put it all in a few words, my nerves are normal and I have no more headaches, dizzy spells or trouble of any kind. Tanlac has not only relieved me of my physical suffering but it has eased my mind, too, as I fully believe it has saved me from an operation. I can truthfully say Tanlac has made me feel like a new person and I cant praise it enough."

Adventurous British Will Attempt Once More To Reach the South Pole

THE old call of the land of Eternal Silence is upon many British seamen. With the war ended, the adventurous spirits are anxious to be off on voyages to the Antarctic; to the South Sea Islands; to the uttermost ends of the earth. This call of the unknown is strong upon Britishers who have inherited through long lines of ancestors the desire to explore and conquer.

A newly-formed Antarctic expedition is to be led by John L. Cope, who was with the Shackleton expedition from 1914 to 1917. He expects to remain in the frozen regions nearly six years.

"There are those who may express the opinion that further expedition to the Antarctic is hardly necessary," said the explorer, in talking of his undertaking, "but those who are in on the plans will admit this is untrue. They have been laying the foundation and building stepping stones whereby civilization may receive permanent benefits.

"To assist as much as possible in that wished for consummation will be the endeavor of the British Imperial Antarctic Expedition.

"We hope to start from England in the early summer of next year on Scott's old ship, the Terra Nova, with a roll of some fifty-eight souls, including the shore and ship parties.

"Our objects will be:

"1. To ascertain the position and extent of the mineral and other deposits already known to exist in Antarctic, and obtain data for their practical development as a further source of imperial wealth.

"2. To obtain further evidence of the localities and migrations of whales of economic value, and to create British industries in this trade.

"3. To investigate the meteorological and magnetic conditions in the Ross Sea area and at Cape Ann in connection with their influence in Australasia and South Africa, respectively.

"4. The circumnavigation of the Antarctic continent.

"5. The obtaining of further scientific data of economic importance.

"It is an ambitious program, but we shall have plenty of time in which to carry it out, as the expedition will not be returning until 1926.

"The first year we intend 'Wintering' on the 'Great Ice Barrier,' that huge mass of ice between King Edward VII., Westward and South Victoria. No party has hitherto spent a winter there, so that it will be a novel experience for us.

"Accompanying us on the Terra Nova will be an airplane in which, at a suitable 'start off' point, some of us hope to fly to the South Pole.

"To provide against failure the machine will be equipped with sledge, provisions and tent, as a forced landing in polar regions under such conditions may well entail a very long 'halt.'

"I hope, though, for success, in which case a return journey to the South Pole from the 'barrier' should easily be made within the twenty-four hours.

"That there are possibilities of commercial development of the Antarctic regions is well known. The capability of the economic resources being once proved and aerial navigation made a more or less usual affair, the good that will accrue will be incalculable.

"The cost of the expedition, which, by the way, is being organized in connection with the Falkland Island Dependencies, will be somewhere around $500,000. Already kind offers of assistance in various ways are reaching us.

"For our chief of scientific staff we shall possess a first rate man in R. C. Mossman, F.R.S.E., meteorologist to the Scottish National Antarctic Expedition and to the Argentine Government.

"It is, of course, true that from a strictly commercial point of view polar exploration has produced no direct profits, but from the scientific point of view man is richer by the vast amount of practical knowledge so obtained. The relations of meteorological conditions in the Antarctic and the Antipodes speak for themselves. They have spelled a direct commercial gain.

"It is to further open the gates of commercial exploration that next year's expedition is being made. Few fields of commercial exploration offer such wide scope as the Antarctic continent and the islands lying in its approach.

"There are wonderful harbors which, in the northern parts can be worked for at least six months in a year.

"The climate is easier to live in and the natural forces more easily contested than in Siberia or Klondyke.

"Manganese, coal, granite, marble and rubies have already been found there, while experts are of the opinion that there is more than a possibility of finding gold."

A Strange Heirloom.

At Somerset House it has been recorded that a fragment, enclosed in a locket, of the skull of Percy Bysshe Shelley, the poet, was bequeathed by William Michael Rossetti, the author, to his daughter Oliver Frances Madox Agresti.

Mr. Rossetti left to his son all manuscripts of literary work by Dante and Christina Rossetti, published and unpublished.

Even the Lining Gone.

"What are you mumbling to yourself?"

"A Shakespearean quotation. He who steals my purse steals trash'."

"But what's the application?"

"I've just bought a ton of coal."

Get rich quick schemes are all right—until you wake up.

RABELAIS PROVED A PROPHET

Events He Recorded, in Tale for the Nursery, Have Now Become Assured Facts.

When Pantagruel took leave of the good Gargantua, his royal father, and took shipping at the port of Thalassa for Catay, in upper India, he completed in four months the voyage which it took the Portuguese three years to complete, says the Christian Science Monitor. Many leagues then lay between father and son, but they communicated. That is the point in turning over the leaves of the cure's book at this hour, when the dream of the dominion of the air, which has haunted the imaginations of men for centuries, has come true. Pantagruel, busily making purchases at the fair somewhere in Asia, hears a joyful cheer and sees that one of his father's advice boats has arrived—"that Ship was light as a Lark, so that it seem'd rather to fly on the Sea than to sail."

Pantagruel asked Malicorn, the bearer of dispatches, whether he had Gonzal, the heavenly messenger. "'Yes, Sir, here it is swadled up in this Basket.' It was a grey Pigeon which Pantagruel caus'd to be undressed and a white Ribbon ty'd to its Feet. The Pigeon presently flew away and in two hours it compass'd the air, and Gargantua, hearing it had a white ribbon on, was joyful and secure in his son's welfare." That is Rabelais' little story, a tale for the nursery, but with all the potentialities which, in the fulness of time, have been realized.

DUMAS A PROLIFIC AUTHOR

But His Output of Books and Plays Availed Him Nothing When He Sought Election.

One of the most original election addresses on record was that issued by Dumas pere in 1848, when he stood for a division of Paris. Although Dumas had been an ardent republican long before the downfall of Louis Philippe, it was mainly as an employer of labor that he sought the suffrages of democracy. "During the past 20 years (he wrote, it is regailed) I have composed 400 volumes and 35 plays. Each volume averaged a sale of 4,000 copies, and each play averaged 100 performances. I have thus helped to give employment to printers, papermakers, bookbinders, booksellers, etc.; also to actors, actresses, stage hands, scene painters, theatrical costumers, etc. The sale of my works produced about 11,853,000 francs, and the money paid to see my plays totaled about 6,360,000 francs. Taking the average daily wage of all concerned at three francs, and reckoning 300 working days to the year, my books have kept 692 persons for 20 years and my plays have kept 1,041 persons for the same period.

This address, of which huge quantities were distributed, failed in its purpose. Two years later Dumas sought election for Guadeloupe and was again defeated. This so disgusted him that he never tried for election again.

Contest in Crimes.

Statistics proving that the states of the West and middle West are veritable hotbeds of burglary, as compared with eastern states, may be found in the widespread reports of robberies committed, through interchange of crime tabulations for the past year. Illinois stands far and above all other states in the reports of 1,156 burglaries, selected at random from more than ten times that number of robberies committed which were covered or partly covered by insurance. Missouri is second on the list with 75; Pennsylvania third, with 72; Ohio fourth, with 66. Judging from western methods employed by burglars who have made big hauls in and around New York in the last few weeks, burglary insurance underwriters believe there has been a strong influx of western crooks to that part of the country, and that New York city is developing the biggest crime wave in its history.

War Makes Deer Migrate.

War has driven the deer of Massachusetts from one of their favorite stands. When the six days' open season started hunters who have been accustomed to stalk the animals in the Nashua River valley in the central part of the state had to find a new objective, for what was once a great area of scrub growth is now the cantonment city Camp Devens.

Reports from towns a short distance away indicate that large numbers of deer have found refuge in woods not many miles away.

Sportsmen anticipated a leaner season than for many years, a comparative scarcity of deer being reported by residents of rural districts.

Invalid's Remarkable Work.

Miss Ingeborg Brun, the maker of the nine-inch globe representing Mars that was lately presented to M. Flammarion, is a Danish woman who has been confined to her bed 20 years. The planet is shown in correct colors, and all canals and other features noted by the latest observers of Mars are mapped. The work modernized the two globes long ago made by the French astronomer himself.

The Coal Shortage.

"Coal," said a government official, "will be scarce this winter, but nobody is going to freeze to death.

"You hear everywhere the most exaggerated stories about the scarcity of coal. In my office the other day I warned an office boy that if he didn't do better I'd have to haul him over the coals. The boy grinned.

"'But,' he said, 'there ain't none to haul me over, is there, sir?'"

Drake's Drum Was Heard When the German Fleet Surrendered to the Allies

EVERYBODY in England knows the legend of Drake's Drum, and the belief in the British navy that it is always heard on great occasions, that if Britain was ever in naval danger the great admiral would return to lead her ships and "drum the enemy down the channel."

The Outlook publishes an article by Arthur Machen, founded on the statements of officers who were present, as to how Drake's drum was heard for hours on November 21, when the German fleet surrendered to the British, says the London Evening Standard. It was not believed that the enemy would surrender without fighting, even in hopeless conditions and every preparation was made for resistance. The strictest discipline prevailed, and every man was at his place when the fleet steamed to the rendezvous.

One of the ships was the Royal Oak (chiefly manned by sailors of Devonshire. She was flying on that day a magnificent silk ensign, made for her by Devonshire ladies. On her bridge, 60 feet above the top deck, was a group of officers. Admiral Grant, Captain Maclachlan of the Royal Oak, the commander, and others. It was soon after nine o'clock in the morning when the German fleet appeared looming through the mist. Admiral Grant saw them and waited; he could scarcely believe, he says, that they would not instantly open fire.

Then the drum began to beat on the Royal Oak. The sound was unmistakable; it was that of a small drum being beaten "in rolls." At first the officers on the bridge paid little attention, if any, to the sound, so intent were they on the approaching enemy. But when it became evident that the Germans were not to show fight, Admiral Grant turned to the captain of the Royal Oak and remarked on the beating of the drum. The captain said that he heard it, but could not understand it; since the ship was cleared for action and every man on board was at his battle station. The commander also heard, but could not understand, and sent messengers all over the ship to investigate. Twice the messengers were sent about the ship, about all the decks. They reported that every man was at his station. Yet the drum still continued to beat. Then the commander himself made a special tour of investigation through the Royal Oak. He, too, found that every man was at his station.

All the while the British fleet was closing round the German fleet, coming to anchor in a square about it, so that the German ships were hemmed in. And all the while that this was being done the noise of the drum was heard at intervals, beating in rolls. All who heard it are convinced that it was no chance sound, such as that of flapping stays. It was recognized by all as the rolling of a drum.

At about two o'clock in the afternoon the German fleet was enclosed and helpless, and the British ships dropped anchor some 15 miles off the Firth of Forth. The irrevocable ruin of the German navy was consummated. And at that moment the drum stopped beating and was no more heard.

Orchids In Burma.

Nearly all the orchids found in Burma can be grown with a little care and attention in private gardens. There is one exception, a sweet smelling species called tazin by the Burmese, and which is usually brought to market in Christmas week in Rangoon. It only seems to flower in the most malarious and least frequented localities, and at a time of the year which is the tigers' mating season, and when they are most dangerous to human beings. It is in great demand by Burmese and sells for its weight in silver. Its collection is profitable, but those who bring it in from the jungles often suffer from fever for some weeks afterwards. In nearly every months in the year some of the many species of Burma orchids are in bloom, but, although the flowers are very beautiful, few of them produce any sweet odor, while some have a disagreeable medicinal scent.—Family Herald

The American Way.

An anecdote from Major Ian Hay Beith's "The Last Million" shows the feeling of one British officer toward the American doughboy. "I like the young American's passionate affection for his country," says the British officer, "and his fixed determination to boost everything connected with her. One day I was waiting in a village for an American staff car which was being sent for me from Chaumont. I found one standing at the corner of the street, so I asked the chauffeur, thinking he might be from headquarters, 'Where are you from?' And he sat up and replied all in one breath, as if I had pressed a button, 'Sir, I am from Marion, Ohio, the greatest steam shovel producing centre in the world!' Just like that. That is what I call the right spirit."

Was Coming Out.

Mrs. De Smith-Jones—Now I want you to save me an extra supply of flowers next week. My daughter Alice is coming out, you know.

GLASGOW NEEDS HOUSES.

How Shortage In Scotch City Is Being Met.

Along with other congested centres in the Old Country the housing problem at Glasgow is particularly acute. In 1914 there was a serious dearth of accommodation, but since the war and the consequent complete cessation of building the position has become greatly aggravated. This famine is not confined to any particular type of dwelling although it is most pressing in the working-class circles. Small houses of two, three, and four apartments are unobtainable in the city. Even the larger houses of nine and ten apartments, of which a few years ago there were always a number vacant, are at a premium. One reason for the scarcity of this type of house is that people who are unable to get smaller houses are combining and sharing the larger dwellings.

It is calculated that to meet the present needs something like 55,000 new houses are required, but there is little prospect of anything approaching that number being erected in the near future.

The corporation have earmarked close on 1,000 acres of land, most of which already belongs to the city for the erection of houses, and has announced a competition for architects, civil engineers, and others in connection with these schemes. $30,000 is to be awarded in prizes and premiums, of which $20,000 will be awarded for working plans, models, drawings, illustrations and descriptions, and $10,000 will be spent on the acquisition or preparation of essential aids to the thorough investigation of housing in the city.

This competition is being conducted in connection with a housing and health exhibition, which is to be held in the autumn, and altogether it comprises nine separate schemes. The proposals contemplate the erection of cottage homes as well as tenement buildings. Models with relative plans are invited of semi-detached cottages of four and five apartments, each of two-storey blocks containing two houses of three or four apartments on each storey, of two-storey blocks containing four houses of three apartments on each storey, and plans of houses so fitted and equipped that there will be a minimum of movable furniture to be provided by the tenant.

The carrying out of these proposals will occupy some considerable time, and the corporation have pointed out to the Local Government Board that it is impossible to overtake the building of such a large number of houses in two years. They have suggested that a reasonable guarantee should be given that the option of the board to extend the period of two years during which state assistance may be given will be exercised to, says, not less than seven years. Unless some such assurance is given the loss on all the houses built by the corporation may require to be borne entirely by the local rates. At the same time, there is a strong feeling in the city that the corporation should not be encouraged to allow their schemes to hang fire unduly, but that, in view of the desperate state of housing, they should be obliged to get ahead with their plans in the shortest possible time.

London Land Values.

Sir Alfred Mond's supposed predilection for the skyscraper raises the question of London land values. If skyscrapers were to rear their ungainly heights in London as in New York it would not only, says the New York Evening Post, abolish the beauty of London, but would increase the price of land, especially in the heart of the city, by about 50 per cent. It has been argued that where buildings of 30 stories or more are erected people can well afford to pay more for the land than when the buildings are of the usual London business type of five to six stories. But can anybody imagine a building of 30 stories in London? It would dwarf St. Paul's and rob the Houses of Parliament and the Abbey of their distinction. Near the Bank of England land has been sold in recent years at £75 per square foot, or £3,250,000 per acre; in the Strand £12 to £20 per square foot is near the figure, while further west, in Bond street, for example, £35 per square foot is the ruling price. The present value of the whole of the land in London is about 500 millions; add 50 per cent, and the ratable value would jump up by leaps and bounds.

"Aussie."

One by one, the special magazines and newspapers printed on various fronts for various forces are reaching their last number. The latest thus to terminate a useful career is the Aussie, the Australian soldier's magazine, printed and published "in the field." The small but energetic staff which produced this much-read little paper travelled about France wherever the Australian corps went, and at the price of 10 centimes, Aussie had a circulation of from 80,000 to 100,000. Aussie must also have a very interesting history, and when it comes to be written, no doubt one chapter will be devoted to the subject of "our printing presses," for wherever Aussie went in the devastated regions, it trusted for its appearance, in part at any rate, to salvaged press and type.

New Dock for London.

With the object of regaining for London her former proud position as premier port of the world, a new and enormous dock, capable of accommodating the world's liners, is being constructed on the south side of the Royal Albert docks. Its water area is to be sixty four acres, and, by means of a floating caisson, its normal length is capable of extension to 910 feet—large enough for a bigger boat than even the 868-foot Aquitania.

Nature's Fireless Cooker.

Out in New Zealand when they want a bit of soup, or are ready to have a boiled dinner they don't bother their heads about starting the fire, and the most eloquent of salesmen could never sell them a gas range, for the women folks who dwell in Whakarewarerva—which is quite unpronounceable—have a fine ready-made fireless cooker in the shape of a boiling spring.

Undoubtedly the fire is there but it is so deep down in the heart of the earth that no one has to bother to rekindle or stake it, and the water in the spring is always boiling hot, and the edges where the water is shallow are always set about with pots and kettles for the neighborhood.

At the Commercial Museum it is said that, while boiling springs occur in many parts of the world, it is the New Zealanders who use them as perpetual fireless cookers, and find this method cooking in hot water an excellent one.

As a matter of fact, it is the most modern and up-to-date of all ways of preparing food, that of packing it in utensils and then setting them in boiling water, but with the New Zealanders it is the oldest method because it is the way provided for them by nature herself.

Power From Windmill.

The windmill is a new addition to the forest ranger's station on the mountain peaks of the West. Its purpose is to drive the dynamo that supplies current for a wireless telephone. The telephone has long been the chief aid of the look-out in fighting fires in our great national forests. Often, however, when most needed, the wires would be lying useless under a slide of rocks or snow or a fallen tree, so the rangers are to have wireless telephones, whose functioning cannot be disturbed in these ways.

China's Open Door.

The "open door" as applied to China means an open door for trade, or equal opportunities for all. The phrase was coined to describe a policy formulated by the American Secretary of State many years ago and upon his motion accepted by all the powers as just and equally fair to all.

RELIC OF GOLD DAYS

While splitting a tree which Matthew and John Linton of Plainville, cut down last spring a silver pencil was found with the words "Tom Haig's Old Rye Whiskey, best in the World," inscribed on it.

This pencil must have been hung on the tree when it was yet young probably during the building of Cobourg and Peterborough railway about sevent yyears ago. The tree grew around the pencil and last week it was discovered in fairly good condition.

Poor May Allison cannot imagine how to dress her turkeys for next season and whether they should wear winter underwear. A New York dealer has asked the Metro star for quotations on turkey "dressed and f.o.b. New York."

Everywhere you'd look in Viola Dana's beautiful bungalow you were reminded to buy a bond. On the doors, walls, lamp shades serviettes, stationary and even on her iced cakes glazed the command to "Buy a Bond." So we went over the top.

The shortest method in long decision, according to the teachers of Hollywood's public school while Bert Lytell's circus in "One-Thing-At-A-Time O'Day" was being made was even too long for the children. The circus held sway for a week.

Thousands of dollars worth of United States arms and ammunition are used in Metro's production of "Full o' Pep" in which the smileful Hale Hamilton is seen as a vigorous young American filibuster.

Maxwell Karger, Director General of Metro, went up in the air the other day. In fact he took a ride in an airplane to such a height that he could not see any of his players at work in the big studios, which was relief to the busy producer.

MAE MARSH FITS INTO MIMIC HOME DRAMA PROVIDES

Her screen admirers call Mae Marsh a "mother's girl." This is because they have observed her keenly in her Goldwyn Pictures. They have noticed her appealing simplicity (who could imagine this simple personality in a problem play?) and the perfection with which she fits into the domestic environment. A shaded lamp, a bit of knitting and a playful kitten — who could imagine a more fitting setting for the delicate femininity of Mae Marsh? And if a mother hovers in the back ground, then the picture is complete. All this, except the mother, her admirers will find in "The Bondage of Barbara," her new Goldwyn Picture, which comes to the Grand, today, Tuesday and Wednesday. Mae Marsh is herself the mother.

She is seen as the home maker for her brother and herself. He is young and wayward, and Miss Marsh, as Barbara Grey, works to keep the little household together. She is cashier for a big lumber concern in the town of Waterburg, spending her evenings in household tasks while her brother wastes his time with associates who seek to drag him down.

There are many incidents of great charm in the play, notably those taking place in the Grey home. It is a snug little dwelling, with all the touches in it one would expect of Miss Marsh. Always when she takes her place for the first scene in a room at the Goldwyn studios she looks around and often moves a vase, plumps a pillow, or otherwise gives the place a "homey" touch. She is a born housekeeper. Psychologically this is made manifest in the domestic scenes as soon as the star comes into them. Even if she only seats herself and adjusts the light, the spectator knows that she "belongs." Mae Marsh invariably fits into her mimic homes.

This happy faculty is brought out very clearly in "The Bondage of Barbara." Miss Marsh is seen preparing her own breakfast, waking her sleeping brother, feeding the kitten and busying herself about the rooms, not perfunctorily or with the patent desire to be "cute" but as the real mistress of the tiny domicile.

It is in seeming trifles such as this that one appreciates the artistry of Mae Marsh. She never obtrudes her personality nor does her acting ever become a tour de force. She ranks with the subtlest artistes on the silver sheet.

SPECIAL FEATURES IN MOVIES FOR THE GRAND

There are three ways to ruin a man, according to Gianna, the Fritzi Brunette in "The Velvet Hand." First make him love you, then waste his fortune, then kill him. "The Velvet Hand" will be shown at the Grand Theatre.

A thrilling story of the vindictiveness of a spurned lover is shown in "The Velvet Hand" the latest Bluebird photoplay, in which Fritzi Brunette is the star, and which will be shown at the Grand Theater.

Among the actors in support of Fritzi Brunette in "The Velvet Hand" which will be seen at the Grand Theater, is Wedgwood Nowell, a former Bluebird star who has not been on the roster for almost two years. He plays the role of the almost-villian.

WILL BE NO SMALL STATE

Czecho-Slovakia Could at Once Take Rank as Eighth World Power, Asserts Writer.

We are told the Czecho-Slovak state will be a small one, and as a result its existence will be precarious, assuming the world shall remain in anything like its present condition of international disorganization, Charles Pergler writes in Asia Magazine. In the first place, as modern states go, the new state will not be a small one, having a population of about 12,000,000, and the area of the new state will be about 50,000 English square miles. When we recollect that Belgium has 11,373 square miles, it is seen at a glance that the new state can hardly be classed as small. Moreover, the belief in the necessity of large states, rife in certain circles of economic and political theorists, and largely based upon certain teachings of Karl Marx, is one of the superstitions that periodically appear, in order to be abandoned upon a sober second thought.

The theory that small states and nations cannot succeed is not borne out by history. Even prior to the war there were in Europe 27 states, and the great majority of these were small. There were only six of the so-called great powers: Russia, Germany, Austria-Hungary, England, France and Italy. Portugal, Denmark, Switzerland, Bulgaria, Belgium, Norway, Serbia, Greece, Holland, Sweden, Montenegro and Turkey are all, or were, smaller than the state we are attempting to describe. The latter will hold in Europe the eighth place, only England, Poland, France, Italy, Spain and Russia being larger.

Quite Right, Auntie!

Aunt Nancy listened with horror to the language of a fat old gentleman who had been forced to climb six flights of stairs to his office because the elevator wasn't running. "There," she said, sagely. "There is an example of what we may expect from a man who has had no bringin' up."

Maria Botchkareva Has Written Story of Her Life.

Let the Battalion of Death

MARIA BOTCHKAREVA, leader of the Battalion of Death, is one of the most dramatic figures that have flashed across Russia in all that country's history. She has told the story of her life in Yashka, which ran as a serial in the Metropolitan Magazine and is now published in book form. Illiterate peasant she is possessed of an intelligence concerning governmental affairs almost statesmanlike; a helpless woman, ill-treated by those in whom she put her trust, she became a soldier for her country and organized and commanded the regiment of women soldiers whose bravery put that of Russian men to shame on various occasions and who savagely fought the Germans after the remainder of the army had laid down their arms.

She was a political prisoner in Siberia; she has been four times wounded in battle besides injuries received in forbidden [illegible]; she has been under sentence of death and reprieved at the [illegible] moment; she has suffered many humiliations in prison. She has had to flee for her life from the country for which she has sacrificed and endured so much, lest the Bolsheviks put her to death. Yet after visiting America to plead that aid be sent to Russia she has gone back to face whatever may await her there.

During her stay in America Maria Botchkareva, or Yashka, as the soldiers affectionately called her, told her experiences in Russian to Isaac Don Levine, who has put them into English. Though the narrative seems wild and incredible, in all probability it is essentially true. The story is simple and straightforward, with a stolid frankness and with an amazing effect of the dramatic. The book is of value not merely as a record of an extraordinary woman but as a picture of a nation in chaos.

Yashka reveals herself as a rough, coarse, big-hearted and unselfish woman. It is best to give a sample of her narrative:

"The larger part of the wounded were in No Man's Land and their cries of pain and prayers for help or death gave us no peace. I climbed out of the trench and crawled under our wire entanglement. There was a comparative calm interrupted only by occasional rifle shots, when I would lie down and remain motionless, imitating a corpse. Within a few feet of our line there were wounded. I carried them one by one to the edge of our trench, where they were picked up and carried to the rear. The saving of one man stimulated me to continue my labors, till I reached into the far side of the field. Here I had several narrow escapes. A sound, made involuntarily, was sufficient to attract several bullets, and only my anticipating that by flattening myself against the ground saved me. When dawn broke in the east, putting an end to my expedition through No Man's Land, I had accounted for about fifty lives."

On another occasion Yashka was taken prisoner by the Germans. But the enemy started to retreat with their prisoners and the Russians again went over the top.

"It was a [illegible] moment. As we were lined up the 'Hurrah!' of our comrades reached us. It stimulated us to a spontaneous decision. We threw ourselves, 500 strong, at our captors, wrested many of their rifles and bayonets and engaged in a ferocious hand to hand conflict, just as our men rushed through the torn wire entanglements into the trenches. The confusion was indescribable. I grasped five hand grenades that lay near me and threw them at a group of about ten Germans. They must all have been killed. Our entire line across the river was advancing at the same time. The first German line was occupied by our troops and both banks of the Styr were then in our hands.

"Thus ended my captivity. I was in German hands for a period of only eight hours and amply avenged even this brief stay."

The Asiatic zoological expedition sent into the South Chinese mountain province of Yunnan to investigate its range of animal life, succeeded in securing several fine specimens of the serow, which is a stranger to the western world. A TENSE BATTLE WAS THE PETES-BELLEVILLE BALL GAME SATURDAY

Home Team With Score of 3 to 2 Forges Into Tie With the Bay of Quinte Bunch For League Leadership

By defeating Belleville here last Saturday afternoon before a large crowd by the score of 3 to 2, the Petes tied with the Bay of Quinte aggregation for the leadership of the league. It was a wonderful battle all the way and everything which makes the ball game interesting took place. Excellent pitching, close score and umpire baiting held the day. Umpire Butler from Lindsay did not seem to please the local squad on balls and strikes and his decision when he called Jackson out at the plate in the seventh was clearly contrary to rules. Two men were out, Jackson was on third and Kirn at bat, Manager Solomon ordered Kirn to bunt and Jackson to go home on the pitcher's wind up. Goyer wound up and Jackson tore for home. Catcher Mills immediately stepped forward, prevented Kirn from striking at the ball which had been thrown as a strike from pitcher's box and touched Jackson. Umpire Butler called Jackson out, ignoring the fact that the ball had never passed the plate and refused to change his decision, although it would have been legitimate to do so because their dispute was concerning rules. If in the future "Jake" should want to try any similar heady plays we should advise him to explain it to the umpire beforehand so he will realize that it is real baseball the local team play.

Both pitchers were in rare form, but Kirn had the best of the argument. His team also gave him wonderful support, Rose covering the second base position like a big leaguer accepting 7 chances with one error. Both teams had chances to score in the first inning but failed to do so. It was a very happy crowd who left Riverside Park last Saturday.

The Game by Innings.

FIRST—Belleville: Ross singled on his third strike; Weir followed with a two base hit to left field and when Cavanah let Clancy's throw get by him, Swanston pounced on the ball and threw home to Kirn, getting Ross at the plate; Weir was caught with two big a lead off second and Gerow struck out. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Peterborough: Cherett was safe on Weir's fumble; Rose beat out a nice bunt; Long attempted to sacrifice, but Cherett was forced at third; Swanston hit safely filling the bases; Jackson and Clancy struck out. No runs, two hits, one error.

SECOND—Belleville: Mills flied out to Heenan; Swanston made a nice catch off Simmon's foul fly; Goyer was hit in the head; Kellegher grounded to Cherett who threw to second to get Goyer. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough: Cavanah struck out; Kirn struck out; Heenan drew a walk but Cherett struck out. No runs, hits or errors.

THIRD—Belleville: Smith grounded to Rose and Magher flied to Rose; Ross struck out. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough: Rose started with a single; Long struck out; Swanston hit safely to left; Jackson sacrificed the runners along, but Clancy made the third out, Goyer to Gerow. No runs, two hits, no errors.

FOURTH—Belleville: Weir popped up to Cavanah; Gerow was out when Swanston grabbed his difficult foul fly; Mills hit safely; Simmons got a hit past Rose and when Heenan threw high to third, Mills scored with the first run; Goyer went out, Kirn to Long. One run, two hits, one error.

Peterborough: Cavanah hit to the third baseman and went to second on the wild throw to first; Kirn waited out a walk; Heenan sacrificed the runners along and Cavanah scored when Cherett drew Mills throw to first on his short bunt; Rose hit an easy fly to Gerow, but he dropped it, allowing Kirn to score; Long missed three. Two runs, no hits, two errors.

FIFTH—Belleville: Kellegher flied to Cherett; Smith went out by the Rose to Long route and Magher flied to Long. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough: Mills threw out Swanston on a short hit; Jackson grounded to Magher, who made a nice pick-up and throw; Clancy was passed and immediately stole second to watch Long strike out. No runs, hits or errors.

SIXTH—Belleville: Ross hit over Heenan's head for two bases, and went to third when Kirn threw one which bounced off the plate; Weir grounded to Cherett who held Ross on third and threw out the batter; Gerow bunted and when Long did not return the ball to Swanston quickly enough, Ross scored, tying the score; Mills went out, Rose to Long. One run, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough: Kirn opened up with a single; Heenan followed his example; Cherett was out for bunting a foul on his third strike; Rose hit a single scoring Kirn; Long attempted to sacrifice but Heenan was caught at the plate; Swanston flied out to the centre fielder who had moved up for his fly. One run, three hits, no errors.

SEVENTH — Belleville: Simmons struck out; Goyer was hit by one of Kirn's shoots; Kellegher struck out; Smith hit a single and when Rose fumbled Magher's grounder things looked very bad, with Ross at bat, but Rose took care of his grounder, retiring the side. No runs, one hit, one error.

Peterborough: Jackson opened up with a single and when Mills threw badly to second went to third; Clancy and Cavanah struck out; then Jackson was called out at the plate on Umpire Butler's poor decision. No runs, one hit, one error.

EIGHTH—Belleville: Weir grounded to Cherett, Gerow to Kirn and Mills flew out to Heenan. No runs, hits or errors.

NINTH—Belleville: Kirn took no chances in the ninth, but struck out Simmons and Goyer and when Morden came in to bit for Kellegher, he forced him to lift a fly to Jackson and Peterborough stayed in the running for league honors. No runs, hits or errors.

OLD COUNTRY DEFEAT OTTAWA IS IN GOOD SHAPE FOR THE FINAL

Ottawa Veterans Go Down in Defeat to Toronto Eleven at Stadium Saturday.

Varsity Stadium, July 26.—Another remarkable scene was witnessed at Varsity today when the Ontario Cup semifinal was staged. Over 5000 people were present at 3.30 when the game was advertised to start, but owing to the outside congestion the game was held back until 3.45. The contending teams were: Old Country, champions of Toronto District and G. W. V. of Ottawa. Referee—Dean, Hamilton.

Line-up:

Old Country—Wilcox, Hutcheson, Colquhoun, Taylor, Anderson, McKee, Champ, Marshall, Davidson, Aitken, Jackson.

Ottaw Veterans—Humble, Lloyd, T. Williams, Doherty, Wale, Simpson, Young, Bonner, Thompson, L. Williams, Walker.

Referee—Mr. Dean of Hamilton.

Linesmen—W. S. Murchie and J. Williams.

The winners of today's game play the Labor Party champions of Hamilton district in the final to represent Ontario in the Connaught Cup series for the Dominion championship which takes place at Montreal the second week of August.

First Half.

The Veterans won the toss and elected to kick with the sun behind them. Old Country attacked early, Davidson placing finely to Champ who was robbed by Williams, when about to centre. Young was brought down heavily and claimed a foul, but Referee ruled otherwise. Humble, the Ottawa's goalkeeper, brought off a great save from Champ and deserved the plaudits he received. Early indications pointed to the Toronto team outplaying their opponents who, although a heavier team, lack the essential rudiments of the game. Champ forced a corner kick off Williams, but placed weakly.

For Ottawa, Wale and Thompson were the first to test Wilcocks, but the latter finished up poorly when well placed. A minute later offside nullified a good effort of the Veterans. Play was of the typical cup tie variety, neither side showing much combination. The first real cheer came when McKee, beating Doherty and Loyd, let drive at Humble, but the goalkeeper had little difficulty in clearing. Old Country were suffering from the lack of a centre forward, Davidson being a poor substitute for Bell. Play was very ragged, each side playing poor football, a fact that the crowd were not slow to show their disapproval of. After a period of even play Taylor cleverly beat Walker and Simpson and passed to Champ, who shot wildly past the goal. Davidson and Marshall were next prominent, the former testing Humble from close in, but the goalkeeper cleared. From the goal-kick Thompson secured and passed to Bonnar, who kicked sky-high past Wilcocks. Off-side against Young spoiled a fine opening for the Veterans. The playing of Old Country forwards is very weak, many good chances being lost through poor placing, the ball frequently going to their opponents' feet. The shining light for Old Country is McKee, who is probably the most consistent player for his side. With a view to strengthening their front line Marshall has gone centre forward, vice Davidson. A foul decision was certainly right when Old Country were pulled off when well placed, the crowd showing their disapproval by booing the referee. Jackson was pulled up for off-side. Old Country are having all the game, but their shooting is bad, the spectators shouting ironically at their efforts. When half-time was called neither side had scored.

Second Half.

The Veterans were the first to attack when the game was resumed. Young kicking right into Wilcocks' hands. Play evened up, both sides making desperate efforts to open up the scoring. Champ centred, but Aitkin kicked wildly and a good chance went begging. At the other end Thompson beat Hutchinson and tested Wilcocks, but the latter saved and sent across to Champ. The latter centred and Marshall, obtaining possession, banged the ball past Humble, giving Old Country the lead.

Following this, Aitken fell heavily on his shoulder, and the game was temporarily held up. Play continued in Old Country's favor, Jackson heading into Humble's hands when he only had to tramp the ball and place it in the net. Ottawa's efforts were somewhat spasmodic, and their shooting erratic. Davidson spoilt several chances for Old Country by being in the way.

With Jackson and Aitkin through the former robbed the latter and then kicked pretty near over Bloor street. After a period of defending Ottawas got going, Walker and Thompson being prominent. Old Country returned to the attack and Jackson neatly headed into goal, Humble doing well to clear, giving away a corner in doing so. The referee gave a doubtful decision when he awarded a corner kick to Ottawa after Walker had played the ball over the line. Aitken tried two long shots but each went wide of the mark. The football displayed today is the poorest exhibition of football staged on Varsity this season and Old Country will have to display greatly improved form to beat the Hamilton team on Saturday next.

Aitkin is one of the best forwards in the game, but his shooting is wild. Ottawa went down in a line and Bonnard tried to score with a great shot, which missed by the proverbial inch. Close on 7,000 people paid for admission in today's game. With two minutes Ottawas attacked desperately, but could not beat their opponents' defence before the final whistle went. Marshall only had the goal keeper to beat, but kicked miserably past goal. When time was called Old Country were winners by the only goal scored. The game was a poor one throughout, neither side shining, Old Country having a margin throughout.

Vancouver Trades and Labor Council may not send delegates to the Hamilton convention owing to lack of funds.

Strong Canadian Crews to Antwerp

CANADIAN ASSOCIATION AMATEUR OARSMEN MAKE MOVE TO THIS END.

Port Dalhousie, July 26.—There was scarcely a ripple on the Canadian Henley course Saturday afternoon when the second day's program opened, though there was a brisk thunder-storm here during the morning.

At the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen it was decided to send all-Canadian crews, eights and fours, and not by clubs, to the Olympic regatta at Antwerp next year. The selection of crews is left in the hands of a coach to be named by the executive committee. This committee will look after the financing and make all arrangements. It was decided at the next Canadian Henley regatta to have a single skull at 140 lbs. for oarsmen who have never won in any open event. Hon. A. Claude Mardonnell was made honorary patron, Maj. G. W. Heron honorary president, and Capt. Joe Thompson, president.

MAY BE FINAL LEAGUE GAME ON WEDNESDAY

PETERBOROUGH AND COBOURG TO CLASH AT LAKESIDE TOWN.

The Peterborough team that made such a splendid showing last Saturday against Belleville will journey to Cobourg for the final league game on Wednesday.

Cobourg has failed to win a game so far, and with the Petes going at their present pace there should be little difficulty in their capturing this game.

Belleville has to play Port Hope in Belleville yet. If Port Hope should turn the trick there, then the pennant is ours; if Belleville wins, a play-off will be necessary between Peterborough and Belleville.

Manager Solomon is making strenuous efforts to get the Moose team of the Toronto City League here on Monday next for a game with the local Central Ontario League team.

A HAPPY MEDIUM FOUND AT LAST

Montreal, July 27.—W. J. Tupper, K.C., of Winnipeg, was re-elected Friday to the Presidency of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association in Canada, now in session at the Windsor Hotel, in the second annual convention of the organization. The remainder of the list of officers elected were as follows:

First Vice-President, Col. McCausland, Toronto; Second Vice-Pres., Commander Cook, Halifax; Third Vice-Pres., Major W. Gordon, Montreal; Joint Chaplain, Bishop Bidwell, of Ontario, and Cardinal Begin, of Quebec; Sec.-Treas., R. C. Irving.

The representatives from the various Provinces to the Dominion Executive were as follows: Comrade Young, for British Columbia; Tees, Alberta; Evans, Ontario; Holman, Manitoba; Cross, Quebec; Duffy, Nova Scotia; and Stewart, Saskatchewan.

Speaking at the annual banquet at the Windsor Hotel Friday night Col. J. J. Creelman, Montreal, pointed out that Canada has had experience with many years of Governments controlled by Manufacturers' Associations and such bodies, and also has had experiences in some instances with Governments controlled by Labor. Both of these systems have proved unsatisfactory to the people of the country.

"It remains for us to find a happy medium between Capital and Labor and the medium is to be found among the Veterans' Associations," he said.

How Britain Saves the Babies.

Great Britain has adopted drastic measures to provide milk for her babies, according to J. C. Welliver in the National Geographic Magazine.

"If the adult patron of a public eating house," he says, "buys and drinks a glass of milk as a beverage, he is liable to a fine of $25, and the proprietor subjects himself to a like penalty."

The result has been that "the death rate among infants under five years old has been about one-half the rate in prewar times. For the first time in the modern history of Britain there has been milk enough for all the babies, and good milk."

Only Small Transgression.

Jane had a new tricycle, but had been told not to leave the front walk. Instead of minding her mother she rode around the block. On her return her mother scolded her and asked why she did not obey. Jane thought of no good excuse, so said: "Well, I didn't fink you would care if I just went behind the block."

Wrist Blotter.

In these days of wrist watches there seems to be a call for the simple wrist blotter recently invented by Harland W. Cardwell of Texarkana, Tex. This device consists merely of a curved blotter back, blotter and a wrist-strap, so that the blotter may be worn on the right hand of the user. Thus the blotter is instantly available for use, and the pen does not have to be laid down.

S. A. TEMPLE BAND AT VETS' PARADE IN BOWMANVILLE

Hospitality Was Bounteous—Two Cars Missed Their Road Returning

Thirty-eight strong, the S. A Temple Band, under Bandmaster Badley, motored to Bowmanville yesterday morning. The yleft here at 6.30 and at 8.45, reached their objective point, where a substantial breakfast awaited them.

At 10 o'clock the Temple Band headed a parade of fifty Bowmanville war veterans to the temple, where in the course of a bright and cheerful service Staff Captain McElhiney delivered a stirring address on "Re-Construction."

Staff Captain McElhiney is well-known in Peterborough, where he had charge of the Temple for five and a half years. He left here in September, 1918, to assume the Chaplaincy of the Salvation Army military forces in Ontario.

The second in command of Bowmanville S. A. Temple is Lieut Lang, late of Peterborough. She left here two years ago for the training school in Toronto, where she did the Army and herself credit.

The Peterborough Temple Band left Bowmanville at 8.30 and reached home at about twelve o'clock last night, excepting two car loads, who after losing their way and landing in a woods ten miles distant from theirproper course, made Peterborough at 2 a.m. All speak highly of the hospitality of Bowmanville people generally, who, irrespective of denomination, heartily co-operated in making their visit a pleasant one.

$107 were contributed at the services toward Bowmanville's Salvation Army needs.

GREAT FIREWORKS DISPLAY COMING

The Exhibition Board is leaving no stone unturned to make its Civic holiday attractions at the exhibition grounds unusually worth while. Two bands have been engaged for this occasion—the 91st Highlanders Band Hamilton, whose touring of the continent has met with popular acclaim, and the Juvenile Pipers Band of London, recommended as refreshingly unique.

Miss Littlefield's skilfully trained Y.W.C.A. girls will exhibit in an entirely new program and these feminine athletes have won popular favor in previous exhibits.

Professor Hand's display of fireworks promises to be an pyrotechnic exhibit, outclassing anything ever before attempted here. It will include a discharge of aerial bombs, ascent of colored fire balloon, ascent of mammoth illuminated balloon, "the maple leaf" and "welcome," ascent of 2 lb. rockers, ascent of novel bombshells, discharge of British admiralty shells, discharge of Victor bombshells, the pyrotechnic flying machine, discharge of beautiful bombshell, discharge of surprise bombshell, displaying of floating star rockets, wheel of molten gold, grand slave of bombshells, procession of 3 pound exhibition rockets, novel exhibition of bombshells and aerial spinners, fountains of the Champs Elysees, discharge of palm tree bombshells, display of new rockets—northern lights, discharge of large shell with four bursts, discharge of mammoth bombshell "the golden umbrella," discharge of the "Coronet," the "Shell of Erin," exhibition bombshell of eagles claws, poppies and corn and golden skein, "the shell of twisting serpentines," the Christmas tree, the ascent of the "caskets of tinted crysals," the triple bursting Empire bombshell, the "blue bells of Scotland" an ascent of 4 pound exhibition rockets, the Star of Versailles dalu rocket number, exhibition of bombshells, flight of silver grain rockets, fireworks portrait of His Majesty King George, golden effect rockets, exhibition on rockets, "the Pearls of Paradise." Mammoth bombshell "the cock of the north" coronation rockets "the poppies of Flanders" flight of beautiful bombshells and "Good night."

The Board has determined to keep alive keen interest in horse racing, and several good events for Civic holiday have been arranged.

RIVAL FACTIONS UNITE

The Lindsay Warder says:—On Wednesday evening last, the Catholics of Frankford gave a fowl supper. They needed tables and dishes for the event, and knowing the Orangemen of the village possessed the required furniture, they went to them and asked for a loan. In response to the request the Orangemen replied: "Why, sure! and if you want the picture of King William, you can have that, too." And so the furniture was loaned, and the Catholic roast chicken was served on Orange plates and the Catholics sat around Orange tables and felt no worse for the association. And, what is more, the Orangemen and their wives and sons and daughters turned out to the supper and they all had a good time together.

DIES ON WAY HOME

Toronto, July 27.—While but one day's journey from his home in Toronto, Pte. J. P. Murphy, formerly of the C.A.S.C., died Friday on the hospital train from the S. S. Essequibo. The body of Pte. Murphy on the arrival of the train at Toronto Saturday morning, was removed to Ross Craig's undertaking parlors, 1,357 Queen street west.

CHANGE IN DILIVERY OF PAPERS ON SATURDAY AFTERNOONS

Asked by Mr. Burnham of the Dept.—But One Bookseller Handling Them Now.

Peterborough posties not delivering mail on Saturday afternoons, the daily papers arriving then are handed over to one bookseller—R. J. Soden—for delivery, by order of the department.

On learning of this order, Mr. Burnham has written the department asking that subscribers be allowed to get their papers arriving Saturday afternoons from whatever newsstand they select to have them sent to.

A HANDSOME DILIVERY RIG

Perhaps the neatest thing in the way of delivery rigs in this city is that just put into commission by R. M. Beach, the Charlotte street dyer and cleaner. It is not motor driven, but horse drawn, and horse and rig make an exceedingly graceful equestrian combination.

In design this whole turn-out is light and arrestingly symmetrical, and in its body-front one can visualize the old-time London "Handsome," a vehicle admittedly the aristocrat of carriage beauty. The wheels are a dep red, the body the beautifulist royal blue you ever did see, and the lettering of gold a work of art in script and Roman characters.

MARK STREET NOTES.

Two very interesting sermons were delivered on Sunday at Mark Street Methodist Church by Rev. Mr. Ross, the pastor. The morning text was, "And they hung their harps on the willows." By this he showed what great things may be accomplished if we use our talents in the right place. The evening text was "Where hast thou gleaned today?" The preacher very forcibly explained that through whatever we do for the glory of God we will be blessed and wherever we spend our days or our lives, from there we are gleaning our harvest. Miss Ruth Ross ably rendered a beautiful solo at the evening service.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a you appear years younger.

FARMERS PICNIC

The Peterborough branch of the U. F. O. will hold their first annual picnic by steamer Stoney Lake down the river, landing for sports and supper, on THURS., AUG. 7TH. The boat leaves George street wharf at 1 p.m. (new time). A good program of sports, including a tug of war for the Township championship of Peterborough County. Orchestra and booth on board. Special speakers will be in attendance. Adults' tickets 60c, children's tickets 30c. Every body welcome. Come and bring your baskets.

SPLIT OCCURS IN WINNIPEG TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

Resolution at Non-Representative Meeting of Delegates For One Big Union Carries.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, July 30.—A split which has been foreseen for some time by those in the labor movement, actually occurred last night, when the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council, by a large majority of delegates present, adopted the constitution of the "One Big Union," and ordered the Secretary and Treasurer of Council to turn over all Council's property to that organization.

Meeting Not Representative

There were about 120 delegates present out of a total membership of about 350. Prominent members of the Council declared after the meeting that it was not a representative one, as tactics of the radical members toward those not in accord with them was such as to keep away many of the delegates of less radical type.

Is Going Ahead

In the meantime, R. A. Rigg, representative of the American Federation of Labor and the Dominion Trades Congress, is going ahead with his re-organization of union forces here, under the direction of those bodies.

One of the Government's Provincial Highways Commissioners—Mr. Meur—will be in the city August 6th, to confer with the County's good roads Committee as to the appointment of Duncan McFarlane, as County Roads Superintendent.

BULGARIAN PEACE

Excepting Delineation of Boundaries Terms are Now Complete

Paris, July 30.—The Bulgarian peace treaty was taken up again today by the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference. With the exception of the delineation of the boundaries of Bulgaria, the terms are now virtually complete, economic clauses having been approved by the Council yesterday.

FOUR YEAR-OLD JOSEPH O'TOOLE DROWNED IN CANAL

Playing Along Banks of Canal, the Child Fell Into Water—No One Present to Effect Rescue.

The child left his home to play along the canal bank about 7.30 o'clock last evening. He was missed by his parents, a few minutes later, and after a short search they found him in the water. They immediately summoned the pulmotor, but it was too late to save the life of the little one.

The funeral will take place from the home of the father, 285 Concession street, to-morrow morning, at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cemetery.

TRANSPORT BILL IS AMENDED IN LORDS

MARQUIS OF SALISBURY'S MOTION THAT THE MEASURE BE DIVIDED INTO TWO BILL DEFEATED.

London, July 30.—The Government had anxious members in the House of Lords tonight, during the debate on the Transport Bill, which already had encountered fierce opposition in the House of Commons, where it was considerably amended. The Marquis of Salisbury moved that the bill be divided into two bills, one dealing with railways, waterways, and the like, and the other with tramways, road traffic, harbors and docks.

This motion was strongly opposed by the Government, and during the debate which turned largely on the question of nationalization, David Lloyd George, the Prime Minister, listened attentively from the rail fronting the Throne, and was in earnest consultation with Earl Curzon of Kedleston, Government leader in the House; Sir Eric Geddes, Minister without portfolio, and others.

After considerable debate, the motion of the Marquis of Salisbury, which, if it had been carried, would have led to a serious dispute between the House of Lords and the House of Commons, was rejected.

MEASURES NOW TAKEN FOR THE EVACUATION OF LITHUANIAN

Bolsheviki Announces Movement of Hostile Forces---The Bulgarian Peace Terms Complete

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 30.—The Government of Lithuania has taken measures for the evacuation of that country by German troops, it was stated in a Bolsheviki wireless message received today from Moscow.

Hostile Movements.

Information was given by the Bolsheviki at Mascow on the movements of hostile forces. Russian troops commanded by General Livin, the wireless dispatch said, would be taken by British ships to the Russian northwestern front; and German troops under the control of British General, Alexander, at Tukum, thirty eight miles west of Riga, will be sent to the front against the Bolsheviki soon.

GRAND LODGE B.A. AND NEWFOUNDLAND OPENS

Goes Down With Open Hatches and Two Men Drown.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, July 30. — The Grand Orange Lodge of British American and Newfoundland opened here today with due ceremony, under the presidency of H. C. Hocken, M.P., Grand Master of Toronto.

All Canada Represented.

Delegates were present from all parts of Canada. The annual address of the G. M., delivered this afternoon, outlined the Order's position with regard to an insurance branch, and referred to Ireland and conditions there. All reports showed the Grand Lodge to be in excellent financial shape.

Minimum weekly wage for women and girls in Massachusetts candy factories was fixed at $12.50.

SAMUEL GOMPERS BRINGS ARROGANT GERMAN DELEGATES TO THEIR SENSES

Huns, at International Trades Union Congress Finally Show Repentance and Admit Germany's Blame in Great War—German Workers Opposed to War and Imperialism---Organizing New International Proceeds

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Amsterdam, July 30.—The work of the International Trades Union Congress was hindered by a protracted discussion in a committee of the old International organization over a German declaration of the stand of German trades unionists during the war.

Admit Their Fault

The Germans maintained an unrepentent attitude until Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, told them plainly that if it were continued it would be impossible for workers of other countries to retain relations with them in the future.

The German Committee finally declared that German trades unions had always recognized that Germany acted wrongly in Germany and that German workers always were opponents of war, armaments and imperialism. Also, if German workers had suspected Germany was the aggressor in the great war, they would have tried to prevent it.

On this declaration being accepted by congress, the delegates went on the business of organizing a new International.

PREM. MARTIN, SASKATCHEWAN NOT IN FIGHT FOR LEADERSHIP

Hon. G. P. Graham and Acting Leader McKenzie Still in Field ---Three Candidates

Ottawa, July 30.—Premier W. H. Martin of Saskatchewan, it is authoritatively stated, will not be a candidate for the leadership of the Liberal party. That being so, it the office at the National Liberal Convention next week will be between Hon. W. S. Fielding, D. D. McKenzie the acting leader, and Hon. George P. Graham.

Premier Martin and other prominent Liberal politicians will doubtless be nominated. The Majority of these "Favorite sons," it is expected, however, will retire before the real contest is reached. The Fielding boom is still going strong and most forecasters here are inclined to the view that he will be elected. There are still some stalwarts, however, McKenzie may be retained at the head of the party and a few who intimate that Hon. George P. Graham has never greater strength in the country, particularly in Ontario, than has been realized in the Capital. The question is whether or not a dark horse will present himself at the barrier when the leadership race is started.

Some 200 resolutions have been received for consideration at the convention. The general question of the platform to be adopted will be discussed at the national Liberal convention committee on Thursday and will be taken up again by the caucus of Liberal Senators and members of the House of Commons. There will be a resolution committee appointed to pass upon motions offered for the consideration of the convention. This elaborate organization may make for apparent unanimity on all questions of policy; even of the tariff, on the floor of the convention, if the delegates are sufficiently complacent,

WATCHMAN KILLED WITH AX FOR $24

SUPPOSED TO BE WORK OF GANG OF THIEVES—FOUND BY DAY WATCHMAN.

Chicago, July 29.—With his head crushed in by an ax, Edward Greichen, 64 years old, 323 South Green street, was found murdered yesterday in his watchman's shanty in a desolate section along the drainage canal near West 31st street, just west of Western avenue. The fact that the pockets were turned inside out and all valuables gone indicated that robbery was the motive. The weapon, an ax, covered with blood and hair, was found a few feet away. No trace of the murderers has yet been discovered.

Greichen was employed by the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company to guard property in that district.

The body was discovered by L. W. Raddmacher, 1033 North Menard avenue, day watchman, when he came to work. Under a pile of rags and paper in one corner he found Greichen's body. He evidently had been struck without warning, as there was no evidence of a struggle. The wound was in the left temple, the skull being fractured. Death probably was instantaneous. The ax was in another corner of the shanty.

Houses Few, No Witnesses Found.

Examination of the body revealed that Greichen had been dead about six hours. The police at an early hour had not been able to determine who, besides his murderers, had last seen him alive. They made a search of the neighborhood to discover any trace of witnesses of any gang that might have invaded the neighborhood. But houses in the vicinity are very few, and the murder probably having been committed about 2 or 3 a.m., made doubly difficult the finding of any trace of the murderers.

The only clews left by Greitchen's assailants were the ax and a long leather glove. The ax was taken to Capt. Michael Evans of the bureau of identification to be examined for any trace of finger prints. The ax was one belonging to the company, which the robbers evidently had picked up shortly before they made their attack on the gray-haired watchman. Greichen drew his pay of $24 on Saturday night, and his pay envelope was gone when his body was found.

Might Have Been Revenge.

A possibility that robbery was not the main motive in the atack exists, according to Capt. Gallery. It was revealed that a strike had been on in the vicinity for some time, and it was thought at first that the murder might be an act of revenge. But later the police discredited this theory.

Attempts were made to connect the murder with the race riots that stirred the south side, but the neighborhood in which the crime was committed is entirely a white one, and few negroes work in the vicinity.

The body was taken to Adams' undertaking parlors, 3734 Archer avenue,

GERMAN-AUSTRIA SURRENDERS FULLY TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Struggle For Future Existence is Keen---Will Not Mix in Politics of Great Powers, Nor Share in Rivalries of Neighbors, Declares Foreign Minister.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, July 30.—A despatch from Vienna says that Dr. Karl Renner in a letter to President Seitz, of German Austria, outlining his policy on acceptance of the Foreign Ministry, says that German-Austrit's struggle for future existence is proving much more difficult than ever pessimisits expected. Austria, he asserts, can hardly live in its present position, and can only surrender itself trustfully to the League of Nations.

German-Austria will not mix in the politics of the great powers, nor share in the rivalries of its neighbors, Dr. Renner continues, but will pursue exclusively a League of Nations policy and try to rebuild its national economic system, and create a new serial order. "It's hopes will not be in vain," Dr. Renner declared, "unless the League of Nations fails to be true to itself or refuses recognition of German Austria' right to existence."

CONVICTION AGAINST REV. B. H. SPENCE IS QUASHED

No Attempt at Circulating "Parasite" After Published Was Judge Morson's Ground For Action.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, July 30.—Judge Morson this morning quashed the recent conviction by Magistrate Kingsford against Rev. B. H. Spence, secretary of the Dominion Alliance, in connection with the famous "Parasite," banned by the censor.

No Attempt to Circulate.

The judge took this action because no attempt was made to circulate "The Parasite" after publication. The conviction carried with it a fine of $500 or four months' imprisonment.

SPANISH INFLUENZA HAS BROKEN OUT IN LONDON

London, Ont., July 30.—Spanish influenza is again appearing in London to a sufficient degree to attract the interest of local physicians. Four new cases have developed in three days, and warnings are being issued to the people to observe the strictest precautions to avert a fresh outbreak of the epidemic. One prominent London physician declares that the so-called Spanish malady is actually an Asiatic plague, brought to America by coolie laborers being transported across this continent to France. It will recur periodically with decreasing seriousness during the next few years, he says.

NEGRO RESIDENCE IN CHICAGO CITY BURNED BY INFURIATED WHITE MOB

Occupants Escaped—Rioting Still Continues and More Casualties Added to List of 27 Dead and Hundreds Wounded—More Troops Called Out, But Have Not Yet Taken Up Patrol Duty.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, July 30—Rioting between whites and blacks continued long after midnight and several casualties were added to the list of 27 deaths and hundreds of wounded.

A negro residence at fifty-seventh street and Wentworth Ave., was burned by whites, but the occupants escaped. T

More Troops Coming

The ninth and tenth regiments of Illinois troops from Bairo were reported on the way to Chicago to increase the available soldiers to more than 7,000 but none had taken up patrol duty, the city officers refusing to concede defeat and ask military aid.

1500 Blacks Discharged

Nearly fifteen hundred negro employes of the city were laid off by official order, owing to riots. Many of this number were employed in street repair work.

By an official order nine municipal playgrounds in or adjoining the "war scene" were closed.

To Fix Responsibility.

States Attorney Hoyne announced that the August grand jury will investigate the race riots and attempt to fix responsibility for the outbreaks. Coroner Hoffman today resumed the taking of testimony at an inquest on the bodies of victims.

Adjustant General Dickson, after making a tour of the danger zone early today reported the situation as much improved compared with yesterday. He said the most serious situation confronting the police is in the stock yards district.

FREEDOM OF LONDON FOR MARSHAL FOCH

KING GEORGE ALSO CONFERS ON ALLIED COMMANDER BRITISH FIELD MARSHALL'S BATON.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 30.—King George received Marshall Foch at Buckingham Palace and conferred upon him rank of Field Marshall of British army. Marshall Foch later was escorted to Guild Hall, where he was given the freedom of the city, and presented with a sword of honor.

The Lord Mayor of London entertained the allied commander-in-chief at luncheon in the Mansion House.

HUNGER STRIKERS TO BE RELEASED

GERMAN POLITICAL PRISONERS ARE IN FAIR WAY OF SECURING THEIR FREEDOM.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, July 30.—The greater part of the political prisoners who have been on a hunger strike for several days, probably will be released, Gustave Noske, Minister of Defence, told the German National Assembly.

His announcement was made in response to a motion by Independents in the Assembly, calling for releases of political prisoners.

Minister Noske said an investigation had been ordered, and that it probably would result in the release of a large number.

The King advised his subjects to produce and save.

CHICAGO CAR STRIKE IS STILL UNSETTLED

W. D. MAHON, INTERNATIONAL PRESIDENT OF EMPLOYES' UNION NOW ON SCENE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, July 30.—W. D. Mahon, International of the Street Car Employes' Union, upon his arrival in Chicago today, took personal charge of the strike of 15,000 surface line and elevated road employes, and promised to do everything to settle the dispute without unnecessary delay. He met the unions at 2 p.m. and at 4 o'clock conferred with Governor Lowden, Mayor Thompson, and officials of the street railway.

WARDER UPHOLDS BALL DECISION

SAYS MANAGER SOLOMON FAILED TO PUT IT OVER UMPIRE AS IN PREVIOUS GAMES.

The Lindsay Warder says: There has been considerable talk in baseball circles over the decision of Umpire Butler in the Belleville-Peterborough game last Saturday, when he called Jackson of Peterborough out at the home plate. As the Warder stated on Monday, Jackson was out by four feet, but Manager Solomon claimed that in receiving the ball Catcher Mills of Belleville had stepped in front of the plate and in-

CIVIC HANDICAPS.

TEN PUBLIC SPIRITED citizens have recently been called upon to make up a deficit of something like $250 that was the result of a foreign entertainment which was held under a huge tent and with other special privileges added. The object of the local residents who really financed the affair was of the highest. In any case, they did not stand to make a cent out of the venture. They were anxious only to bring a high-class entertainment to the city, and if there had been a surplus the amount would have been turned over to a charitable institution.

An attraction that is brought to this or any oher city should have sufficient confidence in its own virtues and business enterprise, to travel on its merits, just as the lecturers or the promoters of high-class theatrical performances do. It would hardly be the part of civic wisdom or common justice to guarantee a manufacturing concern against loss on condition that it would establish itself here temporarily and operate in direct competition with some already established and local tax-paying concern engaged in the same line. Amusement houses are the same as other enterprises. They are up against the natural competition of similar houses and entertainments, and it is unfair to add to their burdens by bringing in what is really a subsidized opposition.

While the entertainment in question was in progress, local places of amusement, licensed and taxed by the city, suffered in consequence. No note will be taken of this fact by the tax collector when the civic revenue is collected. The local houses are still here, still subject to tax, but the entertainment held in a tent has vanished. To another and more recent incident of the fly-by-night tent show the same argument applies, although the latest affair of the kind assumed all risks and did pay a revenue to one of the leading institutions of the city.

Still, no city can prosper without an income. No income is available from such enterprises. The tax-paying concern is entitled to a square deal, whether it be engaged in purveying entertainment or in any other line.

CROSSING THE FLOOR—AND THE BAR.

WITH SOME statesmen, especially among those higher up, "crossing the floor" is a process equivalent to, so far as practical and personal results are concerned, crossing the bar. And there is little if any sadness of farewell to mark their transit.

AMERICAN RACE RIOTS.

BLOODSHED AND MURDER are the daily records sent out from the leading centres of the United States, due to race riots, first in Washington itself, now in Chicago, riots that, like an epidemic, are likely to spread over the entire country. There must be something behind these tragedies other than the natural antipathy beween two races. The negro cannot be entirely depraved. For over a century he has lived in the light of American civilization, for half that time at least nominally free. It is significant, too, that the troubles originally confined to the South have now spread to the North and that whites and blacks alike were killed and mutilated in the very shadow of the American Capitol itself.

To any one at all familiar with the race problem in the South, the reason for these outbreaks is obvious. Just such tragedies have long been regarded as inevitable. The negro is not entirely to blame. If he is naturally a savage he has devised no more diabolical form of punishment than has his white brother when he burns a colored man at the stake and riddles the body of the dying with bullets. If the negro laborer in the South was a slave before the war, he is a peon today, and between the two positions there is little to choose. While he was a slave the property interest of his owner was sufficient to guarantee the slave a certain amount of parental protection. The negro was granted the vote, to be denied it later. He is in no sense an American citizen, whatever impression to the contrary may be conveyed by high-sounding phrases in the Federal Constitution. Even when one of his own race is on trial for any offence, he is denied representation on the jury.

The negro, however, was treated in all respects like an American citizen when the United States got into the war. He was drafted like the white man. If in private life he was despised and oppressed, the same treatment was accorded him in the army. He has long been under the delusion that the men of the North were his friends. He is learning today that the people of the North love him in proportion to the distance he keeps himself removed from their vicinage.

Acting on the faith that in the North they would find friends and freedom in reality, the negros have recently migrated to the North by the thousands. Their presence in the large centres was resented. The result is the riots now of daily occurrence.

Of oll countries in the world, the United States has probably the gravest of all domestic problems. The race question is the most serious of these. It cannot be settled entirely by force. Ten million or more negros scattered all over the country and held together by the bonds of racial fraternity, ready to riot on the slightest provocation, with wrongs, ages old, to be avenged, are an element of danger in any community, a danger never more imminent than it is today.

BUY AT HOME.

UNDER THE TITLE, "Patronize Home Industry," the western committee of the Canadian Reconstruction Association has issued the following appeal for support of the home market:

"In patronizing home industry we help the laboring man and protect the home capital that is invested. A thing that keeps any town backward is the man who wakes up at the alarm of a clock made in New England States and buttons his New York pants to a pair of Buffalo suspenders; puts on a cowhide tanned pair of shoes made in St. Louis, shaves with a Connecticut safety, and dries on a cotton towel made in Pennsylvania; sits down to a Grand Rapids table on a chair made in Chicago, and butters his bread with Australian butter with a Boston-made knife and eats Kansas City bacon and Minnesota grits fried in American lard, cooked on a Detroit stove, and has a dessert of California fruit seasoned with spice made in St. Paul, after which he slips into a New York raincoat and claps on a wool hat made in Philadelphia, and goes down in an Ohio automobile and finds his office boy dusting his office furniture, made in Illinois. He fills his Rhode Island pipe with tobacco put up in Georgia. He starts to business and wonders why local trade is quiet; gets home at night and gets into a foreign-made bed, and the only thing local he gets is the bark of a street dog, after which he concludes that the town is not a good place to live in and do business in."

HERE AND ACROSS THE BORDER.

HENRY WATTERSON, the outstanding figure in American journalism today, in a series of reminiscences that is running in one of the leading magazines in that country, says:

> "The quadrennial period in American politics, set apart and dedicated to the election of presidents, multiplies and magnifies these evil features in an otherwise admirable system of government. That the whippersnappers of the vicinage should indulge their propensities comes in the order of their nature. But the party leaders are not far behind them. Each side construes every occurrence as assuring it certain victory. Take, for example, the latest state election anywhere. It foretold nothing. It threw no light upon events. It leaves the outlook as hazy as before. Yet the managers of either party affect to be equally confident that it presages the triumph of their ticket in the next national election. The wonder is that so many of the voters will believe and be influenced by such transparent subterfuge and contradictory claims.
> "Is there any remedy for all this? I much fear that there is not. All government is relative and illogical, impossible of perfection. It is as man is, good, bad and indifferent; which is but another way of saying we live in a world of sin, disease and death. We prefer republicanism. But despotism would not be so demurrable with a wise, beneficent despot."

So that things political are in the same bad way that they are in Canada. Seers indulge in prophecy, basing their predictions on scant premises. The result of an election in one province is taken by the followers of the successful party as an indication of the sentiment of the country at large. They felicitate themselves and their co-partisans on coming victory that very often fails to materialize.

Every State in the American Union has its own local issues to settle. Every province in Canada is in the same position. What happens in our provincial elections is no index as to what will take place in another province when the people are asked for an expression of opinion. Still the prophets survive, never, apparently discouraged by repeated failures.

MR. ROWELL'S AMBITION.

THE EXAMINER QUOTES as a reroach against Mr. N. W. Rowell that away back in 1917 he aspired to fill the shoes of the then leader of the Federal Liberal party. Thwarted in these aspirations, Mr. Rowell threw himself into the new Union Government with considerable benefit to his own status as a public man.

Ambition, so long as it is honorable, is creditable. The Examiner is either cursed with a short memory itself or is under the delusion that the general reading public are so afflicted. Otherwise it would admit at once that there was at the time mentioned just such a movement among the Liberal party, the far-sighted members of which, with an election pending, realized that the situation was desperate. Mr. Rowell was openly groomed for leader. Our contemporary itself went as far as it ever does in the excess of its caution, to lend this movement what may be charitably referred to as its moral support. In those days Mr. Rowell was the one political idol in whose provincial light the Examiner warmed itself. But the break in the party at that time was irremediable. The chasm was too wide to be bridged. Even Mr. Rowell, unable to cross the abyss, somewhat experienced as he was in adapting himself to new political conditions, could not negotiate the breach, but sought shelter in the camp over the way.

Some one says now, that the aim of Mr. Rowell is to deliver the Liberal party as an entity to the new Union organization. If he entertains any such a project it is at least no more chimerical than others he has cherished, no less likely to meet with the same signal failure. While in the provincial field Mr. Rowell was in the habit of making promises to deliver intact the votes of a certain section of the party that twice he led to disaster. He failed, end another failure should hardly phase a nature used to reverses. If he believes anything of the kind now with regard to the transfer of the allegiance of the remnant of Liberals who survive, then he is nurturing the hallucination of his career. The Ontario Liberal party was never a unit behind him, it never drew its sustenance from his hand. The man who would not be listened to in any gathering of the stalwarts, the man who is now openly charged with converting what was in the first place the highest political principles into a mere matter of political expediency is not a person entitled to serious consideration when he talks of delivering his old time following to a new organization. There is little to be hoped for from such a man who has already been renounced and denounced by those he assumes to lead.

LAX CONDITIONS CAUSE OF RACE RIOTS DECLARES COLORED DOCTOR

Two Negro Aldermen, Responsible to White Politicians Rather Than to Voters, Create Serious Political Conditions—Violence Will Not Solve Race Problems.

Chicago, July 29.—Charges that colored officials have not properly protected their race and have permitted lax conditions which resulted in the race riots of today and yesterday were made today by Dr. George C. Hall, 3488 South Park avenue, one of the best known colored men of the city.

Dr. Hall declared that an unwise police policy was at the bottom the cause of the outbreaks. He said that a serious political situation exists in the ward by reason of the fact that the two colored aldermen are responsible to white politicians, rather than to the voters who elected them.

Deplores Segregation.

"In the first place the police had no business to undertake segregation of bathers with no ordinance or warrant of law or any form of consultation of the people concerned," said Dr. Hall. "The action of the police in this instance may be traced back to the same conditions that permit gambling to flourish at the present time to an extent never before known in recent years. The segregation line on the bathing beach was drawn by the police. Then when a boy got over the line and trouble arose, the police immediately spread their men out through the district. Wherever colored people were in the habit of congregating peacefully squads of policemen were placed. They drew the color line and followed a policy precisely as the authorities do in Georgia.

Blames White Politicians.

"The colored people have simply been sold out by colored leaders. Our leaders are in the hands of white politicians. That is the whole situation in a nutshell. We need representatives who are strictly representative, who are responsible first of all to the people of the war."

Ministers to Meet Aldermen.

The two colored aldermen from the 2nd ward, Maj. R. R. Jackson and Louis B. Anderson, have been invited to appear before a joint meeting of Baptist and Methodist colored ministers. There will be a discussion and an inquiry as to responsibility for the affair.

In several churches in the colored residence district of Chicago the congregations were dismissed Sunday night without services being held.

Trouble Sudden.

"To me and to most of my people this trouble comes very suddenly," says Rev. T. F. Thomas, pastor of the Ebenezer Church (colored). Among our people and over the city in general, as we knew about it, we did not expect any outbreak of violence. On Sunday just a week ago I preached a sermon on a circular issued by the I. W. W. I told my people we must stand against violence in every form, that we must stand by law and order no matter what happens. I don't care what the past has been; it won't help us to jump in for revolutionary ideas."

Let Both Come Together.

"It appears to me that the best information at hand indicates that this whole affair had its origin in or was occasioned by the same old thing, race prejudice, race restriction, which essayed to express itself by stopping two colored boys from bathing or swimming in a certain locality supposed to be pre-empted by white bathers," said Dr. Williams (colored) today. "It was but another expression of force to take away from the members of my race the right granted to us by law. Let the best white and colored people come together and form a program that will protect us all and save this city's fair name."

Charles E. Fox, president of the Kenwood and Hyde Park Property Owners' association, which has been dealing with problems in connection with the influx of colored people in the white residence districts of the south side, prepared the following statement on the recent occurrence: "This rioting emphasizes the need of intelligent co-operation on both sides. Both can be blamed for this unfortunate occurrence. Violence will not help to solve the problems of the races. Some real constructive action at this time tending toward the creation of a commission to adjudicate differences arising from time to time will do much toward solving the problem. Both races have rights and the rights of each should be respected by the other."

PREPARING BEES FOR WINTER

Every colony should have a young laying queen before the end of this month. Year old queens should only be retained if they are in full vigor. This means the raising of a large number of bees in August and September, and thus the first essential of good wintering—abundance of young bees in each hive—is fulfilled. A colony containing a young queen will produce more bees and produce more honey in the following season than one containing an old queen.

If the bees are to be wintered out-of-door, July is none too early to see about getting the winter packing cases made, because the colonies should be placed in them in September. At the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, a case to hold four colonies in a block with space for three inches of planer shavings at the sides and beneath, and eight inches on top, with outside entrances three-eights of an inch wide by one inch high, has produced very good results in a place surounded with a in a place surrounded by a high board fence to protect the bees from wind.

The third and last important factor in preparing bees for winter is an abundance of wholesome stores put away before cold weather. Clover honey, buckwheat honey and syrup made from refined sugar have been found wholesome for wintering, but dandelion honey and some kinds of honey gathered in the fall have proved unwholesome. Colonies that have less than thirty or forty pounds of wholesome honey should have the deficiency made up with syrup consisting of two parts of sugar to one of water. This feed should be given rapidly, not later than the middle or end of September, for the greater part of Canada. A 10 pound honey pail with a number of small holes punched in the lid makes a simple and efficient feeder for this purpose. It is placed upside down over the combs and covered with a super. Happily there are no restrictions controlling the sale of sugar this year but it would be advisable to secure a sufficient supply in good time.

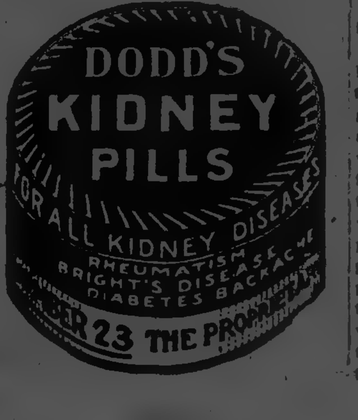
BIG ADVANCE IN THE PRICE OF SOAPS NOW

REASON: HIGH PRICE OF FATS AND OILS—TALLOW ALONE GOES UP FOUR TIMES PRE-WAR PRICE.

All manufacturers of Laundry Soaps have advanced their prices within the last week or ten days from $1.00 to $1.50 per box, so that cake Soaps that used to be sold retail at 5c or 6 for 25c are now 10c and in many cases 11c per cake, and the large bar that before the war retailed at 15c is now 30c for the same size bar.

The reason for this big advance is the high prices of all fats and oils.

On consulting the New York market reports for years past we find that tallow, which is the principal ingredient used in the manufacture of all the better grades of soap, and which really governs the price of all fats and oils, averaged 6¼c per lb for 15 years previous to the war, last week it sold up to 20 and 22c per lb., or nearly 4 times its former price; so that we need not be surprised to see soaps even higher, as the manufacturers have not yet advanced their prices nearly in proportion to the advance they are having to pay for their principal ingredient.



POULTRY PERFORMANCE

A review of the present and prospective egg and poultry situation points strongly to the fact that the economical production is going to be an increasingly important factor in meeting the competition of the world on the export market.

While the cost of unit production is affected by many conditions, it has been clearly evident for some time that no factor has a more potent bearing on cost than the productiveness of the individual bird. It requires a certain number of eggs to pay for the feed fed and labor expended. The number required varies according to the cost. Profitable production can only be obtained by having a safe margin of eggs over the equivalent of cost, the more eggs per bird the greater the remuneration.

Increased production both in the individual and in the flock has been shown to be largely a matter of breeding. The Record of Performance for poultry is a policy planned to give point, direction and encouragement to the breeding of poultry along lines of greatly increased individual and flock production.

The minimum record to permit a bird to qualify in the Record of Performance has been set at one hundred and fifty eggs in fifty-two consecutive weeks and for qualification in the Advanced Record of Performance a minimum of two hundred and twenty-five eggs in fifty-two consecutive weeks. The weight and quality of the eggs during the month of April shall not be lower than that of the grade "Specials" in the Canadian Standards.

Certificates will be issued for all birds qualifying in the Record of Performance. The birds that qualify shall also be identified by a sealed band and the number registered.

The Record of Performance for poultry is to be divided into two parts, "A" and "AA."

Record of Performance "A"

This is to consist of the inspection of trap-nested flocks on individual poultry plants and shall be similar in form to the Record of Performance for dairy cattle. It will be open to any breeder that wishes to enter his flock and will be under the supervision and inspection of officers of the Poultry Division of the Live Stock Branch.

Record of Performance "AA"

This will consist of the conducting of tests under Government supervision and on Government or neutral ground, for the purpose of obtaining an official record by actual trap-nest results.

This official test may be conducted by either Federal or Provincial Government or Colleges and may be secured by:

1. Laying tests.
2. Laying contests.

Record of Performance "AA" will be under the supervision and direction of officers of the Poultry Division of the Experimental Farms Branch.

Official Requirements of Entrants in Record of Performance "A"

All entries shall be made upon froms supplied by the Department and subject to Departmental rules and regulations.

Applications for entry must be dated and mailed one month in advance of the date it is desired the record shall commence. For purposes of organizations during the present year, 1919, applications will be received for individual birds to commence their records on the 1st of September, the 1st of October, the 1st of November and the 1st of December. These shall be an entry fee of one dollar (1) for the first ten birds entered and five cents (5c) for each additional bird.

Only pure bred stock of standard varieties and free from standard disqualifications may be entered.

All stock entered shall be trap-nested during the period of the official test, which in no case will exceed fifty-two weeks.

All equipment on inspected plants shall be kept in a clean and sanitary condition.

Records shall be kept posted up to date at all times for the information of visiting inspectors.

Entrants shall use prescribed record forms. These shall consist of weekly house records and monthly or yearly book records. The weekly records shall be mailed regularly by the breeder to the Department.

The fullest information shall be given to official inspectors and any entrant who offers opposition renders his entry liable to cancellation.

Methods of Inspection

All flocks will be placed under systematic, periodic, unannounced inspection. Official visits will be at irregular intervals; they may average once a month or more frequently as occasion demanded.

The general health, conditon of the stock, surrent productiveness and the ordinary physical and visual tests of egg laying will be used by inspectors in checking the accuracy of the records.

Inspectors required for the Board of Performance will be chosen by Special Civil Service Examination.

In case of an inspector's decision being questioned by the owner of the flock, another examination by the inspector may be given, or, at the option of the Department, another inspector may be sent. In either case a second inspection by the same or another inspector will be considered final.

For further particulars in reference to the Record of Performance "A" inquire of the Poultry Division of the Dominion Live Stock Branch, Ottawa.

General Information

Laying Tests and Laying Contests both will be used as mediums to obtain the qualifications for entrance to the Record of Performance. The major portion of tests and contests will be conducted by the Experimental Farm upon its Central and Branch Farms but Provincial Departments of Agriculture and Colleges also may conduct these.

Laying tests are distinguished from contests in that they are not competitive, but merely for the purposes of obtaining an official record of production. As low as three birds and up to five may be entered in a test. At present complete arrangements are made by the Dominion Experimental Farm to hold these tests at all of its Farms throughout the Dominion.

The laying contests will be conducted this year as follows: World's Contest at Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, on the Branch Farms at: Charlottetown, P. E. I., Nappan, N. S.; Cape Rouge, Que.; Brandon, Man, and Indian Head Sask. All contests have ten birds to pen and start November 1st, continuing for fifty-two weeks.

Applications for both tests and contests that qualify for Record of Performance or Advanced Record of Performance will receive the certificate of registration.

MOTHER KILLED OWN CHILD

Shot Little One to Death—Admits Crime—One Year in Jail.

Pittsfield, Mass., July 29.—Mrs Gladys C. Dunn, on trial for second degree murder for the shooting of her son, Joseph Allan Dunn, Jr., Aug. 11 1918, pleaded guilty to manslaughter today and was sentenced to one year in jail.

Mrs. Dunn who is the wife of J Allan Dunn of New York an author, killed her son at their summer home in Lenox last August. The boy was 2½ years of age. The parents had quarreled, it appeared in the evidence, and the wife, in anger, said she would kill the child and herself. She rushed to her room, obtained a revolver there, and according to the statement of her counsel in his opening address held it to her head. When her husband called to her she turned and discharged the revolver. The child was killed. Mrs. Dunn said she had intended to shoot herself.

Strong wind, amounting almost to a gale, interfered somewhat with the Canadian open golf championship play at Hamilton yesterday. Eighty six entrants appeared and surprises were numerous.

The premium on New York funds rose to 4 7-16 per cent.

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

(In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general. All phases of store management—buying, accounting, advertising and retail salesmanship—will be dealt with, not theoretically, but by descriptions of methods actually in use by successful merchants.)

$50 THAT YIELDED SOME 1700 PER CENT PROFIT

In May, 1918, Ivan Luce, who conducts a photographer's and art store in Philadelphia, came to the conclusion that he could with advantage add a small line of books to his store. There was a space in the rear where a bookcase would just fit, and the fact that many people in the neighborhood made a habit of dropping in in the evening for birthday and gift cards and other novelties convinced him that they would be prospects for books, provided the price was right and the display attractive.

Luce didn't contemplate selling books. He intended to instal a private circulating library and he determined that the library would pay its own way, that it would have an opportunity to prove its worth or else be dropped.

Accordingly, on the first day of May, he set aside $50 in cash, charging the amount to the "Luce Library." With this he purchased forty-eight volumes of popular fiction at wholesale rates and esconced them in a little bookcase at the rear of the store. A neatly framed card informed patrons that the books could be rented for two cents a day, with a minimum charge of five cents, which was raised later to ten cents.

The Growth of The Idea

"That the idea was extremely valuable," declared Mr. Luce recently, "is proved by the fact that the library today owns some 450 volumes and has a balance in the bank sufficient to purchase more books when necessary, in addition to repaying the original investment.

"This is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that only half of the library receipts go to its account. The other 50 per cent I keep as payment for my time in recording the books as they are taken out and returned, overhead, rental, etc. I have worked out a card-index system which is quite simple and, as the patrons select their own books, the whole thing takes little time and attention.

"During the year I have found that the books which are most profitable are the more melodramic type of popular fiction—books which are so interesting that people read them at a single sitting and then return them even before their minimum time has expired. For example, one of the books on my original list was 'Veky Van,' a detective story by Carolyn Wells, which cost me something like a dollar, but has earned many times that sum without impairing its present value in the least.

"On the other hand, books like 'The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse,' which I have to carry in stock, [illegible] a higher original cost and do not turn over as rapidly. But I feel that I must carry these because our patrons want them and they are a form of service which is much appreciated. As a class, however, detective, [illegible] and novels of adventure, Western and otherwise, have proved the best money makers.

In addition to repaying the original $50, adding some 400 books to the collection and netting me an exceptionally nice sum as profit, the library has been of distinct advantage in a number of ways. It brings people into the store more frequently and the very fact that the bookcase is located in the rear forces them to pass by many other attractive things which they either purchase at the time or remember when they have need for them. I have sold a number of expensive picture frames, dozens of photographs and other luxuries to library patrons when I felt certain that they were attracted by the small window display which I always maintain close to the door.

"It isn't possible to keep an exact account of these sales, but during the year they have mounted up into hundreds of dollars, which is one reason that I intend, not only to continue the library, but to add to it as rapidly as its profits will permit."

THE DEADLY PARALLEL

What the Salesman Thought

That fellow is one of those good-natured boobs who would apologize if you ran a pin into him. I'll first wait on that impatient-looking gink that just came in and avoid a fuss.

There, thank goodness, that scrapper is disposed of; and now I can attend to old E. Z. Mark, who has been waiting so long. Golly, he's gone! Must not have wanted anything, after all.

What the Customer Thought

I'm not going to let go of my temper this time. It gives me indigestion to get mad. I'll just wait around here a few minutes and then go quietly out. And if that clerk waits on that other fellow first, good night to this dump!

Well, I'm glad I got away. I will drop in at the Friendly Store and get the thing I wanted. That salesman is just plain bonehead, and it pays so much better to stay away from a store than to raise a row.

FILENE'S SELLS $5,000,000 OF "BARGAINS" A YEAR"

Marking down goods offered at bargain prices has been reduced to an exact science by the Filenes, of Boston. The goods, consisting mainly of wearing apparel for women and children, are displayed on hangers and tables in the basement and basement gallery, so that customers have ready access to them. They are made up largely of surplus factory output bought in quantities for cash and goods that have failed to "turn over" in the main store.

When first offered they are priced about 10 per cent lower than if displayed upstairs. On each piece is a tag giving the price in plain figure. At the end of twelve selling days if a garment is still unsold the price is marked down one-fourth. After eighteen selling days the price is cut to half, and after twenty-four selling days it is still further reduced, the price after the third cut being only 25 per cent of the original price. Any goods left on hand after thirty days are given away to a hospital or some other charity.

Cost is kept very low by simple fixtures, elimination of expensive bookkeeping, no elevator service and no free deliveries. As a result of the quality of the goods and the low prices, this store is thronged all the time. The sales amount to $5,000,000 a year, or one third of the total sales of the concern.

Goods may be returned for exchange or refund of money within forty-eight hours. Proof of time of purchase must be made by showing the price tag, which remains on the garment, and on which a record of the sale is made in place of an ordinary saleslip.

This part of the store is operated as an entirely separate unit of the main concern. If goods are moved into the basement from the upper floors, the loss represented by the mark-down is charged against the buyer who made the original purchase. That is to teach him not to buy any more goods that will not sell.

RUGS, HLF-CLEANED ARE A BIG ASSET

There are about twenty-five specialists in carpet-cleaning and rug renovation in Yonkers, N.Y., for there are many fine homes of wealthy people here—people who believe in keeping their floor coverings up to topnotch all the while.

It made good from the start, because it combined common sense, service and innovation.

Mr. Buchanan, when he receives rugs or carpets to renovate, cleans just one-half of them. Then he deliberately loads them on his truck and takes them around to the owner for inspection. Conclusive proof is thus established that the job is being done and how well it is being done. The marked contrast is there and nothing is more conclusive than things one may see with his own eyes. People do not realize just how soiled rugs and carpets actually get. Nor can they make the comparison unless they see old beside the new. The difference is often very marked.

"But what of the added expense of stopping the job and carting it back and forth?" was asked.

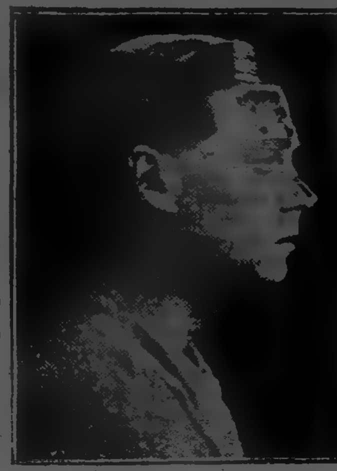
"A little extra trouble, but it pays. I add that cost to [illegible]. It's a business part of [illegible]," the answer, "and [illegible]."

SELLS FARMS, SO THEY SHOW 'EM IN WINDOW

The display [illegible] W. Hobson Land Company in Sacramento, are not large enough to display what the company has to sell—farms—but that didn't discourage the energetic manager.

He decided that as he could not display a farm in his window he would do the next best thing, so he prepared a miniature farm and had it set out in the window.

No expense was spared to make it look like "the real thing." There is a little farmhouse with trees around it, a barn, a herd of cows, a pump that pumps real water, broad fields that look as if they had just been plowed, an orchard and even miniature telephone poles.



When it became definitely known that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales would open the Canadian National Exhibition this year the management at once got into touch with the official photographers in London and requested a profile photograph of him for reproduction on the Victory Year Medal to be awarded to the winners in the Agricultural and other sections of the Big Fair. The photo shown above was received after considerable delay, and immediately a cable was rushed back to this effect:

> "A mistake has been made. An official picture is desired. One you sent shows the Prince without hat or coat and with khaki shirt collar turned in. Charming deshabille, but hardly dignified enough."

Then came the answer:

And that is the reason why the People's Prince will appear on the Canadian National Exhibition 1919 medals, hatless, coatless and in the careless attire of the Fighting Man in France. He will open the Big Fair on Monday, August 25th.

JOEY FOX LOST TO CHAMPION KILBANE

NO REMARKABLE BOXING SKILL SHOWN BY EITHER MEN—JOLY STAYED THE LIMIT.

Philadelphia, July 30. Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion of the world, displayed none of the wonderful skill of a few years ago in his six round bout here last night with Joey Fox, bantamweight headliner of England, at the National League Park. Kilbane was entitled to the decision because he took everything that Fox had and continued to come back for more. He had no opportunity to finish Fox, as Joey was evidently determined to stay the limit, and it was plainly obvious that Kilbane has slowed up to a great degree.

As Kilbane stepped into the ring he was followed by such a gallery of prominent men as have seldom graced a boxing match in this country. Jack O'Brien stepped in after him carrying a huge silver loving cup which was the gift of Frank P[illegible] to Kilbane.

Next came Tex Rickard, who really received the volume of cheers which greeted him, and then Major A. J. Drexel Biddle, of this city, president of the Army Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control. Then came the carefully watched details of the gloves, while the crowd, which numbered about 18,000, worked itself in a state of nervous anticipation as Kilbane and Fox stepped to the centre of the ring, shook hands, and the bout was one. The first round was event, but in the second Kilbane staggered Fox repeatedly, and won the round by a large margin. Fox had the better of the few exchanges in the third round, while in the fourth Kilbane slipped down in a mix up, and came up with a cut over his nose. Kilbane was the aggressor in the fifth and sixth, but could not penetrate the British boxer's defence.

THEATRICALS

M A Y A L L I S O N
IN THE ISLAND OF INTRIGUE, AT THE GRAND, THURS., FRIDAY, AND SATURDAY.

MAY ALLISON SEEN IN ROMANTIC COMEDY

"The Island of Intrigue" to be Shown at the Grand Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"The Island of Intrigue," a stirring romance of love and adventure in which May Allison enacts the leading role, will be the feature at the Grand Theatre and shows the young actress in her best vein.

The story deals with the abduction of a wealthy society girl by a band of blackmailers who spirit her off to a lonely island in the Pacific ocean where they hold her for a fabulous ransom. How she outwits them and effects her escape is shown in a series of thrilling incidents which culminate in a startling denoument.

Romance is cleverly interwoven in the gripping plot and the heroine adds to her experiences by falling in love with a young man whose reasons for being on the island are as strange as her own.

'THE BLUFFER," STARRING JUNE ELVIDGE, TO BE SEEN AT GRAND THURS. FRI. SAT.

New World Jicture Has a Striking New Theme, and Presents Popular Star In Brilliant Role.

"The Bluffer," starring June Elvidge, a new World Picture, has a striking theme and presents this popular star in a brilliant role. The story tells about a young society woman who, upon the death of her father finds that she has very little money left. She decides to bluff her way through life, and makes a deal with a money lender whereby she is given a large sum of money, with the understanding that she will make a good match as speedily as possible. When she does marry, and not for love, she soon finds that her husband is as bad off as herself in financial matters. From this point things happen to her at a happy rate and all the happenings go to make an exceedingly interesting and entertaining production.

Appearing with Miss Elvidge in "The Bluffer" is a notable cast, including such noted players as [illegible] Cummings and Frank Mayo. Among other favorite film players in the cast are George MacQuarrie and Muriel Ostriche.

"The Bluffer" has been given a notable staging and the out-door scenes are beautiful and unusual. From start to finish this picture is entertaining, interesting, fast-moving. It is the sort of a picture that pleases everyone.

By all means see this picture; you will be giving yourself a thoroughly enjoyable time by doing so. You will enjoy the manner in which the heroine gets herself out of the many predicaments in which her poverty places her. You will enjoy the acting by the star and by the other brilliant members of the cast. You will enjoy the story and you will enjoy the settings. From start to finish [illegible]. From start to finish you will enjoy this exceptionally interesting attraction.

THE REVIEW

A Labor Saving Combination

"IT is the last straw that breaks the camel's back." So runs the old proverb. And it is the little extra efforts which tire you out on wash-day.

Eddy's
Indurated Fibreware
Washtubs and Washboards

form a combination which save you much extra labor. Indurated Fibreware tubs are much easier to lift and to move about. They keep the water hot for a much longer space of time, because they do not conduct heat as metal does. They are easier to keep clean, because they are made in one piece without joint or seam, and the hard, glazed surface is impervious to liquids or odors. And they cost no more. Last longer, too.

Eddy's Twin Beaver Washboard has a double rubbing surface of Indurated Fibreware which loosens the dirt quickly and saves many tiresome motions.

FAMILIAR PHRASES.

A Few of the Many Gems We Get From Alexander Pope.

With the exception of Shakespeare Pope is the author of more familiar phrases than any other writer of modern times. Here are a few of his gems.

"Shoot folly as she flies." "Hope springs eternal in the human breast." "Man never is but always to be blessed." "Whatever is is right." "The proper study of mankind is man." "Grows with his growth and strengthens with his strength." "Order is heaven's first law." "Worth makes the man and want of it the fellow." "Honor and shame from no condition rise; act well your part—there all the honor lies." "An honest man's the noblest work of God." "Thou wert my guide, philosopher and friend." "Woman's at best a contradiction still." "Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined." "Who shall decide when doctors disagree?" "A little learning is a dangerous thing." "To err is human, to forgive divine." "Beauty draws us with a single hair." "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread." "Damn with faint praise." "The many headed monster."

A man struck with any degree of force upon the mental area of the jaw, although he may be in perfect physical condition, instantly collapses and falls to the ground, says a medical journal. The attitude assumed in recovery, which may be instantaneous or delayed some minutes, is most characteristic. He squirms about, raises his head and rolls his eyes in an attempt to locate himself. He tries to get on his side and elbow; he endeavors to rise upon his hands and knees. If he regains his feet he staggers like a drunken man. The blow is practically never fatal, the heart's action is never unduly accelerated; the pulse and respiration are normal; the pupils are normal; there is no headache, no sweats, no cold extremities, no pallor—none of the ordinary signs of shock or concussion.

How to Be Happy.

There are two ways of being happy. We may either diminish our wants or augment our means. Either will do. The result is the same, and it is for each man to decide for himself and do that which happens to be the easier. If you are idle or sick or poor, however hard it may be to diminish your wants, it will be harder to augment your means. If you are active and prosperous or young or in good health it may be easier for you to augment your means than to diminish your wants. But if you are wise you will do both at the same time, young or old, rich or poor, sick or well, and if you are very wise you will do both in such a way as to augment the general happiness of society.—Benjamin Franklin.

Complicated, but Easy.

"How do you get your husband to do what he doesn't want to do when you want him to do it?"

"That's easy. I make a big fuss over something he has already done which I didn't want him to do or I remind him of something which I have done which he wanted me to do and I didn't want to do and soon he is doing what I want him to do just as though he had wanted to do it all along."

Insatiable.

Clarence had wearied his mother with a lot of questions. Finally, she exclaimed: "Clarence Briggs, if you ask one more question you march right off to bed."

Clarence pondered. Then he said: "When pa asks where I is will him be sent to bed, too?"—Exchange.

Too Convenient.

"We had a scheme to arrange a checking room so that lady shoppers could check their husbands."

"How did it pan out?"

"Wouldn't work. We didn't know what to do with husbands left over thirty days."

Wrong Position.

"Well, what of it?"

"If you have any regard for the fitness of things make it an upper cut."

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomain-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a tablespoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember that inside bathing is more important than outside bathing because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT BRANDS MOST OF WALSH-DUNNE REPORT AS FALSE

Facts and Allegations About Ireland—New Light on Statement by Irish-American Commissioners—Charges to the Detriment of Great Britain Positively Refuted.

New light is thrown on the report of the Irish-American Commissioners, Frank P. Walsh and Edward F. Dunne, by the answering statement of Ian MacPherson, Chief Secretary of Ireland, the full text of which has just been received in Washington.

Under the heading "Allegations" the statement of the Chief Secretary presents the charges made by the Irish-American delegates, and under the heading of "Facts" the Government's replies thereto, paragraph by paragraph.

In the official reply the "15,000 members of the Royal Irish Constabulary," mentioned by the delegates, dwindle to 9,682, and the "large number of political prisoners in Mountjoy Prison "becomes "28 persons." Charges of cruelty in the treatment of prisoners are denied absolutely and in detail; the incident at Westport is explained; Ireland is shown not only to have an educational system, but one which depends for its maintenance on the United Kingdom taxpayer; some interesting history is given of the methods of Great Britain in dealing with the participants in the Easter rebellion of 1916 and others convicted of pro-German activities, and the reply concludes with the following "Allegation" and "Fact:

"(A) With a ferocity unparalleled even in the history of modern warfare, within the past few days men and women have been shot down in the streets of Dublin.

"(F) Unfortunately, four policemen and a girl have been so shot in the streets of Dublin within the past few days by a number of Sinn Feiners who rescued a Sinn Fein prisoner from the police. The police fired no shots."

"Allegation: Crossing the Irish Sea from Holyhead to Dunleary we came upon the first evidence of the military occupation of Ireland. The vessels and wharves swarmed with soldiers, fully equipped for the field, going to and coming from Dublin.

"Fact: On this date 176 men were demobilized and left Ireland; 65 men (loyal Irishmen) for demobilization arrived in Ireland on the same day. No soldiers arrived at Kingstown as reinforcements on that date.

"(A) There are approximately 15,000 members of the Royal Irish Constabulary. The Constabulary is a branch of the Military Forces. They are armed with rifles as well as small side arms, engage in regular drills and field manoeuvres. They are never residents of the districts which they occupy, and have quarters in regular Government barracks.

"(F) The strength of the Royal Irish Constabulary is 9,682 men. It is not a branch of the Military Forces of the Crown, though armed with rifles and side arms; it practices drill but not field manoeuvres. The men are not natives of the district in which they serve, the unmarried members live in small police barracks, and the married men sometimes in private houses.

"(A) Mountjoy Prison contained a large number of political prisoners, many of them men of the highest character and standing.

"(F) At the date of the visit of the delegates to Mountjoy Prison the total number of so-called political prisoners was twenty-eight persons, consisting of one biscuitmaker, one candlemaker, one carpenter, one carter, one coach builder, one cycle and motor dealer, one engine driver, one factory hand four farmers, two fitters, two laborers one mason two journalists, one messenger, one newsvendor, one storekeeper, one tailor, 2 university students and one of no occupation.

"(A) He (the Government) at first denied that there were underground cells in the prison, but, upon the delegates insisting, they were allowed entrance. They found a great number of cells underground, too narrow for human occupation, without beds or coverings for the prisoners, no ventilation, pitch dark and extremely cold, although the weather at the time was not severe.

"The delegates had authentic information that a large number of political prisoners were taken out of the underground cells after they had demanded admission on the previous night.

"(F) The cells referred to are the reception cells used for committals pending medical inspection, which are designedly isolated from the rest of the prison to avoid the risk of infection. They are not underground cells. These cells are of the ordinary description, have each a capacity of 828⅜ cubic feet, fully equipped with beds, bedding, furniture and utensils and lighted with the usual size windows.

"There were no political prisoners in these cells on the night referred to; in fact, there were no prisoners of this class committed on the preceding day at all.

"(A) The political prisoners were confined, for the most part, in groups, the majority of them being locked up in steel cages built in the yards of the prison, entirely outside of the buildings proper. These cages are exact duplicates of those used for wild animals in the larger zoological gardens, such as Lincoln Park and the Bronx in the United States."

" (F) There is no foundation for this allegation. Each prisoner has a properly equipped cell in the prison block, heated with hot-water pipes, lighted, and supplied with books. The prisoners takes exercise in portions of the prison grounds which are inclosed with iron railings instead of the customary high walls, but these inclosures in no way resemble cages in zoological gardens.

"(A) We witnessed a brutal and unprovoked assault by an English Colonel and a crowd of soldiers on the person of Professor John McNeill.

"(F) The allegation refers to the occasion on which the delegates were courteously informed by Colonel Owens that he could not permit them to enter Westport, a special military area. No assault whatever was committed on the person of Professor John McNeill. The latter tried to force his way past the military guard, but, of course, was not allowed to do so. No violence was offered to him, and the statement of the delegates that they witnessess a brutal and unprovoked assault can only be described as a deliberate and wicked falsehood.

"(A) During the last winter and spring streams of ice-cold water were poured upon men confined in jail, and they were compelled to lie all night on cold floors in unheated cells in their wet clothing. Many of them were afterward removed to outside hospitals suffering from pneumonia.

"(F) These statements are untrue. The following constitutes the only pretext for making such a charge.

"On one occasion, in February last, four prisoners in Mountjoy Prison, after exercise, instead of returning to their cells, climbed up to a ledge upon the roof of one of the wings of the prison. They could not be reached or induced to come down, and after being repeatedly cautioned that if they did not come down the hose would be used, it became necessary to get them down to use it. They did come down. The incident occurred in the presence of visiting Justices.

"Changes of clothing were at once provided for these prisoners. Two of them availed of the change of clothing. The Medical Officer took charge of the other two, and had one removed to the hospital and the other to bed. No illness resulted to any of the prisoners.

"(A) At least five have died as the result of atrocities committed upon them while in prison, the post-mortem examination in some of the cases disclosing marks of violence upon the bodies of the victims.

"(F) There is no truth in this allegation; no death resulted in any such circumstances."

Statements of the delegates charging broadly that "police and soldiers are habitually permitted to enter cells where political prisoners are confined and to beat them with clubs," that "solitary confinement is most horrible form is generally practised," numerous prisoners having been removed to insane asylums "rendered maniacs by their treatment," and that large bodies of political prisoners, in certain jails, have been kept without any food whatever for days at a time," are answered with the repeated direct denial:

"These statements are absolutely untrue."

Other charges and replies are as follows:

"(A) The children of suspected republicans, many of tender years, are kidnapped, and the parents kept in ignorance of their whereabouts for weeks.

"(F) The only foundation for this allegation is that in the present year it was found necessary for the safety of three young boys and one young man to put them temporarily under the care of the police for their own protection. Their parents were not in ignorance of their whereabouts. That there was ground for this action is evidenced by the fact that in the districts from which they came threats were made in proclamations of the Sinn Feiners that anybody who was likely to give information about their outrages would be murdered.

"(A) The delegates found a large number of cells underground, too narrow for human occupation, without beds or coverings for the prisoners, no ventilation, pitch dark, and extremely cold, although the weather at the time was not severe. The delegates were informed that these cells were at times occupied by prisoners.

"The delegates had authentic information that a large number of political prisoners were taken out of the underground cells after they had demanded admission on the previous night.

"(F) The cells referred to are the reception cells used for committals pending medical inspection which are designedly isolated from the rest of the prison to avoid the risk of infection. They are not underground cells. These cells are of the ordinary description, have each a capacity of 828⅜ cubic feet, fully equipped with beds, bedding, furniture, and utensils and lighted with the usual size windows.

"There are no political prisoners located in these cells on the night referred to; in fact there was no prisoners of this class committed on the preceding day at all."

To the charge that "men and women, on mere suspicion of having republican sympathies, are being taken from their homes and arrested on the streets and highways of Ireland, deported to England, or confined in jails in remote places, while their distracted families are kept sometimes for many months in ignorance of their whereabouts," among the alleged victims being John Hanrahan, Edmund Duggan, and George Nicolls, the reply is brief and to the point:

"This is pure fabrication."

Other "allegations" and "facts" are as follows:

"(A) If England ever had an educational system in Ireland, it has completely broken down. The Irish people are taxed more for the support of the police and constabulary—though the country is practically crimeless in the ordinary sense—than they are for the maintenance of the whole educational system of Ireland, including the upkeep of the National University and Trinity College, as well as all the primary and other schools in the land.

"(F) The Irish system of primary education is wholly Irish—so much so that there is no education rate in Ireland, (except for technical education, with a maximum of 2 pence in the pound,) and the whole cost of Irish primary education falls on votes of Parliament—i. e., the United Kingdom taxpayer. In England and Scotland some 50 per cent. of the cost of education falls on the local ratepayers; the Irish ratepayer pays nothing. Though the cost of the system falls wholly on the United Kingdom taxpayer, the State is not able to appoint a single teacher (except in the model schools); the appointment of teachers rests solely with the local manager, i. e., with individual Irishmen.

"The cost of Irish education to the United Kingdom taxpayer, as shown by the votes of Parliament, is for 1919-20, £3,389,[illegible]34. The votes for Irish Police, 1919-29, amount to £2,388,267.

"(A) In the City of Dublin alone there are 20,000 families on an average of five in each family living in one-room tenements. Infant mortality is appalling. Destitution and hunger are rife.

"(F) In Dublin the Corporation have done all in their power to meet the housing difficulty. The Corporation have already built 2,000 new houses, and they have in hand schemes for an additional number. Every assistance and encouragement have been given to them by the Local Government Board to extend their operation. Infant mortality in Dublin has undoubtedly been high, but the mortality in some of the manufacturing cities in England has been equally high. Government funds have been available for maternity benefit and child welfare and the Corporation are taking a most active interest in the matter, and have received half the outlay on their schemes from Government funds. The statement that hunger is rife is not based on facts.

"(A) The old age curse of absentee landlordism still cuts deeply into the uneconomic heart of Ireland. Hundreds of thousands of its more fertile acres are owned by foreigners. As quickly as the rich crops are garnered they are taken out of the country.

"England has absolutely cut off Ireland from the outside commerce of the world; allows no ships to come transatlantic to her ports, and thus controls the prices of the necessities of life.

"(F) Over two-thirds of the country has come under the operation of the land purchase acts, the larger landlords, among whom were the absentees, having already sold their estates to their tenants and a large proportion of the stock issued for the purpose is held in Ireland and the interest thereon comes back to this country.

"As to the rich crops being taken out of the country, if they are so taken it is on sale by the farmers who have raised them at direct profit to themselves.

"Irish ports are free to all the ships of the world, and there is no restriction whatever with regard to transatlantic traffic.

"(A) Ireland has the best organized and the most coherent labor movement in the world. It is being thwarted and suppressed by the army and constabulary.

"(F) It is untrue to allege that the labor movement in Ireland is being thwarted or suppressed or at all interfered with by the army and constabulary.

"(A) Wages of unskilled workers are below a line which means to them hunger, cold and privation. The wages of skilled labor are far below the minimum for decent existence.

"(F) This is untrue. The wages of skilled labor compare favorable with those obtaining in comparable districts in Great Britain. The wages of unskilled workers, particularly of agricultural laborers, have more than doubled since the war. A body composed of representative Irishmen selected to represent the different interests affected fixes the wages.—New York Times.

OTHER TABLETS NOT ASPIRIN AT ALL

Only Tablets Marked with the "Bayer Cross" are Genuine Aspirin—Others Acid Imitations

"Bayer" Now Canadian Made—No German Interest—All Rights Purchased from U. S. Government

BAYER

Aspirin means made by Bayer—has meant this for over eighteen years. The only genuine Aspirin!

The world's greatest physicians, jealous of their own reputation and careful of the health of their patients, prescribe "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin."

Aspirin is not German but is made in Canada, by Canadians, and is owned by a Canadian company. Unless you see the safety "Bayer Cross" on package and on tablets you are not getting Aspirin at all!

Look for the "Bayer Cross"! Then it is real Aspirin.

There is no substitute for genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," which have been proved safe by millions for Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Toothache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Colds, Grippe, Joint Pains, Neuritis.

THE HOLLYHOCK.

A Flower That Is Intertwined With Our Colonial History.

The hollyhock gets its name from two words that indicate its origin in the Holy Land and its membership in the mallow family. But apparently it was known in India before it flung its cheerful banners to the air in Palestine.

Wherever its first home was, it has become thoroughly acclimated in New England. We think of it as a characteristic New England flower. It decorates our colonial history almost back to the days of Governor Bradford and Roger Williams. It is forever peering out of the pages of New England fiction and poetry. There is no flower that more completely embodies the spirit of our eighteenth century romance.

Some of the old colonial blossoms are shy and modest, but the hollyhock has the courage of its convictions. It knows its beauty, as it should, and has no mind to hide it under a bushel or beneath a hedgerow. It is the province of loveliness to display itself, not vauntingly, but with a due sense of its worth. And the hollyhock, the stateliest of our "old fashioned" flowers, aspires unabashed.

In two books of "popular quotations" there is no reference to the hollyhock, though the holly has its fair share of space. But it can afford to be thus ostracized.

The extraordinary tax on German wealth was approved.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

FURNISHING REFERENCES FOR FOUR MILLION EMPOYEES

When an employer has no further use for one of his men he considers his obligations fulfilled when he furnishes a perfunctory letter of recommendation to aid his discharged employee in getting his next job. An Honorable Discharge from Uncle Sam is worth more than a perfunctory recommendation from a private employer. But Uncle Sam, who finds it necessary now to dispense with the emergency services of four million fighting men, is not satisfied merely to put his John Hancock at the bottom of 4,000,000 pieces of engrossed paper. He wants if possible actually to place every one of those men into a civilian job.

When the war was on, the slogan of the government was to get the men out of their civilian jobs and into the army and navy. Now Uncle Sam's aim is to get them out of the service and into civilian jobs. This is a colossal task. It is much easier to transfer men from many employers to one than to reverse the process and distribute satisfactorily four million men among hundreds of thousands of employers.

By a nation-wide system of re-employment, operating under the unified direction of Colonel Arthur Woods, Assistant to the Secretary of War, the Government expects to make good on its voluntarily assumed task of seeing that every one of its discharged men gets a job. In the New York City Re-employment Bureau, operated by the War Department with the help of the war welfare organizations and the Merchants' Association, about an equal number of applications for men is received as for jobs, and in many trades and occupations more jobs are offered than there are men to fill them.

The reason for the rapid absorption of the army into our civilian life lies in the patriotism of both the employer and the worker, and in the American sense of order. The American soldier has never learned the habits of the European who prefers to let the government do it for him. He feels it "up to" him to get back to work, and he does it.

Of course, while in the army and navy, the service man learned to work hard. He is no longer afraid of work, for almost any sort of civilian work is a vacation when compared to the hardships of the trenches. An educational campaign carried out by Col. Woods has convinced the employer of this, and he is quick to utilized the increased economic efficiency of the discharged soldier, sailor and marine. If it were not for the temporary disturbance of the business conditions on account of the European situation, we should now have no employment problem at all.

WARDER UPHOLDS

terfered with the batsman. There were two out at the time. Umpire Butler, however, who was directly behind the plate, contended that the batter (Kirp) offered at the ball, failed to "come across," and that there was no interference on the part of Mills. In the face of strong opposition from Base Umpire Kay Butler held to his decision, claiming he knew the rules of the game, and the side was retired.

Perhaps there is no rule in the game more often misinterpreted than that pertaining to interference by the catcher. Students of the game for years have argued that this rule needed revision more han any other. Under present rules, when a catcher interferes with a batsman the batsman is entitled to first base, regardless of whether he hits the ball or misses it, whether he reaches the base or is out on a fly. No matter what happens when the batter offers at a ball on which he has been interfered with by the catcher, the batsman is entitled to first base.

The bad part of the rule relates to what happens to base runners who may be on the bases at the time. In all such cases no runners can advance unless forced. A wise catcher, if he believes a runner on third is about to steal home or desires to break up the squeeze play, all he need do is create an interference with the batsman. The batsman goes to first, but no other runners can advance unless forced. If this rule was changed so that the batsman was granted first base when the catcher interfered, and all other runners were allowed to advance whether forced or not, interference on the part of the catchers would be rare and would always be purely accidental, since the severe penalty would force the catcher to use great caution.

In the Peterborough game Manager Solomon failed to "put it over" his umps, although he boasted that he had done so in previous games.

CONDITIONS ON ONTARIO FARMS

The following is a summary of reports made by agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The outlook for spring grains has feen much improved py recent rains which were fairly general, but did not reach all sections. The showers were much needed, as barley and oats had headed with very short straw which in some fields stood only a foot or two high. In some cases the rains, unfortunately, came too late to have much effect. The harvesting of barley has begun in some counties, and in some cases the mower has had to be used. Odd fields of early oats have also been cut, some on the green side, to escape the grasshopper. A light yield of both grain and straw is expected for both of these crops.

Fall wheat is nearly all cut, and mostly in the barn, and while threshin results range from fifteen to thirty-five bushels per acre the general result will be about an average. Norfolk reports a larger acreage than usual bein fallowed for fall wheat.

There is likely to be a good general yield of corn. Early sown has made tremendous growth, but that put in later is not so promising.

Essex reports that tobacco—a considerable crop in that county—has been suffering from the drouth.

Early potatoes are not yielding as well as was hoped for, the dry summer being very trying to the crop.

Roots also have been much in need of rain. They are not very regular in the row, and, generally, speaking, are hardly up to size for the time of year.

The hay crop has turned out to be a fair one and it has been well cured. The second growth of clover, however, has been somewhat stunted, and is not very promising for seed. Spring seeding has not turned out well.

The first crop of alfalfa did well as a rule, this season but the second cut, which has just begun, will be comparatively light.

Middlesex reports that flax pulling has commenced. That portion of the crop sown late is likely to be poor.

The raspberry yield, which early in the season promised to be an immense one, proved a disappointment in many sections, owing to the very hot, dry weather prevailing at the time of ripening.

Cattle have not been putting on much flesh on pasture, and marketing is quiet. Brant reports that drovers are picking up yearling Holstein heifers in that county for shipment to France.

The milk flow has been steadily decreasing owing to poor pastures. Flies also have been very annoying to dairy herds. Some dairymen in Dundas are dissatisfied with the price of cheese, and are going to ship cream.

Hogs are in keen demand at record prices, which in some cases have reached $24 a cwt. f.o.b.

With the hay and fall wheat harvest out of the way, and most of the small fruits marketed, the lightness of the crops of spring grains will lessen the demand for summer farm labor.

YOUNG'S POINT

Young's Point, July 30.—A large number of the members of St. Mary's Church at Young's Point motored to Lakefield Sunday and, at the close of the church services, presented their pastor, Father Meagher, with a purse containing $55.00.

Father Meagher has been called home to Ireland by the severe illness of his mother. He leaves Lakefield in a few days and expects to be gone for four months. His people wish their beloved pastor God speed with the earnest hope that he may reach his old home safely and see his mother again.

Miss Mary Gardner and Miss Marjorie Bridge spent the week-end at the "Y" camp at Burleigh.

Miss Mabel Gardner has returned to her home in Peterborough after spending a week with friends near Burleigh.

GOLF AT K'RKFIELD

Peterborough Teams to Take Part in Handicap and Tournament.

There will be an open handicap match at the Kirkfield Inn on Friday and Saturday, August 1 and 2, to which all members of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club are invited. There is also going to be a golf tournament on these dates, and the Peterborough club intends sending a team to represent them. All members of the club are invited to attend this tournament, and a good time is assured.

HASTINGS

Hastings, July 30.—A public meeting was held in the basement of the Methodist Church on Friday evening for the purpose of organizing in the interest of the coming referendum. The speaker was Mr. G. A. McMullen, of Toronto, who, after showing the benefits to be derived from prohibition, proceeded to organize. The result of the election was as follows:

Chairman—Mr. R. C. Doxsee.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. D. Scriver.
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. W. Hill.
Secretary-treasurer—Mr. H. B. Wilson.
Councillors—Messrs. J. A. Brown, A. V. German, W. P. Plant, D. Scriver, Dr. De La Matter, Mesdames, J. McGrail, E. Beavis, A. Merrill, E. Tait and Miss Della Plant.

Mr. C. E. Jones was appointed captain for the north side of the river and Mr. D. Scriver for the south side.

Building New Dam.

As the Tanning Co. have decided to repair the dam at the old mill, the services of a diver has been secured who will dislodge the large stones which have settled at the race gate. The work is likely to extend for about two weeks.

A silent policeman has been stationed at the corner of Front and Bridge streets, who stands on duty day and night. It is hoped this may make traffic more safe on that corner.

The steamer "Stoney Lake" passed through on Wednesday with a large party of excursionists en route for Healy Falls.

Mr. R. Simpson had the misfortune to lose a valuable horse during the week, it having fallen into a well during the night, and was found in the morning dead.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Tearmouth have returned to their home in Ottawa after spending a pleasant vacation with his mother here.

The result of the entrance exams are to hand. Those who were successful were Clifford Baker, Joselyn Berry, Josephine Blue (honors), Philip Doherty, Arthur Dodd, Rose Gorman, John Howard, Roland Jones (honors), Teresa Noonan, A. Parker, Bryant Scriver, Mabel Stewart, Viola Stewart, Walter Whitred.

Mr. E. Blue, of Detroit, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Blue.

Mrs. Pat Lee, of Belleville, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Walsh.

Miss Helen Greenley left on Thursday for her home in Toronto after an extended visit with friends here.

Mr. Fisher, station agent, is on a few days' vacation out of town.

Mr. J. Staples, of Lindsay, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Tate.

The people of Norham and vicinity ran an excursion to Peterborough on Friday by boat. A large crowd took advantage of the outing and spent a pleasant day.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Beavis, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hess, Miss Gladys Stevenson and Miss Evelyn Beavis were in Lakefield on Wednesday attending the wedding of Miss Maude Beavis and Mr. Allan Clarke.

Mr. J. R. Laing, of Toronto, was in town last week visiting his sister, Mrs. N. Beavis.

A little daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry McMillen.

Mrs. Geo. Buchanan left last week for a two months' visit with friends in Saskatchewan.

Mr. Cecil Doxsee, of Hillsburg, is spending a holiday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Doxsee.

Dr. King and family, of Toronto, arrived during the week for the annual vacation in Hastings.

Miss Wilkinson, of Norwood, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Doxsee. Miss Wilkinson rendered a choice solo in the Methodist Church on Sunday night, which was well received.

Rev. B. Eyre, B.A.B.D., accompanied by Mrs. Eyre and children, of Bright, and Miss Elsie Laing, of Norwood, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hess.

Mrs. W. J. Rice, of Kingston, has been renewing acquaintances in town.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith spent Sunday in Brighton.

Dr. Stewart, Toronto, is holidaying at the cottage on the Trent.

Mr. W. G. Stevens and daughter, of Toronto, have been guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. Scriver.

Mr. and Mrs. McAllister, of S. Monaghan, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. D. Fife.

Platinum brought to the U. S. by the British dirigible R34 will be used in making medallions commemorating the historic trip.

Montreal's Cathedral.

The great landmark in Montreal is the Cathedral of Notre Dame, which, next to the famous cathedral in the City of Mexico, is the largest church building in America and has a seating capacity of 12,000. The church was built in 1829 and is noted for its magnificent chimes, one of the bells of which, called "Le Gros Bourdon," is one of the largest suspended bells in the world and weighs 24,780 pounds.

A Lightning Flash.

A flash of lightning lights up the ground for one-millionth of a second, yet it seems to us to last ever so much longer. What happens is that the impression remains in the retina of the eye for about one-eighth of a second or 124,000 times longer than the flash lasts.

Unsolved Mystery.

"Pa, everybody knows Methuselah was the oldest man, don't they?"

"Yes, my son."

"Then who knows who was the oldest woman?"

"Nobody, my son; nobody."—Baltimore American.

MINERAL OIL
For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the highest in quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE. There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased, as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative, and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

LOSS FROM LIGHTNING

Properly Rodded Buildings Alone Are Safe.

Rods May Be Installed by Farmer Himself Efficiently and Cheaply—Aluminum or Copper Material Should Be Used—Be Sure Rods Are Well Grounded.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

ACCOMPANYING the heated summer days are the numerous thunderstorms which infest the temperate regions of our continent, and it is then we need the proper answer to the question of practicability of lightning rods. Contemporaneous with them usually come the lightning rod agents and again a knowledge of the subject is necessary. To answer the question, we can do no better than rely on the statistics of insurance companies. Reports from these in 1913 show that 26 per cent. of their risks were on rodded buildings. The total number of claims paid were 193, which amounted to $40,904.[illegible]; of these eight were rodded and damage done only $57.64. If the rods were no good then 26 per cent. of strokes should have been on rodded buildings, or, roughly, 50 strokes. In that year the insurance companies figured an efficiency of 9[illegible] per cent. In Iowa the efficiency runs 98.7 per cent. and in Michigan, where the rodding is inspected the efficiency is 99.9 per cent. From these we are forced to agree that lightning rods are a protection, and we must now consider where and how to rod.

During the year 1900 in U. S. A. the number of persons killed by lightning was 713, of which 291 were killed in the open, 158 in houses, 57 under trees, and 56 in barns, of the remainder the circumstances were unknown. From this it appears that it is more dangerous in the open than anywhere else. The reason of this probably is that the house, tree, etc., act as conductors and carry the charge directly to the ground without harming the occupants. Of those killed in the open the most were raised above their surroundings, on horse-back, a load of hay or an agricultural implement. In Schleswig-Holstein, for the years 1874 to 1883 summary reports show that yearly out of every million buildings, 549 ordinary buildings (houses, barns), 6,277 churches, 8,524 windmills, and 306 factories were struck. Naturally the total number of churches in that country are less than any other type of building and yet they were more often struck, which is due to their height and especially of their spire. Thus all high or projecting objects are more liable to be struck and hence should be rodded.

A lightning rod is merely a metallic rod sunk in damp earth and terminating in a point or points above a projecting structure. Now unlike charges of electricity attract, thus the charge of the cloud attracts the oppositely induced charge on the earth up through the rod to the point where it slowly leaks off into the air about it and thus ionizes it. This ionized or charged air now exists within a field of electrical force which causes a current of electricity to travel slowly through the atmosphere to the cloud which tends to neutralize the charge on the cloud above the building and hence prevents a discharge. However, the discharge is not always prevented as lightning sometimes acts with a 'freak nature' and a discharge occurs between the clouds and the lightning rod. This is due to a reversed condition being very suddenly brought about by induction and the slow transfer of electricity through the air has not time to discharge the cloud before the flash takes place. It is now that improper installation proves disastrous. Hence careful inspection by the owner at the time of installation is most essential.

Rods should preferably be aluminum or copper, as these do not rust easily, and weight about three ounces per running foot. There should be a continuous rod starting in moist earth about eight to ten feet below the surface and running up the corner of the building to the eave, hence along the slant edge of the roof to the peak and along the ridge to the other end, and down the opposite slant side again to the eave, and thence to damp ground. This conductor should be fastened firmly to the structure by metallic fasteners and not insulated from it. It should also be protected to a height of eight or ten feet above ground by nailing a board over it to prevent cattle from disturbing it in any way. Metallic nickel pointed uprights about five feet high are soldered and braced firmly to the conducting rod running along the ridge and placed about 20 or 30 feet apart.

In the case of a house, an upright should extend a short way above each chimney and should be bent in, so that the point would project above the centre of the flue to prevent a discharge passing down the chimney by the fairly good conductors, the heated air and soot. On a barn a rod also should extend above each ventilator outlet. All weather vanes, finials, ridge ironwork, eavetroughs, metal hay-tracks, and even litter carrier tracks, if close to the conductor, should be soldered to the conductor. In fact, all masses of metal of any size should be connected to the rod or grounded well, as in these induced currents may be set up by a discharge, which in jumping from one piece to another may come in contact with some inflammable material.

Good lightning rods bought from a reliable firm properly installed will not only decrease your insurance premiums, but insure you against an enormous danger and expense.—R. C. Moffat, B.S.A., O. A. College, Guelph.

BRITISH GLOVE FABRICS.

Old Country on the Way to Recapture Lost Industry.

The glove fabric industry, which, until the outbreak of the war, was a German monopoly, is being rapidly recaptured by Nottingham manufacturers. It originally had its home in Nottingham, but the success of German chemists in discovering the method of dyeing black on cotton, known as the Hemsdorff process, which not only produces a permanent black, but makes the gloves suede-like in appearance and touch, spelt ruin to the English manufacturers. The Germans before the war exported 30,000,000 pairs of these gloves, valued at three quarters of a million sterling, to England.

The dyeing and finishing of lace and hosiery by Nottingham firms has, however, reached such a high standard of late years, and has revealed so many German secrets, that the manufacturers are now entering again into the glove fabric trade. So successful are they proving that whereas in 1913 England only made 880,000 yards of glove fabric, that figure is now being quadrupled.

Nottingham firms are spending large sums of money on chemical research and are turning out gloves equal to anything produced by Germany, but they are appealing to the Government not to allow the trade to be killed once more by Germany, where labor, which represents one-third of the cost, is less well paid.

The Banjo.

The modern banjo was introduced into England from America, to which country it was probably taken by the African slaves, who originally obtained the idea from India. The unmusical name "banjo" seems to have been derived from "banya," the name of a Senegambian instrument of the guitar species.

To Improve Paint Work.

To put a varnish-like gloss on doors, get half a pound of glue, put it into a saucepan with about a quart of water, and boil till dissolved. When the doors are washed, take a clean cloth, dip it in the size, and rub all one way, being sure to go over the door to insure a smooth surface.

True Aristocracy.

Mere democracy cannot solve the social question. An element of aristocracy must be introduced into our life. I do not mean the aristocracy of birth, or of the purse, or even the aristocracy of intellect. I mean the aristocracy of character, of will, of mind. That only can free us.—Ibsen.

Cork Substitute.

A good substitute for cork is obtained from certain fungi, which are dried and ground, mixed with cement and consolidated by pressure.

Nuts as Food.

Many people are just beginning to find out that nuts are a valuable source of food. Most varieties have a high nutritive value, due to their fat and protein content.

Chestnuts stand in a class by themselves, being largely carbohydrate in composition. They are good boiled and mashed. Serve as potatoes or use as stuffing for a fowl. Butternuts, black walnuts, English walnuts, filberts, hazel nuts, hickory nuts, pecans and almonds all may be used as fat savers, for they are especially rich in fat. It is certain that if you have on hand a large supply of nuts you can add attractive and varied dishes to your meals at little expense. The protein and fat are combined in the nut much as they are in meat, which makes it a good substitute for meat. Vegetarians have learned to make many attractive combination dishes from nuts, such as nut loaves, croquettes and souffles, which they serve in place of meat.

Harriet Waterfalls of East Se[illegible] township was snetenced to six months at the Mercer Reformatory for beating her nine-year-old adopted son insensible with a hoe, wounding him in thirty-two places.

Lord Leverhulme Became Power in Modern England And Is the Real John Bull

THE most virile and representative man in England at the moment, says the Wall Street Journal, is Lord Leverhulme, formerly known as William Lever, the soap maker.

He may be the richest as well. Nobody knows. He has, at any rate, the largest and most prosperous industrial organization in Europe.

He is a bull in all market matters, too. He is always a buyer and the most habitual breaker of the Tenth Commandment in Great Britain.

His faith in Britain and British business is absolute and complete. There is never the smallest cloud in the blue sky of his optimism.

He bought 23 factories during the war. He already has 75 or 80. Even the steel trust, which is an industrial empire, has only 146 different plants; but this one man, working alone, has acquired over 100. He will doubtless have several more before these lines are printed.

He is the king of the soap makers. He and Sir Alfred Mond, who cooperate to a certain extent, control 85 per cent. of the soap business of Britain. Even the famous "Pears Soap" is now controlled by Lord Leverhulme.

For the last ten years Leverhulme has been collecting factories, as an antiquarian collects old coins. His method is not to buy them outright, but to control them by the purchase of their common stock. He takes the risk plus the control.

He has bought not only soap works but margarine factories and polish [illegible]. He follows the trail of grease wherever it goes. Give him the fats of a nation and he cares not who makes the laws.

The most remarkable fact about Leverhulme is that, while he is the most tremendous capitalist in Britain, he is at the same time one of the most popular. He has everyone's good will. Northcliffe fought him once in the courts and got soundly thrashed; but in general Leverhulme is not only respected, he is trusted as well.

In his public speeches he talks like a labor leader. He is the originator of the six-hour day. He is the main champion of profit sharing. He is about to try the experiment of giving free meals to his workers.

The main secret of his success, perhaps, is his will power and vitality. I have seen him at work in the drawing room of his London house at 5.30 a.m. He keeps four secretaries frantic. His output of decisions per day is enormous.

He is a business man of the old-fashioned type. He is more like Carnegie than Frick, more like Morgan than Davison, more like Napoleon than Foch.

He is forceful rather than shrewd, personal rather than co-operative. Although he made his maiden speech in the House of Lords recently, he asks no help from politics nor Government. He makes up his own mind and no one knows what he will do next.

He is the unofficial prime minister of British industry, this man who began his business career as an errand boy in a Bolton grocery.

A year ago he bought control of a large cocoa factory near London. What he wanted, no doubt, was the cocoa butter, which is a by-product of cocoa.

He has factories in Canada, Belgium, Germany and China, as well as in England. He has property in West Africa and the Solomon Islands. And he has his own fleet of ocean going ships.

During the past year he has plunged in a new direction. He has suddenly become the fish king of England.

First he bought the entire island of Lewis, which is fully as large as Rhode Island, and has 12,000 inhabitants. It lies on the northwestern coast of Scotland, in the middle of a sea that's populous with fish.

Next he bought 80 or more fish shops in England, which he intends to use as a system of distribution for the fish in the nets of Lewis.

Recently his firm Lever Bros., Ltd., held its twenty-fifth annual meeting. The meeting was not held in London, but at the Bridge Inn, in Port Sunlight, near Liverpool.

His firm has now $300,000,000 capital. It has 56,000 shareholders, including many thousand employes, who are given shares of stock for faithful service.

As to the number of employes, no census has ever been taken; but they were numerous enough to send 5,207 men into the ranks of the British army.

Usually the shareholders have received 15 per cent., but last year they received 17½ per cent. Leverhulme pays his shareholders well, but he does not bleed his companies. He has spent, all told, $85,000,000 on repairs and improvements.

He is a builder of business, not merely a profit-taker. He operates on Carnegian lines, putting back every possible penny into the firm that produced it.

The First Steam Engines.

The first known use of steam to drive a kind of steam engine was described by Hero of Alexandria, probably in the first or second century B. C. But the first real steam engines were those used at the end of the seventeenth and in the early eighteenth centuries for pumping water out of mines. Newcomen's engine was used in English mines about 1711.

Another Story.

A Glasgow antiquary recently visited a ruined castle and asked one of the villagers if he knew anything of an old story about the building.

"Aye," said the rustic, "there was anither auld story, but it fell down lang since."—London Telegraph.

Democratic Air Raids.

Official details issued recently of twenty-five air raids on London between May 17, 1915, and May 17, 1918, completely dispel the idea that while the poorer classes suffered great loss West End residents entirely escaped.

The reports of the London Fire Brigade show that in the raid of November 28, 1916, the residences of the following well-known people were damaged:

Lieut.-Gen. Sir Alfred Codrington.
Lord Gascoine Cecil.
Lady Jane Taylor.
Lady Wernher.
Duke of Devonshire.

CRACK UNITED STATES AND CANUCK GOLFERS IN CHAMPIONSHIP MEET

Canadians Make a Poor Start at Ancaster Links Hamilton—Lyon Hurt.

Ancaster Golf Links, Hamilton, O., July 29.—Under ideal weather conditions, excepting for a stiff wind, the Canadian open golf championship tournament opened today on the course of the Hamilton Golf and Country Club. The unusually large field of 86 entrants are competing, including some of the best players, both professionals and amateurs, of the United States and Canada, and announcement has been made that the prize money has been doubled, the first prize being $200 and the gold medal.

Captain J. W. G. Clark, of the Mississauga Club, Toronto, and O. Brault, of the Granby Golf Club, Quebec led the field at 8.30. The other teams followed at intervals of about four minutes. The last pair did not go out before 11.40, J. K. Wadley, of Texarkana, runner up in the California amateur championship, teeing off with J. L. Skinner of Galt.

Fritz R. Martin, the Hamilton player, was unable to start this morning having to leave the city on account of the dangerous illness of his mother. He was paired with Leo Geisel, runner-up at Cleveland last week, and his place was taken by A. G. Gill, of Toronto.

Lyon Against Professional.

The best Canadian entrants were pitted against the stars from the other side in the opening thirty holes. George S. Lyon, former Canadian amateur champion, went out with Wilfred Reid, of Wilmington, Del., the English professional who was runner up with Vardon and Ray in the United States open championship six years ago. Lyon was badly off his game this morning, having 45 at the turn against his oponent's 29. The Canadian was twice in difficulty a 7 and an 8 marring his record.

The greatest interest centred in the play between Jas. Barnes, the Cornishman, winner of the western open last week, and McLuckie, Canadian amateur champion.

The cards of both players showed the magnificent effect of the breeze. Barnes was bunkered three times going out and started home with 37.

Thompson Beaten.

Douglas Edgar formerly French open champion, turned in a fine card—a 72. He was paired with W. J. Thompson of Toronto, who returned a 74. The match was closely fought throughout.

Captain Clark and Brault turned in cards for 89 and 86 respectively, as the result of the first round. Frank Thompson, of Toronto, and Wm. Ogg of Eastclaire, Ga., had 81 and 8[illegible] respectively. As the scores for the first round rolled in at noon, the influence of the strong northwest wind on the play was increasingly evident. Barnes turned in a card for 78, being five above par. His opponent McLuckie, was out of form this morning, not striking his stride going out, and his card registered 82.

Fell Into Bush.

Wilfred Reid, the Wilminton professional, finished his first round in 76 against the 93 of his team mate, George S. Lyon, the Canadian ex-amateur champion. Lyon met with disaster going out, falling into a hawthorne bush and lacerating his arms and legs severely.

WEEKLY SHOOT TO-DAY

Peterborough Gun Club Urgently Invites All Members to Attend.

The Peterborough Gun Club will hold their weekly shoot on Friday evening next, and all members are urgently requested to be on hand, as squads from Port Hope and Lakefield Gun Clubs are to be on hand to shoot a twenty-five bird event with a squad of the local shooters.

A few handsome prizes have been donated by members of the Gun Club and will be shot for on Friday evening.

The Lakefield shooters are going strong as two members of the locals can testify as they shot with them in Lakefield last night and were on the short end in every event. A full attendance is requested as a good night's sport is promised.

PETES PLAY COBOURG TO-NIGHT ON LATTER'S HOME DIAMOND

Great interest is being expressed in this game and that of Belleville-Port Hope, because if Peterborough and Belleville both win it will leave Belleville tied with the local team, for the leadership in the Central Ontario League.

Players and rooters left for Cobourg this afternoon at 2 and 3 o'clock. The battery of the locals will be Kirn or Mulhern pitcher, and Livingston, catcher.

BRITISH COLUMBIA ELEVEN NOT COMING

WILL NOT PLAY FOR THE CONNAUGHT CUP — EXPENSE GUARANTEE NOT ENOUGH.

Vancouver B. C., July 30.—No foot ball team from British Columbia will go East this summer to play for the Connaught Cup. This decision was reached at a meeting last night of the Mainland Football Association recently affiliated with the Dominion Football Association. It was decided that the guarantee of $500 for expenses offered by the Dominion Football Association was not sufficient for the trip, and that the local champions will not play off with Calgary to decide which team should visit Eastern Canada.

EXPERT CHESSMEN PLAY IN TOURNEY

BOGOLJUBOFF, RUSSIAN, DEFEATS AUSTRIAN AND GERMAN IN DOUBLE ROUND AT BERLIN.

According to "The Tijdschrift van den Nederlandschen Schaakbond," a double round masters tournament was held at the Cafe Kerkau, Berlin, the participants being the Russians E. D. Bogoljuboff and A. S. Selenzoieff, the Austrian R. Reti and the German R. Spielman. From prewar form it was assumed that Spielman would easily win the contest and that Reti would emerge ahead of the Russians. However, the tournament had exactly the opposite result, Bogoljuboff winning all games except the two which he played with his compatriot, and which he drew and Seleznjef ending in second place, with three points to his credit, Reti and Spielman scored only two points each.

Bogoljuboff had previously won a match against the veteran C. von Bardeleben by 5 to 0, with two draws.

After the tournament Reti went to Holland on a tour of exhibitions in simultaneous and blindfold play. He will take part in a series of games against the leading Dutch players.

Holland has been the scene of intense chess activities lately, the most important being the match between R. J. Loman and G. J. van Gelder, which ended in a win for the latter by 5 to 4 with three draws. A return match is now in progress. After the close of the first contest Loman gave a blindfold exhibition in Utrecht playing six games at the same time, of which he won four, drew one and lost one.

Game of Chajes and Jaffe.

The I. L. Rice Progressive Chess club, which won the championship of the New York Chess league recently, has moved to 219 2nd avenue, Manhattan, and opened the new headquarters, with an exhibition game between Oscar Chajes and Charles Jaffe. Chajes committed a slight positional error at his seventh move, of which Jaffe exacted the full penalty in an attack conducted with great precision. The score of the game follows:

White, O. Chajes; black, C. Jaffe.

Bad strategy, as it enables black to open the king's bishop's file for his rooks. It is highly interesting to see how this open file is the cause of whites c'ollapse later on.

Here white misses the only chance to obtain a counterattack on the queen's wing. He should have played P-B5 and continued with Kt-Kt3 in case black took the pawn. In this way white would have gained control of the queen's file, while now he cannot do anything [illegible]

LAVIS SUFFERS DEFEAT

Jersey City, N. J., July 30.—Jack Britton, of Chicago, welterweight champion, easily defeated Ted ("Kid") Lewis, of England, former titleholder, in an eight round bout at the Armoury A. A. here. Britton earned the honors in every round except the first.

Each man weighed 145 pounds. Britton gave an extremely clever exhibition, walking about his opponent as he landed tantalizing jabs interspersed with left hooks.

TORONTO BOWLERS IN POOR SHOWING

ONLY THREE OUT OF ELEVEN RINKS SURVIVE FIRST DAY'S TOURNAMENT.

Buffalo, July 29.—Only three of the eleven rinks from Toronto clubs in the Buffalo International Tournament survived the first round play. Dr. F. J. Gallanough's Victoria Club combination winner of the Eaton Trophy last year went down before J. Hodgins of St. Catharines, 17 to 12. Tom Rennie, of the Granites, won from Dr. Inch, of Weston, by 5 shots, and George Orr, of the Granites, defeated H. Wettlaufer, of Kitchener, 23 to 14. W. J. A. Carnahan, also of the Granites, was a winner over J. C. Duffin of Welland, 23 to 10. The Canada Club representatives met defeat, C. S. Robertson losing to G. F. McMahon, of Woodstock, 16 to 11, W. Laurie, Toronto, Dr. Clark, High Park, and W. H. Williams, Balmy Beach, were beaten in the first round. Three rinks from Cincinnati are playing in the tournament and two survived the first day's play. They were pitted against Buffalo rinks.

JONES HEAVY WEIGHT CHAMP'N OF CANADA

BOXES LEONARD DEMOULIN, FRENCH HEAVY, AT QUEBEC ON AUGUST 6.

Soldier Jones, heavyweight, boxes at Quebec on August 6, his opponent being Leonard Demoulin, a French heavyweight of some note. The latter is about fifty pounds heavier than Jones, but this is not worrying the latter. He believes in the old slogan "the bigger they are, the heavier they fall and the harder it is to miss them." Should he win that bout, Jones will in all probability be seen in action again in Toronto. Efforts are being made to match him with "Spike" Sullivan, a rattling good heavyweight who once secured a decision over Jones. Sullivan is the only man to have done this, and Jones is very eager to wipe out this blot of his career.

The soldier has participated in over forty contests, and includes a large number of knockouts, most of which were delivered in the first round. He held Bill Brennan, the crack Chicago heavyweight, to a draw over ten rounds recently. Jones knocked out Louis Verger, the famous French heavy, in one round, Jim Stockley in half a round, Barney Lavine twice, in one and four rounds; Kid Leclaire in one round Steve Hawkins in six rounds, and numerous others. He holds decisions over George Rivet, Steve Hawkins, Louis Sherrett, K. O. Couchore and others.

Only twenty-two years old, Jones has been boxing with marked success for four years. He only weighs 16[illegible] pounds but has been boxing them all up to two hundred pounds. He is making his residence in Toronto.

"Darkey" Daniels, who was [illegible] Jones in hand, claims the heavyweight championship of Canada for him, and will let Jones defend the title against anybody who is spoiling for a scrap. Stockley, whom Jones beat, recently defeated Frank Goddard, the famous English heavy, who lost to Beckett for the English title. Under the expert care of Daniels Jones should develop into a first-class heavyweight. He has everything a champion needs, skill, strength, pluck and build.

GASTRIC REBELLION.

Some of the Mistakes In Eating That Incite Poor Digestion.

Indigestion is often attributed to hasty eating and people are reproved, and rightly so, for bolting their food, but it is interesting to observe that, while the bolting of meat is always severely censured, one never hears any blame attached to those who swallow fruit by the mouthful and devour uncooked vegetables without any attempt at mastication. Nevertheless it is the hasty swallower of vegetable fiber who is really the inciter of gastric rebellion. Vegetables are at all times very imperfectly digested by the stomach and require their tough fibers to be thoroughly broken up by the teeth if they are to be dissolved even in the bowel.

There is a well known saying which avers that digestion waits upon appetite, and there is no doubt that of all the adjuvants to digestion a keen desire for food is the most powerful and important. But appetite itself often depends upon conditions which are independent of the body's absolute necessities. Thus the aspect of the food, its smell, taste and even the manner in which it is served all help either to stimulate a desire for it or to induce a sense of aversion, while the environment of the diner often exercises important influence, beneficial or otherwise.

Brain work of any kind interferes with the rapid digestion of food, and even the habit of reading during mealtimes, practiced by so many, is conducive neither to appetite nor digestion. A well lighted room, music and frivolous conversation will often permit a chronic dyspeptic to enjoy without remorse the pleasures of the table, while a depressing atmosphere, uncongenial company and unappetizing dishes may induce a fit of indigestion in the most healthy individual.

CHARM OF THE BIBLE.

Its Poetic Beauty and the Marvel of Its Word Pictures.

Then some of us who cared for literature took up the Bible casually and found its poetic beauty. We read the book of Job—which, by the way, Mr. Swinburne is said to have known by heart—and as we read it even the stars themselves seemed less wonderful than this description of their marvel and mystery:

> Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades or loose the bands of Orion?
> Canst thou bring forth Mazzaroth in his season? Or canst thou guide Arcturus with his sons?

Or we read in the thirty-seventh chapter of the book of Ezekiel of that weird valley that was full of bones—"and as I prophesied there was a noise, and behold a shaking, and the bones came together, bone to bone"—surely one of the most wonderful visions of the imagination in all literature.

Or we read the marvelous denunciatory rhetoric of Jeremiah and Isaiah or the music of the melodious heartstrings of King David. We read the solemn adjuration of the "King Ecclesiast" to remember our Creator in the days of our youth, with its haunting picture of old age, and the loveliness of "The Song of Songs" passed into our lives forever.

To this purely literary love of the Bible there has been added within the last few years a certain renewed regard for it as the profoundest book of the soul, and for some minds not conventionally religious it has regained even some of its old authority as a spiritual guide and stay. And I will confess for myself that sometimes as I fall asleep at night I wonder if even the most picturesque of modern writers has written anything to equal the Twenty-third Psalm.—Richard Le Gallienne in Phoenix.

When the World Is Full.

The mean decennial rate of increase in the population of the world is 8 per cent, and at this rate the 28,000,000 square miles comprising the fertile regions of the earth, which Ravenstein computed can only support 207 persons per square mile, will have their maximum population of 5,994,000,000 persons in the year 2072. This estimate allows fourteen persons per square mile in the 18,000,000 square miles of steppes and deserts.

Crookedest Railroad In the World.

Up California's Tamalpais runs the crookedest railroad in the world. Of the eight miles of track the longest tangent is but 413 feet. In one notable instance the road makes five complete loops and ties two complete bowknots to attain an elevation of ninety feet. The end of the line is about half a mile higher than the starting point, and there is not one particularly steep grade in the entire system.

Some Odd Postage Stamps.

Imagine a postage stamp which though actually used for franking letters, was yet never sold? This is the curious story attached to the original Egyptian Expeditionary Force (commonly called the Palestine) stamp.

As a precaution against speculation, it was not placed on public sale in the usual way, but was affixed by the postal authorities themselves to letters upon which postage had already been paid.

In some war collections, too, may be seen a typewriter stamp, headed "G.R.I. — Long Island," and of the face value of one shilling. This unique production was "issued" by the British Civil Administration of Chustan, Long Island, in the Gulf of Smyrna, during its occupation in 1916.

The most singular feature of the stamp is that it was absolutely superfluous as such, because the correspondence of the British forces did not require prepayment and the natives could not be allowed, in the circumstances to communicate with the outer world.

Many London firms preserve Russian stamps which were designated to serve as currency and then be

ENJOYABLE GARDEN PARTY

Grounds of St. George's Church Scene of Entertaining Event.

A very happy evening was spent at the garden party held on the grounds of St. George's Church last evening. A large crowd was present, among them a number of St. John's congregation, who have always taken an interest in the welfare of their brethren at the south end.

The event was all that could be desired. The grounds were beautifully illuminated with electric lights and booths selling fancy work, toys, ice cream and candies were scattered over the grounds.

Mr. Chas. Coleman, accompanied by Mr. R. J. Devey, of St. John's Church, entertained the crowd with his comic songs, and Mr. Devey rendered a few excellent selections on the piano.

About 10:30 o'clock the party broke up with the singing of the National Anthem, and all returned to their homes well pleased with an exceedingly enjoyable evening.

FARMERS PICNIC

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

CLARK—BEAVIS

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, July twenty-third, at "Riverview Farm," Smith, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beavis, when their only daughter, Maude Evelyn, was united in marriage to Mr. Allan H. Clark of Timmins.

To the strains of Lohengren's bridal chorus, played by Miss Fannie Clark of Pickering, the bride, accompanied by her father, descended the stairs. She was attended by her bridesmaid, Miss Mabel Christie, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed beneath an arch of evergreens and Marguerites. The bride looked charming in a gown of crepe-de-chene with pearl trimmings. She wore a veil and bandeau of orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in pale green organdie with picture hat of leghorn and carried a shief of roses and carnations.

The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. A. J Thomas of Peterborough.

Following the ceremony, Miss Effie Webster of Lakefield sang „O Promise Me," after which a dainty luncheon was served.

The bride travelled in a suit of navy taffeta and panama hat.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Clark left for a short honeymoon, and on their return they will spend a few days at the bride's home, prior to their departure for their new home at Timmins.

Guests were present from Toronto, Pickering, Hastings, Keene, Peterborough and Lakefield.

The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts, testifying to the high esteem in which she was held.

Mr. H. B. Bannan, of Toronto, spent the week-end in Peterborough.

Rev. J. J. O'Brien, Sacred Heart Church, was in Port Hope yesterday attending Father O'Sullivan's annual picnic.

Miss Aileen McAvoy, of Toronto, has returned home after visiting with friends in the city.

Dr. Young was in Lakefield yesterday, giving evidence in behalf of Dr Smith, in the case, Rex v Dr. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Thompson, Master Jack, Mrs. A. H. Stratton and Master Jack Stratton, motored from Wasaga Beach, via Toronto.

Mr. G. H. Thompson, Mrs. Thompson and Master Jack returned to the city after spending a pleasant month at The Capstan Inn, Wasaga Beach.

Mr. H. D. Robertson was in Toronto yesterday.

Mr. Gordon Campbell is in the city today in the interests of his firm the R. C. Matthews Co. Bond Brokers, Toronto.

LOCAL BOATING AND AQUATIC ASSOCIATION NOW FORMED

At a Largely Attended Meeting a Long-Needed Sports Combination Organized and Officers Elected.

At a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting held in Rye's boathouse, Monday evening, the Peterborough Boating and Aquatic Association was organized. This is an outcome of the recent regatta and the large attendance speaks well for future water sports and activities for Peterborough.

Officers Elected

Chairman—A. Wood.
Secretary—H. Kelsey.
Treasurer —H. Rye.
Commodore—D. Loomis.

Committees

For Yachts—F. Brown, B Moore.
For Canoes—Lester, Allen
For Acquatic—E. Lester, Ferguson.

MAY SETTLE STRIKE SOON

The strike situation throughout the province is gradually clearing up. The machinists in Toronto returned to work yesterday, and this leaves only the moulders out, in the Metal Trades Works of that city. It is understood from a local strike leader that the settlement in Toronto will probably lead to a settlement with the moulders hroughout the province, this city included.

PETERBORO LOSES GOOD CITIZEN

Science Master A. D. Hone Resigns His Position at Collegiate Institute.

Those interested in the progress of education in Peterborough will regret to learn that Mr. A. D. Hone, who for five years has ably filled the position of Science Master in the Collegiate Institute, has resigned his post. In the departure of Mr. Hone Peterborough will lose not only a moving factor in educational circles, but an eminent citizen as well. Always conscientiously fulfilling the duties of his position, always eager to promote a better educational standard in Peterborough, this city's loss will be London's gain.

Mr. Hone has accepted a position as head master of day classes in the London Technical School, and his many friends here will wish him success in his future life work.

His successor here will be Mr. Hugh Graham of Picton.

PREMIER HEARST DENIES HE IS IN LEAGUE WITH ROWELL

Cry of New Prohibition Leader Doesn't Reach Deeply Into Hearts of People in General

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Queenston, July 31.—In a fighting speech yesterday Premier Sir William Hearst answered the charges of Leader Hartley Dewart, of Opposition, and denied that he was in league with Rowell in various policies.

Conservative Platform Broad.

Surrounded by hundreds of his fellowers, many of whom wore honors won overseas in the Empire's battles, Premier Sir William Hearst stood in the shade of Brock's monument at Queenston Heights this afternoon and addressed those who attended the annual picnic of Ward Four Liberal-Conservative Association, Toronto, held for the first time since the war. He declared, amid cheers, that the platform of the Conservative party was broad enough for all good citizens of Ontario and criticized the efforts of Mr. Hartley Dewart K.C., as well as those of Mr. Preston, in trying to swing the support of the anti-prohibition forces into line with the Liberal party for supremacy at Queen's Park. He assured the enthusiastic crowd that reports from all over the province indicated that the cry of the new prohibition leader was one which did not reach deeply into the hearts of very many.

COURTS-MARTIAL CONVICT 7

American Naval Officers Are Found Guilty of Promoting Frauds.

Washington, D. C., July 31.—Four officers and three petty officers of the navy have been convicted by courts-martial on charges in connection with the enrollment, promotion and assignment to duty of reservists in the third naval district at New York, the Navy Department announced today. Besides Lt. Benjamin S. Davis, whose conviction had previously been announced, the men are Ensigns Paul Beck, Oscar F. Berger and Robt. H. Spahn, all naval reservists, and Chief Boatswain Lloyd C. Casey, Chief Boatswain's Mate Frederick L. Jones and Chief Yeoman Henry S. Jacobs.

ONE COMPANY OWN ALL U.S. RAILWAYS

SCHEME OUTLINED BEFORE THE HOUSE COMMITTEE OF INTERSTATE AND FOREIGN COMMERCE.

Washington, July 30.—Establishment of one corporation to own all the railroads in the United States was urged by Nathan Amster ,of Boston, today before the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Mr. Amster recommended a board of governors for the railroad corporation appointed by the President, one to represent the Interstate Commerce Commission, one the State commission, two the railroad employes, three the security owners, one the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and on the National Board of Farm Organizations.

The plan as outlined by Mr. Amster would not interfere with the Interstate Commerce Commission which woul dcontinue to control rates as at present. He said congress should make it mandatory upon the commission to establish rates which would pay six per cent. on the stock of the consolidated companies, the stock being issued on a basis of an actual valuation.

So far as operation is concerned Mr. Amster proposed a division of the roads into regional systems. He said that a scheme should be worked out under which industries best able to pay should pay more for railroad services than those in less prosperous condition. He said if crops in a particular section were not good preferential rates should be given.

"In theory this would be a private corporation," said Mr. Amster. "In practice the people would run the roads."

Mr. Amster suggested that the government loan the railroad corporation a fund of $500,000,000 for use while working out the plan, the money to be returned eventually.

Among features of his plan were provisions for a valuation and adjustment commission, a trust and finance corporation and a labor and adjustment commission.

The Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners decided that express companies must deliver and collect without charge within the Toronto city limits.

AUSTRIAN GOVERNMENT TO RESIGN-OPPOSE PEACE TERMS

Affairs Are in Sadly Unsettled State---Financial Provisions of Treaty Threaten Country With Bankruptcy---Expressed Dissatisfaction of Foreign Minister's Negotiations With Allied Powers For Clemency.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vienna, July 31.—The Austrian government headed by Dr. Karl Renner has decided to resign. It is thought that opposition to the Allies' Peace Terms for Austria has caused this move.

Affairs Unsettled

Austrian Governmental affairs have recently been in a rather unsettled state. The peace terms presentedby the Allied and Associated Powers, to the Austrians, at St. Germain-En-Laya have been stoutly protested against in official cirlces in Vienna, the financial provisions being considered as particularly onerous and preditions being made that Austria was likely to be driven into bankruptcy.

Last week, Dr. Otto Bauer, Foreign Minister, resigned his post, largely, it was said because of dissatisfaction at his failure to obtain important advantages for Austria, in negotiations leading up to the formulation of the peace treaty. Chancellor Renner, however, filled the gap caused by Dr. Bauer's resignation, by taking over the duties of the foreign office.

JAPANESE SOLDIERS AND OFFICER TORTURED TO DEATH BY CHINKS

Incident in Manchuria Likely to Lead to Grave Consequences—Japs Demand Satisfaction.

(Canadian Press Despatch).

Tokio, July 31.—A second official statement on the incident at Kwang-Chang-Tau places the Japanese losses at sixteen officers and men killed and eighteen wounded.

Grave Consequences.

No previous report of the incident referred to has been received. The place mentioned presumably is Kwang-Chang-Tau, about 100 miles west of Kirin, in Manchuria.

The communique alleges that four Japanese, including an officer, were tortured before death. It was understood that the foreign office has instructed the Japanese minister at Pekin to investigate the occurrence and take steps to obtain satisfaction.

IS MAT. ERZBERGER LIAR AND TRAITOR?

DR. HELFFERICH CHARGES HE STAKED PARLIAMENTARY REVOLUTION.

Berlin July 30.—(By The Associated Press). Dr. Karl Helfferich, the former Vice-Chancellor, announced yesterday that, having failed to induce Mathias Erzberger to sue him, he will enter suit against Erzberger "to prove him a liar and traitor, and to bring the truth to light."

A Berlin despatch under date of July 2, reported that Dr. Helfferich, writing in the Kreuz Zeitung, blamed the Reichstag's peace programme of July, 1917, fathered by Erzberger, for the moral collapse of the German people. Dr. Helfferich declared that Erzberger had staked a Parliamentary revolution without informing the Government, and added that Erzberger's action was undertaken at the instigation of Count Czernin, then Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister.

NAVAL FORCE FOR RUSSIA

To Cover Evacuation of Archangel—Regular Troops Also Ready.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 31.—The British Government is arranging to send a naval force to Russia to cover the evacuation of Archangel district by troops there, it was announced here today.

A contingent of regular army troops is also being held in readiness to assist in the evacuation, if necessary.

BIGGER THAN HUNS BIGGEST BERTHA

The Hun 75-mile gun with which Paris was harassed is doubtless still regarded by many as evidence of the much-advertised German mechanical ingenuity.

Ordnance experts have long been aware of the possibility of such a gun. But they have also been aware of its impracticability owing to a lack of means of controlling its fire effectively in such dastardly work as shelling a great city regardless of whom or what was hit.

As an object lesson our ordnance department has designed, without actual building, a supergun which dwarfs the German machine into insignificance. The data, recently made public through the Scientific American, fairly bewitches the lay mind.

The barrel of the gun is 325 feet long and weighs 325 tons. The pressure developed is 45,000 pounds to the square inch. The projectile has a muzzle velocity of 8,500 foot-seconds, and develops the terrific energy of 300,000 foot tons. Its range is 121 miles, approximately the distance between Chicago and Madison, Wis. It's time of flight is four minutes, and it soars heavenward to a height of 46 miles.

This is awesome, but the cold-blooded expert points out that, after all, the gun delivers only a 400-pound shell, containing sixty pounds of high explosive, and that such a gun would cost $2,500,000. A bombing plane costing $30,000 would drop a 1,600 pound bomb with greater accuracy of aim.

The German supergun demonstrates the savagery of the Hun, the Berseker madness that strikes regardless of whom it strikes. But it also demonstrates an intellectual weakness—the love of mechanism for mechanism's sake. A complicated or difficult piece of machinery captivates his admiration because it is complicated or difficult, regardless of its practicability.

With American genius, simplicity is the desideratum. The mechanism, for instance of the Browning automatics, whether pistol, rifle or machine gun, is astonishingly simple and practically demountable by the fingers alone. One looks at it and wonders why it wasn't invented half a century since. And right there one pays genius a high tribute.

A seven-year-old boy, Guy di Ladurantyne, was killed in his father's yard at Montreal by being stepped on by a horse.

Prince To Sail On Renown, Aug. 5

London, July 31.—The Admiralty has issued the program for His Majesty's ships Renown, Dauntless and Dragon for the visit of the Prince of Wales to Newfoundland and Canada. The Prince will embark on the Renown at Portsmouth August 5th, and transfer at sea to the Dragon on arrival in Canadian waters. He will re-embark in the Renown off Charlottetown on August 19th, finally disembarking at Quebec, after arrival there on August 21st. On his journey to Canada the Prince of Wales will occupy the apartments on the Renown usually allotted to the Admiral. The re-fitting of the vessel, by his expressed wish, is not to be on the usual lavish scale associated with state voyages. The ship will, in fact, be little altered.

BRITAIN TO DECIDE FATE OF EX-KAISER

HE IS COVERED WITH SHAME AND IGNOMINY AND BRANDED AS A COWARD, SAYS GEN. WEYGAND.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 31.—Marshal Foch, submitting to photographers at his hotel in London yesterday, said to a reporter of the Mirror: "For me, the terrors of peace are worse than those of war. I hate all this position."

Major-General Maxime Weygand, who is accompanying Marshal Foch, said it was for Great Britain to decide what should be done with the former German emperor. "He is covered with shame and ignominy and branded as a coward," the general declared. "The French people think that that is enough punishment."

HON. W. S. FIELDING FAVORITE FOR THE LIBERAL LEADERSHIP

Preparations For Great Convention at Ottawa Next Week --- Three Daily Sessions.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, July 31.—Plans and programme for the national Liberal Convention meeting here next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday were discussed and partially arranged by the Advisory Committee this morning.

Liberal Leadership

There will be three sessions daily, and it is probable that the vote which will settle the question of Liberal Leadership will be taken on the afternoon of Wednesday. The accredited delegates will include between two hundred and three hundred women, it was learned this morning, most of them from western provinces.

Those Present Today

Premier Oliver, of British Columbia; Premier Murray, of Nova Scotia; and several Provincial Cabinet Ministers were among those who attended the Advisory Committee Meeting this morning.

Prominent among the delegates was Hon George P. Graham, former Laurier Lieut. and one-time Liberal Leader in Ontario. Hon. W. S. Fielding still remains favorite in the race for leadership. Premier-elect Bell, of P.E.I., promises to be quite a figure, owing to his recent success in redeeming that province for the Liberals.

Parliament Meets Early In September

Ottawa, July 31.—Parliament will be called, in all probability, early in September.

Thursday, September 4, is suggested as a tentative date, although nothing has as yet been officially determined. As pointed out some days ago, earlier calling of session than was at first contemplated will be necessary owing to the lapse of the War Measures Act (and the Orders in Council passed under it) on the proclamation of peace.

It is further regarded as of great importance that there should be no delay in ratification of the peace treaty by the Dominion Parliament.

LOCK-OUT AT BREST

All French Ports Closed Owing to Demands of Dockers' Union.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Brest, July 31. All work in this and other French port has ceased, the employers having declared a lockout because of the demand of the dockers' union.

GERMANS STUCK OUT TONGUES AND SHOUTED "HOCH" TO CROWD

This is Established at Court of Inquiry Into Demonstration Against Hun Peace Delegates at Versailles---Judge Advocate Rules That Germans Themselves Courted Ill-Feeling of Spectators.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, July 31. The Judge Advocate attached to the second permanent court martial, who investigated the incident connected with the departure of the Germans from Versailles, finds that there is no case.

It has been established that the Germans aroused the protests of the crowd by sticking out their tongues at spectators, and shouting "Hoch," and charges that stones were thrown, rest upon the unsupported testimony of Dr. Theodore Melchoir, one of the financial delegates to the peace conference, and Fraugretta Derlbush, one of the secretaries to the delegation.

Incident Had Several Phases

A dispatch from Paris on June 17 said that Dr. Melchoir and Frau Derlbush, had been struck on the head by stones in the course of a demonstration against German delegates of their departure from Versailles the night previous.

The demonstration had several phases, but was mostly confined to jeering the Germans. Premier Clemenceau later sent a leter to the head of the German delegation, apologizing for the demonstration and the police officials charged with protecting the Germans were dismissed from office.

BODY OF WEALTHY WIDOW IS FOUND IN HER APARTMENT

Police Say 'Heavy Bruises Point to Murder Theory---Son in American Army in Germany

Chicago, July 30.—What may prove to be another murder mystery confronted the police today when the body of Mrs. Eugenie Brickwood, a wealthy widow, was discovered in a badly decomposed condition in her apartment at 4212 Greenwood avenue. Bruises on the body led the Hyde Park police to believe she may have been murdered.

However, Dr. William Simmonds, Coroner's physician, stated after a superficial examination that death might have come from natural causes. An autopsy will be performed later in an effort to substantiate the theory of the police. Indications were that the woman had been dead about five days.

Friend Finds Body.

The body was discovered by Solomon J. Van Buren, a cigar dealer, 328 East 43rd street, who reported the death to the police. Van Buren, who said he was a friend of Mrs. Brickwood, was questioned at length by Sergt. Edward Byrnes of the Hyde Park station.

He said he had received an anonymous telephone message from a man that a peculiar odor was coming from Mrs. Brickwood's apartment, and that upon investigating he found her body lying across a bed. After making this explanation Can Buren was permitted to go by the police.

Son in Army in Germany.

According to the police, Mrs. Brickwood, who was 50 years old, was worth approximately $100,000. She is said to have several wealthy relatives in Carlisle, Ark., who will be notified of her death. She is also said to be survived by a son, who is with the army of occupation in Germany.

Dr. Simonds, in explaining his belief in the possibility of natural death, said his superficial examination did not reveal injuries sufficient to have caused death. The police, however, clung to their statement that heavy bruises were found on the body.

MICHIGAN AFTER BIG PACKERS

Food Operations To Be Investigated Under Antitrust Law.

Detroit, Mich., July 31.—Operations of the big packing companies and other concerns dealing in foodstuffs are to be investigated by Attorney-General Groesbeck, to determine whether prices are controlled in violation of Michigan's antitrust law. M.r Goesbeck stated that if investigation showed any combines violating the state laws, an effort will be made to bar them from doing business in the state.

Marshal Foch was given the freedom of the City of London and a sword of honor.

SECRET SESSION THIS MORNING

Grand Orange Lodge Still Discussing Insurance Project.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, July 31.—This morning's session of the Sovereign Grand Orange Lodge of British America was occupied entirely by the discussions of recommendations of the committee on the constitution and bylaws of an insurance branch. Sessions of the Grand Lodge are secret.

SIX THOUSAND TROOPS ARE ON DUTY IN RIOTING CHICAGO

Death Toll Remains at Thirty---Several Hundred Injured --- Patrols Are Doing Good Work.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, Ills., July 31.—Six thousand troops are on duty with rifles and bayonets in the most densely populated negro quarters of Chicago, and a light fall of rain had not stopped the fighting between whites and blacks long after midnight. Isolated groups shot, stabbed and looted in places which the military had been unable to reach.

Thirty Killed.

The death list remains at thirty, none being reported killed last night. Several hundred have been injured during the four nights of rioting, and a dozen of these may die.

Adjutant General Dickson, on returning from the placing of troops, reported that snipers had fired on a company of soldiers on the way to Englewood. None were injured. The general reported that after the men had taken their stations quiet had prevailed in the patrolled areas.

Comparatively Calm.

Chicago was comparatively calm today for the first time since Sunday, and the public officials expressed their belief that the use of five regiments of state troops had effectually quelled the race riots, which resulted in thirty deaths and injury to more than a thousand persons.

Funerals of Victims.

Funerals were held today for twenty victims of race riots.

Coronor Peter Eoffman continued the taking of testimony at the inquest over the bodies of the victims, a number of witnesses being examined.

A STATE OF PEACE WHEN FRANCE RATIFIES TREATY

This is the Decision of French Cabinet Will Not Work for Completion of Other Treaties.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, July 31.The French Cabinet approved today of a proposal that peace should be considered to exist officially from the date of publication in the official journal of the ratifications of the German treaty by the Chamber of Deputies, when completed. It was decided that ratification of the Germany treaty should be considered to mark a state of peace without awaiting the completion of treaties with other powers still at war with France.

JINGOISM AND MEXICO.

NOBODY DENIES that American lives should be protected in Mexico, or anywhere else for that matter, says the New York Commercial. There can be no question of the fact that American interests, as well as all others, should receive just consideration from the Mexican authorities. At the same time care should be taken not to allow our militant feelings to run away with us and to see in every episode a casus belli, nor should we be too ready to accept every evil report coming out of Mexico and to reject every favorable one. Any one who will examine calmly and carefully the reports now coming in will find among them evidences of an insidious propaganda to injure Mexico. Only recently an advertisement appeared on behalf of the Mexican government in which a willingness was announced to place all the statistical and economical information available in the hands of any who might be interested. Almost immediately there appeared in a certain groups of newspapers an article distorting this statement into a nattempt to circumvent the effors of our own State Deparment in its handling of claims against Mexico.

As Americans, we are lovers of fair play, and our sympathy is usually with the under dog. We also know by experience what harm a carefully directed propaganda can work, and in all the hostile criticisms of Mexico now finding expression it would be just as well to examine carefully to see whether or not they bear the earmark of inspired propaganda or whether they can unquestionably be accepted as referring to actual occurrences. Mexico's representatives allege that Carranza is simply trying to enforce the laws of his country against all alike and that large interests which have hitherto taken immense profits out of the country and have left nothing to Mexico, not even in the way of taxes, resent any attempt to disturb such a convenient arrangement and would not be averse to seeing a more complacent government in power.

ALL GOES FOR TAXES.

AN INCOME OF $200,000 a year is supposed to insure one from fear of the wolf at the door. But not if one lives in England and owns property in the United States. Here is what happens in the case of Lady Ethel Beatty, wife of Admiral Sir David Beatty of the British Navy, and daughter of the late Marshall Field of Chicago:

The British Government takes 50 per cent. of her income on the ground that she is a British subject, being married to a Briton. And the United States Government takes 60 per cent. because her property is in America.

Her income is known to be between $200,000 and $280,000 a year, because it is only on income of that amount that 60 per cent. is levied.

Say, then, that Lady Beatty draws $200,000 a year from her property. The British Government takes $100,000, the American Government takes $120,000, and her income is $20,000 less than nothing at all. If her income amounts to $280,000, the British Government takes $140,000, the American Government $168,000, and Lady Beatty pays $28,000 more than she gets.

"Every American living in England faces the same conditions," said Arthur Huertly of the Northern Trust Company, Chicago, which handles Lady Beatty's finances. "There is no way under the laws of either England or America by which she can escape the penalty.

"We have treaties with most countries whereby if one pays part of the tax in one country it cannot be duplicated in the other; but with England, Japan, Australia and New Zealand there is no such treaty, and the full tax is collected in both countries."

TAFT AS A PEACEMAKER.

PROBABLY the most difficult role any one can assume is that of peacemaker between two contending factions. Ex-President Taft has tried this in regard to the treaty and does not seem to have succeeded in pleasing anybody. There is nothing very unusual about this, because it is the customary fate of peacemakers. The former president probably realized all this and was willing to take whatever criticism might be showered upon him, relying on the hope that after he had been thoroughly scolded by everybody in general, his ideas would begin to find lodgment and gradually point the way out of existing difficulties. Mr. Taft would no doubt like to see the treaty ratified in its present form and given a fair trial, but, despairing of that, he has sought to make such modifications as would have the least disturbing effect upon the whole structure.

Oscar S. Strauss, in an address made at the conference of the Council of Foreign Relations, regarded Mr Taft's efforts as having weakened the cause, although he declared that no man had done more to educate the public mind. The League of Nations, Mr. Strauss declared to be the greatest plan the world has ever seen; and he made much of the fact that its opponents have offered no substitute. He admitted that it was not a perfect plan, but it is the first time that the leading nations of the world have banded together to settle differences by law instead of by war. The fact that thirty-two nations have been able to agree on anything was in his opinion the greatest political achievement in the history of man.

SOLDIER LAND SETTLEMENT.

(Ottawa Citizen.)

THE SOLDIER Land Settlement policy of the Government has met with considerable approval throughout the Dominion, especially from the Great War Veterans. The Soldier Settlement Board offices throughout the Dominion have been rushed with applications for land loans, but the machinery would seem to be working smoothly and the board has been able to deal with the men without undue delay in getting them settled on the land. Difficulties have had to be overcome in evolving a smooth, workable policy, but inquiry would seem to show that the present Act will satisfy the demands of the ex-service men who desire to go on the land. The important purpose of developing the agricultural resources of the country is being served, and it should tend to add largely to the output of farm products.

Several features of the Soldier Land Settlement policy stand out strongly. This policy aims to provide the returned soldier who desires to make a living out of the land with the first-class opportunity of immediately possessing a farm of his own on terms of payment easy to bear and at the same time to add to the material wealth of the country. The returned soldier who previous to enlistment had lived on a farm either as a farmer's son or as a hired man has the opportunity presented of asking the Soldier Settlement Board for sufficient capital to buy a farm of his own. He may select the farm on which he desires to live, and if it can be purchased at a reasonable figure the board, after inquiring and making sure of the applicant's ability to farm successfully and discharge the loan, may provide him with the financial means to begin operations. Money up to $7500 will be loaned for the purchase of land, live stock and equipment and for the erection of permanent improvements about the farm. These loans, except for the livestock, run for twenty-five years with interest at 5 per cent amortized, which means that the soldier settler does not pay any more in the first year than in the last.

The Government goes further and provides for the training of desirable men who wish to farm but lack experience. These men will be given a course of training and during that time will be paid allowances for subsistence for themselves and families.

It is recognized, of course, that all returned men out of work cannot be farmers. But by making it possible for some men to employ themselves on the land, there are more opportunities for others in the cities; and whathever changes may come in city industries, agriculture is permanent.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

THE MAN WHO aspires to lead an independent party as a candidate for the Legislature in West Peterborough has one comfort. There is no deposit required, so that to that extent at least he is safe.

• • • • •

THE LABOR DEPARTMENT now says that it takes over $1500 a year to support a family of five. That should help some, but the trouble is that so many families greater in number have to live on less.

• • • • •

THE PROPOSED independent party for the provincial elections in West Peterborough was originated during the holiday season when the human mind earnestly and wisely attempts to pass up all serious problems.

A MONSTROUS MEASURE.

(New York World.)

The prohibition enforcement bill which passed the House. . . . 287 to 101 is a monstrosity of fanaticism and fundamental lawlessness. This measure authorizes searches and seizures in plain defence of the Fourth Article of the American Bill of Rights and in contempt of those traditions and provisions of Anglo-Saxon law which respect a man's house as his castle.

ENTERTAINING A PRINCE.

(New York Globe.)

The visit of the Prince of Wales will provoke the usual scattering protest from a few fiery souls who are resolved never, never, never to bend the knee to royalty. It will also draw forth the latent snobbishness of certain other poetic persons who now believe that America's greatest deficiency is the absence of a king and hereditary nobility. But most of us will take the young man's visit as it is intended—as a message of good will from the English government and people. The announcement that he will not be the guest of any private individual during his visit assures that both his dignity and ours will be preserved. It is as much as to say that he comes to visit the American government and people, not to lend glamor to any particular social caste.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

(Buffalo News.)

These things have been proved for the law: It adds 10 per cent. to the efficiency of workmen and the output of factories; it saves at least 1,500,000 tons of coal a year and curtails the cost of artificial power and light to an extent approximating $60,000,000 a year; that it conserves and improves the health not only of mechanical workers, but of office forces in all lines of business; that it stimulates an increased production of foodstuffs in home gardens; that it encourages a healthy interest in all forms of outdoor diversions. These facts we have from the high tension days of the war. And if the law was considered a good thing as a war measure, why not a good thing in normal times?

THE VALUE OF EDUCATION

The New York Commercial editorially says:

The examination of Henry Ford during the past several days in the course of his libel suit against the Chicago Tribune opens up some very interesting thought on the value of education. Mr. Ford, according to his own admissions, is not a man of high education; in fact, judged by what is often termed "book learning," he is rather poorly educated—almost not at all. And yet he is one of the country's most successful business men and through his own efforts has become fabulously rich—richer, indeed, than he cares to be. He is a mechanic who has achieved wealth, but in very many respects with no broader outlook than many other mechanics still working for their daily wage.

Why, then, should Fate have singled out this particular mechanic upon whom to shower fortune? How many other mechanics are there—right in his own factory, for that matter—who are equally as skilful, probably more so—men who have acquired considerable education from books as well as from the machine shop, who are still working for and glad to get the wages he chooses to pay them? The answer is because Henry Ford had that which cannot be learned from books. He had genius—ideas! And with genius he had tenacity of purpose—courage. Moreover, he had a knowledge of his own limitations, which is something that goes with genius and therefore the instinct and capacity for choosing helpers who could supply his deficiencies.

Among Henry Ford's ideas was one that he owed a duty to what we are sometimes pleased to call the common people. The car that he turned out was designed for them and was the best that could be made for a minimum price. His attitude toward his employes has been based on the same thought, and even his mis-directed peace efforts had behind them the motive of humanitarianism.

But what would education have done for a man like Henry Ford? The learning of the colleges could not have supplied his genius, else would every college graduate be a multimillionaire. His conception of his duty toward his fellow men has been a natural and unfettered growth. Might not education have stunted it or turned his impulses into different channels? He has expressed a certain contempt for history, yet with such knowledge as President Wilson possesses, for instance, would he have been inveigled into such a grotesque venture as financing the peace ship?

Education could not supply the quality of manhood which he possesses, for there are any number with more education and less manhood. It could not supply any of the qualities to which he owes his present position in the community. Yet without education in others his factories could not have been built; his accounts could not be kept; his financing could not be done; his goods could not be shipped, and even his humanitarian principles could not have been put into operation.

As to Henry Ford, education could not have made him richer, for by his own efforts he was able to reach the point where he could buy all the ready-made education he needed. As to his value to the community, education might have taught him selfishness, or it might have turned his efforts in a different direction; but would the sum total have been greater?

Two observations, then, are to be derived from the experience of this remarkable man. One is that the qualities that make for greatness are inherent and cannot be drawn from books; the other is that in no other country could his genius have found such free play.

But education might have made his way easier; it might have opened up enjoyments to him of which he knows nothing; it might have enlarged the possibilities for his beneficences, and surely it would have saved him from the unfortunate notoriety into which he has been led.

SUNSHINE AND SHADOW

He came into our country a few years ago. He was poor but young and strong and thrifty. He worked hard and saved. He worked as a farm hand. Then he rented land and put in a wheat crop. The crop turned out well, the price was good. He bought land, raised another crop, sold it well, bought another farm. Several years he did this and came to be ranked as among the successful and wealthy land owners.

He came to town one day and there was a cloud on his face. He said there was too much rain now; said his wheat was poor and getting worse; said he could not make a living in this blamed country; said he was going to sell his land at what he could get and go where he could make a decent living. He grumbled at the weather grumbled about the land overhearing the plaints, and not knowing the complainer had within a few years come out of dire poverty into actual wealth, went away with the conviction that the country was no good, and even those who had found homes and acquired lands wondered if, after all, there was not some better place.

Another came into our country some thirty years ago. He was as poor as was possible. He was worse than poor, for he was in poor health, had a crippled hand, had survived a war and bore its marks. He came to get a home and health. He took up land, lived in a tent, built a dugout for better shelter. There he lived and worked as best he could. He raised a family and fed them somehow. He lost crops by rains and other by drought. But he stayed on and smiled and laughed out loud, set his teeth and went at it again. And the wildness got out of the soil and crops grew for him as the years passed. And there was not a day that he did not have a good word for the country which had been kind to him.

He came to town one day and folks asked about the weather and the wheat. And he replied that the wheat was all right out his way; short, but well stooled out, heads filling, plenty of rain, too much, some said but he thought not; said some years ago it was just this way and he got twenty-five bushels an acre; said it was the best country on earth; that here he had found health good neighbors and a competence; said he had no patience with people who were always talking the country down; that he often told them if they did not like it here the way out was an open road. And he laughed in a cheery way as he told how good it was to have a home and so many friends to greet him when he came to town. And he declared that this section just beat the world raising crops. A stranger in the land asked him what farms sold for out his way, and he gave the man a respectful answer, but warned him to buy before the land went higher. He said he must be starting for home and as he drove out there was a streak of sunshine about a mile wide along the highway he traveled.

STREET PAVING

Whether it is wise or otherwise for our Council to extend the pavement on our streets at the present juncture, when our finances are at a low ebb and our taxes are soaring every year it is imperative upon them to see that the extensions are made in the central and congested districts of the City where the traffic is greatest, and where the improvements will be seen by tourists and other visitors so as to create a favorable impression.

The proposal to have the work done on Weller and Gilmour streets present system of pavements, and which run east from the Monaghan road, outside of the city, where they have their terminus and where there is no traffic except by the residents along these streets is premature.

Why not start on Simcoe and Brock streets and complete the two short spaces between Aylmer and Rubidge as was done with Hunter street, which lies between and parallel with them, and is of equal necessity?

Indeed all the disconnected patches on our cross street running west from Water street should be completed. Water street itself also requires consideration from its continuity to and being parallel with the main street, and upon whihe faces our Court House with its lovely park. If Water street was completed to Smith street from where the pavement is already continued northward, it would divert much of the traffic from George street, where there are so many collisions with the street cars and automobiles.

Aylmer street, south of Charlotte street, also demands attention, and like Water street, running parallel with George street it would offer an alternative for part of the traffic on George street and thus avoiding many accidents with street cars and automobiles, as also would be the case if the pavement on Water street was completed. And Aylmer street is a street very much travelled and always has been one of the dustiest streets in town. It would also divert part of the traffic to and from the C. P. R. depot and be a convenience for people living in the western part of the city.

In the meantime it would be inopportune and a premature expense to the people to pave Weller and Gilmour streets, which start in one of the suburbs and run nowhere outside of it.

Yours truly,

Music in the Home

MUSIC AN IMPORTANT ELEMENT IN THE CARE OF THE INSANE

Particularly Effective in Counteracting Melancholy.—First Applied in France

At a recent banquet, the speaker of the evening was Dr. Walter E. Ryan, superintendent of the Hudson River State Hospital, who gave a particularly interesting address which dealt with the soothing effect of music on the insane and weak minded and told how music and musical instruments were being applied in the asylums of the country. "To the asylums of France is due the credit of having first introduced music as a regular feature in the course of treatment," said Dr. Ryan. At the hospital for the insane near Rouen an attempt was made, early in its history, to organize a band of music and a chorus and so successful did it prove that the example was followed by numerous other institutions, not only in France but elsewhere on the continent.

"Later interesting experiments were conducted in one of the New York City Hospitals for the insane 27 years ago, and the claim was made that several of the patients were greatly benefitted. It does not appear, however, that this was anything more than a spasmodic attempt to introduce music into the institution as a systematic part of the moral treatment.

Hospitals Equipped with Musical Instruments

"At the present time we have in our State hospitals in each ward the music of pianos and phonographs, and practically every hospital is equipped with either a band or orchestra or both. On evenings of entertainment, and especially when the regular dance is given, these musicians do much to enliven the audience, dancers and non-dancers alike. Again at times concerts are given in the different wards, especially in those in which cases of acute depression or melancholia are received and cared for. In these cases music gives promise of having a distinct value.

"Our own experience has been most gratifying in exciting the interest and allaying the irritation of patients. They are evidently influenced for good in the majority of cases, and take an intelligent interest in the concerts provided for them, both in the ward and in the assembly hall. Patients on the other wards request the privilege of going to the one in which the orchestra is playing, and many express gratitude for the relief which the music affords them.

Some Miraculous Cures

"A great authority on melancholy, quaint old Robert Burton, firmly believed in the art, and declared it unnecessary to waste time over 'declamatory speeches in praise of divine music,' for it was well known that besides the excellent power it hath to expel many other diseases, it is a sovereign remedy against despair and melancholy, and will drive away the devil himself.'

"'Next to theology,' said Luther, 'I give the highest place to music, for thereby anger is forgotten, the devil, [illegible] melancholy and many tribulations and evil thoughts are driven away.'

"Richard Browne tells us that he was daily enlisting the services of music in his medical ministrations. In his experience it was of the greatest use in dealing with the mentally afflicted. He was in the habit of calling in its aid for the treatment of melancholia, mania and hypochondriasis, though he did not despise it when curing the gouty. To conjure away 'melancholic shadows' and the deepest seated vapors he had resorted to the flute and the spinet. 'Music,' he declares, 'hath so transcendant a power over us as to raise or depress the passions of the mind, rouse or calm the motion of the spirits, accordingly as the sounds, differentially modulated, differently touch the auditory nerves.'

"In briefly summarizing the results of experience, I would say that we have in music an element of moral treatment in the care of the insane that we cannot afford to neglect. It is within reach of all hospitals for the insane to provide systematic musical entertainments, and I am glad to say that those institutions which care for the insane in this state are progressive along this line."

SEVERAL REASONS WHY PEOPLE STUDY MUSIC. AVOID ONE OF THEM

Any young man or woman who is studying the piano, the violin or singing merely in order to increase his value in social life, to strike something of a figure in suburban drawing rooms, or to minister to his or her own vanity is simply wasting time.

And why? All art is an interpretation of life in terms of sound, color, movement, paint. It brings us nearer to life, it makes life more intense, more vivid; it reveals life. Viewed from any other standpoint art is ridiculous. It becomes a [illegible] ... an [illegible]; it becomes an [illegible].

Some people study music in order to earn a living; that is good, so far as it goes. Others study music in order to use it as a lever by means of which they may raise themselves above others; that is bad. A few study music, the technique of music, in order that by means of that technique they may feed their souls and quicken their emotions by reading and understanding the works of the great masters; and that, of course, is the best reason of all.

For one of the chief aims of life is surely the accumulation of knowledge and experience.

In the works of Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Schumann, Chopin, Wagner and the rest is stored and preserved a vast body of human emotion, aspiration and endeavor, and in studying the music we may capture many a secret of the human heart, and taste mental and spiritual experience, that in all likelihood would not be our lot in the ordinary course of events.

INTRODUCED TO MUSIC LATE IN LIFE

A gentleman recently dropped in to spend an evening with a friend, a building contractor, who is a self made man. He started as a laborer, became a bricklayer, finally rose to foreman and then opened up his own business. He is the last man in the world any one would suspect of sentiment or anything approaching it. His hands are gnarled, rough and red. If he tried to strike a note on the piano, he would hardly be able to press a key. His manner is gruff, and oftentimes, in conversation unconsciously he tightens his hand just as he did many years ago when he held a pick. His vocabulary probably consist of 300 words at the very outside. This man was talking about Chaminade's "Scarf Dance." His eyes brightened and glistened.

This man had been introduced to music by the piano. A player piano had been brought into the home by his daughter. She had learned to play by hand. He one evening for the want of something else to do, sat down and pedalled out a roll. This was his introduction to music. He says that nothing delights him so much now as to sit down at the player piano alone in the evening when he comes home from his office. This man is well acquainted with the great works. The familiarity, however, that he has with music is of little consequence. But the wonders that have been wrought in the man's soul are beyond measure, beyond measure for the value to himself as a man and to his friends and employes, because that same instinct which has been roused in him manifests itself in all relations, business, social and family.

MUSIC AS ACADEMIC SUBJECT

It is well known to those who follow educational matters that music as a study is slowly but certainly taking its place with regular academic subjects in the curriculum of high schools and colleges. This tendency has brought with it certain problems which are now engaging the attention of educators and the solution of which will create something resembling a standardized system by which music may be properly rated as an academic subject.

The problems suggested include the granting of credits for study done privately by the applicant for college admission or accredited by the high school or preparatory institution attended by the student. Then comes also the question as to the qualifications of the private teacher under whom the study of music is pursued. Manifestly, if there were some way of determining whether or not the private music teacher were proficient in every way, the whole matter of granting credits would be simplified.

WHAT ARTISTS MUST LEARN

The artist must learn to take stock of the peculiar qualities which make his art a thing apart, and to reject for public use whatever is foreign to his temper and ability. In other words, he must first find himself before he finds his programs, and then not be afraid to express his inner most thoughts and emotions. It is in the studio that limitations should be discovered and conquered, so that an artist will not attempt to present in public a song or group of songs foreign to his nature or beyond his ability just because they are beautiful.

THE HIGH SCHOOL AGE

It has been found in recent years that the high school age is a very good time for studying harmony, ear training, etc., and the last two years of the high school course are likewise suitable for beginning music history and some of the other more mature phases of music study. There is no doubt either but that serious and carefully directed work in piano, violin, cornet, voice, etc. involves as good training as the same amount of time spent in studying algebra, latin, etc., and is certainly of far greater intrinsic value, especially to the prospective musician. These things are only just being recognized and high school music is consequently in the midst of a tremendous upheaval at the present time. The old-fashioned idea of setting aside a period once or twice a week for recreation, peanut eating and incidental chorus practice is being rapidly supplanted by the notion that the high school student can and ought to do serious and definite work in music. The value of such work will doubtless soon be evident in the increased happiness of our people, in the greater appreciation and intelligence manifested by our concert and opera audiences, and in the vastly improved musicianship of the music students who go to conservatories or private teachers for further instruction after completing the high school course in music.

THE DARK HORSE.

How the Name Was Applied to a Political Possibility.

A novel written by Disraeli, earl of Beaconsfield, entitled "The Young Duke" and published in 1831, contained a description of a horse race in which the following sentence occurred: "A dark horse which had never been thought of and which the careless St. James had never even observed in the list rushed past the grand stand in sweeping triumph."

This was only a horse race, but it gave prominence to the fact that the race was won by a dark horse which had not attracted any notice until he came in a winner.

This may have been the origin of the phrase "a dark horse," which, as used in American politics, means a person not prominently considered as a candidate when a convention meets or during its earlier ballots, but who suddenly develops unexpected strength and wins.

A notable case in point was that of James A. Garfield in the Republican national convention of 1880. On the first ballot for president he did not receive a single vote, but he received ten votes on the second ballot, one vote on the twentieth ballot, fifty votes on the thirty-fifth ballot and was nominated by 399 on the thirty-sixth ballot.

Foot of the Fly.

You have seen a boy use what he calls a "sucker," a round, flat piece of leather, which is soaked in water and flattened against a stone so that all the moisture between the stone and the leather is pressed out. He picks up a brick with a string attached to the leather. Since there is no air between the leather and the stone the atmosphere presses the leather so firmly against the stone that the stone can be picked up by the leather.

A fly has suckers on his feet, the Popular Science Monthly explains, which act very much on the same principle. As soon as he puts down a foot he automatically squeezes the air out between it and the surface upon which he is walking. The atmosphere therefore presses him against the ceiling or wall.

Knocked Down.

Some years ago in a certain county court, which was not one of the best fitted up places, three auctioneers were seated in a pewlike contrivance awaiting the judge's order to give evidence.

All at once there was a terrible noise in court, and a dense cloud of dust flew up.

"What's that?" asked the judge.

"Oh, it's nothing, your honor," replied a ready and facetious lawyer. "It's only three auctioneers gone off in one lot."

The seat had given way.

Do We Eat Too Much?

One meal a day was the custom of the Greek patricians, the soldiers and plebeians had two, only the riffraff of the population ate three. And the Greek patricians were the healthiest of the population, and lived the longest. The moral is obvious—if you want to apply it.

STRATAGEMS OF WAR.

Clever Tricks by Which Two Chilean Warships Were Sunk.

Between the years 1879 and 1884 the republics of Peru and Chile were at war, and, although the Peruvians were eventually discomfited, they displayed great adroitness in naval matters. On one occasion they succeeded in sinking two Chilean warships, their clever strategy being thus described by Stephen Coleridge in his memoirs:

"Soon after the Chilean fleet had settled down to the blockade of Callao there appeared in the bay one morning a large barge of fruit that had obviously gone adrift from the shore. The Peruvians put out in boats and steam pinnaces to bring the barge back, and the Chileans, seeing what was happening, also sent out pinnaces and boats to intercept and capture the drifting barge. A fierce fusillade between the hostile boats followed, and several men were killed or wounded. At length the Peruvians drew off and left the barge in the hands of the triumphant Chileans, who towed it off amid the cheers of their ships' crews, who had watched the fight with keen interest.

"They brought the barge alongside one of the big men of war and quickly sent the cargo of luscious fresh fruit up the side in baskets. When about half the cargo had been taken on board a terrific explosion shook the bay, and an enormous hole appeared in the side of the great ship which sank instantly with all hands. By an arrangement of springs and balances a huge charge of dynamite in the bottom of the barge was ignited when a certain amount of the weight of the cargo was removed. Although the Peruvians had waged the fight for the possession of the barge with fierce persistence, they had never intended to be successful.

"A few weeks later a large man-of-war was sent up the coast to capture anything worth having at Huacho. On the appearance of the vessel the inhabitants drew their boats far inland and, taking all their valuables, fled into the interior. One boat, a new one, larger than the others, they hauled some little way up the beach and then abandoned.

"After pillaging the place the Chileans looked at the boat, which was entirely empty. The Peruvians had removed oars, sails, mast and even the rowlocks. The Chileans looked it over to be sure that there was no dynamite in it and then towed it away to their vessel. The captain had the davits run out and ropes put round the seats at the bow and the stern. Then he ordered his men to haul away.

"It was the last order he ever gave, for the moment the ropes tightened the ship was blown to pieces and disappeared in seventy fathoms of water. A false bottom had concealed a tremendous charge of dynamite that was arranged to ignite when any upward force was applied to any of the seats.

"The inhabitants of the town, who had watched their stratagem destroy a great man-of-war without the smallest risk to themselves, returned hilariously to their houses with songs and dances."

Sun Drunkenness.

To become sun drunk is a condition into which any one may fall in the tropics. Exposure to the sun's rays will reduce a man to a condition almost exactly resembling drunkenness. He staggers about and is usually compelled to lie down and "sleep it off." Sun drunkenness is sometimes accompanied by nausea. Another curious fact in connection with life in the tropics, where the sun rises at the same time all the year round, is that if you do not get up before sunrise you do not feel well all day. You feel heavy, out of sorts and sickish.

United States Senate.

Each United States senator is elected for six years, unless he is chosen to fill the unexpired term of some senator who has died or resigned. On March 4 in every "odd year"—1919, etc.—the terms of 32 senators expire; that is, one-third of the whole number. By this plan there is never an entirely new senate. Even if no members were re-elected, two-thirds of the membership would always consist of men who have had either two or four years' service.

Helpful Sympathy.

She was slowly recovering from a long illness, but still too weak for the trip downtown to a hairdresser for the much-needed shampoo. At last a maid was found who would come to the house. During the drying process she made the startling discovery of the first gray hairs. The convalescent's grief was so intense that the maid, striving to comfort, said: "Law, lady, what if you had to wear one of them transmissions on your head!"

Indian Potlatch.

Potlatch is a corruption of an Indian word common among the Pacific coast tribes, meaning a festival of gifts. At a potshatl (potlatch) celebration the more personal property an Indian gives away, blankets, ornaments, etc., the higher he stands in the estimation of his neighbors, and the more he expects to receive in return at the next potlatch. The festival is accompanied by music, dancing and feasting.

Peanut Oil.

The peanut oil, which is used as a substitute for other nut oils, is receiving special attention from growers who find this the most profitable feature of the industry. About 40,000,000 bushels a year are used in the production of peanut oil, a bushel weighing 30 pounds usually yielding about a gallon.

FIGHTERS GOT THEIR "EATS"

The service of supply of the American army receives a lion's share of praise for our victory. Needs of men in the trenches and on the fighting line were well cared for. Hot meals were served to them to an extent unprecedented in any other war. Under barrage fire and gas attacks, however, hot food could not be carried forward. To meet this difficulty sealed containers were provided, each holding sufficient food for 25 men for a day. These containers were absolutely air tight, to prevent poisoning of food by gas. They contained a dry, hard corn bread, corned beef, corned beef hash, roast beef, salmon, sardines, salt, sugar and coffee soluble in cold water, together with the necessary can openers. Each container weighed 107 pounds and was cleverly camouflaged for its trip to the firing line. An emergency ration similar to the "iron ration" of the British army was provided for the Americans. This was the ration they carried over the top and used only in dire extremity. It consists of ground meat and wheat pressed into a cake and a block of sweet chocolate. The cake can be eaten dry or stirred into cold water. One cake boiled four minutes in three pints of water makes a nourishing soup, in one pint of water an acceptable porridge. The S. O. S. relied upon its mighty accumulation of foods from America for everything except fresh vegetables. It was almost independent in this respect, however, for 16,000,000 pounds of dehydrated vegetables were contracted for in the United States.—Thomas F. Logan in Leslie's.

Canada's Water Power.

An important feature of the water powers of Canada is their fortunate situation with respect to existing commercial centers. Within economic transmission range of practically every important city from the Atlantic to the Pacific, except those in the central western prairies, there are clustered water-power sites which will meet the probable demands for hydro power for generations.

Enjoyment Spoiled.

A little girl's mother had just bought her a bright red coat which she had never worn. There being a death in the family her mother dressed her and decided it not best to wear such a bright coat, so put on an old black one. As the child noticed this she began to cry and said, "If I can't wear my new red coat I sure won't have a good time at the funeral."

Steel and Iron.

Steel is a kind of iron which can easily be hammered out thin without cracking and can be made extremely hard by being heated and then cooled quickly. It is different from ordinary iron because of the amount of carbon in it. Wrought iron contains less carbon than steel and so it cannot be made so hard; cast iron contains more and so is brittle.

THE REVIEW

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said:

"After all what a man does with his money is to invest, and, there is no better way to in it than in Life Insurance.

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man sixteen years of age took out a 15 years Endowment (No. 210280) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years and he now has, through that investment, an immediate estate of $3495.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15 PER CENT COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR PAID?

THE HOPE OF THE WORLD

The following is the result of a British correspondent's interview with Sir Arthur Acland, one time Minister of Education in England. The principles of British-American continued friendship here advocated should be of deep interest to Canadians, thinking men among whom hold these views as essential to world peace:

I found him strong in the faith that British-American friendship is the hope of the world. He described himself as a "dogged optimist about the future, in spite of much that seems threatening and discouraging," but "friendship with America" he added, "is the necessary bed-rock for all our hopes."

"How exactly," I asked "has the university movement developed?"

"In explaining that," he answered, "I should like to call special attention to a singular act of generosity and kindly feeling in America, already noticed in the 'Westminster Gazette' which is calculated to promote that spirit between the two nations which it is now more than ever so desirable to cultivate.

"In October last year a British Educational Mission from our Universities, sent by our Government, landed in New York. It spent two months under the guidance of a specially appointed American Committee, visiting American Universities for Men and Women. The expenses of the Mission in American were defrayed by the American Council on Education. The Mission was composed of seven persons—five men and two women including the Vice-Chancellors of the Universities of Cambridge and Manchester. One of the women members was Miss Rose Sidgwick, of Birmingham University, daughter of Mr. Arthur Sidgwick of Oxford, and niece of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sidgwick, who were so prominent among the founders of Women's University Education at Cambridge. The Mission record that they experienced an irreparable loss in the death from pneumonia of Miss Rose Sidgwick in New York on December 23. 'She had done,' I quote from the report of the Mission, 'invaluable work throughout the tour; her speeches on a variety of subjects, lightly touched with humour, were remarkable for their distinction, acute reflection, and suggestive thought. . . . We have testimony from every side that her personality and charm also made a profound and far-reaching impression.'

"And now, within less than six months of her death it is reported from America that a Rose Sidgwick Memorial Fellowship has been founded by American University women in her memory. The sum necessary for this most kindly act has been raised by contributions from every college and University visited by Miss Sidgwick while she was in the United States. The Fellowship is to be awarded annually to a British woman for a year of graduate research work at an American college or University with the definite object of drawing closer the bonds of friendship and understanding between England and America, and of commemorating Rose Sidgwick's services in the cause.

"The practical question for us English men and women is what action can we take to further this desire to draw closer the bonds of friendship of which this is so notable an example."

"But has the Government done nothing to help?" I asked.

"I understand that the Government have granted a certain sum of money to assist the Universities Bureau, of which Sir Donald MacAllister is chairman, which will deal with the question of interchange of scholars or Fellows between America and England. A University Interchange Committee for Women Students has also been formed, of which Lord Eustace Percy is the chairman. But more than this is required. The mission to America say in their report, 'Many more travelling scholarships should be founded without delay,' and they say that in addition to Government funds an appeal should be made for private benefactions."

"What, then is the next step?"

"Well, I suppose one practical step is to do something oneself. I have offered through a member of the mission to provide two travelling scholarships for a year to America, one for a graduate member of each of the two colleges in London with which I have been most closely connected. These two are Bedford College for Women, of which I was chairman for ten years and the Imperial College of Technology and Science, which is, as you know, the largest college of University rank of its type in the British Empire, of whose executive committee I am chairman at the present time.

"The next most important practical step at this moment is, I think, that you and others who can influence the public should urge private benefactors to found or contribute towards travelling scholarships in America as soon as possible. The benefits will be great the advantages very real. Each travelling student will have the opportunity of urging Americans under a system of interchange to visit us, and will also profit by some of the same remarkable impressions as the British Mission record in their report."

"What sort of impressions?"

"They make it clear from their report, from which I quote, that they are greatly impressed with the magnitude of the Universities in America with the important position occupied by the newer State Universities of the Middle West, which do not seem likely to interfere with other Universites, but rather to benefit them and with the widespread interest in education permeating all classes. The evidence of this interest is to be seen in the flow of students to the newer Universities, in the loyalty and affection of the alumni for their University and college in the large benefactions which come to these institutions from all quarters. A future is implied in America in which a very large proportion of the American people will have received a college education."

"How do the British and American University systems compare?"

"We on our side have much that is of real value in our Universities for America to see and to understand. But the day is long past when, as has been our tendency far too often, we could take the narrow view that we had nothing to learn from America.

"The Americans have a reverence for education, a desire for it and a belief in it which shows itself in a readiness to spend money on it, which goes far beyond anything in this country. 'The vast sums of money,' I quote from the Reports, 'freely spent both by the State and private individuals on University education in America create envy in the mind of any English man or woman who cares for and believes in education. There is behind this expenditure an enthusiasm and idealism which is refreshing and invigorating and which can be felt in many ways.'"

"And in allusion to the well-known generosity of old students, 'The alumni of a particular year, long after they have gone out into the world, act corporately for the interest of their Universities, each class endeavouring to outvie the other in generosity. Many of the buildings have been erected by means of funds supplied in this way.'

"We recognise in this country the generosity of individual benefactors to our Universities and Colleges. But we have no such established atmosphere of giving as is found in America. If we had, our Colleges and Universities would be much less starved for funds than they are at present. Even therefore, from the selfish point of view, interchange may, perhaps by the force of good example improve our national habit in this respect. But more important by far than this is the value to the world of a good understanding between America and ourselves which may be definitely helped by a steady and systematic interchange of some of the best minds of the two nations. That Americans especially from the West and Middle West should get to know England better, that year by year English graduates, both men and women, should get to know America better these are matters of vital importance.

"There is clearly a great opportunity for those who understand and realize what may be the value of this interchange now and from henceforward to found or contribute towards travelling scholarships for this purpose, as the British mission say, 'without delay.'"

Here, then, is a practical means of giving effect to sincere but vague aspirations for British-American friendship, and those who share Sir Arthur Acland's view that the co-operation of the two peoples is the bed-rock foundation of hope for the world will, I hope, be stirred to follow his example.

FARMER MOORE HAS GAINED 37 POUNDS

ALL TROUBLE OVERCOME BY TAKING TANLAC—HAS SUFFERED EIGHT YEARS

"I suffered for eight long years before I found a medicine that would do me any good, but since taking Tanlac I have gained exactly thirty seven pounds, and all my troubles have been completely overcome," said John N. Moore, a well known and prosperous farmer, who lives in R. F. D. No. 4, Empire, Ill., while in Shorthouse's Drug Store in Bloomington, the other day.

"When I commenced taking Tanlac," he continued, "I had reached the point where I couldn't do any work at all, and was forced to hire a hand to take my place on the farm. I had suffered so much and so long with stomach trouble, I was just about down and out so far as health and strength was concerned. During all these years my appetite was very poor and what little I did manage to eat would cause me worlds of suffering. Gas would form on my stomach so bad that I could hardly get my breath, and I would have the worst sort of cramping spells. I finally got to where I was hardly ever able to retain what I ate, and would actually get nauseated every time I looked at anything to eat. I had fallen off so much, and was so low in health that all my friends were talking about the awful condition I was in. I was very nervous all the time and never knew what a good night's sleep was.

"I heard about Tanlac, then and I thought I would give it a trial. Well, sir, my friends and neighbors are talking differently now. They are asking me what in the world have I been taking to make such a big improvement in my condition, and it just does my heart good to tell them that Tanlac did it. It is wonderful the way I have gained in weight and strength. I can go to the field now and do as much hard work as any hand on the farm. My stomach seems to be in perfect condition, and I never have indigestion, and am not bothered with gas forming after meals. I have the best appetite I ever had in my life, and can eat just anything I want. I am free from all that nervousness, too, and I sleep just like a boy every night. Tanlac has done all that for me, and I am as well and hearty now as I ever was in my life, and as long as I live I will pass the good word along to others who suffer as I did."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

DOUGLAS EDGAR WINS CAN. OPEN GOLF TITLE, ATLANTA

Amateur Jones Gathers in Many Awards—A Thousand People Witness Presentation of Prizes

Hamilton, July 30. Douglas Edgar of Atlanta, Ga., the former French open champion, today lowered the world's record of 283 to 72 holes by five strokes at the Hamilton Golf and Country Club at Ancaster in the Royal Canadian Golf Association open championship, which he carried off by a margin of 16 strokes. On this afternoon's round the American played the course in sixty-six, lowering the course record by two. The gold medal for the winner of the open championship and $200 was presented to him.

Robert T. Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., was the only amateur who succeeded in getting a position among the six prize winners. He tied with Karl Keffer, Royal Ottawa, ex-Canadian open champion, and James Barnes of St. Louis, western open champion, with a score of 294.

Jones received the association's gold medal for the best amateur score, the association's silver medal for second place and several hundred dollars in prizes. Keffer and Barnes also received silver medals and divided the prize money. Leo Deigel of Detroit was next, with a score of 295. The other prize winner was Nicol Thompson, of Hamilton, who returned a score of 297.

A gathering of nearly 1,000 people witnessed the presentation of the prizes and the winners were called upon for speeches. It was a very enthusiastic termination to an enjoyable tourney that was marred only by the fact that Canada's open championship title went where the international title went across the border.

The field of eighty-six players entered at the beginning of the tourney was cut down to fifty-two today and after the morning round a number of these dropped out, so that the afternoon round was over in good time. The course was pretty well burnt and baked today and long drives were frequent.

Karl Keffer, Nicol Thompson, the Hamilton pro., William J. Thompson, his brother of the Mississauga Club, Toronto, and Albert Murray of the Kanawaki Golf Club of Montreal, were the only Maple Leaf players who appeared to be able in the morning to defend the title against the invaders. Although they failed they made a magnificent effort.

Flint Refuse of Value.

A remarkable record of an important prehistoric industry is promised by the archeological survey now being directed by Dr. W. T. Mills, in the Flint Ridge district, between Columbus and Zanesville, O. An outcrop of flint-bearing limestone extends for ten miles or more, and is entirely covered with pits dug by the ancient miners in search of workable flints. The waste fragments chipped from the flints in making arrowheads and other implements form nearby deposits 15 feet deep in places, supplying material of modern value for road building.

Calls for Big Expenditure.

If plans for standardizing the gauge of the railways of Australia as recommended by the chief engineers of the different lines be carried out it will mean an expenditure of $180,000,000.

Carrier Pigeons on Job.

In spite of the competition of wireless, carrier pigeons have not lost their job. They are carrying messages faithfully for French and British naval airmen.

On Riches.

I cannot call riches better than the baggage of virtue. For as the baggage is to the army, so is riches to virtue. It cannot be spared nor left behind, but it hinders the march; yea, and the care of it sometimes loseth or disturbeth the victory. Of great riches there is no real use, except it be in the distribution; the rest is but conceit.—Bacon.

Golden Eggs.

The value of the eggs and poultry produced every year in the United States is now $750,000,000, or more than that of all the gold, silver and diamonds produced in a year in the whole world. There are about three hens to a person, and each hen lays on an average 80 eggs a year. The best layers produce as many as 240 a year. Farmers' flocks consist on the average of only about 40 birds, but even at that they contribute notably to good living on the farm.

Do not be too credulous, yet if a sign says "Wet Paint" believe it.—Youth's Companion.

HER HUSBAND'S OFFICE.

A Story For Wives Who Just Drop In During Business Hours.

"Will you please," asks a secret sufferer, "write something about wives who make unexpected calls at their husbands' offices? I am not guilty of anything, but I think that even the most innocent of men suffers acutely when his wife visits him at his office. There is no way for me to make my wife understand this unless I appear boorish and brutal. Can't you say something about it? Many wives read your column."

Yes, friend, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. We will put it in the form of general propositions, hoping thereby to step on no individual toes. We hold these facts to be proved:

That no husband ever wants his wife to call on him at his office during business hours, except upon his invitation.

That no wife can know how she upsets his routine, disorders the mental processes that go on during those hours and subjects herself to the gossip of his office mates.

That there is no easy way to make a wife see this.

We proceed from these truisms to a few observations.

A lovely creature breezes into her husband's office just because she happens to be passing. She says:

"Now, don't let me disturb you a minute—I know you are busy. Dearie, what good does that desk light do you at that angle? Don't you know you will ruin your eyes? What a mess your desk is in! Look at Mr. Officemate's—how neat it is! Well, just let me stick this little package in your lower drawer and you bring it home with you when you come.

"Well, I must run along, for you're busy. Come out to the elevator with me, dear; I want to speak to you. Who is that disreputable looking man who is waiting in the outer office to see you? Why, it's a perfect disgrace to have such callers!

"You have an appointment with him? How can you make an appointment with such a creature? Well, goodby, dear. Get your shoes shined before you come home—you look awfully sloppy."

And if husband protests against that call her eyes fill with innocent tears and she says:

"Why, I wasn't there five minutes, and you weren't working at anything when I came in! And men call on you and stay half an hour! Of course I'll never come again. Are you ashamed of your wife?"

The Bethlehem Music Festival.

The Bach festival at Bethlehem is one of the most interesting events in musical production in this country. "Musically Bethlehem, Pa., is the most remarkable town or settlement in the United States." In 1780 Bethlehem had an orchestra, probably the first in the United States. In 1901 the Bethlehem music festival was marked by the first performance in America of Bach's complete Christmas oratorio. Bethlehem has been called "the American Oberammergau" and "the American Baireuth." The music festival is held each year.

Trebizond and Polo.

Polo probably came to us indirectly from Trebizond, where the Kabakmeidan, or Pumpkin square, was the site of a medieval polo ground. The game found great favor with the nobles of Trebizond and was played on horseback, much in the same way as modern polo. It produced intense excitement among the spectators, rivaling that of the hippodrome, possibly because it was dangerous as well as fashionable. Polo caused the death of one emperor of Trebizond—John I., who was killed by a fall from his horse.—Westminster Gazette.

Died Same Date, Not Same Day.

While it is true that Cervantes and Shakespeare died on the same date, they did not die on the same day. Shakespeare died Tuesday, April 23, 1616; Cervantes died Saturday, April 23, 1616. The explanation lies in the difference between the calendars in use at that time in England and Spain. As a matter of fact, Shakespeare outlived Cervantes by about ten days.—London Observer.

The Word Vaudeville.

The word "vaudeville" sprang from Vaux de Vire, the name of a hamlet in the picturesque town of Vire, in Switzerland. In the fifteenth century this town was the home of Oliver Basselin, the author of witty drinking songs. One of the best known of these songs was a merry dissertation on the author's red nose.

Rich Brazilian Forests.

There are more than 300 varieties of woods in the Sao Paulo region alone and as a whole Brazilian forests not only abound in the finest of woods but are of enormous extent. Transportation facilities are developing slowly and the labor supply is a constant problem.

Not to Be Thought Of.

Jamie was asking his mother a lot of silly questions, such as, "Why are your eyes blue?" His mother said, "Why do you ask such silly questions when I am trying to read?" "Well," responded Jamie, "do you want your little boy to grow up without a vocabulary in his mind?"

TRINIDAD'S PUZZLE

Mystery of the Island's Curious Lake of Pitch.

HOLES FILL UP OVERNIGHT.

And Great Trenches More Than Three Feet Deep Will Be Obliterated In a Week—The Great Mass Is Solid, Yet In Constant but Slow Motion.

Though disappointing at first sight to people who have the crater of an active volcano in mind, yet the famous "pitch lake" of Trinidad is remarkable enough to satisfy most thoroughly long ere the visit has come to an end.

The lake is a level plain about a hundred acres or so in extent, surrounded by low hills and dotted here and there with bushes and trees. The surface is not a shimmering black, as might be supposed, but a dull, grayish blue color, intersected with pools of shining water. Altogether it is a very prosaic looking place, giving no hint of its real interest.

One can walk where one pleases on the surface of the asphalt without any fear of sinking in, for it is quite solid enough to bear one's weight. If you stand in one place for a little while it feels hot to the feet, just like an asphalted street on a very hot day.

Much of the time a fresh breeze blows, and one remembers with amusement the stories of the imaginative writers who talked about stifling heat and oppressive atmosphere.

The digging of the asphalt is a simple operation. A mattock is the only tool required, and under its blows the pitch breaks readily. The negroes employed are very skilled in the work and break out lumps a couple of feet across, far too heavy for an ordinary man to carry.

Only a very small amount of the material gets broken into little pieces, so that scarcely any baskets are needed to carry the asphalt to the cars. A laborer simply lifts one or two lumps, puts them on his head, walks a few yards and drops them into the car.

The crude asphalt, as broken out, is somewhat brownish or earthy in color. It is usually quite wet and filled with many holes, like bubbles, measuring up to an inch or more in diameter.

The gang of barefooted workmen in one place may number thirty men, of whom half a dozen do the digging. They work on a space perhaps sixty feet long and forty feet wide, and in the course of a day they will dig down to a depth of three feet, or more in some places.

Go to that same spot next morning, and you will find it a little rough, but approximately level with the rest of the lake. The hole has been mysteriously filled up during the night, and in the course of a week all traces of the digging will be obliterated.

This does not mean necessarily that fresh asphalt has come into the lake from underground sources. On the contrary, the excavations are filled by a very slow settling or leveling of the surface asphalt. There is no such thing as "new" asphalt, by the way, for the transition from liquid petroleum to solid asphalt by nature's process involves a period of time that must be calculated in centuries.

The digging done in past years has caused the general level of the lake to sink several feet, so that it is not absolutely inexhaustible, as some people imagine. It is believed that fresh asphalt very slowly pushes itself upward into the lake from the subterranean depths, but how large a quantity is thus added annually has not been calculated.

Near the middle of the lake the material is less hard than elsewhere, and in a few places soft asphalt may be seen in small, irregular patches oozing up from below. This fresh asphalt is of about the consistency of putty and can be kneaded and pulled in the hands without soiling them greatly. In the main, however, the lake is solid asphalt.

No one knows the depths of this mysterious lake, the only information on the subject being the fact that long ago a boring was made to a depth of 135 feet without reaching the bottom. The "cores" of this and other borings show that in consistency the asphalt remains the same to a very considerable depth.

Curious as it may seem, there are many evidences that the entire mass comprising the lake is in constant but very slow motion. The surface is a series of great folds, and in the creases between these the rain water gathers. One writer has aptly compared the surface of the asphalt to the skin of a great elephant, the creases being the folds in his hide. Along the edges of the pools of water grass, bushes and small trees take root, forming green "islands" of greater or less extent.—Victor Pitt-Kethley in Wide World Magazine.

GIBRALTAR FOR FLORIDA.

England Once Offered Spain the Great Rock In a Trade.

You know that for everlasting stability and stubborn resistance there is nothing in the world like Gibraltar. Did you ever hear of a curious little bargain, which was never consummated, but in which that great rock at the mouth of the Mediterranean figured as part of the price? It had to do with an important part of our own country, and yet it is seldom mentioned in any of our histories.

The impregnable fortress was fought over by the Spaniards and the Moors for two centuries, and it came in for the keen interest of Oliver Cromwell, who thundered at the British the fact that if they ever hoped to become the dominating sea power of the world they must control the Mediterranean from Gibraltar. This great necessity was never lost sight of, but a suitable pretext did not arise until the war of the Spanish succession, when England and France were at each other's throat for the mastery of Europe.

Under Admiral Sir George Brooke the British fleet made an unexpected attack on the Spanish defenses and captured Gibraltar in 1704. Presently the English sickened of their bargain. That was long before the digging of the Suez canal by the French and the Egyptians, and the cost of maintaining the rocky fortress appeared to be out of all proportion to its worth. When Spain was approached by Napoleon for the purchase of Florida as a blow at England from the western theater of the Anglo-French war, England offered Spain to trade Gibraltar for Florida. Had the trade taken place England would not now be undisputed mistress of the sea.

SCOOPING UP WATER.

How a Fast Train Fills Its Locomotive Tank Without Stopping.

Mr. Cecil J. Allen, chief of the civil engineers' department, supplies in the Great Eastern Railway Magazine some interesting facts on "the picking up of water" by trains at full speed on long journeys. Locomotives, he says, are exceeding bibulous creatures. The engines of one large British railway alone consume some 12,500,000 gallons of water per annum. An express engine under normal conditions of running will consume from thirty to thirty-five gallons of water for every mile covered, taking a general average. On such a journey as that made by the "Cornish Riviera Limited Express," of the Great Western railway, from London to Plymouth, 225¾ miles—the longest daily nonstop run in the world—some four tons of coal are consumed against an average of no less than forty tons of water.

The troughs, Mr. Allen explains, have usually a length of just over a quarter of a mile and are laid perfectly level in the center of the "four foot." Water is taken from them by means of a movable shovel shaped "scoop" under the tender, which is lowered into the trough as the train passes over it at full speed. The sharp edge of this scoop cuts off, as it were, the "top layer" of the water, which is forced up into a large vertical pipe and delivered through a mushroom head or an elbow at the top of the tender into the water tank. As soon as the water gauge on the tender indicates that the tank is full the scoop is raised again. According to the speed at which the train is traveling, it is possible to lift from 2,000 to 3,000 gallons in about fifteen seconds.

Official Red Tape.

A man sent 10 cents in postage stamps to the patent office at Washington for two copies of a patent. The stamps were returned with a letter saying that currency must be sent. The man sent a dime and at the end of a week was informed that the copies of the patent were exhausted and that the treasury department would return his money. A week later the treasury department advised him that it would take three weeks to audit his account and refund his 10 cents. The man had spent 6 cents for postage and the government twice as much.

Napoleon.

Napoleon, who rose to be a general of brigade after only eight years' connection with the French army, was shortly after shorn of that honor when Robespierre fell. Yet so adroit a politician was he that by 1795 he was the head of the forces of the convention, though nominally an aid-de-camp to Barras as commander in chief and actually the most effectively powerful man in France.

Twenty Dollar Gold Pieces.

The value of the gold in a twenty dollar gold piece is $20. Copper is used as the alloy, and the intrinsic value of the twenty dollar gold piece would, therefore, be $20 plus the copper used, which, in proportion to the quantity of gold, is one to nine.

Church Closed for Repairs

'NOW THE WAR IS OVER SPRUCE UP FLIVVER

THUS MUCH NEEDED WORK FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS WOULD RESULT.

How about your motor car? Of course, you let her lose class somewhat during the war. It was unpatriotic to use labor or paint on your car at a time when American industry was working at top speed to produce the material necessary for the winning of the war.

But the war is over. Labor is no longer scarce. In fact, there are 10,000 soldiers being dismissed; these men will have a rather difficult time of it until the industries of the country can reinstate them into civilian jobs. Now is the time to spruce up that motor car, to put that necessary coat of paint on and to overhaul it generally. You will be doing a patriotic service to the country in getting a soldier or two to do this work for you. Colonel Arthur Woods, Assistant to the Secretary of War, recommends the employment of ex-service men for such reconstruction work.

There is no more need for emergency economy. Minor repairs add to the life of things. Paint adds life to the body of the car. Spruce up your engine. Renew those worn parts. Your car will go quicker, will run smoother, and wear on it will be lighter.

Materials are expensive now—paints, machine parts, cost more than they used to a few years ago. But they will save more than their value in their service to the car.

Don't wait for materials to come down. They won't. Rather is the contrary to be expected. And if you wait a little too long, you will have to put on an extra coat of paint, and more parts will wear out. "Spruce up" your car now.

WA RAGAINST DIAZ

Mexico City, July 31.—Francisco Villa, from Chihuahau, has named Constantion Galvan, a rebel operating in Vera Cruz and Oaxaca, head of hte "army of the east" according to statements credited to the Capital press to Col. Felix Rincon Gallardo, Military Commander in the Codroba Santa Lucrecia sector of Vera Cruz. The colonel adds that Villa's letter, containing this appointment also instructed Galvan to wage relentless warfare against the forces of Felix Diaz.

Owing to the Keene Methodist Church being closed for repairs, sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered at Bethel Church last Sunday morning by Rev. Honey.

OBITUARY

Annie McFarlane

Annie, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James MacFarlane, passed away on Sunday evening, July 27, at the family home on High street, after three months illness of heart trouble. She leaves to mourn her loss, her father and mother and two brothers, Harry and Archie, her twin sister Lettie, having predeceased her, seven years ago. The funeral was held at 2 p.m. and was very largely attended. Rev. McEachern conducted the services. The pall bearers Masters, Garfield Burley, William Mollison, James McCarthy, Ross Conrie, Ronald McEachern and Dave McNevan. The honorary pall bearers were her six little playmates, Violet McNevan, Olive Richardson, Margaret McCarthy, Marion Conrie, Janet Mollison and Margaret Campbell.

PURCHASE OF CAN. CHEESE BY ALL-BRITISH COMMITTEE

Maximum Retail Price of Cheese in Great Britain 36c lb and Cannot Be Raised

Following the recent collapse of the cheese market a representative of the British Ministry of Food, Mr. F. Warren, and the chairman of the Butter and Cheese Import Committee, Sir Thomas Clement, associated with the Ministry of Food, London, England, were in Canada last week for the purpose of arranging for the purchase of 20,000 tons of Canadian cheese. They met the producers at Brockville on Thursday and offered 25 cents per pound delivered at Montreal. Sir Thomas Clement announced that a local committee to represent the British Butter and Cheese Import Committee would be formed in Montreal to arrange for the export of the cheese. The Canadian merchants who handle the cheese are to be paid a commission of 1½ per cent. plus ¼ cent per pound to cover handling charges.

Taking advantage of his presence in Ottawa today Mr. Warren was asked for a statement as to the reasons for the purchase and why they are unable to pay more than 25 cents per pound. His answer was as follows:

"The maximum retail price of cheese in Great Britain, including the home production, has been fixed by the Ministry of Food at 1-6 (36c) per pound and there are sufficient reasons why the maximum cannot be raised.

"The cost of handling the cheese from the time it is delivered by the Canadian producer at Montreal until it reaches the consumer in Great Britain at the present time amounts to 10.95 cents per pound made up of the following items:

"British retailers' profit (which includes loss in weight in cutting up), 5. cents per lb.; commission paid to British wholesalers and British importers (average), 1.5; inland transport in Great Britain, .5; storage and handling in Great Britain, .5; interest in carrying stock .5; loss in weight, .23; ocean freight and landing charges, 1.75; discount, .25; commission paid Montreal exporters, .37; Montreal handling charges, .25—total, 10.95.

"In adition to these charges the British Committee will have to bear the loss on account of the low rate of exchange, which at the present time is equivalent to about 2 cents per pound.

"The British Committee will lose on the Canadian cheese purchased at 25 cents and this loss will have to be met from the profits on purchases in other countries, or become a charge on the British treasury."

The foregonig figures are confirmed by Dr. Jas. W. Robertson, who has just returned from England.

There is no "fixing" of price and the Dairy Produce Commission will not be revived. Producers are free to dispose of their cheese through any other channels and at a higher price if that should be possible.

MOOSE TEAM OF TORONTO TO PLAY LOCALS HER

Leaders of Toronto West-End City League Play Petes on Monday.

A good estimate of the speed of the Central Ontario League can be obtained from the game here next Monday. The "Moose" team leaders of the Western City League, Toronto will play the local team. As both teams are confident of playing in the O. A. B. A. championship series they are putting forth every effort to win the Exhibition game on Monday and gain a moral victory for the coming season. This game promises to be a hummer and a large crowd is expected.

PROHIBITION DISPUTE

Said That Dakota Bone-Dry Law Not Passed Legally

Bismarck, N. D., July 31. North Dakota's bone-dry law was declared not legally passed by the Legislature in an opinion of the State Supreme Court handed down yesterday in the case of the State against John Schultz.

Schultz was convicted in the lower court of bringing liquor into the State in violation of the bone-dry law. He appealed on the ground that the act was not legally passed, and the Supreme Court upheld that contention.

John R. Rand, a G.T.R. sectionman, was killed at Kingston Junction by troop train while walking on the track.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

DARKENS BEAUTIFULLY AND RESTORES ITS NATURAL COLOR AND LUSTRE AT ONCE.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients; a large bottle at little cost at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound no one can tell because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

BALL AND SPORTS AT PLAYGROUNDS

KING EDWARD SCHOOL WON BALL GAME, CENTRALS VICTORS IN BASE RUNNING.

The Central School playground delegates were visitors at the King Edward grounds yesterday afternoon. Great rivalry was shown between the grounds and many exciting competitions took place.

Ball and Racing.

In the game of baseball King Edward won by the close score of 7 to 6. The batteries for King Edward were Moore and J. Jones, for Central Whitlow and Halldery. Following the baseball game was a base-running contest won by the Central team, composed of Whitlow, Miller, Thorten, Le Barr and Gandy. Then some racing events were staged resulting as follows:

Boys under 13—1, A. Jones; 2, Millow.

Boys under 12—1, Wells; 2, L. Gordon.

Boys under 11—1, H. Groes; 2, J. Campbell.

Special race—1, Whitlow; 2, Moore.

While these events for the boys were going on the girls were engaged in games of volley ball, basket ball and tether tennis.

The children seem to enjoy these meets and they add greatly to the interest in the grounds.

WILL ENFORCE DEMANDS

U. S. Trainmen Give Till October 1 For Improved Conditions.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, July 31.—William G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, announced today that unless the railroad administrations had taken action by October 1, on demands of the brotherhood, that the wages of trainmen be increased or the cost of living reduced, steps looking to the enforcement of their demands would be taken.

GRASS FIRES WORRYING FIRE DEPARTMENT AGAIN

Repetition of Last Year's Experience in Hot Summer Months.

The grass on the vacant lot at the corner of Anson and George took fire yesterday evening. It was extinguished by the fire brigade before any damage resulted.

Two Calls.

The fire brigade had two calls to attend to grass fires this morning, one fire about 9.20 this morning, was on the Quaker Oats property, on Haslet street. At 10.53 the firemen were again called to attend to a grass fire at the corner of Smith and Brown streets. No damage was done at either place.

PORTUGUESE PRESIDENT.

Lisbon, July 31.—The election of a president of the Portuguese Republic will take place on August 5, it was announced today. President Canto y Castro resigned his office on June 4th, but agreed to continue in the presidency after the Portuguese congress had voted to ask him to reconsider his action.

600 AT MATHEWS-BLACKWELL PICNIC

A HAPPY DAY SPENT AT WALLACE'S POINT—SPORTS GALORE AND PRIZES WORTH WHILE.

The second annual picnic of the Matthews-Blackwell employes was held yesterday to Wallace's. Over 600 employes and families took in the excursion, going down the river in three boats, the "Stoney Lake," the "Geneva," and the "Rainbow." A very enjoyable outing was spent by all and everyone agreed that this annual event is firmly established.

Ball Game

An interesting ball game was played, between the married men and single men, but Cunningham who pitched for the single men was too good for the older fellows and his team won out.

Great amusement was caused by the attempts to ride the "greasy pig," until finally W. Downing won out. The tug of war was exciting, the team composed of L. Labasson, J. Ranger, F. Langdon, E. Ladell, C. Green, S. La Faye, F. Oaks, H. La Faye and W. Downer come off victors.

Results of the Races

Boys' race, 9 years and under—1st $1, Asa Downer; 2nd, 50c, Paul Hillier.

THE RIGHT MOVE

London, July 31.—Assertions by Liberal papers that Sir Philip Kerr, Secretary to Premier Lloyd George had given a memorandum of peace proposals for the Bolshevik Premier Lenine, to William C. Bullitt, attached the American Peace Delegation.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE.

Melbourne, July 31.—President Lecorum of the Seamen's Union, the members of which have been on strike for several weeks, announced that he would appeal to America for assistance. Thus far the strike of seamen has resulted in an estimated loss in wages of £2,500,000. The men have declared that they will not resume work until Secretary Walsh of the union is released and their other demands granted. Virtually all shipping in Melbourne and Sydney has been stopped by the strike.

VETERANS' PREFERENCE.

Quebec, July 31.—A delegation of members of the Quebec branch of the G. W. V. A., headed by Rev. Canon Scott, waited on Mayor Lavigneur to urge that preference be given to war veterans in the filling of vacancies in the civic service. The mayor promised to support the request of the Veterans in the city council.

SAW HUMOR OF THE SITUATION

Commanding Officer, Dreaded as a Martinet, Proved He Was Not Altogether a "Bear."

There is a certain major-general in the A. E. F. who is a great stickler for discipline and military forms. Most generals are that, but this one is a regular martinet. The soldier who fails to salute and to "snap it out" when the general is around is in for an extended spell of that intensive form of culinary labor known as "kitchen police," or for something worse.

One afternoon the general was driving along when his car met a soldier on foot. The enlisted man stared hard at the vehicle and its august passenger, but made no move to extend the required courtesy.

The general was indignant. He ordered his driver to stop and hailed the plodding private in his best military voice.

"What do you mean by failing to salute me?" he roared.

"I beg your pardon, sir, but I didn't know you were a gen—ral," apologized the soldier, standing at attention.

"You didn't know I was a general, eh?" Well, didn't you see those two stars on my car? Don't you know what two stars mean?"

"Yes, sir, I know what they mean. They mean that you have two sons in the army," said the "buck."

The general told this story himself that evening at the staff mess and now his aids and the other staff officers know that he isn't such a "bear" as they had thought him.

WAS A NURSE IN FOUR WARS

English Woman, Veteran of Many Previous Campaigns, Served in World Struggle.

Mrs. Teresa Eden Richardson, who died recently at Bath, England, was a worker in the hospitals of four wars. She held the South African medal, the Order of the Crown of Japan, the Japanese Red Cross Order of Merit, two Greek medals and the 1914 Star.

During the South African war, says the London Times, Mrs. Richardson nursed at a hospital at Bloemfontein, when the epidemic of enteric fever tried to the utmost the resources of the medical staff. Afterward, through the Japanese minister, she was attached to the Red Cross society of Japan during the war with Russia.

Later she nursed at Athens during the war between Greece and Turkey, and when the present war broke out, being then sixty-eight years old, she went to Brierfort, near Brussels. After the German armies had occupied that place she nursed at one of the hospitals of Antwerp throughout the bombardment, she and her maid being the only persons who remained at her hotel. Mrs. Richardson was one of the last to leave the town, escaping down the Scheldt in a coal barge crowded with refugees. The privation endured at this period seriously affected her health and she was compelled to abandon further attempts to render help in Red Cross hospitals in London and Nice.

alternative, and smote him squarely between the eyes, so that he crumpled up on the floor. Then, turning to the man's comrades, he broached the business of the evening.

"I want to tell you dirty bums that I'm going to take charge of this here city government from now till I leave. If any of you've got anything to say, why, you can step up and say it. You might be able to bluff these poor devils that live here, but I've seen too many boes not to know what you're made of. You're all under arrest, an' the first man that moves'll get plugged." The brakeman placed a hand in his hip pocket, which, by the way, held nothing but his red bandanna handkerchief.

BLOODSHED AT STRIKE

Constables Rushed Textile Strikers With Clubs and Revolvers.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Quebec, July 31.—There was bloodshed this morning among the textile strikers at the Dominion Textile Co. plant at Montmorency Falls.

About sixty strike-breakers arrived on a train at seven forty-five this morning, but were not permitted to disembark, about three hundred strikers preventing them from landing. A picket of twenty special constables rushed the strikers and rescued the workers, but had to club some strikers. Constables, hard pressed, had to fire in air. Three or four strikers were slightly injured.

M'DONALD BROS. ARRESTED

Arrested in Connection With Glenelg Fire—Two Sensations Sprung.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Durham, July 31—Two sensations were sprung during the Glenelg Fire Inquiry Proceedings, the McDonald Brothers, and John Angus of Irish Lake being ordered into custody at the close of their examination.

MISSION TO STATES

Planned by Premier Nitti of Italy.

Rome, July 31.—Premier Nitti is organizing a new mission to the United States, according to announcement in official circles. Its purpose will be to present Italy's financial and industrial needs, the establishment of credit and the facilitation of exports and imports, including food supplies and raw materials. It is considered probable that William Marconi will head the mission.

MASTER BARBERS SPLIT

Kingston, July 31.—A decided split has developed in the ranks of the Master Barbers' Association following a meeting, when uptown barbers refused to allow any more concessions to the striking barbers. They refused to grant the barbers 65 per cent. of the takings of broken weeks, and they will not dismiss their apprentices who worked with them during the strike. They claim that these two demands of the barbers were not awarded by the board of arbitration and consequently are unwilling to grant them.

PLANE SERVICE TO CONGO

Brussels, July 31.—The Belgian committee on aeronautics has decided on the creation of a line of hydro-airplanes for the Congo colony. Besides mail and passenger transport hydro-airplanes are to undertake an important cartographic mission covering thousands of miles, with a view to establishing the cartography of the Congo River. King Albert has contributed to the special fund of the mission, and also for the necessary flying machines.

MINE-SWEEPING GOES ON.

Perils of Deep Did Not Stop When Armistice Came.

Despite the fact that active operations against the enemy ceased six months ago, there are still many perils to be faced by those who go down to the sea in ships, apart from storms and tempests and suchlike dangers that ordinarily beset the life of the sailor, says Answers.

The work of sweeping the high seas free of mines—"tin eggs," as Jack calls them—is one of the most formidable tasks that confront our navy to-day, and although some scores of mines are recovered or otherwise disposed of in the course of every week, it is certain that many months must elapse before the work is finally completed.

Needless to say, the bulk of the work falls on the grey, blunt-bowed mine-sweeping trawlers, ships that have played by no means the smallest part in the war for humanity. In addition, there are now employed many of the M. L.'s, those sturdy little ships of war whose work in a vastly different sphere of operations is, of course, well known.

These tiny craft—veritable battleships in miniature—navigated and manned entirely by officers and men of the R.N.V.R., play the part of "spotters," or "eyes," for the mine-sweeping craft. By reason of their shallow draught they are able to approach the danger zone with less risk than can the bigger craft.

A recent official announcement made it clear that only twelve merchant ships had been sunk as the result of collision with mines since the signing of the armistice. But the danger still exists, and is likely to do so for some time to come, since no one can aver with any degree of certainty that every drifting mine—perhaps the greatest menace of all—has been effectively disposed of.

The life of a mine cannot be determined by mathematical or other abstruse calculation; while it exists it is a potential destroyer of life and property.

A system of gratuities, varying from £1 for each British mine dealt with to £10 for an enemy mine, is almost the sole inducement offered in connection with mine sweeping, yet volunteers for the hazardous task have never been lacking.

The epic of the mine-sweepers is yet to be written. Suffice it to say that when at length it does appear, there will be given to the world a tale of heroic endeavor such as cannot fail to command the admiration of every single one of us.

To Keep Young.

The great enemy of youthfulness is the drying up process, and this is why we should not only keep as much as possible with the young, but should enter into their joys, their plays, with zest and enthusiasm. We should romp and play with them, interest ourselves in the things that delight them, instead of pushing children away from us and restraining them all the time, regarding them as a nuisance and a bore. Children were given us to keep us youthful, to keep our sympathies fresh.

Peculiar Lawsuit.

Here is a queer cause for a law action. A man who was insane determined to throw himself out of the window of an asylum. He made several attempts and was prevented by the servants. Put in a new apartment, he tried again, jumped out of the window, fell on the lawn and injured himself seriously, but, strange to say, the shock cured his mental disorder. At once he sued the officers of the asylum for negligence. The plaintiff was nonsuited.

Relics in Iceland Museum.

The most valuable possession of Reykjavik is its museum, containing relics of northern history. Some of Iceland's historic souvenirs have been taken by Denmark, but the museum contains a number of church relics, old Norse and Icelandic household goods and other exhibits which recall the days of Eric the Red, Helgi the Lean and other northmen of fame.

Novel Alarm for Mines.

The United States bureau of mines has developed a novel means of giving alarm of danger in all mines where compressed air is made use of throughout the workings. An ill smelling substance is injected into the compressed air line, and in a few minutes the odor has been spread through all parts of the mine, and will be instantly recognized by the workmen.

Quite Right, Auntie!

Aunt Nancy listened with horror to the language of a fat old gentleman who had been forced to climb six flights of stairs to his office because the elevator wasn't running. "There," she said, sagely. "There is an example of what we may expect from a man who has had no bringin' up."

Democratic Air Raids.

Official details issued recently of twenty-five air raids on London between May 17, 1915, and May 19, 1918, completely dispel the idea that while the poorer classes suffered great loss West End residents entirely escaped.

The reports of the London Fire Brigade show that in the raid of November 28, 1916, the residences of the following well-known people were damaged:

Lieut.-Gen. Sir Alfred Codrington.
Lord Gascoyne Cecil.
Lady Jane Taylor.
Lady Wernher.
Duke of Devonshire.
Marquess of Salisbury.
Marquess of Zetland.
Lord Northcliffe.
Earl of Yarborough.

Montreal's Cathedral.

The great landmark in Montreal is the Cathedral of Notre Dame, which, next to the famous cathedral in the City of Mexico, is the largest church building in America and has a seating capacity of 12,000. The church was built in 1829 and is noted for its magnificent chimes, one of the bells of which, called "Le Gros Bourdon," is one of the largest suspended bells in the world and weighs 24,780 pounds.

A flash of lightning lights up the ground for one millionth of a second, yet it seems to us to last ever so much longer. What happens is that the impression remains in the retina of the eye for about one-eighth of a second or 124,000 times longer than the flash lasts.

Powerful New Explosive.

A new and very powerful explosive which may be used in mining and for other purposes, is lead azide, a salt of hydronitric acid. The acid forms a great number of salts, as mercury azide, silver azide and sodium azide. Large crystals of lead azide and mercuric azide have been found to be very sensitive to mechanical shocks, the sensitiveness increasing with the size of the crystals. Even the breaking of a single large crystal is said to bring about explosion.

Harbinger of War Fable.

Since ancient days the locust has been the flying wing of superstition. People forget from 1912 till 1919 that the locust has markings on his wings which carry a distinct letter W, which, when noticed, usually results in many stories that war is at hand, the letter W being supposed to stand for the word war. But the fallacy of such a supposition is in itself evident from the fact that the word for war in French does not begin with W, nor does it in Italian or Spanish.

Few Now Search for Gold.

With the exception of the years of 1915 and 1916, when discoveries of tungsten brought a horde of wealth seekers to the Colorado hills, the search for gold has steadily diminished since the gold rush 25 years ago. At that time old mining men say, the mountains were full of prospectors searching for new veins and placer deposits. The new generation has not followed in the footsteps of the old and one of the picturesque features of Western life is becoming extinct.

Can You Do It?

This sentence President Eliot of Harvard university is said to have given to Doctor Lowell, his successor as head of the university, stipulating that the words all be spelled correctly: "It is agreeable to view the unparalleled embarrassment of a harassed saddler or peddler sitting on a cemetery wall, gauging the symmetry of a skillfully peeled potato."

sheriff at Bennington," replied Murphy, who was guarding the door.

From the dark recesses of the caboose he had brought forth an old revolver. With it to uphold his authority, the erstwhile conquerors were placed in line and marched to the waiting train, escorted by the crew.

To Brown, this closed the incident. He marveled greatly, therefore, when there came a commendatory letter from the company's chief executive, together with a small package, which, on examination, was found to contain a gold watch.

"That business must've leaked out some way or other," he remarked thoughtfully.

HOW EARS WORK.

Theory Propounded by a British Scientist.

A new and interesting theory as to the origin of hearing has been propounded by Prof. A. Keith at the Royal Institute, London. This theory, says a writer in the English Mechanic and World Science, owes its origin to investigations made by Sir Thomas Wrightson over forty years ago, and further pursued by him when, after a long political career, he returned to his early pre-occupation. Sir Thomas, who was not satisfied with the theory of Helmholtz as to the incidence of sound waves and the mechanism for conveying them to the brain, showed that instead of one signal for each wave there must be four. In 1904 Sir Thomas had asked the lecturer certain abstruse questions about the internal structure of the ear, and in order to answer them Prof. Keith undertook an investigation in which he had to deal with most delicate membranes measuring from one one-hundredth to one one-thousandth of an inch, and forming parts of an intricate system.

"To show how nature had proceeded to the perfecting of the instrument he illustrated as its foundation the balancing arrangement by which fish get their sense of orientation and keep in equilibrium. This was elaborated in the ear so that waves of sound could set up signals by pressure and tension on the cells just as the movements of the balance did in the fish. Nature introduced an extension of the original system and added the lever and the drum, the effect of which was to magnify sound and make hearing more sensitive. But even without the drum hearing was still possible to a modified extent.

"The most wonderful innovation was the basilar membrane with a shelf for a most delicate machine that recorded sound waves and, by means of a piston, conveyed their vibrations to the primitive cavity, the fluid in it being thereby displaced. This was the essential mechanism of the organ of hearing, and by its operation the energy in the cell was carried through the nerve to the brain. The discoveries of Englishmen, said the lecturer, were generally overlooked while they were living, but Sir Thomas Wrightson's theory of sound transmission was of such importance as to deserve recognition. The sounds were sorted out by a series of resistances and the theory of hearing was thus brought into line with that of light and other sensations."

If Animals Could Talk.

If animals could talk they would be able to tell [illegible] of events that happened a hundred years or more ago.

The Russian eagle, for instance, that hovered over the freezing, famishing soldiers of Napoleon while they were retreating from Moscow in 1812, still may be living, says Le Pele Mele, Paris, for eagles frequently pass the century mark.

Crocodiles, which were in the swamps of the West Indies when the first explorer set foot on the islands, are basking there yet, and in the ocean still are whales that frequented the coast of France when Joan of Arc was a child and when, in 1415, Henry V. of England landed in Normandy with a great army and seized Honfleur. These whales if they could talk and cared to, could tell us that in those days there were large whale fisheries along the Basque coast, in fact pretty generally in the Gulf of Gascony. For whales live several centuries, while elephants rarely pass one hundred years; but carp and crows sometimes live two centuries.

Speaking of birds, we may recall that parrots and swans often become centenarians; and it is not unusual for a long-beaked heron to reach 80. Geese and pelicans live half a century; the humble sparrow frequently sees 40, while pigeons, canaries, storks and peacocks often reach 20. Partridges, pheasants, nightingales and larks live nominally from fifteen to eighteen years.

A Piebald Horse.

One of the commonest of all street superstitions is that there is tremendous good fortune ahead of any one who meets a piebald horse in the street.

Happiness Easily Attained.

Those of us who ever stop to reason or think along profitable lines know that there are "sermons in stones, books in running brooks, and good in everything" as the poet sings. We do not have to be either rich or famous to procure happiness. If we try to keep cheerful, forget our woes and "look pleasant," our narrow sphere will take on a broad and pleasing aspect. Furthermore, this view will make us see lots of good in the folks around us and many fine attractions in our home and old "home town."

Sheep Bone Toy of Small Orientals.

Without the bone of a sheep, that eternal, ubiquitous playtoy of all the East, the children of Asia would be absolutely without an amusement device. Go wherever children play—Osmanlis or Kurds, Armenians or Arabs, Druses or Greeks—and you will see the sheep bone represents everything from a doll to a sword, from a pasha's horsetail ornamented standard to a British gunboat, from a mosque to a church.—Red Cross Magazine.

Cosmetic Art.

From the looks of some of the women when it turns cold, it would be a good proposition to sell different shades of powder for hot, warm, cool and cold weather. They say that they sell different shades for day and night—white for the daytime and blue for use under artificial light, so, why not for different degrees of temperature as well? However, probably some bright genius has already thought this up and patented his compound and it may not be well advertised as yet.—Grit.

VOLCANIC JAVA.

The Place Where "Hell Blew the Lid Off."

The recent eruption of the Klot (or Kalut) volcano in Java cost 40,000 native lives, destroyed 20,000 acres of crops, principally rice, by its flow of hot mud, and did millions of dollars' worth of damage by the falling ashes in regions outside the devastated districts.

Volcano-made in the first place, and constantly being remade by them, Java has more volcanoes than any area of its size in the world. Estimates of the active and extinct craters range from 100 to 150. Everywhere in Java, in the huge crater lakes, in fissures that now are river beds, even in ancient temples half finished when interrupted by some fiery convulsion, are evidences of cataclysmic forces—such turbulent forces as now are in continuous hysteria in the Valley of the Ten Thousand Smokes in Alaska and break their crusted surface cage intermittently in Java.

The "treacherous Klot," as the natives call it, all but wiped out the town of Britar, but even its devastation, as reported to the State Department, was mild compared to the violent upheaval of Krakatoa in 1883. Then Mother Nature turned anarchist and planted a Gargantuan infernal machine on the doorstep of Java. Krakatoa is a little island in the Sunda Strait, between Sumatra and Java. Australians, as far from the explosion as New York is from El Paso, heard the terrific detonation. More than half the island was blotted out, parts of it were flung aloft four times as high as the world's highest mountain, and to touch bottom below the water's surface, where most of the island had been, henceforth required a plumb line twice as long as the height of the Washington monument. Skyscraper waves flooded adjacent islands and rolled half way around the earth. Every human ear-drum heard, though it may not have registered, the air waves as they vibrated three or four times around the earth.

Krakatoa levied a smaller toll in human life than Klot, because of its isolation, and many of the 35,000 deaths from Krakatoa's eruption were at far distant points, by drowning.

"Naturally the native religion is fatalistic. A free translation of an inscription on an old tomb runs:

"What is the use of living, of kissing lovely flowers,
If, though they are beautiful, they must soon fade into nothing."

In the native folklore are innumerable stories of the earth opening up to swallow a dancing girl. Such tales betoken another physical feature of the island fraught with human tragedy. Not only has it steaming vents, spouting geysers, sulphur lakes, but great chasms open and close, and they have been known to swallow villages.

Altar vs. Halter.

Said the facetious feller: "Nobody expects a wedding ceremony to go through without a hitch."

SENSATIONAL GOLF AT ATLANTIC LINKS

THOMPSON AND KEFFER TIED FOR SECOND PLACE WITH 221 EACH—BARNES WINS THIRD.

Hamilton, July 30.—Playing golf of a sensational character Douglas Edgar, the professional from Atlanta, has a lead of nine strokes at the end of the third round of the Canadian open golf championship at noon today. The Georgian had 69 for the 18 holes this morning, making a total of 212 for the three rounds.

Nicol Thompson, of Hamilton, and Carl Keffer, the Canadian open champion, were tied for second place with 221, while James Barnes, the St. Louis professional, had third place with 222, scoring a 73 this morning.

Bobby Jones was fourth with 223, and Leo Diegel, the Detroit sensation, followed with 224, having a 73 this morning. Percy Barrett, the Western professional, a pupil of Harry Vardon, showed top form this morning though with a 72. He went out in 35 and came home in 37. His partner was McLuckie the Canadian amateur champion. Still badly off his game, the Montreal player lost a ball and drove out of bounds going out, having 43 at the turn. He finished the 18 holes in 80.

The round opened with a field of 54 players, including 20 amateurs. The weather was almost perfect and the strong wind which spoiled the play yesterday, had died down, making possible some low scores. The teams went out at five minute intervals and the first pair did not tee off until eleven o'clock, standard time. A. C. Panks, of Guelph, withdrew this morning.

The Scores.

Karl Keffer, 72—221; Robert T. Jones, [illegible]—223; Albert Murray, 80—232; H. C. Fletcher, 80—236; Nicol Thompson, 74—221; Chas. H. Rowe, 75—[illegible]; S. March, 84—241; A. CORNELL SHY ON RUNNERS

Appears To Stand Small Chance Of Regaining Old Supremacy.

Chicago, July 31.—In view of the determined efforts which Dartmouth, Yale, Princeton and Harvard will make with the beginning of the new college year to develop long distance runners, it is believed that Cornell will have not a little difficulty in holding high place in cross-country running when the intercollegiate cross-country championship race is held at Cambridge Nov. 22. The teams were none too strong in the distance events in the intercollegiate track and field championship last spring and it will be necessary for Jack Moakley to develop a winning team from the poorest veteran material he has ever had if Cornell's well established precedents in the sport are not to go by the board.

Not since the first intercollegiate cross-country race run back in the late '90s has Cornell been beaten two years in succession. In fact, in all that time only four teams, Yale, Harvard, Maine and Pennsylvania, have broken the Cornell string of victories. Yale won in 1901, Harvard in 1912, Maine in 1915 and Pennsylvania in 1917. No meet was held last year.

PETERBORO LEADS IN THE C.O. LEAGUE

DEFEATED COBOURG LAST NIGHT WITH A SCORE OF 13 TO 6—ROSE PLAYED BRILLIANT GAME.

By virtue of their 13 to 6 victory over Cobourg last evening, the locals are still leading the Central Ontario League. The game was more interesting that the score would indicate, the bases being occupied most of the time. Rose played the same brilliant game as last Saturday, making several beautiful catches. In the outfield McCarney, the Oriental centre field, made some sensational grabs. Mulhern pitched a steady game for the locals allowing 6 hits, while Skitch for Cobourg was touched for 10 safeties.

A large crowd witnessed the game, a large delegation motoring down from here. Quite a number of Port Hope baseball enthusiasts were also there to see their rivals from here trim their neighbors.

The Petes cannot be headed now for the championship, but a tie is very likely. Port Hope play in Oshawa today. A win for Port Hope would put them on even terms with Belleville and the game in Belleville Monday would be to decide who meets the Petes in the play-off. If Port Hope lose to Oshawa, they are eliminated from the championship race and the game in Belleville would have to play off the tie or the local team win the championship. This is a great race and the interest shown speaks well for the league in future years.

VIUN HORSE STRING IS TO BE AUCTIONED

MAY HAVE BREEDING ESTABLISHMENT IN FRANCE—WILL HAVE HORSES TO RACE THERE.

Saratoga, N. Y., July 31.—Yearling thoroughbreds which have been arriving here daily in large numbers are calling forth as much attention from horsemen as the other horses out at the beautiful Saratoga course. The yearlings, however, will not be the only horses auctioned off, and the dispersal of one stable at auction was made known today. Wilfrid Viau's colors will not be seen in New York again after the close of the Saratoga meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Viau have announced that their entire stable will be closed out before the end of the coming meeting and that immediately after the closing of Saratoga they would leave for Paris, where they have a home. The Viau horses are eleven in number, [illegible] Hogan, probably the most [illegible] race horse on the turf, as the star of the lot, which includes George Starr, Camoufleur and others.

"It is possible that we may have a breeding establishment in France," said Mrs. Viau, "and most certainly we will have some horses to race in that country. If we should decide to go in for breeding, we, of course, would take back Omar Khayyam, who has been my own horse and pet."

According to the present plans of the Viaus, the entire racing establishment will go out of business and all the horses put up for sale to the highest bidder at the end of August. They had expected to be bidders for yearlings at the August sales, but now that they have decided to reside permanently in France they will

MOVE TO ORGANIZE BOXING COMMIS'N

TORONTO'S MAYOR FAVORS IT—WOULD PROTECT PUBLIC FROM DISHONEST PROMOTERS.

A movement is on foot to establish a provincial boxing commission in Ontario, and, according to the Toronto Times, Mayor Church of that city, favors the proposition and says: "It will help the game, and will protect the public from dishonest promoters. Such a commission is urgently needed."

The Times also says: "The commission could be formed of say three men, who are thoroughly acquainted with boxing and the conditions here, and would have complete control of all boxing in Ontario. The commission could be presided over by a chairman and would issue permits and superintend generally the conducting of boxing shows. They would have supreme power to grant and cancel charters for clubs, or suspend or otherwise punish promoters and boxers who did not live up to the conditions laid down by the commission.

"The commission would also appoint referees and only these appointees would be allowed to officiate at tourneys. They would also be subject to the discipline of the organization. In this way the present dissatisfaction against certain referees would be in a fair way to being remedied.

"The Legislature would have to endorse the formation of such a commission and while a grant would be needed to start it, in a short while it would be self-supporting as its upkeep could be assured by a percentage of the receipts at the various shows. Also charity could be assisted by taxing every gate.

"So get busy, boxing fans, and help a game which surely will be put on the shelf again unless some such commission as outlined is formed to govern the sport."

Peaceful Penetration.

The establishment of the Hunan Bank, under Sino-Japanese management in China, adds another to the long list of Japanese banking institutions on Chinese territory, institutions designed to play a very important part in the "peaceful penetration" scheme of Tokio. Japan apparently considers the location of banks in China an important part of her present and future program, facilitating trade, and going hand in hand with the evolution of such industries as those represented by the Sino-Japanese Oil Company, the Oriental Industrial Company, the Sino-Japanese Spinning Company, the Naigai Cotton Company, and other business enterprises originating in Japan and now established in China. The Yokohama Specie Bank is extending its exchange business in China with branches in Peking, Shanghai, Tientsin, and other cities, and is also working in a kind of partnership with the Bank of Korea, which has recently taken over from the Yokohama Bank the right to issue gold notes in Manchuria. The Sino-Japanese Chartered Bank of Exchange is another important institution, and a considerable number of other Japanese bank are now planning to open offices in Chinese cities. So the great Japanese scheme is already seen operating "full blast."

Art for Art's Sake.

"The desideratum of things artistic," mused the guy with the temperament, "would be a wedding between the girl on the front page of a current magazine and the fellow on the collar advertisement."

No French stock, as those of American breeding are not allowed to race for the prizes in that country.

JIMMY HILL AFTER LEONARD

Australian Featherweight Champion Wants To Meet Lightweights.

Chicago, July 31.—Jimmy Hill, the Australian feather weight champion, who came to this country a few weeks ago for the special purpose of meeting Johnny Kilbane, the American title holder, in a bout for the world's championship, is taking things easy in New York and becoming acclimated.

In the meantime the Australian feather weight champion would like to take on any of the stars in the lightweight division, including the champion, Benny Leonard, Johnny Dundee, Richie Mitchell, Lew Tendler, Joe Welling or any of the other leading light weights. Hill has taken on a few pounds in weight since his arrival.

It is reported from the Antipodes that Hill is the greatest featherweight Australia has had since the days of Young Griffo, who is conceded to have been the cleverest exponent of the art of self-defence the prize ring ever developed. William Lawless, who for a number of years was the boxing editor of the Sydney Referee and who now holds down the same position on Fair Play, in commenting on Hill's trip to the United States, said that the Americans were in for a treat when they watch the great feather weight in action, as, in his opinion, there never was a man who had left Australia, including the great Young Griffo, who could display greater cleverness.

NOTHING DOING FOR DEMPSEY IN FIGHTS

CHAMPION TO LIVE IN CHICAGO—CONSIDERING STAGE OFFERS—NOSE TO BE OPERATED UPON.

Chicago, July 31.—Jack Dempsey plans to make Chicago his home town. He is here to undergo a slight operation on the nose to assist his breathing. He will also consider many theatrical offers.

The first bid that came in was for stage work. The promoter offered $8000 a week for something like thirty weeks' work. Then another bid for twenty weeks' work came along, and for this $10,000 a week was offered. Several motion picture offers and a couple from syndicates which want to turn out stories with Dempsey's signature over them came through. It is possible that nothing will be done by Dempsey before the first of next week, regardless of which offer he accepts.

The champion realizes there will be nothing doing for him in the fight game against American scrappers for some time to come, so it is possible he may be matched to scrap the winner of the Georges Carpentier-Joe Beckett match which is to be held shortly.

Dempsey wants to meet the winner of that match in this country because he believe it will draw more money here than in London or Paris. However, if it becomes a matter of fighting abroad or not fighting at all it is a pretty safe bet that Jack will do the sailing to show the winner of the French British conflict that his hooks are in working order.

Charged with stealing a Stradivarius, two men were placed under arrest at Toronto.

A man was struck down and seriously injured by an automobile in College street, Toronto, safety zone.

Life's Turning Point.

When you get into a tight place, and everything goes against you, till it seems as if you couldn't hold on a minute longer, never give up then, for that is just the place and time the tide will turn. — Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Pity the Manicurist.

Of course you have your little worries and moments of vexation while going about your daily tasks, but suppose you had to listen to all the flubdub and mushy talk a manicurist has to listen to while she goes about hers?—Macon Telegraph.

The Target at Fault.

A company of militia had been out all day for target practice, and on their return the captain said to one of the sergeants: "How are your men coming along, sergeant?" "Well, sir," said the sergeant, with an air of great pride, "my men shot very well today, very well, but they would have shot better perhaps if the target had stood a little more to the left!"

Cure for Rheumatism.

A certain variety of seaweed, known in Ireland as "tope," has been recommended by a famous physician as a cure for rheumatism and throat affections if eaten hot, whilst in some parts of England and Wales a variety of seaweed, known as "laver," has been in demand for years as a vegetable. Served with roast meats it is said to be extremely palatable.

When Actresses Were Unknown.

In ancient times actresses were unknown. The people of Elizabethan times were perfectly content to stand for a young male Juliet. Around about 1656, though, Charles II of England began encouraging women to appear on the English stage, and since then actresses have been appearing all over the world with varying degrees of success.

The First Silk.

The first silk was made 2000 B. C. by the wife of a Chinese emperor. Aristotle, in 350 B. C., first mentions silk among the Greeks. The manufacture of silk was carried on in Sicily in the twelfth century, later spreading to Italy, Spain and the south of France. It was not manufactured in England before 1604.

Retain "Perspective."

We say of a painting that the "perspective" is good—meaning that we can see far ahead, beyond the apparent background to imagined beauties still further in the distance. Many people have not this perspective; they see only the pebbles and shallow water in the foreground and, stopping to dabble their feet in the first pleasant invitation to ease and coolness, they lose the call and lure of the deep pools and forests farther on, content to stay at the half-way house, even forgetting that they once held a faint vision of castles of accomplishment.

Ant Development.

Ants have developed nothing remotely resembling industrial organization. Many unnecessary conclusions have been drawn from comparing neuter (undeveloped female) ant workers with the unmarried women of modern industry. A comparison with child labor would be truer. For ant workers are always "hunger" forms—stunted creatures who have no economic opportunity to grow up—who are forced by family necessity to venture out for food before they reach full growth.

Napkins.

Table napkins were in use long before some of the other accessories which we consider indispensable today. Before forks came to be known, men had to use their fingers in preparing their food; hence the ancient common habit of frequently passing the basin of water and its accompanying napkin for wiping the hands. It now seems incredible that forks were not customary until the seventeenth century.

Physicians' Oath.

A part of the Hippocratic oath is as follows: "Whatever, in connection with my professional practice, or not in connection with it, I may see or hear in the lives of men which ought not to be spoken abroad, I will not divulge, as reckoning that all such should be kept secret." This oath is respected by every court in the world, and rarely indeed has it ever been broken by a reputable physician.

SPECIAL ADDRESSES TO CONVERTS IN Y

SECOND OF THIS SERIES FRIDAY —MEETINGS PROMISE MUCH HELP.

The second of the series of special addresses by Evangelist H. D. Kennedy to the converts in the recent campaign conducted in Peterborough will be given tomorrow (Friday) in the Y.M.C.A.

Last week so many of those who endeavored to attend the meeting were confused by finding the front door fastened owing to the alterations being made in the building. The entrance is by the side door. Besides a considerable number of converts at the meeting last Friday night several of the personal workers were present and assisted in the meeting. Mr. Kennedy gave practical instruction dealing with what Christ has done and offers to do for those who have been saved and showed ways in which those who have accepted Christ can look to Him for victory in daily life. Quite a few converts gave personal testimony to the reality of their conversion and the blessings that they have already received.

These meetings promise to be very helpful to the converts.

HAPPY FAMILY REUNION WITH MRS. ROBT. WEIR, AT LANG

A Large Number Of Connections Gather At Old Home.

A very pleasant family re-union took place on Tuesday, July 22, at Lang, when the seven sons and five daughters of the late Robert Weir and Mrs. R. Weir gathered at the old home.

The day was spent in games, music and table entertainment.

There were present:—Mrs. R. Weir, Maggie, Christina, Harold and Mrs. Harold Weir, who live on the homestead; Mr. and Mrs. William Weir and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Weir and two daughters Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weir, their son and daughter, all of Lang; Mrs. Wm. Renwick and son, from near Keene; Mr. and Mrs R. J. Weir and son, from Omemee; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Weir, their two daughters and son, from Kitchener, who are at their summer cottage at Campbelltown at present; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weir and their son, of Swift Current, Sask., and Mrs. B. W. Green and her two daughters, also of Swift Current; Mrs. W. Spencer, of Stanstead, Oregon and Kenneth son of the late Thomas A. Weir, from Toronto.

The meeting together of such a large family after so many years of separation and the rehearsing of so many of their old experiences was most interesting, much enjoyed by all and surely gratifying to the mother of so large a family.

The immediate connection consists of thirty-six in all. There have been but two breaks in the family—Thomas A., who died nine years ago last March, and Robert, the father, who died four years ago in September of this year. This is certainly a good record and one to be proud of.

WEEKLY DANCES OF GOLF CLUB ARE POPULAR EVENTS

Lovers of the Terpsichorean Art Had Enjoyable Evening.—Illuminations and Decorations Were Superb.

Peterborough Golf and Country Club House was the scene of much real pleasure last night when the members of that progressive organization congregated to spend a pleasant social evening. This event was equally as successful as the one of the preceding week and especially gratifying to the members in the fact that the interest is increasing with each weekly dance. Evidently these weekly terpsicharean offerings in the social life of Peterborough will be looked forward to each week as the club members delight in the pleasant recreation and everyone has unquestionably, a splendid time. Last night everything was in first-class condition for an entertainment of this kind. The night was ideal—the floors were temptingly waxed and the music, by Moher and Fitzgerald's orchestra, was the spirited breezy sort that fills the atmosphere of an evening with a certain zest and kills monotony. The decorations consisting of pennants arranged at intervals among evergreens presented a very pleasing appearance, especially so, as the club house and grounds were beautifully illuminated with colored electric effects.

This is an ideal location in every way for such an event during golfing season and its popularity should and undoubtedly will increase with each occasion.

Those Present.

F. Bradburn, Mr. Hudson, G. Wood and Mrs. Wood, W. Stratton, F. Patterson, B. D. Hull and Mrs. Hull, C. H. Rogers, S. D. Hall and Mrs Hall, R. H. Turner and Mrs. Turner, H. Crane, R. M. Hamilton, M. ISAAC EASTWOOD FINED FOR CUTTING ST. CORNER

Charged With Making Prohibited Turn At Corner Of George And Brock Streets.

Mr. I. Eastwood was fined $5 and costs in police court this morning for cutting the corner at Brock street Mr. Eastwood was charged with coming south on George Street, and turning east on Brock without keeping to his right side of the road

Mr. Eastwood could not remember the ocasion but was willing to swear he had never cut a corner too short in Peterborough. He claimed to be one of the most careful drivers in Peterborough. As he could not bring any witnesses to prove that he had not cut the corner the Magistrate was forced to give him the minimum fine

Mr Eastwood requested The Review to ask the local policemen to have their eyes tested to avoid further mistakes.

DEATH OF ZORRA GIRL

Woodstock, July 31 The death took place last night at the home of Frank Cole, East Zorra, of Maggie, the third daughter of the late Thomas and Janet Cole. The deceased, who had suffered from a lingering illness, was born in East Zorra. She is survived by three brothers and three sisters.

WOULD RESUME WORK

Kingston, July 31 The metal workers are urging strikers at Locomotive Works to vote and decide whether they will go back to work. Decision must be made by Friday. Men are quite open in statements favoring a return to work and criticizing agitators who would prolong the strike regardless of consequences to themselves and their fellow-workers.

HAMMERSTEIN ILL.

New York, July 31. Physicians attending Oscar Hammerstein, the celebrated theatre builder and grand opera producer, declared today that his condition is so critical they fear he can live only a few hours. Mr Hammerstein is now in a coma, and his entire right side is paralyzed.

THEATRICAL

"THE BLUFFER" STARS JUNNE ELVIDGE

IRVING CUMMINGS AND FRANK MAYO ALSO SEEN IN AN INTERESTING NEW WORLD PICTURE.

"The Bluffer," the story of a young society woman who has no money and who tries to get along by bluffing, is coming to the Grand Theatre today, Friday and Saturday. June Elvidge is the star of this production, and she is supported by a super-excellent cast. Appearing with Miss Elvidge are Irving Cummings and Frank Mayo in interesting, likeable roles, which give them splendid opportunities for the display of their talents.

"The Bluffer" was written by Clara S. Beranger, who has penned a number of the World successes and who has written successes for other companies as well, and it is one of the very best productions that she has ever turned out. It is an ideal vehicle for beautiful Miss Elvidge.

One of the things about "The Bluffer" that will particularly appeal to the feminine theatregoers is the fact that it presents a wonderful display of gowns. Miss Elvidge wears some of the very latest gowns and hats.

An elaborate staging has been given "The Bluffer," and the outdoor scenes are beautiful and attractive. From all angles it is a pleasing, interesting, entertaining production, and it will make a hit with all theatregoers who like swift-moving entertainment.

June Elvidge in "The Bluffer" is the sort of a picture you will long remember.

WIRELESS APPARATUS CONCEALED IN PIANO

An entire wireless outfit, consisting of sending and receiving apparatus was made to fit in a piano for one of the scenes of "The Island of Intrigue," the latest Metro play in which May Allison will be seen and which will be featured at the Grand Theatre, today, Friday and Saturday.

With this wireless Maida Waring, played by Miss Allison, is able to summon aid when she is captured and held for ransom by a band of daring blackmailers.

The play is a thrilling drama of love, intrigue and adventure, and many of the scenes were taken on the beautiful semi-tropical island of Santa Cruz.

ANOTHER CAR ACCIDENT

Car Ran Into Standing Motor and Smashed Fender and Wheel Cap.

An accident occurred about 10 o'clock last night, when two automobiles collided at the corner of Simcoe and Park streets.

One car was standing near the curb on Aylmer street. The other car turned off Simcoe street and not seeing the first machine ran straight into it. The fender and cap of the wheel of the car which was standing was smashed but the damage done was slight compared with what it might have been.

MOTOR BUS AFIRE

About 12.20 last night it was discovered that the motor bus in the Empress Hotel yard was on fire. The cause is yet unknown, but it is supposed that someone left a lighted cigar or cigarette on the seat of the bus. The cushions were badly burned and the varnish was blistered. The car had been standing idle all day yesterday.

DEATH PENALTY FOR BOTH BLACK AND WHITE SLAYERS IN RIOTS IS DEMANDED

Grand Jury to Meet on Monday—Coroner Hoffman Blames Hoodlums For Chicago Savagery—Travelling Jury Continuing Auto Tour on Inquest of Dead.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—The August grand jury will take first steps Monday to mete out justice to the men who have shot and stabbed and beaten their fellow citizens in Chicago this week.

With special representatives present from the attorney-general's and state's attorney's office, the jury will begin the task of identifying the rioters, examining the evidence against those and returning indictments against those who appear responsible for deaths or disorder. Attorney-General Brundage has named his assistant, Charles W. Middlekauff, to represent him. Mr. Middlekauff acted in a similar capacity following the East St. Louis riots, and dispatched a large number of that city's disturbers to the penitentiary for long terms.

Mr. Brandage defined the killings during the riots as murder and said that, as in East St. Louis riots, the state would ask that those convicted of slaying be given the full punishment provided in the statute for murder. State's Attorney Hoyne declared that he was in favor of capital punishment, and that he would ask the death penalty for those convicted.

Hoffman to Fix Blame

"I am going to do everything possible in my official capacity to fix the blame for these riots," said Coroner Hoffman. "All persons, regardless of whether they are black or white, who are responsible for inciting or participating in these riots must be held and justice will be meted out without regard to the race of the parties concerned. The men on the jury which I have picked for this investigation are all as determined as myself, on this matter.

Hoodlums Blamed for Riots

"Hunger leads men to do things they would not do otherwise. A few restless hoodlums agitating can stir up thousands of men to riots. If all these men, both black and white had work I do not believe that there would be any riots. I am going to get in touch with the public officials to broach plans for greater extension of the co-operation of city, country and state in obtaining employment for men. There are many appropriations for public projects which can be started at once upon which these men could be employed, if there is no place for them in commercial industry."

The coroner and his "travelling jury," will continue their auto tour of undertaking establishments to view race riot bodies, this afternoon. The bodies of James Sanford, colored; Walter Peagrake, white; G. L. Wilkins, white and Theodore Copling, colored, were to be seen today. There may be other deaths in various hospitals during the day, in which case there bodies would be visited also.

Coroner Hoffman announced that inquiry into the blimp disaster had been indefinitely continued, subject to his call, until the riot, situation clears up

TWO MILLIONS TO VOTE ON THE REFERENDUM

LARGE INCREASE IS DUE TO THE FRANCHISE GRANTED WOMEN.

More than a majority of the constituencies of Ontario have been canvassed by the Government enumerators, and the lists are now in the hands of the printers. Harvesting conditions have somewhat delayed the work in a few rural constituencies but nearly all urban constituencies have completed their work.

"It will be necessary to extend the time in a few cases though no formal extension is being granted, but the work is progressing remarkably well," said Mr. A. M. Dymond, Chief Law Clerk of the Government. "The lists in the majority of cases are now in the hands of the printers, or will be at the first of the week, and in the few remaining cases a few days later."

Mr. Dymond stated that all Toronto lists were in the hands of the printers. According to a rough estimate by the Chief Law Clerk the vote on the referendum will, if voters turn out, be an exceedingly heavy one. He estimates that there will be between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 votes, which is more than double the vote on previous elections. The great increase is due to the women's vote.

ANOTHER BAD SMASH-UP

On Charlotte Between Bethune and Stewart Street This Time.

Another bad motor accident occurred on Charlotte street yesterday afternoon about 4.30 clock.

A car proceeding west on Charlotte street, between Bethune and Stewart streets, ran into a wagon also going west and running near the side of the curb.

The horse ran away, going west on Charlotte street and Dunnet, the driver jumped. Sherwood, who was with him, was less fortunate, being dragged by the runaway as far as Rubidge street. He was not seriously injured.

The horse received some nasty cuts around the hind feet in the mix-up, and the wagon was badly damaged.

WILL RECOMMEND THAT COUNCIL LICENSE CITY BILL POSTERS

Five Other Ontario Cities Adopted Measure ---Two Assess Bill Boards.

The first business to be considering last night was an account of Tax Collector Green.

By a bylaw passed by the Council a short time ago, Mr. Green was allowed $450 a year besides his salary for help and postage. Mr. Green regulated his work to stay within the limit, but he found it necessary to hire some extra help amounting to $24. As the committee could not amend the bylaw passed by the Council, the matter was left over for Council meeting.

To Tax Bill Boards.

The question of assessing the bill boards of the city and liscensing the bill posters was next brought up. Answers to enquiries to other cities showed that five of the cities from whom answers were received licensed t = bill posters and two assessed the bill boards. At present in Peterborough there is no license fee or assessment.

Alderman Edgar moved and Alderman Phelan seconded, that the Council be recommended to pass a bylaw setting a certain license on bill posters and that Mr. Stocker be requested to have a statement before the Council Monday night, showing the number of lineal feet of bill boards used by him.

TROUBLE FOR JAPS

Anti-Japanese Disturbances in Tsi-Nan-Fu, China, Reported.

Honolulu, Aug. 2.—Serious anti-Japanese disturbances are reported at Tsi-Nan-Fu, China, according to cable advices received her from Tokio by the Nippu Jiji, a Japanese daily newspaper. The cable added that the commander of the Chinese garrison had declared martial law.

Forest fires are still raging throughout the Algoma district.

ENUMERATORS' WORK NEARS COMPLETION

Mr. Strickland reports that the work of the enumerators in the city is very near completion. With the exception of Sub-division No. 1 in the south end of the city, the lists have been completed and will be handed to the clerk of the registration board on Monday next.

Mr. Strickland is experiencing great difficulty in some parts of the county. The work in Smith, Monaghan, Ennismore and Harvey is reaching completion, but in outlying parts of Galway and Cavendish it is very difficult to get men to act.

IN TESTIMONY OF HEROISM OF SOLDIERS IN GREAT WAR

In appreciation of the unexcelled loyalty to home and empire shown by Peterborough soldiers, who made the supreme sacrifice in the great war, the Peterborough Board of Trade have decided to present a memorial certificate to the next of kin of this city's glorious dead. This certificate will be of artistic merit and of durable form for preservation as a memento of the Great War and should serve as a patriotic inspiration to the rising generation.

$25 FOR DESIGN

The design for this memento will be selected by competition, open to all Peterborough residents.

Competitors will forward their designs in plain sealed envelopes addressed to Ryerson Ritchie, care of the Board of Trade, 358 George street, on or before Saturday, August 9th, 1919. Each design is to be signed by a pseudonym, the key to which is to be given in a separate sealed envelope.

To the successful competitor an award of $25 will be paid. The winner of the prize will at the same time have the happy satisfaction of having contributed to the official record of the part Peterborough's fallen heroes played in the Great War for democracy.

The judges of the competition will be H. R. H. Kenner, B. A.; Francis P. McNulty, M. D.; William A. Logan, C.E.; Mrs. Vincent Eastwood, President of the Women's Art Association and Mrs. Arthur Stevenson. The award, when made, will be announced in the local press.

COUNCIL CONGRATULATED ON CHOICE OF CONTRACTORS TO BUILD NEW BRIDGE

John Russell & His Associates Have Handled Work Running Into Millions, and Prices Fixed After Work Was Done—That Expresses Confidence Which Should Also Be Shared by Peterborough Citizens.

Editor Review: The form of contract under which the bridge is to be built and which the Council has entered into with the contracting firm is the subject of comment among our citizens. Quite rightly so, as the expense is to be met by the citizens, and each is vitally interested in the work and the outcome.

May I congratulate the members of Council, with several of whom I was associated with in civic affairs, on having selected as the builders a firm of whose bona fides there cannot be the least possible doubt. I would like every citizen to have the same confidence in the personality and business grip of the firm that I am sure the majority of Council feel. I write this to assure and convince, so far as something put in print and which may be vouched for can do so."

Contract Offers Possibilities.

The form of contract and its execution presents possibilities, and it will be in the way that these are approached, seized and handled that the cost of the structure will be determined. And confidence in the men handling such a proposition is the basis of the work. As the contract has been awarded there can be no objection to remarking on the personality of the firm that will handle the proposition. The senior member of the firm is John Russell, a man esteemed almost beyond others as a self-made man, absolutely square, rigid in his determination to do good work, known to never slight that to which he puts his hand, a master of his profession and of ample experience. Mr. Townsend may not be so well known, but he is the kind of man that John Russell could and would only have associated with him. If we know one horse of the team, we can pretty well judge that the off horse is a good match.

Accustomed to Big Work.

When the Harbor Commissioners of Montreal want a big thing done and done right they send for John Russell. If the Water Front Commission at Toronto have a constructing problem that looks like a frost to the average man, John Russell tackles it and anxiety is done away with. He and those associated with him have handled work running into the millions and the prices have been fixed after the work was done. That expresses confidence.

The public—that is the property holders—whose holdings will carry the burden of the cost of the bridge, may, I am assured rest easy that the bridge will cost just what it could cost, and no more, so long as Mr. Russell has the say so. That no contracting firm—and other firms, good ones too, who tendered—can or would build the bridge at lesser cost. If the plans to be followed are right the bridge will be right. Council is satisfied that Mr. Barber understands his business, and we accept his proposition. But while many citizens, men who are careful and successful in their affairs, shake their heads and demur that a definite price was not exacted, those of us who haven't anything to say about but to help to pay may rest assured that we shall not be mulcted by the contractors who will do a fine work and as reasonable as it can be done.

John Russell Saves Expense.

Besides it may not be known to the public that if it were not for John Russell the bridge would cost something more than it will cost. Some years ago the cement makers arranged that cement would be manufactured just sowhere, and in process of

MOVE TO LICENSE BOARDING HOUSES

COUNCIL OF WOMEN ASKS COUNCIL TO ACT—FINANCE COM. LEAVE MATTER IN ABEYANCE.

The local Council of Women are making efforts toward improving the boarding houses of the city. Mayor Duncan stated that they had sent a delegation to him to press their views. They claim, after careful observation, that some of the boarding houses of the city are not up to a satisfactory standard. Some girls, who are forced to board, are deprived of the comfort of a sitting room to entertain company. Even some of the boarding houses are not kept in a perfectly sanitary condition. They submitted the following letter to the Finance Committee last night, but no action was taken:

"I have been instructed by the local Council of Women to respectfully request the City Council that a municipal bylaw be passed requiring all persons wishing to keep boarders or to rent rooms to register and obtain a license. Such license to be free, but before license is given the house be inspected by a representative of the Medical Health Department. That a reasonable standard of hygiene and sanditation be required, and every house to have a common reception room or sitting room where the occupants are free to entertain a guest. That each person holding a license be required to keep a register of all inmates of the house, this to be available for referente at any time. Each licensed house to be under the supervision of the Medical Health Department and open to inspection by the M. O. H. or his representative at any time.

STEEL WORKERS TO GO ON STRIKE

TWO THOUSAND IN NORTH CHICAGO TAKE VOTE TO THIS END.

More than two thousand workers of the American Steel & Wire company at North Chicago, are ready to strike August 20, unless the steel corporation reinstates a large number of men who were discharged during the time the plant was being organized. Since the first of the year 70 per cent of its employes have been organized, despite the fact that the mill has always been an open shop. A secret vote is being taken and the ballots will be in upon that date.

There was much dissatisfaction among the workmen several months ago when the union leaders first began to work, but a strike appeared imminent then. The unions decided it would be "suicidal" to call a strike while steel plants elsewhere were still unorganized as the steel corporation would simply shift its work to other plants and starve them out here.

$2,000,000 WORTH OF FERDINAND'S ESTATE GOES TO ENGLISH CROWN

Bonds and Other Securities Held in United Kingdom at Outbreak of War Forfeited

London, Aug. 1.—Proceedings a little out of the ordinary course took place at the Royal Courts of Justice, when an inquisition under the Wafer Great Seal was held before Commissioner Bowstead and a jury, to inquire whether bearer bonds and other securities, to the value of £400,000, in this country, standing in the name of the ex-Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria, or his nominees, at the outbreak of war, were forfeitable to the Crown by reason of the war between this country and Bulgaria.

The Attorney-General (Sir Gordon Hewart) appeared for the Crown, and after little more than formal proceedings the jury held that the securities in question were the property of the ex-Czar Ferdinand and by reason of his acts they had become forfeitable to the Crown.

Tte Attorney-General, who appeared with Mr Branson for the Crown, said the inquiry was for the purpose of putting on record the fact that certain securities once the property of Ferdinand the ex-King of Bulgaria, have become forfeited to the King of England by reason of the outbreak of war between this country and Bulgaria.

There were three schedules in which these securities were made They comprised securities the value of which amounted in the whole to roughly £400,000. The facts were undisputed. On October 15, 1915, at 10 p.m. a state of war began to exist between this country and Bulgaria. For some years before that date Messrs. Coutts and Co., the bankers, had acted as agents for King Ferdinand, as he then was, and in that capacity held for him a number of securities which fell into three classes. There were, first of all, bearer securities; secondly, securities held by nominees; and, thirdly, securities registered in the name of Ferdinand himself. With regard to the securities held by nominees, they fell into three separate classes. Some of them were in the name of Messrs. Coutts and Co., some in the names of Mr. Malcolm and Mr. Marjoribanks, and some in the names of Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Phillimore.

Upon the outbreak of the war it became obligatory on Messrs. Coutts and Co., under Act of Parliament to disclose these facts. Messrs. Coutts communicated to the Public Trustee the fact that they held these securities. On November 8, 1915, they filed a return showing the securities they held, and on July 22, 1916, the Treasury called upon Messrs. Coutts and Co. to deposit the securities held by them with the Bank of England, to the order of the Secretary of the Treasury.

On August 4, 1916, Messrs Coutts, in obedience to that demand, deposited a number of the securities with the Bank. They were valued at the time at £263,588 19c. 8d. There remained, however, a balance of securities to be deposited On August 7, 1916, the remainder of the securities were always deposited, except some stock o f thBegeoofpfiof9Pdl Some stock of the Buenos Ayres Southern Railway Co., and some stock of the port of London, those being held at the time in anticipation of larger amounts.

The dividends received from time to time upon the securities had been invested in Treasury Bills and there had also been invested in Treasury Bills, the sum that was yielded by the paying off of certain of the securities. That accounted for the fact that in the first schedule there was a sum of £77,000 in Treasury Bills shown.

A member of the staff of Messrs. Coutts and Co., and an official of the Bank of England, gave formal proof of the facts stated by the Attorney-General.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

SATURDAY, AUGUST 2, 1919

LET THERE BE NO COMPROMISE.

FROM ALL INDICATIONS the general provincial election is only a few weeks off. It may or it may not be held on the same date as the temperance referendum. That question may for the time be waived. The point is that every day brings the election nearer, and as yet there has been nothing done in the way of preparing for the most important electoral contest ever held in the Province of Ontario. Next week it is expected that a final announcement will be made from Toronto, but why wait for this, which, after all, will only definitely settle the day? The parties are lining up in battle array all over the Province.

The attitude of Premier Hearst is watched with interest. Recent public addresses made by him leave no doubt as to his stand. There is nothing suggestive of a compromise course in anything he says. He proposes to go to the country on his record, to stand by his guns, no matter what the outcome. That outcome will be victory if the people of this Province are true to themselves and to the traditions and principles of the party.

There is not a single legislative act of the Ontario Government which can be assailed by the Opposition. The faith which Sir James Whitney left as a heritage to his successor has been kept with fidelity. The Administration of Sir William Hearst has been marked by progress. He has placed the management of the Education Department in capable hands. The most important branch of the Ontario Government has taken a greater stride forward since the appointment of Hon. Dr. Cody to his present office than has been made in any decade since Ontario became a province. The agricultural affairs of the Province are looked after by a practical farmer. The war record of the Government has been above reproach. No Administration has escaped criticism to the same extent as that of the Premier who in a few weeks will make an appeal to the people.

Leaving one issue out of the question altogether, any politician knows that the return of Sir William Hearst would be a matter merely of the size of the majority which the party would secure. There is not otherwise a point on which the Opposition could hang even the semblance of a case. Even the Labor party must admit that in the Workmen's Compensation Act the wage-earners of this Province are protected as they are nowhere else on earth, and that without any cost to themselves.

But the one question will be the paramount issue in the coming election. The Opposition prepared for the contest with that issue in view. Had the runner-up in the race for the leadership been elected, the same statement could have been made in truth.

With regard to that issue, Sir William Hearst has kept faith with the people in every particular. In the first place, he received an unmistakable mandate from the electors and gave that mandate effect regardless of what it might mean to himself politically. He amended the Act from time to time as defects were revealed. The law has been enforced without fear or favor. Just as that Act was the most important of his administration so will it be the leading issue when the voters go to the polls. That question cannot be divorced from politics in Ontario any more than in any other province or country where it arises.

With the attitude of the Premier an open book, the Conservative associations should have no doubt as to how to shape their course. There must be no local compromises. Candidates who will support the Premier should be selected, men who are sincere in their convictions, and whose professions have not been assumed for the occasion. There should be no warming over of devotion, no made-to-order principles. Men of the stamp of the Premier himself are essential as candidates if victory is to be achieved.

PERSEVERING IN A BLUNDER.

THE LIBERAL UNIONISTS will not be admitted to the big convention at Ottawa next week. The welcoming candle dip that Leader McKenzie placed in the window as a beacon light to guide them back has been removed. The fatted calf has been turned out to pasture. None but the hard-shelled anti-conscriptionist members of the party will be recognized.

It is bad enough to make a blunder, political or otherwise. It is still worse to persevere in error after the light of experience has shown up the mistake. The Liberal Unionists would rather be consistent even than right. They lost the flower of their membership over the conscription issue two years ago. The best men in the Liberal party, without exception either in Parliament or in the country, found themselves unable to follow it on the leading issue of the day. These men placed country before party with a commendable disregard for consequences. What followed that secession of forces is now a matter of painful history to the remnant that courted disaster by standing pat on a mere partisan plank.

The Liberal Unionists really worked the party no harm. Without their secession the general result would have been the same. The country would, to all intents and purposes, divided just as it did in the election of 1917, even if Union Government had never been thought of. The principle involved would have been identical.

The Liberal Unionists, save and except on the war issue, remained to the present day as true Liberals as ever. They did not surrender their convictions on any of the other public questions, but simply agreed to hold them in abeyance until the war was over. That result has been achieved and the Liberal Unionists are relieved of their obligations to remain neutral. They have served their country and have accomplished what they set out to do. They are not Conservatives today, are as much out of place as supporters of a Conservative Government as they would have been at any time in their career before the war.

The attitude of the hard-shell Liberals on the conscription issue will always stand against their record. They could in a measure palliate their former offences by extending the glad hand to those who proved themselves no mere blind followers of an unrighteous cause. They could leaven the hard lump of political obstinacy that appears now their chief asset. But they prefer to remain obdurate, rather inclined to boast of a course which brought them to the verge of extinction.

And if the Liberal Unionists in Parliament are to be cast out for all time, what of the thousands of voters in the country who, on December 17, 1917, justified the action of those members in no uncertain terms?

FORTY-ONE YEARS EDITOR.

MR. M. A. JAMES has just completed forty-one years as editor of the Canadian Statesman of Bowmanville, a length of service that no one would suspect, did not the sprightly dean of the profession in Central Ontario himself make the admission. Mr. James's record as a journalist is as creditable as it is extended, and under his able management the Statesman has long been recognized as one of the best weeklies in Ontario. The strenuous political battles through which Mr. James has guided the Statesman have left him without a scar save those acquired in honorable conflict.

The active management of the paper is now in the hans of his two sons. Mr. James says he assists with editorial work as the spirit moves him. And it continues to move him, too, with weekly regularity. The readers of the Statesman can by this time recognize his strong personality in every line he pens. May he long be spared to fight, even as he has done all these years.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

NO VOTES.

(Brantford Expositor.)

The U. S. senators who know how to settle the Irish problem might well turn to and settle the negro problem of the capital city itself. If the Irish were treated as badly as the negroes in the southern sections of the United States, no violence to win their rights would be too extreme. But the negroes have no votes, so the U. S. senators abstain from interference.

NOT HOPEFUL.

(Guelph Mercury.)

There's a large measure of horse sense in the resolution of the returned soldiers that the profiteers of the country be made to pay a goodly portion of the national debt by refunding excessive profits. But it's hardly to be expected that they can persuade the government to think kindly enough of the proposition to make it an issue before the electorate.

ONE CAME FROM 'BURG.

(Ogdensburg News.)

Charlie Osgood, the chief cook at Brunett's restaurant next door, went abroad Friday. He journeyed to Brockville to attend the circus. It was a great day for Charlie. He became so interested watching the elephants snap peanuts with their trunks that he almost missed seeing the big show. And the pink lemonade—well, it tasted real good. And—oh! my!—we almost forgot—the debonair Beau Brummel of the 'Burg almost lost an eye watching the Canadian beauties that ambled up and down the sawdust trail.

SOLDIER SETTLEMENT REVIEW

Up to the 12th of July the Soldier Settlement Board received 23,047 applications for qualification certificates. Of these, 17,271 were approved.

Loans approved to the 12th of July number 6,461 for a total of $20,038,000.

The first returned soldier in Canada to repay in full his loan secured from the Soldier Settlement Board for the purchase of a farm is John Lee, of Langley, B.C. Mr. Lee purchased a farm of 160 acres and received an advance of $2500 from the Board on April 9 of this year. The farm consisted of five acres broken for cultivation, ten acres in a state easy to prepare for cultivation, 25 acres covered with light scrub, and 120 acres in heavy timber.

From the timber portion of his farm he was able to secure sufficient money to repay the government loan in full and leave him with capital to operate his farm.

Lee enlisted in Vancouver in September, 1915, and saw service in France with the 1st Canadian Pioneers.

Veterans Make Good as Farmers.

The Toronto Star of July 26 notes favorable reports from Ontario soldier-farmers who have been assisted by the Soldier Settlement Board of Canada. For example, one man in Huron County, who saw service in France, took over a farm under the Soldier Settlement Act. This year his sale of pork alone has already netted him $1500. Other branches of his work are proving almost as successful.

Another man went on to his farm in April, and from the report that the inspectors made to the Board it was not in a condition to boast of. Two months later the veteran had so improved the land that a neighbor offered $1000 more than the purchase price of two months' before for the farm.

Altogether the reports have been most favorable and almost without exception the men have shown unusual initiative, interest and energy in taking up their new occupations.

These cases evince the fact, according to the Star, that the progressive spirit of the returned men was not all left in France, and that they are capable of grappling with the problems of life and successfully overcoming any difficulties.

SKETCH OF DAVID LLOYD GEORGE

writing about six years before the beginning of the world war, A. G. Gardiner placed in "Prophets, Priests and Kings," a sketch from which the following is an extract.

"I was seated at dinner one night at 10 Downing Street beside a distinguished Liberal 'What a wonderful bust of Chamberlain that is in the hall,' I said. 'Ah,' he replied; 'you mean the bust of Pitt. Yes, it is marvelously like Chamberlain. I wonder,' he went on, musingly, as though the question fitted in with his train of thought—'I wonder what will happen to Chamberlain's successor.' I looked up. 'Chamberlain's successor You mean—' 'Lloyd George of course'

"There was a faint hint of reproof in the 'of course,' as though I had asked solemnly for an explanation of the obvious. I looked down the table to where Lloyd George himself sat, his face lit up with that smile, so quick and sunny, yet so obscure, his light voice penetrating the hum of conversation, with its note of mingled seriousness and banter, his whole air, at once so alert and self-poised, full of a baffling fascination and disquiet. Yes, here was the unknown factor of the future, here the potentiality of politics.

"And here, too, was its romance. My mind turned to that little village between the mountains and the sea where the fatherless boy learned the rudiments of knowledge in the village school, and where, in leading his school-fellows in a revolt against the catechism he gave the first hint of the mettle that was in him. I saw the kindly old uncle, bootmaker and local preacher, worrying out the decisions and the irregular verbs of strange tongues in order to pave the path of the boy to the law. I saw that boy at twenty-one a qualified solicitor, with his foot on the ladder fighting the battle of the village folk.

I saw him, still little more than a lad, leaping into the ring and challenging the squire of his village for the possession of the Carnarvon boroughs challenging and beating him. I saw him, with nothing but his native wit and his high-soaring courage to help him, flashing into the great world of politics, risking his fortune and even his life in support of an unpopular cause, escaping from Bermingham town hall in the clothes of a policeman, his name the symbol of fierce enthusiasms and fiercer hates. And then I saw him, transformed from the brilliant free-lance into the serious statesman, the head of a great department handling large problems of government with easy mastery, moving great merchant princes like pawns on his chessboard, winning golden opinions from all sides, his name always on the lips of the world, but not longer in hate—rather in wondering admiration, mingled with doubt And now there he sat, the man who has 'arrived,' the most piquant and the most baffling figure in politics—the man, perhaps, with the key to the future.

What is the secret of it all? In the first place, audacity. Danton's great maxim is with him, as with Mr. Chamberlain, the guiding principle of conduct He swoops down on opportunity like a hawk on its prey He does not pause to think; he acts He has no fear. The bigger the task the better he likes it. The bigger the stakes the more heroic is play. He never fears to put his fate to the touch, and will cheerfully risk his all on a throw. When the great moment came he seized it with both hands. He had two motives: his love of the small nationality and his instinct for the great game. The one gave him passion, the other calculation. Here was the occasion; he was the man. His business was being ruined; no matter. His life and his home were threatened; good. The greater the perils the greater the victory. And

" 'We roared 'Hurrah!' and so
The little Revenge ran on right into the heart of the foe'—

ran on and lashed itself to the great San Philip of Birmingham, and came out of the battle-smoke victorious."

EDITOR'S MAIL

VOICES OF THE NIGHT

Editor Review:—Please allow me space to voice a protest about the unnecessary noises one hears so often on our streets. Noise has become associated with the business life of a city but there are times when quietness is appreciated.

Take for example, this morning about four or five o'clock, the fire department was called out to a fire in the north end of the city. They left the fire hall with bells clanging sirens blowing and apparently making every endeavor to awaken the slumbering citizens. Now, at this hour of the morning it was hardly necessary to make all this noise while driving to the scene of the fire. It has always been understood that the sirens and bells were for the purpose of clearing the streets of traffic but at four or five in the morning there is absolutely no traffic on the streets of Peterboro.

In the old days, before we had properly organized fire brigades, it was necessary to make a big noise on the ocasion of a fire to summon the citizens to assist in fighting the red demon, but now with the splendid organization under Chief Grange, this noise is surely not necessary.

—Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this consideratian, I am, yours.

DISTURBED

STOMACH TROUBLE

Comes When the Blood is Weak and Watery.

Thin blooded people generally have stomach trouble. But they seldom recognize the fact that thin blood is the cause of their indigestion, but it is.

Thin blood is one of the most common causes of stomach trouble; it affects the digestion very quickly. The glands that furnish the digestive fluids are diminished in their activity, the stomach muscles are weakened and there is a loss of nerve force. In this state of health nothing will more quickly restore the appetite, digestion and normal nutrition than good, rich red blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood, making it rich and red, and this enriched blood strengthens weak nerves, stimulates tired muscles, and awakens to normal activity the glands that supply the digestive fluids. The first sign of returning health is an improved appetite, and soon the affect of these blood-making pills is evident throughout the whole system. You find that what you eat does not distress you, and that you are strong and vigorous instead of irritable and listless. You are on the road to sound, good health and care in your diet is all you need. If your appetite is fickle, if you have any of the distressing pains and symptoms of indigestion you should begin to cure yourself at once by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

These pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brocgville, Ont.

FROM MILITARY DISCHARGE TO CIVIL REINSTATEMENT

Long before the American soldier gets home and into civvies again, the War Department has taken measures to see that he gets a good job. So that if he didn't want one, he could hardly escape it anyway!

The first step is taken in the hospitals, where informal lectures are given to the wounded and sick men, informing them of the government's organization to help them get jobs, and explaining to them something of the details of that organization.

If the man is permanently disabled, his case is taken up further at the hospital, where during convalescence, he is given some vocational training. When he is discharged from the hospital he may avail himself of a more complete course, at the expense of the government. During this period he is given $75 a month for living expenses, and his family is provided for. At the end of that training, he is placed in a permanent job.

If he comes out of the service well and strong, however, the route back to civilian life is much shorter. On the way home on board ship he is "card catalogued," as to his preference for kind of employment, locality, etc. This card is forwarded to his locality and when he arrives home and presents himself for work, therefore all the information is at hand, and very often the job is ready and waiting.

Thus, the War Department under the leadership of Col. Arthur Woods, assistant to the Secretary of War, not only discharges the soldier from his war job, but also at practically the same time hands him a peace job.

Wm. Walpole, Goderich, who recently returned from overseas, was fined $50 for attempting to abduct a young girl from her home.

Carl Liersch, Hespeler, was arrested in Kitchener charged with seduction.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR AIR RAID DAMAGE IN WAR

Compensation For Injuries Must Come Out of British National Fund.

London, Aug. 1.—Public opinion regarding the responsibilities of the Government with refernce to the provision of compensation in cases of injury resulting from air raids was expressed in no uncertain terms at a breakfast given by the Committee on War Damage at Charing Cross Hotel. Sir W. H. Dunn, Bart., presided.

A resolution was passed expressing strong dissatisfaction at the delay of the Government in the matter, and urging the immediate provision, out of the national funds, of compensation where it had not already been given.

A copy of the resolution was ordered to be sent to the Prime Minister in a letter urging him to press his colleagues at once to give effect to the principle of national responsibility.

In proposing the resolution, Mr. Mark H. Judge expressed indignation at the fact that the country was making a profit out of air raids. The national purse, he said, contained £10,000,000 obtained by the premiums in respect of air raids, to which sons who were starving in eastern and southeastern towns. This money, which was improperly obtained, ought not to be allowed to remain in the national purse. He hoped that, now that public opinion could be directed to something other than war, it would not be long before the country would put itself right in this matter.

A report of the committee of three—Lord Parmoor, Sir William Dunn, and Mr. Mark H. Judge—submitted by the chairman in the absence of Lord Parmoor, suggested that all premiums above 15s. paid under governent air-craft or bombardment insurance schemes be converted into war loan, in the name of the policy owners, in lieu of returning to them the premiums paid.

The report referred with satisfaction to the decision of the War Cabinet to give partial effect to the principle of national responsibility, but urged that it was the duty of the Government to accept full responsibility and at once to relieve the sufferers. In the event of the last appeal being unproductive of results the bringing of the matter before Parliament was advocated.

Chatham city council decided to buy a civic asphalt plant at a cost of $18,000.

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

(In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general. All phases of store management—buying, accounting, advertising and retail salesmanship—will be dealt with, not theoretically, but by descriptions of methods actually in use by successful merchants.)

NEOSHO STORES CARRY FIGHT INTO "ENEMIES" CAMP

Neosho, Mo., isn't represented by a very large dot, even on a big map of the United States, but the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World has directed attention to the advertising activities of the Missouri town in a booklet dealing with Neosho "sales days" and the manner in which they are handled.

Neosho, it appears, wasn't at all satisfied with the volume of trade flowing into its retail stores. It felt that many hundreds of dollars were going to Joplin, a nearby city, so the Neosho Advertising Club determined to carry the war into the enemy's camp and contracted for full-page space in Joplin newspapers, calling attention to the advantages extended by the Neosho stores.

The purpose was not so much to secure Joplin trade as to gain the patronage of persons who might be served by either city.

Business men of Neosho realize that in these days, when nearly every farmer has an automobile, trade can be drawn from a greater radius by any merchant or group of merchants who go after it in an active fashion. At the last monthly "sales day," held under the auspices of the Neosho Advertising Club, customers came as far as forty miles and expressed their appreciation of the treatment received and left many hundreds of dollars as tangible proof of this appreciation.

Individual Cost Small.

While they used full pages in Joplin, the Neosho merchants continued to employ similar space in their local papers and also reprinted the advertisements and mailed them to a list of 6000 prospective customers. The cost of all the advertising was equally distributed among the business houses directly participating and amounted to an assessment of only $2 for each store, the Advertising Club paying the balance.

According to the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, the remarkable success of the Neosho sales days is due to the fact that a committee of the local Advertising Club passes upon the special offer which each merchant makes for the sales days—thus insuring satisfaction for every customer. The members of the club also make a careful study of advertising at their regular meetings, and have formed an "Idea Exchange" for better merchandizing methods, enabling them to back up their publicity to the fullest possible extent.

Business men of Clarksville, Tenn., recently voted to make a personal investigation of the Neosho plan, and merchants of Blair, Neb., are now contemplating similar action.

NICOLO BROKE HIS FINGER ONCE TOO OFTEN—

After successfully working their game in Buffalo, Rochester, Albany and nearly every other city in the state, Nicolo Acunto and Emmule Saleene, finger-breaking grafters, are meditating in a Syracuse police cell anent the old saying about the pitcher which went to the well just once too often.

The pair came to grief when they sought to repeat their stunt in the Edwards department store. According to the police reports, it was a regular stunt for the two men to enter a store, purchase a few cents' worth of goods and then fall out of an elevator door and "break" a finger.

The one who fell, it is claimed by the police, posed as ignorant of the English language, and the companion would tell how the injured one earned $40 a week and couldn't work without that finger. Generally the store paid good money on the spot to avoid a lawsuit.

Syracuse records show that Acunto fell in the Hunter-Tuppen Company store here recently under the name of Louis Vellini. When he fell in Dey Brothers' store he gave his name as Nicolas de Rosa. Saleme fell in the Edwards store. So good was their treatment there that they paid a second visit. A detective recognized the pair and spoiled the game.

When Aconto was searched a book containing entries from other cities of the state showed that the performance had been staged with good results elsewhere than in Syracuse. Acunto claims that his pal initiated him into the game.

"My automobile is on fire! Have you any fire extinguishers?"

"No, but I've ordered some and am expecting them in almost any day now."

PROVIDENCE PLANS A REAL RETAIL COURSE

If recommendations made to the superintendent of schools in Providence, R. I., the appoval of that official and the school board acts favorably upon the matter, there will be inaugurated in the public schools of this city next fall a course in retail selling unlike that in operation elsewhere in the country today.

The committee of department stores of the Retail Merchants' Division of the Providence Chamber of Commerce finds that the plan in Boston is faulty in many details and that there is a lack of co-operation between the retail stores there and the public schools which accounts, the committee says, for the main trouble with the plan as worked out there.

Therefore, the Povidence committee has mapped out an entirely different plan, which it believes will not only be a benefit to retail stores here but to young men and women who wish to learn retail selling.

Under the proposed plan students of the junior and senior classes of the high schools interested would be given an opportunity to utilize morning sessions in the study of retail selling and the afternoons would be available for actual practice in retail stores. The course will call for united action on the part of retail merchants to make the work, hours, remuneration and means of promotion such as will compete favorably with other lines of work open to high school graduates.

It provides for a course in salesmanship running one double period each school day through the junior and senior years, supplemented by four hours each afternoon of actual [illegible] in various stores of the city. Students will also be sent through departments of the store which are deemed essential for broad all-round training, but those who wish to take the course must first secure the agreement of one of the retail merchants to employ them at part time.

When the pupils have graduated from the retail selling course of the high school they are to be given credit for two full years' service in the store and their salary fixed accordingly.

It is declared that such a plan meets most of the objection of the Boston plan, providing that certain conditions necessary for success are fixed and met by the retail merchants of Providence.

The hours of work must eventually be made as attractive in retail store work as in office work, for which pupils have hitherto been prepared, and the renumeration for the work should be at least as good as that usually offered for office work.

Attention is called to the fact that the opportunities for regular advancement should be open to all pupils who show ability in the work for which they have been trained, those favoring the plan saying that this really means a special subsidy for high school pupils as a means of encouraging them to take up retail selling.

The committee recommends as initial wage of six dollars a week for the first six months, six dollars and fifty cents for the second six months, seven dollars for the next six and seven dollars and fifty cents for the last half year. This weekly pay is figured for a week consisting of four hours each afternoon of school days and all of Saturday. It is also recommended that pupils completing the course should be offered positions attractive enough in salary and possibilities of promotion to become an encouragement to others to undertake the same course.

TIRED WOMAN RUBS AS MACHINE WHIRRS

The Sacramento Appliance Company of Sacramento, Calif., has washing machines as one of its main lines. The manager has found out that one of the best ways to sell them is by making the women hate the old-fashioned method, and then showing them that the logical way out of the old, tiresome way is to buy one of the new electrical machines.

He proved the value of this idea by an interesting widow display.

An automatic dummy was made, and placed in the window over a tub full of dirty clothes. All day long this tired and disgusted-looking "woman" worked over the clothes, bending up and down until it seemed that her back—in spite of the fact that it was steel—would surely break.

Besides her was the latest model washing machine, running smoothly and efficiently, a striking contrast.

"SHOEMATISM"—NOT RHEUMATISM

Charles H. Barton, a Buffalo, N.Y., shoe dealer, features his special service in his advertising with a supplementary line to the effect that a good many people who think they have rheumatism are in error—that what they have is "shoematism."

GOLDWYN STAR IS VERSATILE, NOT A SINGLE-ROLE ACTRESS

The Late William Winter, Dean of Dramatic Critics, Said: "There is no Role Which Pauline Frederick Cannot Play."

"There is no role which Pauline Frederick cannot play. She knows drama, and is a finished artiste," was the enthusiastic praise accorded the vivid Goldwyn star by the late William Winter some few seasons ago at the instance of one of her stage successes.

And were the critic to see her in her latest Goldwyn picture, "The Fear Woman," which comes to the Grand Theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, he would undoubtedly have written the same tribute. For Miss Frederick proves that there is no screen attitude she cannot express; no subtlety of the silversheet that is beyond her exquisite histrionism; no pantomimic innuendo of which she is incapable. Her dramatic moments in "The Fear Woman" as in all of her productions, are intense, gripping, while her comedy is that delightful, whimsical, brilliant sort of which she alone is expressive.

In "The Fear Woman" Miss Frederick has been given every opportunity to show her versatility and individuality. She shows herself to be not only a distinguished actress, but an accomplished athlete, and although she detests athletics, she carried them off in the play with aplomb. In the riding scenes a "double" was suggested, but Miss Frederick would not consider the matter. Again, in the tennis scenes, she plays a match set with the womans cha'mpion of California with equal distinction.

As a contrast to her athletic ability in "The Fear Woman" are the tense moments when Miss Frederick makes the great sacrifice which saves her friend's honor, but which sacrifices her own. Stately, vivid, dynamic, she is fascinating in the role of the emotional woman who lives to live—and to forgive.

It would be impossible for Miss Frederick not to run the gamut of emotions. In "The Fear Woman" she at one moment plays high comedy; again she is the tragedienne. The scene on the stairs, where she discovers that her father is dead is perhaps one of the most gripping moments of the season, while in her boudoir scenes Miss Frederick excels in intensity.

With her gorgeous gowns, her vivid personality, the superb settings—the work of Hugo Ballin, Goldwyn's distinguished art director—Miss Frederick bids fair to score the greatest of any of her cinematic successes. In "The Woman On the Index" she was superb, but in "The Fear Woman" she has been given a wider range for expression, and a series of situations of even greater dramatic intensity.

In addition to the dangers and complications arising from the terms of the peace, which are almost certain to cause another great European war before many years are over, there is one tremendous menace which overhangs the whole situation, for which no provision whatever has been made in the treaty. If Germany is to be allowed to build airships and aeroplanes, all the elaborate arrangements for scientific frontiers, and the setting up of young nationalities in Central and Eastern Europe, will be futile in averting the menace from the air. In this week's Observer Major C. C. Turner says: "Just as the R 80 is the result of a resolve to surpass the work of German designers, so, we may be sure, the airship engineers of Germany have not been allowing the grass to grow under their feet...... German airships, we know perfectly well, will run ours closely, and possibly surpass their capabilities. When the armistice came, the Germans had planned much larger airships than the so-called super-Zeppelins."

Now, if the Germans are to be permitted to build airships and aeroplanes ad lib., even although they may be built ostensibly for commercial purposes, and used for such purposes to begin with, every schoolboy knows by this time that in a few hours these gigantic machines could be converted into battleplanes and battleships and become most tremendous engines of destruction.

I suppose that I shall get very few people to agree with me, but I cannot help thinking that, on the balance, the harm arising from what is known as "the conquest of the air" will far outweigh any benefits which it may confer upon humanity. It is just probable that the conquest of the air will provide the wherewithal to destroy humanity. People assume without qualification or reflection that any new invention must prove a benefit to the human race. It is a purely gratuitous supposition. Will anyone venture to say that the invention of gunpowder has proved a benefit to mankind? What have we to set off against the countless millions of men who have been slain by the use of gunpowder? Very little indeed—the easy slaughter of birds and wild animals will hardly weigh in the balance against the other holocaust. So it appears to me that a similar result will be achieved by flying machines. People will get more quickly from one place to another; parcels and letters, and probably goods of all sorts, will eventually be conveyed more rapidly. But will these advantages, great as they undoubtedly are, weigh for one moment against the perpetual menace which will overhang the world's population in the future, when millions of potential death-bearing monsters are flying perpetually over the surface of the globe? Boundaries and treaties and leagues of nations will avail us little if the whole world is to lie at the mercy of the masters of the air.

SAW FAR INTO THE FUTURE

Men Predicted Coming of the Telegraph and Airplane as Far Back as Seventeenth Century.

One hundred and four years ago, at this season, the war of 1812 was practically over. Peace was signed at Ghent on the evening of December 24, 1814, and then things moved fast, according to existing standards. December 26 one of the American secretaries left Ghent for London and January 2, 1815, he left England for New York, where he arrived some time in February, and his news was immediately delivered to the citizens by printed handbills. Other cities, however, had to remain in ignorance during the time it would take a fast rider to urge his galloping horse over the roads between them and New York. The telegraph was not yet invented, says Christian Science Monitor, although Joseph Glanvil, a seventeenth century preacher with an interest in the possibilities of invention, had told the Royal society that "to confer, at the distance of the Indies, by sympathetic conveyances may be as usual to future times as to us in literary correspondence." Glanvil, by the way, also told the Royal society that "to those who come after us it may be as ordinary to buy a pair of wings to fly into the remotest regions as now a pair of boots to ride on a journey."

GOVERNMENT ASSISTANCE FOR RETURNED MEN TO ACQUIRE A COLLEGE EDUCATION

Full Text of Petition to Sir Robert Borden, to This End, by Conference of Universities of Canada—A Measure That is Adopted by British and Australian Governments.

(Ppublished by Special Request.)

To the Right Honorable Sir Robert Borden, G. C. M. G., Prime Minister of Canada.

Sir: At a meeting of the Conference of the Universities of Canada, held in Ottawa, on Friday, May 23, 1919, the undersigned were appointed a committee to lay before you the unanimous and earnest petition of the Conference that your Government should grant financial assistance to those soldiers who having served overseas desire to resume and continue their education and prove their capability for doing so.

We will endeavor to set forth the facts and reasons upon which this petition is based. It is well known to you that the voluntary enlistment from the educational institutions of the Dominion was very large. In some Faculties the attendance was reduced to one-fifth of what it was before the war, and the losses by death have been so heavy that in the not distant future there will be a shortage of men in those walks of life which depend upon superior education. The welfare of the country therefore demands that as many as possible of our returned soldiers should be induced to complete their interrupted education and to receive as high a grade of training as is within their reach. It is through education that Canada will hold the place in the world that the intelligence and valor of her sons have won for her. Competition will be keen, but we need not fear it if we develop the natural ability of our people. Our greatest danger in this respect will be that too few instead of too many of our soldiers will seek an education, the loss of several years overseas having created an impatience on the part of many to earn a livelihood as soon as possible.

An objection has been raised that our request involves class legislation. We fail to see the force of this objection. Education is surely not the prerogative of any class or section of the people. As for the highest grades of education, in no country is a university career more widely open and more fully entered by young men and women from every social class than in Canada. Students come from the farm, from the home of the artisan, business man, clergyman, teacher, doctor, lawyer; and it is safe to say that taking the Dominion as a whole more than one-half of the students have to earn enough to help themselves through college. This last fact makes the case of the returned soldier particularly hard for a many a boy had just left school with enough money to put himself through the first year or two of a university career, or was in the middle of his course with barely enough to make ends meet. When the war came these students in the university centres, which were so active in recruiting, heard the loud call of duty and enlisted without a thought of their future. They have therefore lost not only the years of war, but the wherewithal to support themselves when they come back. It would be a poor return that the country would make were she to refuse to help such men and thus demand the further uncalled for sacrifice of abandoning their desired career.

Such action on the part of the Government would not it seems to us, involve that financial help should also be granted to returned soldiers in trade or business. The man who is being educated is on an entirely different basis because during the period of his education he must spend instead of earn. For several years there would be an outflow instead of an income. Even when his education is completed the ex-soldier will be unable for some time to earn more than a meagre living. Indeed any register of university graduates will show that the vast majority of them hold positions that bring in only a moderate income. We believe that to give an education to those who desire it and can profit by it is the best kind of repatriation, for it means a saving for the country of the services of men for those callings in which they can be of most advantage both to themselves and to the country. What is spent upon education brings large returns in manhood. Education is the strength of a democracy.

Moreover, we can point in support of our petition to what is being done in Britain. The Government is setting aside immense sums for higher education of the soldier and that with the fullest concurrence of the Labor Party. So generous is Britain that she is educating at public cost young Canadians who have been in the British service. We know of several who, returning home and finding no financial help here have gone back to Britain to be educated at the expense of the British taxpayer. That this should have happened is not creditable to Canada.

In Australia also the Government has taken the following action: (1) Where an applicant for assistance produces evidence to the satisfaction of the State Board that he had, prior to enlistment, entered or intended to enter upon a university course or other course of professional training, the State Board may grant the applicant assistance.

Provided that an applicant who had not before enlistment entered upon such a course shall only be granted assistance if—(a) He is not more than 30 years of age at the date of his application, and (b) He applies for the assistance within six months after his discharge.

(2) Where the State Board is satisfied that assistance should be granted the State Board may, if it approves of the course selected:

(a) Pay by way of gift from time to time the fees payable in connection with the course.

(b) Grant to the applicant, by way of loan, such sum as is necessary to purchase the books, instruments and other articles required by him in connection with his course.

(c) Pay to the applicant by way of gift such allowances as will insure him a weekly income (inclusive of his own pension) of 42c for one academic year, including the period ordinarily required to enable him to attend the qualifying examination for that year.

(d) Pay to the applicant by way of loan such allowance as will insure to him a weekly income (inclusive of pension of 42c for each subsequent academic year of his course, including the period ordinarily required to enable him to attend the qualifying examination for that year.

Provided that no allowance shall be paid under this regulation during the period between the termination of one academic year and the commencement of the next, except for such periods as the attendance of the applicant at the University or other institution is compulsory.

(3) The applicant shall give his personal security for the re-payment of the amounts granted under paragraphs (b) and (d) of the last preceding sub-regulation.

(4) The continuance of the granting of the assistance provided by sub-regulation (2) shall be subject to the receipt from time to time by the State board from the University or other institution of a report that the applicant is making satisfactory progress with his studies.

Canada surely will not lag behind Britain and Australia in this matter.

Our proposal is that the Government should grant every returned soldier who can prove his need and his capability, maintenance and fees for at least one year. The sum of $350 would be required for subsistence, and at the highest the fees should not average more than $150. In view of the fact that there are probably at least 1000 returned soldiers now in the higher education institutions of Canada and about the same number undergoing instruction either in the Khaki University or in British Universities, it is probable that not less than 2500 or 3000 may be expected to seek an education next winter in our Canadian institutions. The amount therefore that may be required for carrying out this scheme should be placed at $1,500,000.

The machinery for putting the proposal into operation would in our opinion not be elaborate. The Government might deal with the Universities as regards the students who wish to take a university career and with the Provincial Departments of Education as regards those who wish to take a training in Technical or High Schools of the Provinces.

It is to be observed that in making this petition the Universities are not putting forward any request for financial relief on their own behalf. Already extra classes of all grades have been instituted for returned soldiers at large expense of which the fees will meet but a fraction. But by reason of their deep conviction of the necessity of [illegible] the soldier the Universities have assumed this heavy burden in addition to those that the war has already laid upon them. They can therefore with good confidence ask that the Dominion Government should make it possible for all capable returned soldiers who decide to do so to take advantage of the opportunities which they afford.

An Inside Bath Makes You Look and Feel Fresh

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

This excellent, common-sense health measure being adopted by millions.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results both in regard to health and appearance.

KEPT TRADITIONS OF ARMY

British Government Made Wise Move When It Refused to Create New Regiments.

It was a wise decision on the part of the British government to create no new regiments when they entered the great war. Instead, the number of battalions in existing regiments was increased. Many of these regiments were very old, and about them hung the traditions of a glorious past. In uniting himself to such a body as the Royal Scots, the Welsh Fusiliers or the Black Watch, as the case might be, a man unconsciously lost the sharpness of his own individuality in the eager desire to conform to the traditional characteristics of a great company. He was, in a way, no longer John Doe or Richard Roe, but the Royal Scots, the Welsh Fusilier, guardian of the usages of an age-old organization, exemplar of its soldierly conduct. Proud of his regiment, he was taught to prove his pride in his manner and dress.

It was with the view of emphasizing every detail of this pride that British military authorities decided to replace the bronze buttons of uniforms with buttons of brass, which the soldiers are required to polish daily. Even in the trenches officers and men must shave daily, and when after a week of hard fighting and sometimes short rations, the remnant of a battalion is relieved, it is required to march at attention with parade-ground precision, as it leaves the trenches for its holiday rest in the rear. It is this rigid subjection to every detail that has in part made possible the heroic stand that British troops have made against a more numerous foe. Their lines bent back, but they did not break; they lost bit by bit the ground they fought over, but never their fighting spirit, their cohesiveness, their esprit de corps.

Commander a "Good Fellow"

One of the home-guard boys had on a uniform that was too large for him. While waiting on the station platform for the train to come the commander noticed this boy and coming up to him turned him around and around, looking him over on every side. Finally he said: "Young man, that suit does not fit you."

The boy, not realizing to whom he was talking, promptly retorted: "Well, that is no reason why I should be made a windmill of, is it?"

Luck favored him and the commander laughed.

REALLY NO SECRET

Power to Charm Lies in Forgetfulness of Self.

Women Who Fascinate Have Simply Developed the Art or Power of Putting Others "On Good Terms With Themselves."

A vivacious woman writer seeking the secret of feminine fascination, finds it in the art or power some women have of charming others by putting them, as a bluff Britisher phrased it, "on ripping good terms with themselves." Is not this a characteristic of almost all those persons, men and women, whom we like the best and enjoy the most? Do they not, either by artifice or by instinct, endeavor to make the people they meet feel that they amount to something, know something, have some excellence, attractiveness or interesting qualities, and thus put them on pleasant terms with themselves. The persons who are least adept at this or least inclined to try it are the self-centered, self-important people completely absorbed in their own affairs and not wise or well-bred in little worlds of which they are the centers, and may be said in a certain sense to revolve about themselves.

This is a characteristic brought up from lower forms of life from which we are ancestrally derived and only in part outgrown. For most animals the only concerns of the least importance are those which directly affect themselves. They are egocentric. The things that touch them make up their world and they have no interests outside of that. More than any other animal the dog can sink his personality so to speak, subordinate himself and make his master's interests his own. Only infrequent individuals of other species can or will do this. Hence dogs as a rule are more companionable for men than any other living creatures below him in the evolutionary scale.

But to return to human beings, Josephine was the most beloved and charming woman in France because she took a genuine and kindly interest in the affairs of all with whom she came in touch. She was outgoing, inclusive in her sympathies and thus counteracted antagonism created by Napoleon, who was self-centered to an extraordinary degree. Not to multiply examples, does not experience teach all observant people that in selflessness lies the secret of charm? Are not the lovable people those whose love goes out spontaneously, or appears to? Is not egocentricity, entire absorption in themselves, a characteristic held in common by most of the people who get on one's nerves? Kind hearts are more than coronets, said Tennyson.

More attractive, therefore, than beauty or the brilliancy and glitter of intellectuality is the drawing power of kindly consideration for others. Fascination is born of the heart, not of the mind; and whether instinctive or acquired, would seem to be the art of entering into the lives of others and putting them, as the Englishman said, on good terms with themselves.—Rochester Post-Express.

She Knew Better Anyhow.

A certain small town, seven miles from somewhere else, as the crow flies, boasted only two physicians, Doctor Smith and Doctor Brown. There was considerable rivalry between the two knights of the pill and powder and when Doctor Smith received a very urgent call from a young farmer about four miles in the country, he left an office full of patients, cranked up what has to be cranked up and was off.

When he arrived at the farmer's house he found that a three-year-old "farmer" had cut his finger. The doctor was chagrined when he saw the "serious" nature of the accident. He thought of the office full of patients he had left and had visions of them walking in single file to the office of Doctor Brown.

"It was very, very silly of you to call me on this case," he said, somewhat testily, to the farmer's wife.

"I know it was, but Doctor Brown was out."

WILL BE NO SMALL STATE

Czecho-Slovakia Could at Once Take Rank as Eighth World Power, Asserts Writer.

We are told the Czecho-Slovak state will be a small one, and as a result its existence will be precarious, assuming the world shall remain in anything like its present condition of international disorganization, Charles Pergler writes in Asia Magazine. In the first place, as modern states go, the new state will not be a small one, having a population of about 12,000,000, and the area of the new state will be about 50,000 English square miles. When we recollect that Belgium has 11,373 square miles, it is seen at a glance that the new state can hardly be classed as small. Moreover, the belief in the necessity of large states, rife in certain circles of economic and political theorists, and largely based upon certain teachings of Karl Marx, is one of the superstitions that periodically appear, in order to be abandoned upon a sober second thought.

The theory that small states and nations cannot succeed is not borne out by history. Even prior to the war there were in Europe 27 states, and the great majority of these were small. There were only six of the so-called great powers: Russia, Germany, Austria-Hungary, England, France and Italy. Portugal, Denmark, Switzerland, Bulgaria, Belgium, Norway, Serbia, Greece, Holland, Sweden, Montenegro and Turkey are all, or were, smaller than the state we are attempting to describe. The latter will hold in Europe the eighth place, only England, Poland, France, Italy, Spain and Russia being larger.

Strained His Telescope.

The oldest inhabitant of Little Cockleton possesses a telescope which he never uses.

"Why don't you make use of it sometimes, James?" a neighbor asked.

"It used to be a good 'n," James said sorrowfully, "but it's broke now."

"Broken?" the neighbor asked. "How's that?"

"Well," James replied, "it was such a good'n that I could see the old church steeple five miles away quite plain, but Joseph, the scoundrel, got the lend of it and tried to make out the steeple of the Methody chapel morn'n ten miles away. He tried and tried and couldn't, so that he strained my glass and it's never been right since. Drat Joseph."

Putting It Prettily.

A great big soldier boy had picked a little bit of a girl. When a fellow "joshed" him a bit, he said: "Yes, Bill, she would have been taller, but she's made of stuff so choice and fine and scarce that the Lord just naturally couldn't find enough of it here to make her any bigger."

MINERAL OIL

For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the highest in quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE. There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased, as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative, and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

CUT OUT THE REGRETS

If you have headaches, shortsightedness, blurred vision or other signs of weak eyes, let Dr. Fowler have the regular care of your vision. He will fit you with just what is best to use now, and advise you concerning the future. He will tell you how long the glasses will be correct for you without changing them, and other things that will suit your particular needs. This is a valuable feature, and by not putting off coming to him you eliminate regrets later on when the weak condition of your eyes becomes exaggerated by neglect.

NURSE NEVER SAW ITS EQUAL

MISS MURRAY AFTER TWELVE YEARS PROFESSIONAL SERVICE, PRAISES TANLAC

"I have been a trained nurse for twelve years, and have had a great deal to do with medicines, but when it comes to building a person up from a weak, run-down condition, I have never seen anything to equal Tanlac," said Miss A. M. Murray who lives at 302 Warwick Block, Winnipeg, while talking to a Tanlac representative the other day

Miss Murray successfully practiced her profession in New York for eight years before coming to Canada four years ago. She has been equally successful here, and her services are greatly in demand by the most wealthy and influential people in the city.

"I nursed thirty-five cases of influenza last winter," continued Miss Murray, "and I had to work night and day almost, and that was too much for me, and pulled me down something awful. Finally I had an attack of the "flu" myself, and after pulling through that, I was in an extremely weak run-down condition. I was just utterly exhausted all the time I was very nervous, and for the first time in my life, I was unable to sleep well, and would very often lie in bed and read for hours, trying to get sleepy. Why, I was just so nervous and run-down that I actually was irritable and the most trivial things would upset me. My appetite left me entirely, and there were many days when a cup of tea was all I could take at a meal time.

"One of my friends induced me to take Tanlac, and it certainly is wonderful the way it has built me up. Why, I have actually gained fifteen pounds already, and I have only taken two bottles so far. All that nervousness has left me, and I sleep just like a child every night, and that tired exhausted feeling has left me altogether. In fact, I feel just fine all the time, and I unhesitatingly recommend Tanlac to everybody. I never lose an opportunity to advise people who are weak and run-down, like I was, to take Tanlac for I believe it is the best medicine they can get to build them up. I am sure that anybody who gives Tanlac a fair trial will feel just as I do about it, that it is a real medicine and can be relied upon to do just what they say it will do."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

BOY KNOCKED OFF WHEEL

Car Turned Corner Too Short to Avoid Collision With St. Car.

A boy was knocked off his bicycle about 7.30 last night at the corner of George and McDonald.

The boy on the wheel was coming down George on the right hand side of the street. He did not see the car coming up George as he was keeping a sharp look out for cars on McDonald street. The car turned the corner too short and knocked the boy off his wheel, breaking his peddle and slightly damaging the frame of the wheel. The car owner claimed he was forced to turn short to avoid a collision with a car coming down George street.

Was It a Caveman Rarebit?

Exploration of caves in South Berkshire, Conn., resulting in the discovery of stalactites and stalagmites, big white spiders weaving their webs, bats incrusted in the crystals and a submarine brook, made Jack Newboy of Lenoxdale recall the day that he went rabbit hunting in the Patterson woods.

Newboy's dog chased a rabbit into a cave. Jack waited outside for results. He waited two hours, called the dog and, getting no results, went home. He found the dog was at home and had the rabbit. Pat, his brother, explained:

"I was fishing on a lake not far from the shore when I heard a commotion in the water nearby and was surprised to see a rabbit in the water. As I watched the dog came to the surface, swam after the rabbit and captured him."

Cure Bent Backs by Suggestion.

Suggestion plays a great part in the cure of physical ills of soldiers. According to Lieut. Col. A. F. Hurst, all men suffering from bent backs can be cured by persuasion and re-education.

The patient is told that his posture is a bad habit formed when his back was painful. He is asked to stand with his back to a wall, with his heel touching it. His shoulders are then gently pushed back till they touch the wall.

In most instances the soldier finds that in a few minutes he can stand erect without support, and after walking a few times in the same posture his cure is complete.

Aviators' "Sport" Forbidden.

What promised to develop into a highly exciting sport has just been cut off in its infancy by Gen. William L. Kenly, head of the army aircraft service.

He has issued an order forbidding army aviators, either on duty, at practice, or flying for pleasure, from shooting wild ducks and other fowl with machine guns. The practice not only gave the birds small run for their money and endangered the lives of people for two miles around, but wasted quantities of costly ammunition.

BABY'S GREAT DANGER DURING HOT WEATHER

More little ones die during the hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentry, cholera infantum and stomach troubles come without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in the house where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"TREASURES" IN THE CELLAR

Cleaner Finds Many Things Stored There, With More or Less Interesting History.

Health drive is on this week, and every good Brooklynite will go down in his cellar and clean out all the rubbish and useless stuff except possibly the furnace. When one is engaged in this sort of work he runs across lots of old forgotten stuff.

He unearths crayon portraits of Uncle Hiram and Aunt Maria, made with an air brush in exchange for 400 coupons and $2. They were intended for the parlor, but reached the cellar after throwing the old family canary into convulsions; and there is the wreck of the old whatnot that grandma gave you. It used to stand in the corner of the parlor, filled with old family pictures, sharks' eyes, Indian bead work and other terrible monstrosities that children gazed upon with awe. And as you come across it you remember that the first thing you did after dear grandma passed away was to bustle the whatnot down below, back of a pair of moth-eaten portieres.

And you find your pair of white flannel trousers that you wore to a picnic and sat down in on a blackberry pie. And you recall the trouble and embarrassment you had getting home, and of how, when you had the trousers cleaned, the big stain turned green and the trousers went into the discard. And you run across the first silk hat you ever wore, which made you look like an undertaker, and the vase which you smashed and blamed on the cat, causing an innocent feline to lose a good home; and the tie your wife bought you, on which you deliberately spilled ink, for which no one could blame you.

And so you go along rooting out one old article after another, piling them in heaps to wait for the ashman and the junkman, humming that old hymn, "Sic Transit Gloria Mundi."

NOT ARDENT WORDS OF LOVE

At First, Though, It Would Seem That Salesman Was Addressing His Adored One.

"No one ever loved you half as well as I do," he said to her.

She made no answer.

"How did you come to love me?" he pleaded. Still the girl refused to speak, although she smiled encouragingly at this.

"Your name is written on my heart. The world is dark without you. I've built a bungalow for you and me. Let us fly to an isle in the tropic sea. The kiss you gave me set my heart on fire."

The girl was not offended. She scowled a little, but not at him. She seemed in deep thought. Suddenly she looked into his pleading orbs.

"No," she said, "Nothing like that."

"My Oola-loola girl. When—"

The girl shook her head and left the counter.

The young salesman had been naming the latest popular songs. Doesn't sound like a national anthem epidemic, does it?

COUNCIL CONGRATULATED

time the mills at Lakefield and other points closed. Possibly a good business proposition if the mills left operating could make all the cement needed. Mr. Russell found that in his work he was being held up and hampered. He put his money into a cement proposition, an independent mill, which he handles as a part of his business and there is very little doubt but that fact has been a determining factor in the present price per barrel, of cement, to the extent of at least 19 cents per barrel.

We are interested, and rightly so, in our men who do things. Especially in those who have climbed. In the skilled surgeon, at the top of his profession and who came out of a farm house. In the scientist whose father did teaming for a living. In another whose father carried on his occupation as a carter. So we might print a few sentences of John Russell.

First Drove a Team.

He began life as a boy of fourteen, driving a team that drew bricks from the brickyard of his uncle, on the Din, to the waterfront in Toronto. He said, and proved it, that he would drive team and do it better that any hand on the job. The contractor, a man now living, noticed the earnestness and fidelity to an ideal in the boy and offered him a job on a pile driver, as fireman. Russell was just sixteen. In two years he was bossing the pile driver and when he was twenty-one he owned it.

Finding that driving piles was, when properly driven, a pretty fair way to drive on in his future, he bought another. Larger work came to him. Such was handled with accuracy and thoroughness. Today he carries in stock a producing and working plant worth probably half a million dollars. You saw in yesterday's papers that ten tons of dynamite had been let off on the Chippawa Creek canal work of the Hydro, above Niagara Falls, just to show our American cousins that we were on the job, and that the resulting explosion shivered the rock into chunks of five and seven tons pieces. Now a seven ton rock is about half as big as one of our street cars. The piece of plant that lifts those rocks, easily and — belongs to John Russell Co., cost $350,000 and is rented to the Hydro at so much per day. What is paid for the use of the shovel for a year, would just about pay all expenses of the city of Peterborough for six months.

Quit Your Grouching.

And may this invocation be offered. That now the bridge turmoil is settled take confidence in the Council, the engineer and the contractors, throw all those injunctions into the Lake street bathing place for the boys to cut themselves on if they collide with them, loyally get behind the bridge proposition, quit our grouching, have a little decent business sense, give everybody a chance to do what is fair, and those of us who haven't a finger in the pie at least consent to avoid criticism of those who are cutting the crust and serving the contents of the dish.

Respectfully,

F. H. DOBBIN.

REFORMS IN BURMA.

Preparations Are Being Made For Responsible Government.

Any study of the reform proposals recently put forward by the Burma Government must lead to the conviction that, however much one may disagree with specific proposals, or the way in which specific issues have been settled, the general effect of the scheme is to carry out in Burma the policy announced by Mr. Montagu for the whole of India in his famous speech in the British House of Commons on August 20, 1917. In this speech, it will be remembered, Mr. Montagu made the momentous announcement that responsible government for India was the definite aim of the British authorities, and that it was the intention of the Government to set about the achievement of this aim at the earliest possible moment.

The proposals of the Burma Government are in full accord with the spirit of this statement. They make a practical beginning, and a very effective practical beginning, providing for virtually complete self-government, where it can be exercised at once, with the least possible risk of untoward consequences to the community as a whole, namely, in simple local matters; whilst associating the Burman in the government of the country right up to the highest and most responsible positions. It is, however, in the opportunity which the proposals afford him for the management of his own local affairs that the Burman will surely find the scheme of the highest value. What the people of Burma, like the people of India, most need is some measure of political training, and some opportunity for securing it. No better school could be provided for this than the local parliament, in which each member has such a direct and immediate interest, and in which the criticism of the electorate is able to make itself so quickly felt.

Such a school, in its first grade, is certainly supplied under the scheme in the circle board, to which each village is to send one elected member; and, in its second grade, in the district council. This council will consist of elected members of the circle boards, who will be solely responsible for such important functions as raising local revenue as well as incurring expenditure, whilst they are to have complete jurisdiction in the district allotted to them. From these district councils, moreover, the official is to be entirely absent, and, as the Government statement justly points out, this means that such control as is necessary must be exercised from without and not from within. In the towns, the situation is to be met along the same lines by applying the Municipal Act to all urban areas of sufficient size. Finally, if the urban councils or the district councils get into difficulties, provision is made under the scheme whereby assistance can be rendered them, from time to time, by the loan of Government officers as experts.

The whole plan gives evidence of the most careful thought, and perhaps its greatest recommendation is its courageous recognition of the fact that it is better to run the risk of mistakes being made by the people in their efforts to govern themselves than to safeguard the people against mistakes at the expense of their political education.

Trawlers of North Sea.

"The northeast coast of Scotland is pacific in climate, as compared with the Atlantic storminess that rules the sea-girt land on the west," writes William Elliot Griffis in "Bonnie Scotland and What We Owe Her," and he goes on later in the same chapter to speak of the trawlers of the North Sea.

At Aberdeen "twenty-five millions of dollars' worth of food is extracted annually through the fisheries in the deeper waters, which have been improved, first by the method of beam trawling, begun in 1882, and then by the steam line fishing in 1889.

"How full the North Sea is of these trawlers those know who have seen them and kept pace with the efforts of philanthropists to minister to the needs of the men on board the ships. In recent years we have learned, moreover, how soon, in time of war, these toilers of the deep are called upon to show their courage as well as their industry, and have thus realized the danger ever surrounding these modest heroes. In the world war of 1914-18, the trawlers have not only caught fish, but in their new capacity, as mine-sweepers, have kept the North Sea measurably free."

Need for Both Law and Sword.

In all government there must of necessity be both the law and the sword; laws without arms would give us not liberty but licentiousness and arms without laws would produce not subjection but slavery.—Colton.

"Pieces of Eight."

The piece of eight was the old Spanish piaster or peso, now called a dollar, thus known throughout the Spanish Main in the days of piracy, because it was divided into eight reals. It was a silver coin worth $1.

Recipe for Rosy Cheeks.

In some parts of England and in France and Italy also it is believed that a girl who buries a drop of her blood under a rose bush will have rosy cheeks.

His Poor Selection.

"I can't believe mo' dan half some folks says," said Uncle Eben, "an' somehow de half I does believe is mos generally de half dat ain' so."

Optimistic Thought.

Any fool knows how to resist, but it is the province of a wise man to know how and when to submit.

War-time Husbands.

Some curious facts are revealed in the British Registrar-General's report of births, marriages and deaths in 1917.

Whereas most of the marriages used to take place in July, August and September, the favorite months now are October, November and December. Widows remarried in great numbers. Although young war-widows affected the figures, it is clear that the war was not wholly responsible, for the total began to increase in 1912. Widowers, too, show an increasing tendency to take second wives.

The youngest bachelor to marry was fifteen, and the youngest spinster fourteen. No fewer than twenty-nine males married at the age of sixteen, and 329 at the age of seventeen, two of the latter marrying widows. Twenty-six spinsters married at the age of fifteen, one of them to a widower; 187 women were sixteen when they married, and of 1,200 marrying at seventeen years, fifteen married widowers.

The earliest second marriage of males was at the age of nineteen, and three widows remarried at the age of eighteen. Of thirty-nine men marrying when they were turned eighty only one, aged eighty-one, had never tasted the joys of matrimonial bliss previously, the rest being widowers; but out of nine women marrying beyond that age two were spinsters. The oldest man to be married was a widower of ninety-two, and the two oldest women were aged eighty-five, one a widow and one a spinster.—Tit-Bits.

Ancient Perfumes.

The first nation to learn the secret of aromatic substances was Persia. The priests of Egypt were the only people who studied science at that time, and Egyptian perfumes achieved great celebrity, especially those made in Alexandria.

Reserved originally for religious rites, perfumes subsequently became of current use among the wealthy classes. During banquets they were diffused through the halls and were burned in profusion. The Israelites during their sojourn in Egypt adopted the use of aromatic substances, primarily for religious purposes and afterwards for personal usage. The Jews were fond of cosmetics and even used them to paint the face.

All these perfumes were extracted from essences of trees and various plants. The Greeks, who loved elegance, were especially addicted to the use of perfumes, and they taught their secrets and usage to the Romans. The latter in the days of their decadence went so far as to scent the coats of their dogs.

In the Middle Ages the Arabs, Venetians, Genoese, and Florentines became famous for the preparation of sweet-smelling essences. — Tit-Bits.

Beyond Question.

Diner—These eggs are strictly fresh? You are quite sure? Waiter—Yes, sir. The chef boiled them for himself and hadn't time to eat them, sir.—New York Globe.

National Faults.

The guilt of every national sin comes back to the voter in a fraction, the common denominator of which is several millions.—Lowell.

Intelligence of Animals.

The hog is the most intelligent animal on the farm, except the dog. Horses are next, then cattle. Sheep have the least sense.

Nature's Fireless Cooker.

Out in New Zealand when they want a bit of soup, or are ready to have a boiled dinner they don't bother their heads about starting the fire, and the most eloquent of salesmen could never sell them a gas range, for the women folks who dwell in Whakarewarerva— which is quite unpronounceable—have a fine ready-made fireless cooker in the shape of a boiling spring.

Undoubtedly the fire is there but it is so deep down in the heart of the earth that no one has to bother to rekindle or stoke it, and the water in the spring is always boiling hot, and the edges where the water is shallow are always set about with pots and kettles for the neighborhood.

At the Commercial Museum it is said that, while boiling springs occur in many parts of the world, it is the New Zealanders who use them as perpetual fireless cookers, and find this method cooking in hot water an excellent one.

As a matter of fact, it is the most modern and up-to-date of all ways of preparing food, that of packing it in utensils and then setting them in boiling water, but with the New Zealanders it is the oldest method because it is the way provided for them by nature herself.

Power From Windmill.

The windmill is a new addition to the forest ranger's station on the mountain peaks of the West. Its purpose is to drive the dynamo that supplies current for a wireless telephone. The telephone has long been the chief aid of the look-out in fighting fires in our great national forests. Often, however, when most needed, the wires would be lying useless under a slide of rocks or snow or a fallen tree, so the rangers are to have wireless telephones, whose functioning cannot be disturbed in these ways.

China's Open Door.

The "open door" as applied to China means an open door for trade, or equal opportunities for all. The phrase was coined to describe a policy formulated by the American Secretary of State many years ago and upon his motion accepted by all the powers as just and equally fair to all.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Regularity of Meals.

An error of judgment is the tendency in many persons to become irregular at their meals. Many eat one hearty meal on top of another or abstain from food for long periods without there being any legitimate excuse for adopting this course. Now, while a fast is useful when the stomach is in need of a rest, to fast one day and feast indiscriminately on the next is a course of action that can only result in one thing—an upset digestion. If you make up your mind to eat only one meal, two meals or three meals per day, as the case may be, depend upon it the stomach will expect to receive the meal regularly at the same hour. See that it is not disappointed. Then the digestive juices will be stimulated by desire, and digestion will be more complete.

Ivory Mats.

There are but three mats of ivory in existence. The largest one measures eight by four feet, and although made in the north of India, has a Greek design for a border. It is used only on state occasions, like the signing of important documents. The cost of this precious mat was almost incalculable, for more than 6,400 pounds of pure ivory were used in its construction. Only the finest and most flexible strips of the material could be used, and the mat is like the finest woven fabric.

Stranger to the Western World.

The Asiatic zoological expedition sent into the South Chinese mountain province of Yunnan to investigate its range of animal life, succeeded in securing several fine specimens of the serow, which is a stranger to the western world. The serow is a mountain dweller, somewhat like the chamois, says the New York World. It is wary and fleet and takes a dizzy and seemingly impossible course among its native crags.

No Snowballs, No Lectures.

Fines having been imposed upon a number of students in a well-known college for snowballing in the college garden, 136 men left the place in a body and picketed the neighborhood. Armed with sticks and hurdles, they refused to admit the students who preferred lectures to snowballing, and when one of the professors received a missile on the ear the police had to interfere.

Beware.

The frequent repetition of any facial expression causes permanent alterations in the expression, and these correspond with, and suggest to the beholder, the emotional state that has predominated; so that the man who is always laughing comes to look "a jolly man," the thinker a thoughtful man, and the woman who worries begins to wear a worried look that persists.

Task for Mamma.

Ben was visiting his aunt, who so far forgot herself as to use a "swear word." The youngster was horrified, and upon arriving home he began to tell his grandfather about the occurrence. When he reached the place in his story where the "swear" had to be repeated he stopped and said appealingly: "Mother, won't you say it just once so grandpa can hear how awful Aunt Sue sounded?"

Plodders Have Their Uses.

It is the men who have had vision who have moved the world forward. The rest of us are plodders. We are good plodders and we all do the best we can, but we are really followers in the footsteps of others. If we follow well, and if we plod patiently and tirelessly we also may claim our meed of praise. Also we shall surely be given our reward.—Exchange.

Ghost Causes Strike.

The strike weapon has been invoked for some very odd reasons, as, for instance, when in 1875 hundreds of the Warwickshire miners stopped work owing to the alleged presence in a disused shaft of a "luminous boy." The strike lasted nearly a year, and cost £30,000, when it was proved that the "ghost" was nothing more than a collection of fungi.

A woman employed as a messenger at one of the collieries near Oswestry was the innocent cause of another strike.

As she commenced her day's work betimes she often met the miners on their way to the pit, and as the men considered it a bad omen to meet a woman first thing in the morning, trouble arose.

By threats and persuasion they tried to get the offending female to give up her job, and, failing in this, they went in a body to the manager and flatly refused to go down until the woman had been dismissed.

All the mill-girls in a certain Yorkshire town once refused to work because their employer had painted the windows of their workroom facing the street, thus shutting off their view. This infringement of feminine curiosity was vigorously protested against, and finally they triumphed, and the paint was removed.

Life in Bermuda.

One feature of life in Bermuda which always impresses the stranger is the apparent prosperity of the natives, white and colored alike. Distressing poverty is unknown, and even the poorest families can boast of a stone house and a garden.

Don't Meet Them Often.

"Is it always the husband's fault?" asks a magazine advertisement. Well, of course, there are some things with which husband never had anything to do. But they are rare.—Kansas City Star.

If Speed Is Wanted.

Some girls get their ruddy cheeks by daily calisthenics, others by daily cosmetics. Both ways are satisfactory for obtaining results but you got to hand it to the latter for speed.

Cant and Hypocrisy.

Cant is the voluntary over-charging or prolongation of a real sentiment; hypocrisy is the setting up pretense to a feeling you never had, and have no wish for.—Hazlitt.

Learn From Mistakes.

If you make a mistake don't look back at it long. Take the reason of the thing into your own mind, and then look forward. Mistakes are lessons of wisdom.- Hugh White.

MONTREAL CLUBS REFUSED TO PLAY

WANTED SPLIT OF GATE RECEIPTS IN SOCCER GAME TO-DAY, WHICH WAS REFUSED.

Montreal, Aug. 2. Trouble over the division of the gate receipts from the scheduled final for the Connaught Cup competition between Grand Trunks and the Royal Highlanders, to be played to-morrow, developed last night. Secretary J. Wilson, of the Province of Quebec Football Association, which is looking after the game received a letter last night signed by the full executive of the Grand Trunk Soccer Club and Royal Highlanders Club, stating that they would not play in the final game to-morrow, unless each club was given one-third of the gate receipts.

The demand was refused by the executive of the governing body and Lyalls and Verdun will play off in the final in place of Grand Trunk and Highlanders. Lyalls and Verdun were the beaten teams in the semi-finals of the competition last week. Verdun was beaten by Grand Trunks and Lyalls were beaten by Highlanders.

The action of the clubs in refusing to play will put them out of the competition for the championship of the Dominion of Canada and their action will likely be dealt with at the next meeting of the governing body.

PLAN HERMAN-SHARKEY FIGHT

Cream City A. C. of Milwaukee Arranges a Near Championship.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 1.—The Cream City A. C. today closed a match between Champion Peter Herman and Jack Sharkey of New York for a ten round battle for Aug. 15 at the auditorium here, the weight to be 118 lbs at 3 o'clock. This will be a near championship match, Sharkey having been consistent challenger for the title.

DATES FOR MERMAIDS ARE SET

Schedule is Arranged for Australian Girls' Exhibition Tour.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Arrangements for the exhibition tour of Misses Fanny Durack and Mina Wiley, Australian swimmers, are being completed by the A. A. U. officials. The Antipodean stars will compete in a number of national championships, meet [illegible] of national championships, meeting the best of the American women swimmers under the jurisdiction of the various sectional registration committee.

The schedule to date: Portland, Ore., Aug. 2; Chicago, Aug. 9 and 10; New York, Aug. 16; Chicago, Aug. 23, and Rye Beach, N. Y., Aug. 30. Other cities are Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Detroit, Minneapolis, Pittsburgh, Columbus, St. Louis, New Orleans, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

ANGLER 87 YEARS OLD

When Mr. Frank Hamilton, of East City, 87 years of age, goes fishing, he evidently means business. Yesterday his grandson, Frank Hoffman accompanied him down the river on a fishing expedition as far as the first bridge, where the aged angler captured 13 bass and a large mascalounge.

NEW YORK'S HOPE RESTED IN MAYS

OWNERS OF CLUB IN TANDRUM OVER HIS SUSPENSION BY JOHNSON.

New York, Aug. 2.—Jacob Ruppert and T. L. Huston, owners of the New York Americans, expressed indignation when informed by Ban B. Johnson, league president, that he had indefinitely suspended Carl Mays, the pitcher New York recently procured from the Boston club. Ruppert immediately telegraphed to Johnson asking him to revoke the suspension.

"Johnson had two weeks to suspend Mays if he cared to," said Ruppert. "Why does he wait until we got him? Why does he make us suffer for a difference between Mays and the Boston club when Boston was willing to dispose of the player to us? Johnson certainly must have heard of the negotiations, as the papers have been full of them, especially in Chicago.

"Johnson did wire us on July 29 to the effect that 'Six clubs protest to your dickering with the Boston club for Mays.' Knowing that both the Chicago and New York clubs were negotiating for Mays and that Boston was the party negotiating, and strongly suspecting that several other clubs also had put in a bid for this valuable player, we wired back to him to name the six clubs protesting. We never got a reply to that telegram.

"The New York club was willing to invest quite a lot of money for Mays, because we felt that he could put the New York club back in the race, and we bought Mays for the help we hoped he would give us immediately, as the present is a crucial time for our club. The next two weeks mean everything to the Yankees, and if Mays is suspended during this period it will be a terrible blow to us."

In his telegram sent to Johnson asking that Mays' suspension order be revoked Ruppert said that while the request was made in the friendliest spirit, "New York does not waive its legal right." He refused to explain this passage.

~~Ruppert denied a report from Bos~~ton that Derrill Pratt, second baseman of the New York Americans, would be the third player to be sent to Boston in the Mays deal.

TORONTO AFTER ANOTHER PITCHER

WILL LEAVE NO STONE UNTURNED TO BEAT THE BALTIMORE AGGREGATION.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—President McCaffery said that he is negotiating for one of the best left hand pitchers in the minor leagues, and that there is every chance that he will put through the deal before the Leafs go on their next long trip, opening at Baltimore next Thursday. He will cost a pot of money, but it will be cash well spent if he delivers one or two winning performances against the Birds. Mr. McCaffery is determined to beat Dunn's crew in the pennant grind; he does not think that the pace-makers have an impregnable lead, and it will not be his fault if a third flag is not brought to Toronto. He has given Manager Gibson, carte blanche, as far as securing players is concerned. "I have told him," he said today, "to go as far as he likes in order to strengthen the team. Outfielder Spencer, of Bay City, who was purchased yesterday, was the real batting leader of the M. and O. League, and on the figures is a promising prospect. In 45 games, he batted .400, making 68 hits, including ten doubles and four triples and stealing 34 bases. His fielding figures were .935. He accepted 86 of his 92 chances and contributed six assists, and co-operated in two double plays. Spencer is only 23 years old, and according to "Bill" Cristal, late manager of the Michigan club, is one of the sweetest all round performers he has ever seen. He is coming here on a ten day trial, reporting on Monday. The acquisition of Spencer gives the Leafs six outfielders, as Schulte also reports today. The latter will replace Helder whose shoulder is still troubling him.

Can't Get Thompson.

President McCaffery does not believe that the Leafs have much chance of getting Thompson from Connie Mack. The manager of the Athletics in a letter to headquarters claims that he turned the pitcher over to Baltimore in good faith, and denies the insinuation that he was guilty of double healing. He further says that he was not aware that Thompson was a drafted player.

BACK FROM WAR RUNS BOXING SHOW

ALEX. McLEAN BACK IN CIVVIES AFTER WORKING OF K. OF C. IN EUROPE.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Alex. McLean, veteran cycle rider and later promoter and manager of crack boxers, just has returned to New York from Europe, where he has been working for the Knights of Columbus since last November. The first three months he spent in Paris, but he was shifted to Germany in January and he remained here at Coblenz until he left for home.

While he was with the army of occupation McLean supervised the running of sixty-three shows in four months, probably the greatest feat in the annals of matchmaking. Bouts were conducted by the Knights of Columbus for the Third Army corps in six different places—Trier, West Trier Esch Luxemburg, Wittlich, Andernach and Coblenz.

Most of the matches were made by long distance telephone, there being a distance of 200 miles between the 4th farthest east and west. A record of the name, weight, etc. of every boxer in each division was kept, so in this way it was comparatively easy to tell how to match them up.

Among other accomplishments of McLean's was the establishment of a school of umpires, with directors in four different sections, who taught the doughboys who liked that sort of work how to umpire. Pete Noonan, the old Athletic catcher; Bill Coughlin, the Detroit star; Jack Kerin, the former American league umpire, and Tommy Dowd, the old National league star, were those who held night school sessions to show the candidates how to call balls and strikes and interpret the rules.

It was necessary to have a large number of umpires because of the great rivalry in baseball. Each company had one or more teams and when they played it was for money and blood.

McLean says Gene Tuney was the best boxer turned out by the A. E. F. Bob Martin a giant heavyweight is another promising boxer.

TENNIS TOURNEY BEGINS AUG. 11TH

AUSTRALIANS IN NATIONAL DOUBLES CHAMPIONSHIP AT LONGWOOD NEXT WEEK.

Newton, Mass., Aug. 2.—Officials of the Longwood Cricket Club have announced that the lawn tennis national doubles championship would begin Aug. 11 instead of Aug. 12. The change was explained as bringing the final on Thursday and giving the players a day's rest before the challenge round on Saturday, when the winners will play William T. Tilden, Jr., and Vincent Richards, present holders of the national championship in doubles.

Competing teams were announced as follows:

Norman E. Brookes and G. L. Patterson, national doubles champions of England, members of the Australian Davis Cup team for 1919.

R. V. Thomas and Randall Lycett, members of the Australian Davis Cup team for 1919.

I. Kumagae and Harold Throckmorton, winners of the Middle States sectionals.

Maurice E. McLoughlin and T. C. Bundy, U. S. national champions 1913-1914, and winners of the California sectionals.

Wm. M. Johnston and C. J. Griffin, U. S. national champions 1915-1916, and winners of the Northwestern sectionals.

C. B. Doyle and F. H. Harris, winners of the Middle Atlantic sectionals.

It was announced that the winners of the Southern and Western sectionals, would also compete.

Boy Babies Arrive.

From Reading comes the news that Berks county babies are very largely male. If there are those who consider this a phenomenon, they are little acquainted with history. It is the universal experience that immediately after any war the birth rate rises and males are in the majority. This is the way in which nature cares for her own, although no scientist has been able to give any satisfactory explanation of the fact.

Unless this reproduction of the destroyed sex was universal we should soon have a one-sided world in the matter of sex. We have had wars from time immemorial and many of them have been extremely bloody, but the average of the sexes has been maintained to the satisfaction of humanity.

Nature is good to her own and preserves by curious methods a balance which is beneficial to the race. Twenty years from now the world population will be greater than in 1914, even if it is not, as some claim, already greater, in spite of the loss of 6,000,000 or more lives.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Scotch Theology.

Although it's now "apres la guerre," you may be able to get a laugh from this story from the late front. It exemplifies well the Scot's love for theology—not always undiluted. An army chaplain meeting a Jock who had taken "a drop too much," offered to guide him to barracks. On the way Jock became discursive. "Ye ken, chaplain," he said, "ma father is a very releegious man, and I'm that way inclined masel." Noo I'd like to ha'e a bit argument wi' ye on predestination." The padre was much amused. "Hadn't you better wait until you are sober, Jock?" he replied. "Hoot, mon," said the Scot. "I don't care a d— about predestination when I'm sober."

MISS DAINGERFIELD WILL SELL HER FILLIES

SALE TO TAKE PLACE AT SPA—WINNERS IN GREAT BRITAIN, FRANCE, SOUTH AMERICA.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Miss Elizabeth Daingerfield, a daughter of the late Maj. Foxhall Daingerfield, who, as manager of the Castleton stud of the late James R. Keene over period of about twelve years, sent to the races in this country, Great Britain, France and South America the winners of above $3,000,000, will make her first contribution to the annual yearling sales as an independent producer at Saratoga this season.

For several seasons Miss Daingerfield managed the Wickliffe stud of Price McKinney. She branched out in business for herself when the Wickliffe stud was dispersed, and her nursery is now domiciled in Heylands Park, which is not far from Lexington. Miss Daingerfield's contribution to the Fasig-Tipton Company's sales will be a modest one. She will offer four yearlings by the young Commando stallion Ultimus, a horse Maj. Daingerfield bred at Castleton as he did Disguise, Commando himself, Colin, Colt, Peter Pan, Superman, Transvaal, Restigouche, Battot, Sweep, Delhi, Runnymede and Theo Cook. But she is making a beginning, and her representation in the sales of future years will be heavier and more important.

Ultimus, which never raced, has been an uncommonly successful sire, his handsomest presents to the turf having been Luke McLuke, Last Coin, High Time, Harry Kelly, Ultima Thule, Royal Ensign and Bonnie Mary, the last named the winner this season of the juvenile stakes and the Great America.

One of Miss Daingerfield's yearlings is a filly from Broos Flower, she a half sister of Goldsmith. Another is a daughter of Searchlight, and a half sister of Ruth Strickland. Another is a filly from Torpenhoe, an imported daughter of Torpoint. The other is a filly from Tripping. She is the dam of Toto. Miss Daingerfield's four fillies will be sold on August 6 with the yearlings from Maj. Thomas Clay McDowell's Ashland stud and Charles H. Perryman's [illegible] at Gladhelkem.

How Britain Saves the Babies.

Great Britain has adopted drastic measures to provide milk for her babies, according to J. C. Welliver in the National Geographic Magazine.

"If the adult patron of a public eating house," he says, "buys and drinks a glass of milk as a beverage, he is liable to a fine of $25, and the proprietor subjects himself to a like penalty."

The result has been that "the death rate among infants under five years old has been about one-half the rate in prewar times. For the first time in the modern history of Britain there has been milk enough for all the babies, and good milk."

Only Small Transgression.

Jane had a new tricycle, but had been told not to leave the front walk. Instead of minding her mother she rode around the block. On her return her mother scolded her and asked why she did not obey. Jane thought of no good excuse, so said: "Well, I didn't fink you would care if I just went behind the block."

Wrist Blotter.

In these days of wrist watches there seems to be a call for the simple wrist blotter recently invented by Harland W. Cardwell of Texarkana, Tex. This device consists merely of a curved blotter back, blotter and a wrist strap, so that the blotter may be worn on the right hand of the user. Thus the blotter is instantly available for use, and the pen does not have to be laid down.

TONE IN A PIANO

Many elements enter into the construction of a piano, but first and foremost and outstanding among them all is tone, nothing else can take its place. For this reason we have an artist of the high standing of Jan Cheriasvky writing of the piano made by Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Limited., George and Hunter streets, Peterboro: "I attribute a great deal of my success to the facility with which the emotions are expressed by the perfect response and brilliant tone of your piano."

The Cherniasvky Brothers make the Heintzman & Co. piano their exclusive choice in their touring of Canada, as also in South Africa and Australia.

MR. HERBERT C. TRENEER RESIGNS AS ORGANIST OF ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Final Appearance Tomorrow, After Which He Will Prepare For Arts Course in Toronto University—Congregation to Give Him Tangible Token of Appreciation.

Mr. Herbert C. Treneer, the accomplished organist of St. Andrew's Church for the past eight years, will make his last appearance in that capacity at the morning service tomorrow, when the members of the congregation, who appreciate his faithful and efficient services so highly, will present him with some tangible token of their esteem. The order of the union services with Trinity Methodist Church has been reversed for the day, and the morning service will be held in the edifice in which Mr Treneer has for so long officiated. Mr Treneer's present purpose is to attend St. Andrew's college in Toronto next winter in order to prepare for an arts course in Toronto University.

Mr. Treneer's home is in Kingston where, prior to coming to this city, he held the position of organist in Brock street Methodist church. He was a natural born musician and, besides his instrumental attainments, possesses a baritone voice of rare compass. He studied his art in the Toronto College of Music from which institution he graduated with honors. It was in June, 1911, that he first came to Peterborough, and since that time the people of St. Andrew's have put in one of the largest and most expensive church organs to be found between Toronto and Montreal.

Mr Treneer has always had an ambition to take a course in Arts, not for any practical results so much as for the sake of acquiring knowledge. That was his ambition in boyhood, but he lacked the means at that time to carry on both the literary and the musical branches of his education. Now he finds himself in a position to indulge his ambition.

Mr. Treneer will leave Peterborough with the best wishes of the members of the congregation which he has served so faithfully, as well as those of a host of pupils whom he has trained in the art of which he is himself a master. He has excelled as a choir leader as well as an organist, and in the former branch of his work has been ably assisted by Miss Helen MacLaren, the soloist. He has a genial disposition which has made him friends among those who have been associated with him in any way.

700 MILES IN MOTOR

Lindsay Party Enjoys Long Trip—Good Roads Are Needed.

A Lindsay automobile party returned Thursday afternoon from a 700 mile trip to Conneaut, Ohio, Jamestown, and other large U. S. cities. The party comprised Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mullen, Master Douglas Mullen and Mrs. J. Coburn, and all report a delightful holiday, with good and bad roads and no car trouble.

The trip was via Toronto, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Conneaut, and Mr. Mullen states that one of the poorest [illegible] on road on the entire trip was the road out of Lindsay by the hospital, west. The country is looking at its best, especially the fruit sections, and there appears to be a period of prosperity throughout the country.—Warder.

MAY PARADE IN UNIFORM

Local Posties are Generally in Favor of Doing so on Labor Day.

Local postmen will meet early next week on the question of marching in the Labor Day parade, in uniform. As far as can be learned the majority are strongly in favor of this course. However, government permission to parade in government uniform will have to be obtained, and at the coming meeting a vote will be taken as to whether such permission shall be asked for.

Toronto Likewise

Postmen in Toronto are anxious to parade in uniform on Labor Day, and are anxiously awaiting the department's endorsation.

The Labor Day Demonstration Committee has received a letter from Postmaster W. E. Lemon, stating that the letter carriers would be granted Labor Day as a holiday and that he would take up the matter of allowing them to parade in uniform with the Postmaster-General.

Entries have been received from St. Matthew's of Toronto, Wray of Belleville, four rinks from Cobourg, two from Sunderland, three from Lindsay and about eight from Peterboro. They are playing for the J. R. Stratton and G. A. Gillespie trophies.

BASEBALL THIS AFTERNOON

Orientals and Matthews-Blackwells in Final Clash at 3 o'clock.

The Orientals and Matthews-Blackwell will clash in the final game of the City League at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The Packers have already captured the championship, but the Oriental bunch claim they had the "break." Come and see who deserve the championship. The admission will be the same as for all City League games.

The game on Monday promises to be a hummer. If the "Moose" team line up to their reputation it will make the local squad go to take their measure. It is seldom that enthusiasm has run so high over an exhibition game as it has over this game.

ROOFS BURNED GOODS DESTROYED

SHORT CIRCUIT ELECTRIC WIRE CAUSED RATHER BAD FIRE THIS MORNING.

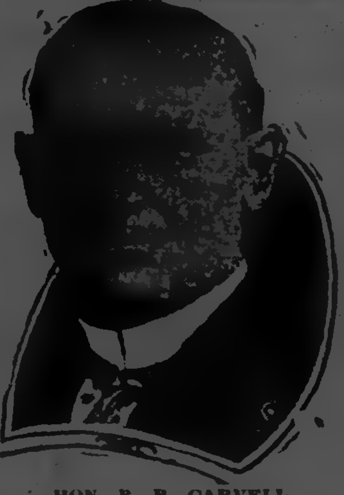
The largest fire which has occurred for some time broke out at 716 and 718 Water street this morning about 4:25 o'clock. The blaze started in the home of T. J. Quinlan, at 718 Water street, caused by a short circuit in the electric wiring. The wire set fire to the cornice of the next house tenanted by R. Dundas. The roof of this house was not protected by tin as was the other, and the whole roof was ablaze in a very short time.

The house owned by Mr. Quinlan, where the fire started, suffered small damage. The other house, however, is badly damaged.

The roof and ceiling collapsed, destroying the furniture in the bedrooms. This house is owned by Mr. Howe, Chicago.

Mr. Dundas was awakened by a noise which he describes as sounding like rain falling on the roof. On examination he discovered that it was the blaze raging in the roof. He immediately sent in the alarm from box 45 and also phoned. To extinguish the fire, 1750 feet of hose, 40 gallons of chemical and two hydrants were used.

The extent of the damage has not yet been estimated.



HON. F. B. CARVELL

Minister of Public Works in the Union Cabinet, who has resigned office. It is understood that Mr. Carvell, who is a Liberal Unionist will retire from political life to accept a position on the Bench.

PORT HOPE GUN CLUB MADE FINE SHOOTING

LAKEFIELD ALSO SHOT WITH PETERBOROUGH CLUB LAST NIGHT—GOOD SHOOTING GENERALLY.

The Port Hope and Lakefield Gun Clubs paid a visit to the local Gun Club's grounds last evening and a very pleasant shoot was held.

There was a very high wind and it made the shooting difficult, but some very good scores were made.

H. Reynolds and R. S. Watson, of Port Hope, and Roy Hutchinson, of the home team, were high guns with scores of 41 each.

The Port Hope squad won the team shoot for the cigars with Peterborough two birds behind. Mr. Reynolds won the blind handicap with 22 an T. Curvin and Chris. Graham were tied for second with 21.

The Port Hope Club is shooting fine and sent up two squads. Lakefield had a nice turnout of gunners and are doing great work for a new club.

The executive of the Peterborough Club were delighted with the number of shooters who attended the evening's sport, there being twenty-seven.

Return visits will be made to Port Hope and Lakefield in the near future. Below are the scores.

RUMANIAN TROOPS OCCUPY BUDAPEST BELA KUN FINDS ASYLUM IN VIENNA

New Hungarian Government Consolidated—Personnel of Cabinet Moderate—Budapest Quite Orderly Following Change of Power—Troops Known as the "Lenine Lads" Have Disappeared.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Aug. 4.—A despatch from Vienna sas Roumanian troops entered the suburbs of Budapest yesterday.

Occupy Budapest

Budapest, Aug. 4. — Rumanian troops advancing from the river Theiss occupied the city this morning despite protests advanced by Colonel Romanelli, Italian Representative of the Allies at Vienna.

Budapest Orderly

Budapest is orderly today, following the change in Government, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Vienna. Minister of War Haubarich was appointed town dictator, and declared martial law. The troops known as the "Lenine Lads" have disappeared.

The New Government

Hungary's new government was commented upon generally in Peace Conference circles yesterday as being moderate, and one that can be dealt with by the allies.

Virtually all members of the Provisional Government were said to be Socialists of the Right or of the Extreme Right and regarded as temperate in their views. Peter Agoston, Minister of Foreign Aairs, is known here as a moderate. Many members of the Peace Conference are well acquainted with him. His position in the Bela Kun administration is said to have been a subordinate one. The new Hungarian Cabinet is composed of a number of men who, Peace Conference delegates said, had been expected to take the lead in the reconstruction of the Government.

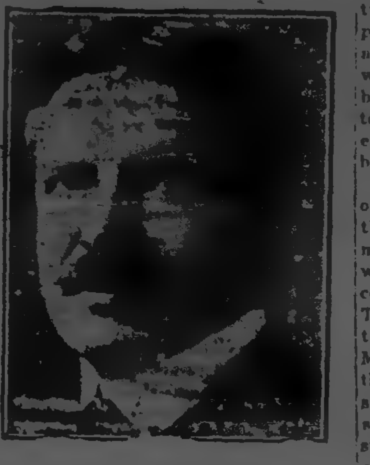
A Moderate Ministry

The new cabinet is made up as follows: Premier, Jules Peidll; Minister of Foreign Affairs, Peter Agoston; Minister of War, Joseph Haubrich; Minister of Justice, Paul Garami; Minister of Welfare, Alexander Affairs, Karl Paer; Minister of Agri- Garbai; Minister of Commerce, M. Novohak; Minister of Education, Stephan Szabo; - Minister of Home culture, Joseph Takaos; Minister of Finance, Joseph Miskols; Minister of Food, M. Knittelhofer.

Premier Peidll is said by those who know him to be a courageous man of simple habits. He has been a typographer, an editor and a model worker.

Minister of War Hauberich, formerly was chief of police at Budopest and is reputed to be an anti-communist. Minister of Justice Garami and Minister of Education Szabo were in the Karolyi Cabinet.

NEW FINANCE MINISTER



SIR HENRY DRAYTON
Who resigns as head of Railway Commission to become Minister of Finance.

Sir Henry Drayton has been sworn in as Minister of Finance. He comes to office with a high reputation as an administrator. He is clear in vision, practised in affairs untiring in action. His work in the public service has given proof of his quick intelligence and his solid character.

First as Corporation Counsel for the City of Toronto, then as member of the Civic Hydro-Electric Commission he showed energy and capacity. His record as chairman of the Federal Railway Commission has been nothing short of illustrious. He will be a source of strength to the Gov- [illegible] trator, but in Parliament. Sir Henry is familiar with political life. He was highly regarded by Toronto Conservatives before he accepted any public office. He is still young, has an attractive personality, which wins him popularity everywhere, and is an accomplished debater.

The public is not easily reconciled to the loss of Sir Thomas White, whose great ability was made more apparent by the war. But the succession of another young man of individuality, courage, and experience in dealing with big questions will make for stability throughout the Dominion. The financial problems of the immediate future are not less intricate than those of the war period. But the new Minister, we believe, will command the confidence of Parliament and the country, and will meet these problems boldly and successfully. It must not be forgotten that the Drayton-Acland report on Canadian railways revealed Sir Henry as a man of uncommon clarity of understanding.

Sir Robert Borden may be congratulated upon his continued power to attract men of high mental calibre to the service of the nation.

WORK OPENING UP ON HUNTER ST. BRIDGE

MORE MEN WERE TAKEN ON THIS MORNING—DOUBLE SHIFT SOON.

Fifteen or twenty laborers were set to work for the first time this morning on the Hunter street approach to the new bridge and that vicinity now looks like a veritable home of industry. Returned soldiers are given the preference in all cases provided they are residents of the city. More men will be taken on at once, but it must be borne in mind that the contractors cannot move in this matter faster than they are authorized to do so by the engineer.

Business Agent Tooms of the Laborers' Union had an interview with the officials of the company this morning and was assured that they would live up to the terms of their contract in their dealings with labor. There will be two shifts as soon as the work is got well under way and Mr. Tooms told the officials that there would be men enough to make such a system possible. The day shift will begin work at 7 a.m. and stop work at four. The night workers will begin at 4 p.m. and work eight hours with a short intermission for lunch during the evening. This plan will give employment to a large number of men, that, too, at a time when so many are idle.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT SWEET

Prohibitive Measures in Some Cases Seem to Stimulate Violation of Law.

From the days of Adam and Eve down to these of nineteen-nineteen, forbidden fruit is exactly what humanity seems to crave for. The most expensive luxury today in Canada is liquor, and still some people will have it at all costs. The law says liquor you shalt not have unless through physicians' prescriptions, a free peo- [illegible] they'll move heaven and —you know what—to get it, and some do. A few are caught buying and selling, but how many escape detection?

In Peterborough liquor cases in the Police Court are not infrequent and fines heavy. In this city's sister town, Lindsay, last week liquor was sold on one of the public streets, 'tis said, and an interesting case is now being aired in the Police Court. In Toronto, Saturday, Provincial Inspector A. E. Sarvis made a large seizure of liquor in the station yard coming into Toronto from the east. The inspector observed a leakage in one of the freight cars, and his suspicions were aroused. A search was instituted, and a seizure of 18 cases of liquor and about 100 gallons were made.

All of which goes to show that even as Adam and Eve defied the punishment of material death for eating the forbidden fruit, so millions of their descendants will have their forbidden liquor, whether or no. In fact, their disobedience is inherent.

BELA KUN IN VIENNA

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vienna, Aug. 4.—An official statement says Bela Kun and his associates have been given an asylum in Vienna, Austria, and will be allowed remain, under detention, until Hungary is able to receive them again.

SOLDIERS WITH FIXED BAYONETS NOW DRIVE RIOTERS FROM LIVERPOOL STREETS

Order Not Restored Till Daylight Sunday Morning, When Troops Were Ordered to Charge—Employes of Transportation Lines Quit Work—6,000 Trades Unionists in Sympathy With Striking Police.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Liverpool, Aug. 4.—Riotous crowds were driven from the streets this morning by troops charging with fixed bayonets.

Rioters filled the streets during the night, and it was not till daylight that soldiers were ordered to charge.

Employees of bus and tramway lines failed to report this morning.

Many Injured.

Liverpool, Aug. 3. Rioting Saturday, as a result of the police strike, did not cease until nearly 4 o'clock Sunday morning. Many persons were slightly injured during the course of stone throwing on the part of the rioters and charges by the troops. The mob was so threatening at one point that the troops fired into the air with a view to overawing it.

The riots were resumed today. Many more shops were looted and serious disorders occurred when troops were called to stop the sacking of stores in Lodge Lane, leading to a conflict between the rioters and troops in which a man named Howley was severely wounded.

Unions in Sympathy.

A mass meeting of 6000 trades unionists in the stadium tonight passed a resolution declaring common cause with the police strikers, but deprecating looting on the ground that it gave the government an excuse for employing the military.

The magistrates are sitting con-[illegible]aring in constables and volunteer guards.

Half of Police on Strike.

Late tonight rioting was renewed in the London road district, in which windows were smashed. Non-uniformed and special police were unable to disperse the mob and uniformed men were called to the scene. These charged with their batons and checked the rioters, injuring many, but were unable to clear the streets entirely. Another man was sent to a hospital suffering from a shot wound.

Approximately half the police force is striking. It is reported that more troops and some tanks have been ordered to the city.

NAVAL PAGEANT ON THE THAMES

Britain Commemorates Role Played In War By Her Sea Services

MOBOLIZATION OF BRITISH FLEET

Anniversary of Historic Moment—British Flags Dominated All Other Decorations

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 4.—The important role played by the British sea services in the great war was commemorated by a naval pageant on the Thames today, the fifth anniversary of the historic mobolization of the British fleet.

Plans for the event, while giving recognition to allied powers, laid stress on the fact that this was purely a British occasion, and British flags predominated in decorations along the riverside.

2 KILLED AND 26 ARE INJURED

PICNIC AUTOMOBILE STRIKES BRIDGE AND TURNS TURTLE INTO A DITCH SUNDAY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Loyer and Mrs. Beaulieu were killed, six others badly hurt, and twenty slightly injured last night when a pnicnic automobile carrying thirty persons on a family outing struck a bridge over Dry Brook, near St. Sulpice, and turned turtle into a ditch.

COMMUNIST LEADER SHOT

"The Only Enemy of the Enemies of the Proletariat," He Claimed.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vienna, Aug. 4.—Tibor Szamubly, a prominent Hungarian Communist leader, was shot and killed, Friday night, while he was crossing the border into Austria, by a guard whose brother Szamusly had executed. He exclaimed as he died, "I was the only enemy of the enemies of the proletarist."

WHY NOT PREPARE FOR THE ELECTION?

It will require at least a month in which to call a convention to nominate a Conservative candidate for the Legislature. Two weeks' notice must be given to begin with for the purpose of selecting delegates. Even if prompt action is taken the Convention cannot be legally held until well into September. The election is sure to be held not later than October. This will leave a scant month for the campaign. Few desirable members of the party will be found willing to accept a nomination under such conditions. One month is too short a time in which to form an organization and to cover the riding properly.

Premier Hearst is evidently getting ready. He is going through the province defending his record and announcing his future policy. The Opposition, too, is preparing for an election. Candidates on both sides are being nominated in all sections. Everywhere there is to be heard the sound of preparation except in West Peterborough. It is expected that the definite date of the election will be announced from Queen's Park some day this week. If such announcement is made there cannot be the shadow of an excuse for further delay.

IRRITATED BULL GORES MINISTER

REV. S. C. SNYDER, PASTOR OF FREE METHODIST CHURCH, BADLY INJURED.

A painful accident befell Rev. S. C. Snyder, pastor of the Free Methodist Church, last week near Campbellford. He was holding a bull on the farm of Mr. Ira Loucks, Seymour East, when the animal threw his head around to drive off the flies which were tormenting him, the horn striking Mr. Snyder in the abdomen, causing an ugly wound. Mr. Snyder, who was thrown to the ground, called for help and Norris Loucks came to his assistance. The affair was purely accidental, as the bull was not vicious.

Rev. Mr. Snyder is progressing favorably and will probably be around again in a few days.

HON. T. O. CRERAR ON WAY TO WINNIPEG

HAD CONFERENCE WITH U. F. O. EXECUTIVE IN TORONTO BEFORE ENTRAINING FOR THE WEST.

Hon. T. A. Crerar, ex-Minister of Agriculture, passed through Toronto on Saturday on his way to Winnipeg.

He had a conference with some members of the U.F.O. executive during his short stay in Toronto before taking his train west.

Arrangements are actively going forward to combine the political influence of the farmers' movement in all the provinces for a Dominion-wide agricultural campaign in the next federal elections.

LOOK FOR HAZEN TO ENTER THE CABINET

PRACTICALLY SETTLED THAT HE WILL BE MINISTER OF GOVERNMENT.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—It is practically settled that Sir Douglas Hazen will resign as chief justice of New Brunswick and enter the Dominion cabinet. A vacancy will be created in the strong Conservative constituency of York, N.B., by the appointment of Colonel Harry F. Macleod the sitting member, to a county judgeship and Sir Douglas will run in that district instead of Carleton-Victoria recently made vacant by the appointment of Hon. F. B. Carvell to the railway commission.

HOLD GOVERNMENT TO ITS OWN ESTIMATE

TORONTO POSTMEN DEMAND MINIMUM SALARY OF $1500 A YEAR.

Toronto, Aug. 4.—The letter carriers of the city met at the Originals' Club to consider the reply received from the Civil Service Commission to a letter regarding wage increases recently sent forward by the union. The reply stated that the commission could not see its way clear to recommend anything further to the government than the increase of $420 per year already offered. In view of this the committee of the carriers which has been carrying on the negotiations decided to take the report recently presented to the Civil Service Commission, the finding of which was that a yearly salary of $1550 is necessary for the maintenance of a family of five at the present time, as the basis for further efforts. The committee accordingly will forward a letter requesting that they be granted this salary per annum.

FIRE IN LONGO'S FRUIT STORE QUANTITY OF FRUIT DAMAGED

Cause of Fire a Mystery—No Faultty Electric Wiring.

The fruit store owned by A. Longo, 144 Hunter street took fire about 12.25 Sunday morning. The alarm was turned in at 12.27 by H. R. Cuthbexion, who happened to be passing at the time.

The fire was extinguished without the use of water, but considerable damage resulted to the fruit by smoke.

The cause of the fire is unknown. Chief Grange reports that there was no reason for spontaneous combustion. No live wire being near, and the clerk who closed the shop declares she looked around before departing but did not notice anything in the nature of a spark, cigarette butt or such like that might cause a fire.

INFURIATED HORSE KICKS HIS OWNER IN THE FACE

Two High Bred Animals Attack Each Other in Stable.

Mr. Herbert Miller, a farmer in the neighborhood of Keene, was badly injured by one of his horses on Saturday. Mr. Miller is the owner of two spirtied blood horses. About 8 o'clock Saturday morning one of these beasts broke loose and found its way into the stall of the other. Immediatoly the spirited animals started to fight. Mr. Miller, attracted by the noise, hurried to the stable, accompanied by his wife. He seized the halter of one horse and turned to lead it away, when the other beast, intending to strike the last blow, kicked furiously at this moment, and its shoe landed fairly on Mr. Miller's face, rendering him unconscious.

Mrs. Miller got the infuriated animal away and summoned Dr. Cameron. Later Comstock's ambulance was called and the injured man conveyed to Nicholls Hospital. Mr. Miller's face was very badly cut up and his jaw broken.

Mr. Miller is a young farmer of Otonabee. He is justly proud of the splendid thoroughbred stock he has collected around him and appears to be heading well toward success. It is hoped that his injuries will soon heal and permit him to return to his work.

PARLIAMENT TO MEET IN SPECIAL SESSION SEPTEMBER FIRST NEXT

Peace Treaty to be Ratified and National Prohibition Question to be Disposed of—Prince of Wales to Lay Corner Stone of New Buildings.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—Parliament meets Monday, September first and on the same day the Prince of Wales will lay the corner stone of the new Parliament Buildings.

The session is not expected to last more than four or five weeks, and the ratification of the peace treaty will be the principal business. The disposition of the British ratification is postponed awaiting the action of the overseas Dominions and therefore parliament is called to meet four weeks from today. Besides the ratification of the peace treaty Parliament will deal with the question of continuing legislation passed under the war measures act, such as prohibition and race track enactments.

IMPORTANT SESSION

The coming session may be brief but it is likely to be one of the most important on record and no gathering of the house for years has been looked forward to with more interest. Prohibition, nation wide in its scope, is really the great question to be decided. The ratification of the treaty of peace will be a merely formal matter. That it will be passed without serious debate is taken as a matter of course.

At the recent regular session of the House a bill was passed by a large majority making permanent the war time Order in Council, prohibiting the exportation of liquor from a wet to a dry province. This bill was thrown out by the Senate. Premier Borden, however announced that the prohibitory order would stand until the peace treaty was ratified by Parliament in the next session.

Parliament is being urged to make the order perpetual and to ignore the action of the Senate. The final action on this question is the great matter of interest in the approaching session. If the order is abrogated Ontario can import liquir as freely from Quebec as it did in the early days of the Ontario Temperance Act.

The fate of the Ontario prohibitio law depends to a great extent on the action of the Federal House. If interprovincial traffic in liquor is again permitted this province will be made the dumping ground for liquor not only from Quebec but from the United States where nation wide prohibition is now in force. Under such conditions prohibition would be a farce.

SEARCHLIGHTS PROHIBITED

The first case of carrying a search light on an automobile appeared in the local police court this morning. The carrying of searchlights on automobiles is plainly against the laws of Ontario, and this is the first time anyone has tried to use one in Peterborough. The fine was only $2.

RAGE AND DESPAIR AMNNG PEOPLES OF EUROPE BEFORE WINTER SETS IN Remains of Civilization May Be Totally Annihilated, Declares Arthur Henderson.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Lucerne, Switzerland, August 3.—Before winter sets in there will be a terrible spasm of rage and despair among the peoples of Europe, in which the final remains of civilization may be totally annihilated, it was predicted by Arthur Henderson, British Labor leader, at the opening session of a Socialist conference here yesterday.

Urges Investigation.

Mr. Henderson declared the principal points of the peace treaty ought ot be subjected to immediate and thorough revision.

James Ramsay Macdonald of England, and Marcel Cochin, French socialist leader, condemned the Entente nations' support of Admiral Kolchak's government.

CIVIC HANDICAPS.

SOME EXXCEPTION has been taken to an article which appeared in these columns recently under the above caption, in which it was argued that it was unfair to bring to this city, or to any city, for that matter, an amusemen company under special conditions, in what was really subsidized competition with tax-paying and licensed institutions in similar lines already established here. It is offered in rebuttal to this contention that any travelling theatrical company would be barred from the city if such a system were enforced.

By no means. The theatrical company comes to the city at its own risk. It carries away with it only a percentage of the profits, if profits there be. If there is a deficit, no private citizen is called upon to make up the loss. From first to last it is a straight business proposition.

The travelling theatrical company employs local labor at union wages. The fly-by-night concern that exhibits in a tent has its own staff with it, and as a rule these men are poorly paid and indifferently lodged, usually sleeping under wagons, in box cars or in the temporarily deserted tents. It costs at least $150 to stage the average theatrical performance before the curtain is raised on the first act, and this money is left among the workingmen of Peterborough, many of whom are taxpayers themselves.

It is a case of justice, a matter of those clothed with a little brief authority doing unto others as they would have others do unto themselves. Does anyone for a moment believe that a firm of shoe or tent manufacturers would be brought to this city, guaranteed against loss and otherwise assisted to operate even temporarily against established industries, even if the excuse were offered that such a course was advisable in order to increase the local supply of such products? Isn't the proprietor of a feed store or of a job printing office safe from such unfair competition? Then why is not every legitimate line entitled to the same measure of protection? No city can flourish so long as it is run by factions and cliques. The get-together spirit so essential to civic prosperity cannot be developed when such conditions prevail.

"THE EXAMINER IS INFORMED."

THE EXAMINER is preparing for the coming fray, training for the impending scrap by cutting and slashing viciously but with a fair measure of caution and camouflage at everything that originates with the Government at Toronto. In short, it is getting ready to give anoher demonstration of how an election may be lost on a journalistic policy that is chiefly distinguished by blind interviews and anonymous letters.

In its news columns of Saturday the Examiner, speaking of the work of the enumerators in this city, says:

> It was stated by a member of the board today that the Peterborough enumeration is in very bad shape, and not only are the lists far from complete, but some of the enumerators are not even appointed as yet. "The whole thing is terribly bungled," the Examiner was informed.

Lacking the courage to voice its own petty malice, the Examiner quotes a dummy. But nothing else was to be expected.

The work of enumeration in this city has been entrusted to young men who did service in Flanders, young men whose fidelity to duty is above question, young men who on their record are worthy of every confidence. The work has been all but completed in this city, that too, in the time specified by law. Chief Enumerator Strickland has spared no pains to have the work thoroughly performed and has made personal sacrifices such as were not required of him by the Act. Every member of his staff was a man to be trusted, and it ill becomes any juggling party organ to cast reflections upon such a band of men. Owing to the season at which the enumeration was made, a large percentage of the voters, men and women, being out of town on their vacation, it has been impossible to reach everybody, but the law makes ample provision for all such cases. If the name of any man or woman entitled to vote is left off the list then it is the fault of those who are interesed.

In the country districts, owing to the busy season, it has been impossible to have the work promptly performed, but no effort is being spared in this direction.

Always when it is driven into a corner or held to account for some of its insinuations, the Examiner is ready with some puerile excuse. Sometimes that excuse is that the cub reporter broke bounds and put into the paper something that never passed under the editorial or managerial eye. At other times our contemporary tries to crawfish by asserting that it really did not mean the person or persons at whom the insinuation was palpably aimed, but some one else at a safe distance, say in Toronto or Ottawa.

The Examiner's defence for the "bungle" article of Saturday is that the bungling was done at Toronto, not in this city, and that no reflection was intended upon the chief enumerator or his assistant. Even if the "bungling" was done in preparing the article, the excuse will not hold water. The charge of the Examiner is still unjustified.

Some one should charitably impart some more information to our contemporary. Evidently it stands in need of it. For example, it would not be out of place to inform it that the Act under which the present enumeration is made, an enumeration made necessary by the granting of the franchise to women, was adopted by the Legislature with practical unanimity. Even the Examiner's present angel of light, Hartley Dewart, and the local representative himself, supported the main features.

The system of preparing the voters' list is as perfect as human enactment and unanimous legislative action can make it. If there is any "bungling" it can only be by local mismanagement, and the Examiner, no matter what it insinuates, lacks the courage to back up its innuendoes.

IMPROVING THE HIGHWAYS.

THERE IS NO MORE beautiful rural driveway in Peterborough County, few indeed in the Province, than the river road from this city to Lakefield. It is a highway that is extensively used by American and other tourists on their way to the Stoney Lake districts. Any autoist, however, who has passed over it, need not be told anything as to the nature of the surface of the road. The bumps and jolts that the occupants of passing cars receive detract from the pleasure of the scenic beauty all along the trip.

Is there not enterprise enough in Peterborough County to improve the condition of a highway which is one of the main thoroughfares for touring autoists in this district?

WHAT HENRY FORD KNOWS.

THE LATE SAMUEL JOHNSON, star of English literature in his day and the father of English lexicographers, had a remarkable antipathy for the Scottish people, a sentiment which is supposed to have originated in the fact that the Scotch were inclined on occasion to dispute English sovereignty and to carry their point in all important clashes. However that may be, Johnson cherished the ill-will to his dying day, although the hatred was somewhat tempered in the latter years of his life when he made a tour of the Highlands and enjoyed the hospitality of the people there.

Samuel Johnson not only made light of the culture of the Scotch, but even went so far as to question their knowledge of the text of their favorite volume, the Bible. History relates an incident in the great man's career when he thought to floor a Scottish coal driver by asking him who was Adam's father. The driver knew the answer, but with characteristic national caution refused to commit himself all at once. Did his cross-examiner mean Adam Smith, the butcher, or Adam Jones, the blacksmith on the corner? After a show of density of understanding he seemed to find his bearings and was at home at once. His mother, he said, used to keep a big book in a place of honor on the parlor table. About the middle of that book he could remember reading of some man who was the son of Enos, who was the son of Adam, who was the son of God.

When the English man of letters admitted the correctness of the answer, the other claimed the right to propound a simple query, and instead of going far back into sacred or profane history, floored his former interrogator with the question, "Who was my father?"

The knowledge which the coal driver possessed on this point may not be entitled to a place in history, but it was rather more practical, more to his own personal purpose, than that sought by the literary light. And there are others today in about the same relative positions as those held by these two.

Henry Ford and his cross-examiner, for example. The latter has spent days exercising the highest brand of legal skill to show that Mr. Ford is ignorant of history, poetry, biography and what not. Mr. Ford may have a hazy idea as to the place in history of Benedict Arnold, but that personage has been dead these many years, and it would perhaps be just as well not to dwell too much on his record. He may not know what a ballyboo is, and even that lack of knowledge should not be counted a crime.

There are other persons and things, however, with which Mr. Ford is on terms of intimacy. He knows the men who have helped to build up one of the greatest plants in the world, and, knowing them, he has understood how to treat them. He must at some time in his career have read or heard read the Sermon on the Mount. Even if he has not interpreted every passage correctly, the famous discourse has made an impression upon him. The tree is known by its fruit, the man by his deeds. No mortal is perfect, but if a general average is struck, Henry Ford with all his ignorance of history can hold his own in the final showing.

There are hundreds of men who are prominent in business whose knowledge outside their own particular line is limited. But their lack of education escapes the prying eyes of the public. There are a number of ways in which ignorance of history and general topics may be exposed. One man may break bounds and write a book. Another may assume the arduous task of editing a newspaper. Still a third may enter politics. A fourth may have the misfortune to become a party to a lawsuit and be grilled day after day by an attorney whose aim, so far as outsiders can judge, is to prove to a jury of competent citizens that because a man is illiterate he must be an anarchist.

The latter case was the one in which Mr. Ford had the misfortune to figure. Let the man who contemplates defending his reputation by legal action brush up on his general reading before he begins suit.

The Apprentice Of King George

The King holds office by the people's will. He is a chosen official and representative of the democracy as truly as the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom is. More so, in a strictly legal sense; for the Prime Minister does not hold his position by express authority of an act of Parliament. The King does.

When James II. abandoned his crown and country, just in time to avoid humiliation of being thrown out, Parliament passed an act declaring the Royal Office vacant, and proceeded to fill it. The son of James II. was deliberately set aside; so were the descendants of Henrietta, daughter of Charles I., who stood next in the direct line of succession.

End of "Divine Right" Notion

As a great English historian writes:

"The right of the people through its representatives to depose the king, to change the order of succession, and to set on the throne whom they would, was now established. All claim of Divine Right or hereditary right independent of the law was formally put an end to by the election of William and Mary."

In 1700 Queen Mary by that time having died, Parliament passed another Act, settling that if both William and Anne died childless the throne would pass to the descendants of Sophia, grand-daughter of James I. and wife of the Elector of Hanover.

Kings by Act of Parliament

It was by virtue of that Act alone that Sophia's son became King George I. of England. By the same Act he was succeeded by his son George II, his great-grandson, George III., and great-great-grandsons, George IV. and William IV. By the same parliamentary authority Victoria, daughter of George the Third's son Edward, occupied the throne from 1837 to 1901, and her son Edward VII from 1901 to 1910. By the same Act the son of Edward, George V., is now our king, and will be succeeded by the Prince of Wales whom we are about to welcome to Canada.

There was a time in the earlier part of the last century, when the unpopularity of an English King might have led the people to give him notice to quit, if the people then had cared to translate their opinion into action and if the King had not bowed before the gathering storm

The danger of any such action, the chance of any movement against the throne, has become less and less as the democratic feeling of the country has grown stronger and stronger.

King Edward and King George

The sagacious King Edward VII. is said to have remarked to a friend, —"You can be certain I shall never be put off the throne; because my people know that if they did not want me here I should go of my own accord." As a master of fact, the longer he reigned, the firmer became his hold on the confidence of his people.

King George has barely emerged from the shadow of his father's tremendous prestige. But he has emerged; he has been more closely in touch with the rank and file of his people than ever his father was, and he has responded with spontaneous sympathy to the more and more pressing demand of the democracy for better conditions of life.

The Future King Edward VIII.

The young Prince of Wales has really a better prospect than either his father or grandfather at his age.

He is passing a thorough apprenticeship to the trade of a king. Edward VII. in his youth and even in middle life, was overshadowed and kept in the background by his mother, who preferred to exercise her functions without an assistant. And George was at first apprenticed, not to kingship but to seamanship. It was anything but a joy to him when at the age of 26 his elder brother's death forced him to give up his comparatively free life of a sailor and prepare himself for the gilded shackles of a king.

Prince Edward on the other hand, has been trained from the beginning in the best traditions of the democratic British kingship, as well as in the best traditions of the wholesome British home life. He has both a good head and a good heart. He seems to have learned his lesson thoroughly. He takes his duties seriously, and realizes the tremendous responsibility of his position, happily without becoming a prig or discarding the natural gaiety of youth.

Whatever the mere theorists may say or do, and however much the spectacular features of kingship may suffer from the demands of national economy, the son of George V. has at least as bright a prospect of ultimately serving the Empire in the capacity of king as any Prince of Wales in history.

PENSIONS HERE ARE HIGHER THAN BRITISH

TABLE SHOWS DIFFERENCE IN ALLOWANCES MADE WAR HEROES.

Sir Douglas Haig's denunciations of British pensions before a special Parliamentary Committee have had results in bringing the total disability pension to an increase of $1.50 per week, making a weekly income of $9 for the single man.

Including the increase the British pension is still less than the Canadian allowance was before the Government granted a 20 per cent. increase to the $600 total disability.

Like Canada the increase affects widows, orphans and soldiers' dependents.

The comparison of the mother country and the Dominion pensions are as follows:

Canadian pensions—
Single man, totally disabled, $720 annually, weekly	$13.84
Married man, $835 annually, weekly	16.50
Married man, with one child, $1,008 annually, weekly	19.38
Married man, with two children, $1,152 annually, weekly	22.15
Married man with three children $1,267 annually, weekly	24.36
British pensions—
Single men, $468 annually, weekly	9.00
Married men, $572 annually, weekly	11.00
Maried, one child, $624 annually, weekly	12.00
Married, two children, $741 annually, weekly	14.25
Married, three children, $806 annually, weekly	15.50
$1.50 for each additional child.

JAPANESE WOMEN ON STRIKE

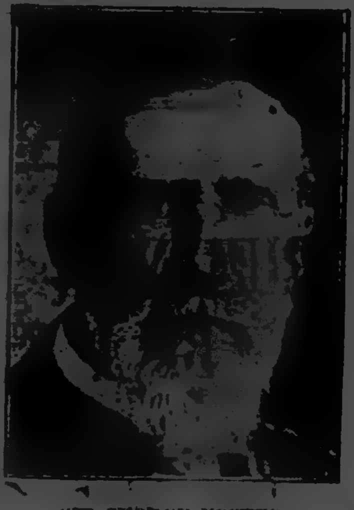
Price of Rice Keeps Rising and Labor Unrest Increases.

Tokyo, Japan, Aug. 3.—Because of the steadily increasing cost of living, with the price of rice soaring daily, labor unrest is spreading in Japan. Numerous strikes have occurred in Tokyo, Yokohama, Osaka and Nagoya, in which women have participated. Virtually all the newspapers are daily making bitter attacks on the Government for its failure to regulate the price of necessaries.

COUNTERFEIT MONEY GOING

Citizens Warned to be on the Alert for Bad Coins.

Counterfeit money, especially half dollar pieces is in circulation. Bad silver is being circulated in Western Ontario, and it is only with closest scrutiny that the bad ones can be detected. The work on the half dollar pieces is almost perfect. The only detection that can be discovered is in the milling around. It is not as perfect as it is on the Government money. The die work on the head and wreath of maple leaves is considered an absolute replica of the good money.



SIR GEORGE FOSTER

It is reported at Ottawa that having returned from Paris, where he was one of the Canadian representatives at the Peace Conference, Sir George Foster will retire from the Federal Government and public life, after the longest official career of any living Canadian. When he goes, it will sever the last personal link connecting the present ministry with the regime of Sir John A. Macdonald.

Mr. Foster's ancestors were of United Empire Loyalist stock. He was born in Carleton County, N.B., on the 3rd of September, 1847, only ten years after the accession to the throne of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and twenty years before Confederation. He graduated from the University of New Brunswick in 1865, and later studied abroad, particularly at the University of Edinburgh. Returning to his native province, he was for a time professor of classics and ancient literature at his Alma Mater.

He entered the House of Commons in 1882 as member for Kings, N.B., and with the exception of one Parliament, has held a seat there ever since. Three years later he was a Cabinet Minister(having been invited by Sir John A. Macdonald, on December 10, 1885, to take the portfolio of Marine and Fisheries, resigning it in May, 1888, to become Minisater of Finance, and he held that portfolio throughout the remaining years of the Conservative regime serving not only under Sir John A. Macdonald, but also under Sir John Ebbott, Sir John Thompson, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and Sir Charles Tupper.

Upon the return of the Conservatives to power in October, 1911, under the leaderships of Mr. (now Sir) Robert Borden, Mr. Foster (also raised to the knighthood since then), became Minister of Trade and Commerce, and still holds the portfolio.

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

(In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general. All phases of store management—buying, accounting, advertising and retail salesmanship—will be dealt with, not theoretically, but by descriptions of methods actually in use by successful merchants.)

THREE LETTERS THAT HASTEN COLLECTIONS

Retail merchants of Madison, Wis., have reduced slow-pay customers to an irreducible minimum by means of a very simple system of reports to and bulletins from the Madison Association of Commerce.

The association merely maintains a credit rating bureau, not a collection agency. Only a small amount of clerical work is needed.

The foundation of the whole scheme is on three standard collection letters. All the merchants use these three forms, which are duplicated for them on their own letterheads by the association.

When a customer is delinquent beyond a certain time, the merchant sends him the first letter.

> As members of the Credit Rating Bureau of the Madison Association of Commerce, we are required to report records of our dealings with our credit customers.
>
> You are indebted to us in the sum of $...., which is past due. May we not ask that you call within a week and arrange for settlement? We make this request in order that we may give you a favorable rating with the Credit Rating Bureau.
>
> The object of the Credit Rating Bureau is to establish credit for those who pay and to protect the merchant against those who do not pay. You can readily see that there must be the closest co-operation between the patron and the member of the bureau.
>
> We therefore ask you to give the above your prompt attention.

If this letter brings no results, then the following is mailed:

> We are very much surprised that you have given no consideration to our letter respecting your account in the sum of $....
>
> Unless this account receives immediate attention we will be obliged to report to the Credit Rating Bureau of the Madison Association of Commerce as unpaid. If this is done, the information relative to your credit standing automatically becomes the property of every member of the bureau.
>
> We hesitate to do this, because we believe that you desire to have your credit standing unimpaired. For this reason we are making another earnest request that you arrange for the settlement of this account.

The second letter generally brings results from all except the "hard-shell" case. For these, in whom the preceding "softened" requests have aroused no action, there is the third communication with a real sting in it.

> It now appears that you are not particular about your credit standing in this community. You have ignored our former correspondence relative to your account amounting to $....
>
> Unless we hear from you within three days we shall report you to the credit manager of the Credit Rating Bureau of the Association of Commerce, and your credit paying history, as noted on our books, will be on record for every member of the Credit Paying Bureau.

Other steps will then be taken to secure the collection of this account.

READING, PA., USES FULL-PAGE ADVERTISEMENTS

"Reading is the best all-purpose city in America—and the latch-string is out," in big type, is the way the Kiwanis Clubmen of Reading, Pa., boost their home town when they go visiting.

Recently they attended a convention in Birmingham, Ala., and instead of using a band and banners to advertise their city in the Pittsburgh of the South, they used newspaper space to show southerners that Reading is the Birmingham of the north. The advertisement, set in full-page space in Alabama newspapers, called attention to Reading's position as fourth in population and third in industries in Pennsylvania.

THE SUMMER SALE OF ROCKERS

The Outlet Store in Providence, R. I., holds each year a most unusual sale of rocking chairs. This concern figures that in the summer time everybody wants a comfortable rocking chair. Thus catering to the public, it has sold as many as 5000 chairs, at various prices, ranging from the inexpensive hickory to the highest priced wicker rockers.

INTRODUCING THE HUMAN ELEMENT IN RETAIL SALES

"Personalities are always dangerous to the merchant," says the very human manager of one department store. "They are likely to be resented by customers who do not like undue familiarity. But personality is something different. It is a distinct advantage—an advantage which lies naturally with the small merchant, and which the larger stores envy and do their best to achieve.

"Customers always like to deal with real persons, not mere human cogs in the wheels of a great commercial organization. Illustrative of the value which big organizations attach to this natural advantage of the smaller merchant, there are a number of means by which they consciously strive to develop it.

"Marshall Field & Co., of Chicago adopt the same method that the United Cigar Stores Company uses, that of placing a card in a rack above the counter bearing the name of the clerk who is on duty at the time.

"A Chicago haberdasher has an official 'receiver of customers' stationed at the door, whose business it is to inquire courteously for the customer's needs. He then calls one of the salesmen and introduces him to the customer by name. This salesman accompanies the customer and makes the sales from all departments the latter may visit, for there are not too many departments in the store to make this impracticable. The customer knows he is being waited on by Mr. Smith, and does not hesitate to call him by name.

"Wannamaker & Brown, of Philadelphia have a practice of having the photograph of the salesman on each card. It helps the customer to recall the salesman who waited on him when he sees him.

"There is a bank which looks with disfavor on employes whose names are hard to recall. It does not absolutely bar them, but other things being equal, the preference is always given to men whose names the public does not find it difficult to pronounce nor hard to remember. Of course, this bank places a little brass sign on the desk of each official bearing his name."

"LIVE" CIGARS CAUSED A BIG PROFIT JUMP

Building up a cigar counter trade [illegible] a day to $20 to $30 [illegible] achievement that Manager E. C. Henwood has wrought at the Hazle Drug Company of Hazleton, Pa., working on a counter that is five feet long and three feet wide.

The Hazle Drug Company's [illegible] system showed that the cigar counter was a liability instead of an asset, and Manager Henwood was true to form when he ruthlessly scrapped all the kinds of cigars for which there was no demand.

He analyzed the situation and found that he carried makes that were not advertised, or which had been boomed years ago and were slowly "dying" on their old reputations. They were dead stock, and out they all went at all kinds of prices to the men who wanted a cigar and did not care very much what kind.

Time-honored ten centers went the route for four cents, and the cheaper varieties were even lower. In their place he substituted the well-known and advertised brands, kinds that the smoker knows about and appreciates because he has tried them.

Once the counter was stocked with "live" cigars, Manager Henwood started the "buy a box" campaign. In these days of H. C. L. even the men folks will follow the example of the more deadly sex and will save a quarter when they get a chance. Shaving prices to sell a box paid and Manager Henwood reports that the volume of business is on the upward climb.

The clerks have instructions to offer a box to the man who pushes out a big bill when he buys a smoke, and the policy works. Nothing offensive in the way of trying to make a man take a whole box is tried, but he is offered the box at a cheaper price, and usually accepts.

RESTRAINT OF TRADE

The handsome, champion baby-kissing candidate for public office brought suit against the leading dry goods merchant of the county seat.

The complainant alleged that, whereas said defendant knew positively that said plaintiff had all the female vote of the community cinched, said defendant did maliciously advertise a big marked-down bargain sale in dress goods for the day of the election.

SCHOOL GIRL TELLS OTHERS

How They Can Find Relief From Periodic Sufferings.

Nashua, N.H.—"I am nineteen years old and every month for two years I had such pains that I would often faint and have to leave school. I had such pain I did not know what to do with myself and tried so many remedies that were of no use. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and decided to try it, and that is how I found relief from pain and feel so much better than I use to. When I hear of any girl suffering as I did I tell them how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me."—DELINA MARTIN, 29 Bowers St., Nashua, N.H.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, therefore is a perfectly safe remedy to give your daughter, who suffers from such painful periods as did Mrs. Martin.

The reason so many girls write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice, is because from their 40 years experience they have a store of knowledge which is invariably helpful.

Great Britain and America

It gives the ironical measure of these convulsive times that, so soon after a war which has brought Great Britain and America closer together than ever before in their separate histories, one should have to speak of Anglo-American relations as passing into an anxious phase. But the fact is too palpable to be ignored and of too much moment to both lands not to be discussed with a grave candor. There have been manifestations in the past few weeks in the United States of a kind to fill the ordinary Briton with a pained bewilderment. He has seen his country caught up, he knows not quite how or why, in the manoeuvres of American party politics. He has seen an apparent revival of that much too flattering suspiciousness of British diplomacy and its far-sighted cunning which used to prevail in the United States of the 'nineties. After doing everything in his power, and more than any other nation has done, to meet the American point of view in the Peace Conference, he finds his representatives accused by a considerable section of American opinion of using President Wilson as a screen behind whose shelter they are alleged to be pursuing purely British policies of aggrandizement. Our very support of the league of nations is turned against us. The stale and often refuted calumny that we are using the postal censorship to promote British at the expense of American trade has of late been resurrected anew. The irritants of commercial rivalry in a time of universal unsettlement are being sedulously intensified. The many and real surrenders we have made for the sake of Allied harmony and the prospect of a saner world-order are either ignored or belittled or perverted into one more proof of our duplicity. What we have gained from the war, on the other hand, in the form of territory or influence, is as constantly distorted to our detriment. Sober observers, experienced in the kaleidescope of American affairs, report that the anti-British campaign was never more malevolently active than now. The Senate, by formal resolution, urges the peace conference to receive the Sinn Fein delegates and puts on record its support of the Irish Nationalist movement. Small wonder that the average Englishman, unconscious of having giving offence and anxious from the bottom of his heart to continue that full and friendly co-operation with the people and Government of the United States which is the outstanding compensation of the war, watches these developments with a mystified despair. Is the aftermath of Armageddon, he is tempted to ask himself, in this, as in so many other directions, to bring to futility the noble spirit in which it was fought and won? Are Great Britain and America, a year ago brothers in arms and hopes and deeds, to drift into the old wretched whirlpool of misunderstanding and ill-will?

We see no ground whatever for any such tragic sequel. It can and shall be averted. Those who know America best feel the least uneasiness as to the future of Anglo-American relations. They are able to distinguish between the nine-tenths in the present situation, which is ephemeral, and the one-tenth that is genuinely disquieting; and the same distinction will presently become apparent to the great mass of our people if they will only exercise patience, good temper and perspective. The plain truth of the matter is that Great Britain, because of the support she has accorded him before and since the armistice, is suffering from President Wilson's failure to carry his own countrymen with him. It is not so much Great Britain that is being struck at as Great Britain that is being used as a weapon with which to strike at Mr. Wilson. * * * They are out to defeat that proposal, to humiliate Mr. Wilson, to conserve what they sincerely believe to be the fundamentals of American security and happiness, by any means in their power. If they can persuade their fellow-countrymen that the League of Nations is in reality a British plot to secure an American guarantee for the integrity of the British Empire, and that Mr. Wilson from first to last has been overreached by British diplomacy, they will have gained a great point.

Nine-tenths of what seems to be hostility towards Great Britain is thus in reality the repercussion of American party politics upon the international situation and of the international situation upon American party politics. It signifies nothing deep or permanent. But the remaining one-tenth is serious. Ireland again blocks the way, and until the Irish question is settled, it will be hopeless to expect that completeness of association between Great Britain and the United States, whether in sentiment or in policy, which the great majority of the people in both countries desire. Unhesitatingly we assert that the chief bar to Anglo-American amity and co-operation is Ireland. We have paid already, and in other parts of the world besides the United States, a heavy price for our failure to conciliate the mass of the Irish people. But the debt is not yet wiped out; there are larger instalments still to be met. If the argument for settling the Irish question is more urgent than ever from the purely domestic standpoint, it is nothing less than imperative in the interests of British friendships and prestige abroad; and so long as it remains unsettled—and quite clearly it cannot now be disposed of on terms that might have been feasible before the war—there is one obstacle in the way of Anglo-American fellowship which is neither trivial nor temporary, and which we alone can remove.

PROPHECIES COMING TRUE.

H. G. Wells Told of Stowaway in His "War in the Air."

A report states that the first large airship to cross the Atlantic carried a stowaway in the person of W. W. Ballantyne, a rigger, who was notified that three of the crew were to be dropped from the log book and that he was among the number. He was a prize-fighter before he enlisted and had worked on the preparation of the great airship for the journey.

H. G. Wells in his "The War in the Air," which was published in 1908, builds his romance around a type of machine which more nearly resembles the modern superplanes than the gas-suspended dirigible of the R-34 type. But in recounting the experiences of his imaginative crew and ships he works a romance around one feature which has come true with a startling degree of detail and that is the portion relating to the above-mentioned Rigger Ballantyne, who climbed on board as a stowaway. The story is worked around the adventures of a character named Bert Smallway, who boarded a great naval flier that belonged to a former central European power, and in the introduction of the stowaway idea Mr. Wells has been a true prophet in his forecast of the early trans-Atlantic flights.

The success of the R-34 is a realization of many words uttered in prophecy, but the details are different to the best-known of these, which is contained in the story of the "Night Mail" by Rudyard Kipling. In this piece of semi-prophetic fiction the author details a flight of a great trans-Atlantic flyer which "makes" Quebec from London in twelve hours; hence the title, the "Night Mail." A comparison of the fictitious ship with the R-34 is wonderful. Kipling paints his picture to include a ship with compartment gas bags, and even brings in a mysterious ray, which might correspond to the recently discovered method of separating helium from the other component parts of the atmosphere. He also lays great stress on the rescue of the crew from an aerial freighter at a height of over a mile and vividly describes the sinking of the doomed ship into the Atlantic below. It is probably only lack of competition that prevented the R.34 from partaking in this portion of its actions laid out for the wanderers of the upper air.

Storm Stops Hanging.

An eighteenth century execution on Kensington Common was stopped for a time owing to a strange cause. On August 19, 1763, two days before the date of the execution, a heavy fog came over London, accompanied by thunder and lightning and torrents of rain.

These conditions lasted for nearly 48 hours, and many people believed that the last day had arrived. When the time fixed for the execution arrived the assembled crowd cried shame on the sheriff for hanging a man when the world was coming to an end.

As he persisted in his preparations they burst through the barriers and stopped the proceedings, shouting that the culprit might as well wait a few minutes, when the grand summons would come for all.

The sheriff had to obtain the assistance of a force of soldiers before the execution could be carried out.

Quaint Formalities.

"In those four years (at the front) I found my manhood"—so said the Prince of Wales recently at the Guildhall, where he received the freedom of the city. The workers who rushed out of offices to see him drive through the streets were pleased to see this pleasant open-faced, and notably manly young fellow.

Everyone had been struck by the development that has taken place in the prince since he went to the war. He has lost his old shyness, and shows that he can very well take care of himself in any circumstances. In the remarkable interview he had with the Labor leaders at Lambeth the other day he displayed a great deal of readiness and quick intelligence. To point the difference one can recall his demeanor when he was crowned as Prince of Wales at Carnarvon years ago.

The welcome given him in the streets of London was at once cordial and spontaneous. The picturesque ceremony at the Guildhall was attended by quite a big rally of members of the prince's family. There were a lot of brilliant uniforms and quaint municipal costumes.

One of the queer formalities was the reading of the voucher of the prince's patrimony — a declaration that he is "the son born in lawful wedlock of a certain citizen and fishmonger, his Majesty King George V." He was presented for the freedom by the warden of the Fishmongers' Company.

Etiquette.

Fashions in etiquette are unaccountable and fortuitous. So the assistant editor of Punch, A. A. Milne, finds. "It is the fashion," he says, "to be late for dinner, but punctual for lunch. What the perfect gentleman does when he accepts an invitation for breakfast I do not know. Possibly he has to be early. But for lunch the guests should arrive at the very stroke of the appointed hour." Mr. Milne describes his predicament when, by allowing himself time to be pushed off the first half-dozen omnibuses but actually succeeding in boarding the first one, he arrived at his destination forty minutes ahead of time. He killed the forty minutes, then entered his host's house as the clock was striking one-thirty. "Then I remembered," he concludes, in the British humorist's best vein, "it was Tuesday's lunch which was to be at one-thirty. Today's was at one o'clock."

Best Field Gun in the World.

A British field gun, which was tested to some extent during the closing stages of the war, has now been perfected to such a point that it is said to be considered the best of its kind in the world. It is claimed that the new gun will fire the 18½ lb. shell used in the ordinary quick-firer a greater distance and with more rapidity than has ever been attained with a field gun before. The range increase is said to be more than 3,000 yards over the old field gun, and the new weapon can discharge twenty-eight rounds a minute.

30 YEAR BALL VET. IS UMPIRING NOW

HANK O'DAY PITCHED FOR NEW YORK IN 1889 AND OTHER AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAMS.

New York, Aug. 3. Hank O'Day one of the National League's veteran umpires who was at the Polo Grounds the other day, has been identified with the sport for more than thirty years. Back in 1889 O'Day pitched for the Giants, who won the pennant and the world's championship that season. He was a sturdy right-hander and took a turn in the box with Tim Keefe, Mickey Welch and Ed Crane. O'Day also pitched for the New York Players' League team in 1890, also for the Washington and other big league outfits.

As a National League umpire, O'Day figured in the memorable game between the Giants and the Cubs at the Polo Grounds in 1908, in which he allowed the visitors' claim that Fred Merkle had failed to touch second base. Six years later Charles Webb Murphy, owner of the Cubs, suddenly released Johnny Evers from the management and appointed O'Day who had had a previous experience as leader of the Reds.

O'Day withdrew from the Cubs' management after one year, and returned to the National League's umpire staff. He is doing excellent work in this capacity and is perfectly happy.

London Bakers Also Continue Fight For Better Terms Rioting at Birkenhead

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, August 4. - Six hundred locomotive engineers on the south-western railway struck this morning, restricting service, but not entirely tieing up the system.

Bakers Still Out.

The striking bakers, at a meeting in Trafalgar Square today, decided that the steps taken to meet their demands were unsatisfactory and it was resolved to continue the strike.

The situation in the Yorkshire coal miners' strike is unsettled.

Police Strike a Fizzle.

No extension of the police strike was reported anywhere today, but authorities were obliged to cancel temporarily all police holiday leaves in order to replace the dismissed strikers.

Serious Rioting.

Serious rioting occurred at Birkenhead, opposite Liverpool, on the estuary of the Mersey, as well as at Liverpool, Saturday night. Ninety-six of the total force of 225 policemen are on strike at Birkenhead where feeling is running high.

Sir Douglas Haig Was Misunderstood by Those Who Criticised His Speech

SOME few weeks ago the story was circulated that Sir Douglas Haig had made a speech in which he claimed that the British forces won the war. It need hardly be pointed out that this type of story is calculated to create ill-feeling, and it is the duty of everyone who desires to foster good-will in the world to make known the fact that the British commander was misinterpreted. It was hardly necessary for Sir Douglas Haig to say that in his recent address eulogizing the work of the British Empire in the war he intended in no way to minimize the work of others.

Except in circles where there is manifest desire to foster ill-feeling between the two great English-speaking countries, his remarks were not misinterpreted. It was plain he was replying to those who have meanly sought to deprive the men who fought under him of just credit rather than to derogate from others. A commander is properly jealous of the repute of those under him who have been faithful even unto death, and detractors of British achievements have taken little pains to conceal the motive that controls them.

SIR DOUGLAS HAIG.

As Marshal Haig has visualized himself to the world during five years of stress he is not a man to boast or permit others to boast for him. Of all the commanders none exceeded him in modesty, in devotion to the great cause, in willingness to submerge every personal and national consideration. The French records attest that again and again he accommodated his plans to French plans. His divisions, even when hard pressed, were at the service of Britain's allies. He surrendered his own judgment often, notably when he took over twenty miles of new line just before the great German offensive, and he crowned his work by consenting to serve under Marshal Foch when the circumstances demanded a supreme generalissimo.

As to the achievements of the British army nothing need be said. The esteem in which the Germans held it is sufficiently shown by the number of divisions the German commander placed along the British front. The traditional stubbornness of British soldiers was never better displayed than in Flanders and Picardy, and the British armies, not satisfied merely to hold, never desisted from gruelling attack.

As to the respective importance of the work done by the various nations comparisons are deplorable. On the French, for geographical reasons, of course fell the greatest burden. But the British, not only holding the sea, without which success would have been impossible, prevented France from being overwhelmed. At various times now Russia, and then Italy, and finally the United States, contributed some vital factor.

Water was poured into a reservoir by many to lift it to the needed level, and if the addition of any one of the principal combatants had been withheld it might not have been reached. So all won the war. This is as much as any one may say, and any narrow inquiry as to who played the superior part is not only profitless but productive of harmful recrimination.

Lost in a Balloon.

English newspapers recall, apropos of the loss of our non-rigid dirigible, that Andree's is not the only very mysterious balloon disappearance. In December, 1881, a member of Parliament for Malmesbury, W. Powell, undertook an ascension with two skilled aeronauts at Bath. The weather was unfavorable and the balloon dipped suddenly at Bridport, the car striking the earth and tumbling the two aeronauts out. Then it shot up into the sky and was blown rapidly out to sea, the hapless M. P. never being heard of again. Considering its obvious possibilities, the balloon has played a small part in adventure fiction. Probably the most striking instance of its employment was by Quiller-Couch in finishing Stevenson's incomplete tale of "St. Ives," and its use there was in an improbable way.

Continental Countries Have Strict Libel Laws. Some Seem Very Stupid

ALTHOUGH the artist and the author cannot carry on their profession exactly as they like in this country, they need have little fear of imprisonment. In some continental countries libel laws are exceptionally strict, and the writer and the caricaturist are often arrested and sentenced to terms of imprisonment.

Some years ago a soldier named Adolph Wagner, while serving a sentence in the military prison at Halle, passed his time in drawing, and one of his sketches was a caricature of the monarch of the Huns. When this was brought before the authorities he was charged with libelling his emperor, and was brought before a judge, who sentenced him to three and a half years' imprisonment.

An Alsatian artist, Hansi, was once condemned by the High Court of Leipzig to one year's imprisonment for sedition in connection with caricatures in a nursery book. He seized the opportunity of regaining freedom which presented itself and fled to France, where he decided to remain rather than surrender to the malevolent German authorities.

An artist in Russia illustrated a book of fairy-tales, and the authorities ordered the whole edition of the book to be confiscated and destroyed because one of the pictures portrayed the assassination of an emperor. The artist, indignant, saved a few copies of the work, and distributed them among his friends. Information of his action in this respect reached the authorities, and for this he was sentenced to a term of imprisonment.

Some time before the war Dr. Erich Zepler and Herr Karl Schneidt, two Berlin journalists, were each sentenced in the criminal courts to six weeks' detention in a fortress for libelling the Crown Prince of Germany by comparing him to a "sentimental 'flapper' of the high nobility." The incriminating article was a burlesque of the Crown Prince's farewell order to his Danzig regiment, and it took the form of an effusive farewell letter from a "flapper" to the other girls at a boarding school.

The Berlin authorities, in pursuance of the law concerning insults to the German monarch, ordered the confiscation of Mr. Upton Sinclair's book entitled "The Industrial Republic," while the late Mr. George Griffith did not please the Russian Government when he wrote "The Angel of the Revolution." The situation in the story was far from flattering to the administration of the Tsar, and the author learned, after the book had been confiscated and destroyed by the police of Petrograd, that if he were found in Russia he might have considerable difficulty in getting back to England. He did not, however, afford the authorities a chance of detaining him.

Nicholas Morosoff, the author of important researches in chemical and physical science, was condemned to imprisonment in a Russian fortress for one year for having written and published a little book of poems which the Government considered a danger to the country. It is interesting to know that in 1881 Morosoff was condemned to penal servitude for life for spreading socialistic ideas by means of his books. He spent four years in the ill-famed fortress of Saints Peter and Paul, and for twenty-one years he was cruelly incarcerated in the "stone sacks" of the terrible Schlusselberg.

A young French naval officer wrote a book which told some ugly stories about the service of which he was a member. No sooner was the book on the market than the author lost his commission, was insulted by his former comrades, and abused by the French press. He was forced to fight his messmates, and he took part as a principal in five separate duels within a month. —Family Herald.

The Town of Bitche.

The town of Bitche in Alsace, a third class fortress in 1871, has been decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor by President Poincare. Her story is a remarkable one and not very generally remembered. Defended in 1871 by Col. Teyssier in command of a garrison of 2,000 men, it held up for a period of eight months 10,000 Germans. It was still holding out, forgotten by the central authorities, after Paris had capitulated and the peace preliminaries had been signed at Versailles. Teyssier was well aware of what had happened, but, without orders, he refused absolutely to surrender. It was not until he received a message from Paris that he consented to leave the town with the full honors of war. He and his men marched away with the flag presented them by the women of Bitche under the fire of the Bavarian guns. And so Bitche was never conquered, and to-day, after many years, comes the reward of the Cross of the Legion of Honor. Other veterans of 1870, Strasbourg and Phalsbourg, are receiving it at the same time.

"The Gang's All Here."

Is there anyone who hasn't sung "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here?" Of course we are all certain that it is an American song with an American tune. But it is not. Upon the recent occasion of the president's visit to France a chorus of Breton children, led by an American soldier, sang this "classic." Then attention was called to the fact that Gilbert and Sullivan, who wrote so many comic operas a few years ago, had composed it. The melody was composed by Sir Arthur Sullivan for the "Pirates of Penzance," and W. S. Gilbert wrote not these words but others beginning "Come, Friends Who Plough the Sea."

TAKE THREE DAYS TO WED

Armenian Couple Must Be Patient in the Matter of Tying the Marriage Knot.

In Armenia everybody has a good time at a wedding except the bridegroom. First of all, the friends assemble, and an entertainment, with dancing, takes place. The bridegroom is expected to arrive when the entertainment is at its height and it is considered good form for him to appear with his face covered with powder to simulate pallor induced by the solemnity of the occasion. Friends of the bridegroom then shave him publicly and fall upon him and strip him of all his clothes, after which he is supplied with a new set of garments and completely dressed again. While they are performing the offices of valet to the groom the young men present are supposed to hold lighted candles in their right hands.

The day after this opening marriage feast the bride rides to church, and the bridegroom walks. The priest who receives them in the porch reads a short sermon on their duties in the matrimonial state, and then the wedding party proceeds to the altar, where the foreheads of the high contracting parties are bound together with gold chains. The wedding festivities continue for at least three days after this, and the couple are not regarded as married until the ceremonies have been concluded. The social celebration of the wedding is carried through as conscientiously as the religious part.

COULD NOT DISLODGE ROCK

When Nature Placed Freak on Berkshire Hills, She Evidently Put It There to Stay.

The famous "balanced rock" near Lanesboro, Mass., in the historic Berkshires, is one of the strange sights of this region of hidden mountain caves, snow-capped hills and folk-lore that rivals fiction. This rock, which weighs several tons, is apparently in a precarious position on the sheer edge of another rocky formation beneath it. One would think that a very slight push indeed would dislodge it from its position.

"Balanced rock" is located on Constitution hill, the eminence named after "Constitution" Smith, who was instrumental in ratifying the American Constitution. An old farmer of Lanesboro thought he could pull "balanced rock" from its position by harnessing up several pairs of oxen, attaching a chain to the rock and having the animals strain on the rock together. The experiment failed. The rock could be rocked back and forth, but could not be dislodged.

The ice flow of the glacial period is believed to have been responsible for placing the huge rock in its present position.

CHARM IN PLEASANT VOICE

Point of Personality to Which Most People Seem to Pay Little Attention.

Men and women go to great pains and spend more or less money in an effort to improve their personal appearances. They keep the beauty doctors and the barbers busy to maintain their skins and their hair in good condition. The masseurs make a good living out of almost all of us.

This is, of course, perfectly proper. It is right that we should look as well as it is possible for us to do. We should even be urged to wear very good clothes. Shakespeare, who said everything, said that we should wear good clothes. "Costly thy apparel as thy purse can buy," said he; "the apparel oft proclaims the man." And, certainly, it proclaims the woman.

But there is one very great charm about men and women that they neglect to cultivate, as a rule. It is their voices. If God gives us good voices to start with, all well and good, but if we are not so blessed by nature we seem to make no effort to cure the ill. And it is surely a misfortune for any one to go through life with a disagreeable voice.

It does not seem to be a matter of general knowledge that a person with an unpleasing voice can improve it wonderfully under an instructor as well as by simple though self-imposed efforts.

If there be any man to whom a good voice is a necessity it is the orator. Well, the greatest of all orators, Demosthenes, was a stutterer. He cured himself by rolling pebbles under his tongue.

Let women, particularly, remember that no matter how plain and homely their physical features may be, no matter how slight the grace of their bodies, they can still make themselves infinitely charming by the possession of a pleasing voice.—Los Angeles Times.

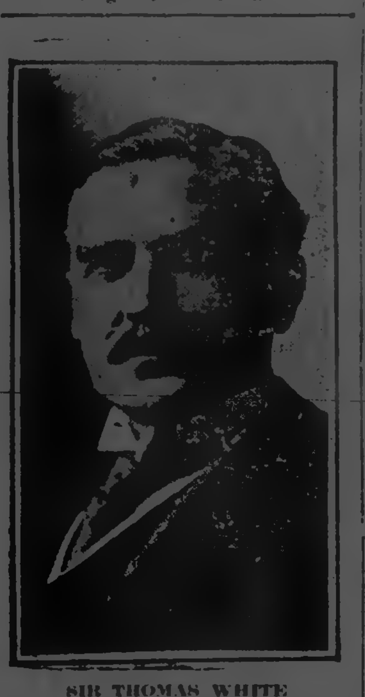
SIR THOMAS WHITE NOW OUT OF OFFICE

BRIEF SKETCH OF PUBLIC RECORD OF PAST FOUR YEARS

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—On retiring from office Sir Thomas White said that he greatly appreciated the honor and privilege of having been permitted to serve the people of Canada as Minister of Finance for the past eight years, and especially during the period of the war.

He desired to thank the public generally for the fine support given to the Victory Loan campaign, and earnestly bespoke a continuation of that support for the issue of this Fall, which will be the last of the great Dominion loans arising out of the war.



SIR THOMAS WHITE
Minister of Finance for the past eight years, who retired from office Saturday.

Record of Office.

During Sir Thomas White's term of office important financial legislation was passed. The principal measures he carried through Parliament were the following:

Revision of Bank Act.

General acts under which loan companies and trust companies may be incorporated, and defining their powers.

Railway Acquisition.

Legislation providing for the acquisition of $33,000,000 of bonds of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, which are now held in the Dominion treasury. This legislation saved the Dominion the large amount which it would have had to pay under the so-called "implementing" judgment of the Privy Council.

Legislation relating to the acquisition of the stock of the Canadian Northern Railway Company.

Partial revision of tariff, 1914.

War Revenues.

Special War Revenue Act, 1915, which imposed taxes upon banks, trust and loan companies, railway and steamship tickets, and upon many articles of luxury.

Increase of 7½ per cent. to the general and 5 per cent. to the British preferential tariff to provide revenue to meet war expenditure.

Federal Income Tax Act.

Business Profits War Tax Act.

Revision of the Dominion Insurance Act.

Currency and Credits.

The Finance Act, 1914, which empowers the issue of currency to meet conditions arising in the event of war, panic or financial stringency.

Several acts relating to the currency.

Legislation providing for the war borrowings of the Dominion.

Partial revision of tariff, 1919.

Legislation providing for the establishment of credits aggregating several hundred million dollars for Great Britain and other European countries for the purchase of the wheat and other natural and manufactured products of Canada.

Legislation poviding for the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co receivership.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

UNDER THE INFLUENCE

Two Men Contribute to Police Treasury for Imbiling Too Freely.

At the Police Court this morning Thomas Bandit pleaded guilty to a charge of being under the influence of liquor. A fine of $10 and $4.10 costs was imposed by Acting Magistrate Rush.

Joseph Pelatt and R. Pelatt were each fined $20 and $4.10 costs for driving a car while under the influence of liquor.

G. Drain was fined $5 without costs for breaking the traffic bylaw.

V. C. CHARGED WITH MURDER

Corporal M. Konowal, V.C., charged with the murder of J. Artich, an Austrian, appeared in the Hull Police Court Saturday. He was remanded until the spring Assize Court, which will probably sit in March. No evidence was taken.

CARVELL NOW HEAD OF RAILWAY BOARD

SIR HENRY DRAYTON TAKES UP DUTIES AS FINANCE MINISTER.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—Sir Henry Drayton has been sworn in as Finance Minister in place of Sir Thomas White. Sir Robert Borden subsequently announced the appointment of S. F. Tolmie as Minister of Agriculture in place of Hon. T. A. Crerar.

Hon. F. B. Carvell has been appointed chief of the Railway Commission in place of Sir Henry Drayton. The Premier stated that Hon. Martin Burrell will continue a while as Secretary of State, but that when he retires another Minister from British Columbia will be named. He had no announcement to make as to who will succeed to the New Brunswick representation in place of Mr. Carvell, or as to the constituency in which Sir Henry Drayton will run.

John Thompson, K.C., has been appointed chairman, and Major J. W. Margeson a member of the pension board.

Stevens May Be Next.

Sir Robert Borden's announcement that British Columbia will have two Cabinet Ministers, Dr. Tolmie and a successor to Hon. Martin Burrell, is taken here to indicate the selection of H. H. Stevens, M.P. for Vancouver.

HUNDRED DELEGATES ARRIVING AT OTTAWA

VOTE FOR LIBERAL LEADERSHIP WILL NOT BE TAKEN TILL WEDNESDAY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, August 4.—Hundreds of delegates to the Liberal convention arrived today, and a billeting committee has been kept busy.

It is probable the vote for the selection of a leader will not take place until Wednesday, because of a the number of delegates en route to Ottawa who cannot arrive before that day.

The national Liberal committee which has made all arrangements for the convention, held its last meetoing this morning. Hereafter all business will be dealt with by committees of the convention, which will be nominated tomorrow.

SPOTTER COAXED MAN TO DRINK FOR WEEK—$200 FINE

Such is Claim of Larner O'Conner, of Lindsay, in Interesting Liquor Case.

Lindsay, August 4.—For giving a detective a drink of liquor in his room in other than his own private dwelling, a resident of this town was assessed $200 and costs or three months.

Magistrate Bradford stated that he would cut the fine down if possible, but he could not, as the law called for the above fee. "This man has been very honest and straightforward and his offence is not nearly so serious as selling liquor," commented the court. The accused entered a plea of guilty.

Mr. O'Connor: "I don't think much of a detective who will coax an unfortunate man for one week for a drink when he knows that he will have to take the three months' penalty."

The accused was given until five o'clock to get the $200. He did so and gained his liberty.

MRS. A. STUDHOLME DEAD

Widow of Labor Member Survives Husband Only Few Days.

Hamilton, Aug. 4.—A host of warm personal friends learned with regret of the death Sunday at the family residence, 3 Reginald street, of Priscilla Stearn, widow of Allan Studholme, the esteemed labor member for East Hamilton, who passed away on Monday last. At the time of her husband's death Mrs. Studholme was in a critical condition, which it is believed was made more serious by the shock of a week ago. She is survived by three sons—Foster, who is mayor of Olean, N.Y.; Gordon, of Olean, N.Y., and Edward of Southport, Pa., and one daughter, Mrs. Earl Morrow, at home.

CITY STOLEN TRUCK LOCATED

The delivery truck stolen from John Murvin's butcher shop has been located by the local police a short distance outside oronto.

Chief Thompson received word yesterday afternoon of the recovery of the truck, but the thief has yet to be located.

THE POLITICAL MEDIAEVALISM OF GERMANY CAUSE OF GREAT WAR

Progress of the Reformation of 400 Years Ago Reviewed by Rev. F. E. Malott in Trinity Church---Effect of Protestantism as Spiritual Force.

The Royal Black Perceptory No. 261, accompanied by the True Blues, attended divine service in Trinity Methodist Church last evening. They turned out about 140 in strength, and were played to church by the Salvation Army silver band.

The sacred building was taxed to its capacity, and the service throughout in keeping with the occasion.

Rev. F. E. Malott, the pastor, built up his discourse on verse 1, Galatians, 5: "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage." These words were both well chosen and admirably applied. Liberty, he contended, is the great word of Protestantism, while authority is the great word of Roman Catholicism. There are two methods of our religion being used to bring men into a state of salvation—one subjection or repression, the other that freedom of thought and action, usherd in by Luther's great reformation in the 16th century, a reformation to which was subsequently applied the term Protestantism. Four hundred years ago men protested against any decree or authority that stultified their manhood and curtailed their liberties.

The reverend gentleman here declared that Protestanism, as a spiritual force, has not been equalled in the world since the inception of Christianity. It also shattered the power of Spain and infused Britain with that spirit of liberty which has made her greatest among nations. Protestanism is the assertion of the principle of each man's individuality and his responsibility to work out his own salvation, instead of being shackled with the authority of ecclesiasticism. The best known philosophers, statesmen, scientists have been and are Protestants, and Protestanism has made nations more energetic, more successful and more progressive than any other principle the world has ever known.

National Liberty.

Rev. Mr. Malott, at this juncture, gave a lucid and comprehensive review of the reformation and Protestantism, their political force and influence for national liberty from mediaevalism. They were, in the first place, he said, the result of an intellectual movement, and all great reformers were, in one way or another, professors in universities. The reformation was essentially and predominately a religious movement inculcating a new spirituality determined to have the truth and to satisfy it. But it is only 400 years since that great reformation which is, however, not yet completed, although its progress has been due to the Protestant movement.

Must Not Go Back.

The speaker here went on to urge that we don't want to go back to mediaevalism as it existed in Europe before the reformation, for it was, because of the political mediaevalism of Germany, that we had to fight against German tyranny and imperialism. We must, he said, complete the reformation, and in order to do so, must have recourse to religion. Today, he deplored, there is a great deal of ardor for Protestanism and but little for religion, without which the former must fall; there is too much zeal for Protestanism as a political weapon, and not enough of that declaration of the freedom of man in Christ Jesus, for which it really stands. Stand up, the reverend gentleman urged, for the liberty and freedom of man to think things out for himself. But be careful not to suppress consciousness; on the contrary, allow that freedom of thought in others which we insist on ourselves, for authority is not and never will be religion.

The Bible.

Referring to Wycliffe's translation and dissemination of the Bible, he declared the unrestricted revelation of the Word of God in Queen Elizabeth's time paved the way for a new life of freedom and happiness in England. Then everybody read the Bible, and would to God, he said, that everybody would read it now, like then, as a new book—and the Scriptures are always new.

To complete the reformation started by Luther, he contended, the Bible must be given its place as teaching the freedom of access to salvation through the Lord Jesus Christ alone—not the Christ of creeds, but the living Saviour of the world. Then if we want to make the Protestant reformation complete, the social responsibilities involved in religion must not be shirked. Remember that all men are brethren and while working out our own salvation, remember that there are others, and be concerned for the one great family of God, to whatever race its component's parts may belong.

Faced With Great Issues.

In conclusion, the Rev. Mr. Malott touched on the great issues facing the industrial and political world today, which issues he fundamentally characterized as religious questions. For, he asserted, if we see in every man a brother, and accord him that freedom of thought for which the reformation and Protestantism stand nine-tenths of the way to a solution of the world's present troubles will have been covered. Such principles of religious freedom and liberty, he believed, are inculcated by the tenets of the order to whom his words were addressed; and he congratulated that order on its patriotism and loyalty during the strenuous years just passed. But do not rest satisfied with what has already been accomplished: go forward till all men are free in the exercise of their own religion, and partakers in the salvation of Christ the Lord.

ONTARIO LAWN BOWLING ENTHUSIASTS ARE HERE

CONTESTING J. R. STRATTON AND G. A. GILLESPIE TROPHIES.

The Central Ontario Bowling Association tournament is a greater success than ever. The local green is crowded with enthusiastic bowlers representing Lindsay, Millbrook, Cobourg, Port Hope, Beaverton, Sutherland, Oshawa, Toronto, Belleville and several local rinks. There are twenty-five rinks entered in the competitions and some very good bowling has been shown. Two rinks from Oshawa are here for the first time in several years.

Playing for Trophy.

In the third round, the J. R. Stratton Cup holder, Walton, of St. Mathews', Toronto, is playing Pratt of Peterborough. These are the two rinks which played for the trophy last year. Walton has exactly the same rink as he brought here then, when he took home the silverware. Dileany of Port Hope, present possessor of the consolation cup, is also playing again this year to retain his present honors or to win higher.

Eight Rinks Left.

Results Today.

The results in the first two rounds were as follows:

First Round

REVIEW "WANTS ADS." PAY.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said:

"After all what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to in it than in Life Insurance.

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man sixteen years of age took out a 15 years Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years and he now has, through that investment, an immediate estate of $3495.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15 PER CENT COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said and he might have added (no better place than the Sun Life of Canada) "there is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

Large Share of Honors Given to Civilians By British Government

THERE has been a great deal of comment in England recently on the distribution of honors by the Lloyd George Government. A list compiled by the newspapers prior to the issuance of the list of birthday honors showed that from December 6, 1916, up to April 29 of this year the Lloyd George Government had distributed 155 honors, of which all but one went to civilians. This state of affairs gave rise to a discussion in the House of Commons, brought on by the introduction by Brigadier General Page Croft of a motion calling on the Government to introduce a bill making it compulsory to disclose the particulars of party funds. The London Daily Mail in its account of the discussion in the House said:

"Gen. Page Croft complained that under existing conditions money from foreign sources could be spent in this country to influence political movements. The Bolshevists were spending enormous sums in Switzerland, and if some of it was coming to this country the people ought to know to which political institution the money was coming. Lenine himself had diverted large sums of money from the Bolshevist coffers to assist the Sinn Fein cause in Ireland. Large subscribers to political funds ought to be known. Of 155 hereditary honors bestowed recently 154 went to civilians and only one to the fighting services. Men who attacked the navy estimates in 1914 were rewarded, while the men who went out to fight the Germans on sea and land got no hereditary honors—with the exception of the one mentioned. In the last Parliament 290 M.P.'s secured office or received titles, jobs or legal preferment.

"It was said that in the recent honors list were men whom no decent man would allow to enter his house and who would be blackballed for any respectable club. The press which happened to support Mr. Lloyd George had been well rewarded. Fleet Street went into mourning for a period because no further honors came to Carmelite House in the last list—(laughter)—but the rewards covered the following papers: Daily Telegraph, Daily Mirror, Sunday Pictorial, Leeds Mercury, Glasgow Daily Record, People, Evening Standard, Daily Sketch, South Wales News, and a well known news agency. That was not a bad list considering that the Prime Minister had been declaring his supreme disregard for a good press. (Laughter.)

"The party funds ought to be audited and a list of subscribers of over £500 deposited for inspection at Somerset House. Aspirants for honors ought to be reported on by a committee of the Privy Council.

"'I have no party, very little in the way of friends, and I seek no honors,' said Mr. Bottomley, in seconding the motion. Once he received a letter from a social leader hinting what might be done if certain formalities were complied with. (Laughter.) 'I congratulate the House of Lords on its narrow escape,' he added, raising more laughter.

"Mr. Bonar Law, who expressed regret that this motion had come on when the Prime Minister was absent, devoted a good deal of his speech to a defence of the party system in democratic government. The figures suggesting that civilians received more honors than men of the fighting services were misleading. Honors of the kind appreciated by sailors and soldiers had been freely bestowed. It had been suggested that honors were given for money, and the instances adduced in support of it were the members of the House of Commons and the press, but nobody could suggest that either M.P.'s or the press gave money to the party funds. If it were true that contributions to the party funds were required as a condition of the bestowal of honors, it would be an entirely discreditable thing and ought to be ended, but he did not believe that to be true.

"The motion was rejected by 132 to 50."

Fuel for British Navy.

Figures which have been received from an official source give a remarkable clue to the unremitting activity of our warships during the fifty-one months of hostilities.

These figures are the approximate totals of the amount of fuel supplied to the navy, and they were naturally guarded as a secret during the war.

The total amount of coal supplied to the navy from August, 1914, to November, 1918, was, in round figures—35,000,000 tons.

Oil fuel used in warships at home and abroad in the same period amounted to about 9,100,000 tons.

Many people are inclined to think that "the Grand Fleet" meant the whole British navy. How wrong the idea is may be gauged from the fact that of the 41,000,000 tons of fuel of all sorts used, the Grand Fleet absorbed about 11,000,000 tons, or one-quarter.

A Curious Marriage.

Very curious was the wedding which took place at Hull, England, in which the bride, Susan Linquist, is 74 years of age, and the bridegroom, John Thompson, dock laborer, 62 years. The bride, who was given away by a boy of thirteen, had been twice married before. She was the oldest, she said, of a family of 25, including step-children. The bridegroom was a widower. He lost his first wife in a Zeppelin raid on Hull when his home was demolished. The bride said she had two previous marriage certificates framed and hung on the wall at home, and she intended also having this one framed.

Be happy and perhaps you'll be good.

AN HISTORIC VILLAGE.

Primitive Goree Nestles by Channel Sea.

Very calm, very restful, on this English winter morning, is the little village and harbor of Goree, nestled down here by the Channel Sea. The walls of the fishers' cottages and of the inns—empty of guests now, until summer comes—are trim and white. They set off well the bright green of the jalousies leading one's glance lightly up to the more sober verdure of ivy-clad walls and towers, the ancient "curtain" of the castle, which has been for hundreds of years past the pride of Jersey—and of all the island, too—the high-reared fortress of Mount Orgueil.

Nobly, above the gaunt shoulders of tawny red rock, that thrust themselves out from beneath its foundations, those battle-scarred walls, gateways, towers, and chapels, crowned by the massive keep, dominate both sea and land. He who can tell their story knows almost all worth knowing of Jersey's medieval past; for that pile, and its more modern sister Castle Elizabeth at St. Heliers, epitomize the whole history of the island, from the memorable days in 1066 when William of Normandy invaded Britain, and made it, in effect, part of his duchy; little thinking in how short a space the conquered nation would absorb both Norman tongue and Norman Duchy, while English kings to be were placing English governors in the castles of those "Iles Normandes."

But no martial pageant, nor any active life, is seen about Mont Orgueil to-day. In the upper chambers of the keep, coast-guards, indeed, with their glasses, still sweep the sea, from the gleaming, sun-kindled cliffs of France, southward to the Seymour Tower, at the southern horn of the bay; but, these apart, the castle is given over now to the tourist, the archaeologist, and the dreamer of dreams.

To dream is easy here, and a long delight. Standing upon the neck of smooth sward that joins castle to island, no sound is heard but the melodious lisp and plash of idle waves about the jagged red rocks, beside which, deep hidden within their dim water-world, the mullet and other finned things swim. Away below, upon the isthmus, two mild-eyed Jersey cattle browse; shoreward a blue-garbed fisherman digs for bait upon the sands; and one gray-backed gull, exquisitely poised, hovers above the clinging sea-weeds that fringe a grey-blue pool.

Looking out upon the silver sea here glowing with shimmer of opal tints, there toned to deep, mysterious, blue, beneath aerial islands of purple cloud floating majestically from England to France, one may easily see, "in the mind's eye," coming from the distant, sunlit coast, a hostile Armada. Many times throughout history it has happened. In 1374 the watchman upon Mont Orgueil ramparts announced the approach of a fleet bearing from France that preux chevalier, Duguesclin, with the Duke of Bourbon and 10,000 men beside, all bent upon the capture of Jersey.

They almost succeeded; for the garrison had agreed to surrender by Christmas, if not relieved. Faith in England's sea power, however, was justified even in the fourteenth century, when the defenders of Mont Orgueil sighted soon after, upon the western horizon, the gleaming sails of Lord Salisbury's fleet, before which Duguesclin, declining battle, withdrew.

The year 1460 brought more strife about the castle walls. Henry VI of England had married Marguerite de Provence, daughter of King Rene of Anjou. That princess, "ravissante d'esprit, de beaute, et de graces," and, says Dom Calmet, of a "courage, vigueur, and greatness of soul worthy of her birth," is compelled by troubles, domestic and otherwise, to return to France. Among those who have taken up her cause is Pierre de Dreux Breze, Grand Seneschal of Normandy.

Upon him, in reward for his services, Marguerite bestows the governorship of the Channel Islands, whereupon the Seneschal sends one of his captains, Floquet Surdeval, to assume possession. But the Jerseymen held such strong opinions concerning the new Governorship that Floquet is compelled to fulfil his mission by force. He captures and holds Mont Orgueil, and half the island with it, for a while, until, in 1468, Sir Philip Carteret appeals to British seapower again, and to Guernsey, for aid. With the help of Vice-Admiral Sir Richard Harliston, Mont Orgueil is won back, and the stronghold has peace for nearly eighty years.

In the seventeenth century the struggle between Charles I and his Parliament brings to Mont Orgueil an interesting personality—the Presbyterian Prynne. Prynne had fallen foul of the despotic Star Chamber, which, in January, 1657, sent their Puritan to detention at Mont Orgueil. There the Puritan remained for nearly three years, in the custody of Sir Philip Carteret, descendant of that earlier Sir Philip, whom we have seen winning back Mont Orgueil from the French. There these two, so different in position and character—governor and prisoner, Royalist and Roundhead — formed, each for the other, a warm and enduring friendship that honors the memory of both.

Prynne, after his release from Mont Orgueil, and triumphal entry into London—"the common people strewing flowers and herbs" in his path—acknowledges, in metrical meditation, his gratitude to the lieutenant-governor, as also to his late hostess and gentle jailer, Sir Philip's wife, "the right worshipful, his most highly honored, specially kind friend, the truly vertuous and religious lady, Anne Carteret." Upon which pleasant memory of two men, and a woman, great enough to sink political differences before mutual affection and esteem, we may leave Mont Orgueil to the soothing music of winds and waves.—Christian Science Monitor.

ENGLAND NEVER DRY.

Will Not Tolerate Prohibition, Says Lady Somerset.

Vigorous views pointing to impracticability of prohibition as a measure to promote temperance in Great Britain are expressed by Lady Henry Somerset, the noted temperance worker of long experience in the United Kingdom. Her opinions are especially pointed as follows in her summing up of her position:

"It is because I feel so strongly that reform is needed that I am inveighing so strongly against prohibition," she says. "If prohibition came in it would merely become a question of evading the law, and for the people to acquire that habit would be a bad thing for the country. This campaign for prohibition is not dealing honestly with one of the most solemn questions affecting the whole future of our national life, because everyone who looks seriously at the present conditions knows prohibition to be impossible.

"Government control is what is wanted, not prohibition. If we had Government control there would be no pressing drink on people. Great mischief is done by competition. Government control is the only effective way of stifling competition. With it there would be no such thing as free drinks to the first customer, none of the old inducements to come early and stay late.

"Ever since Lord Peel's minority report I have thrown all the little influence I have to get the liquor traffic into the hands of the Government. It is the only means of settling the question fairly and preventing mischief which the liquor laws were originally framed to avoid, but have never effectually done. You have always got the question of compensation. Is it not better to spend the money in buying the traffic right out?"

Lady Henry Somerset argues that the question of prohibition is different in America, for there the people are moulded by the opinions of the moment.

"Prohibition," she says, "may do for America; it certainly will not do for England. If it is attempted there will be a tremendous rebound. There will be a revolt. But I am convinced that such a measure is an impossibility. The whole campaign is a farce. I am certain that this country would never tolerate the prohibition.

"It is no use arguing by analogy from the United States. Prohibition in the United States is a totally different matter. It is a different country, with different traditions and entirely different social instincts. I know, because I know the country well.

"It would be impossible to enforce prohibition upon the people of England," says Lady Henry Somerset. "It is a distinct infringement upon the rights of the people. This country, at any rate, will not have it. It is impossible to imagine it coming into force. If it did so by chance, it would be rescinded. Public opinion would be too strong against it."

Arguing that the only support the measure may get in Britain is that of a section of the church, Nonconformist churches in a measure, and extreme teetotallers of the temperance party, Lady Somerset admits the risk that every word she uses may be taken as support for the liquor traffic, which support she denies.

"For thirty years," she says, "I have been working in the temperance cause, with the sole idea of getting a sober England. I am convinced that to force prohibition now means that all the work of those years will be undone, and that we should achieve a barren nothing. The campaign sets public opinion dead against temperance, real temperance."

Wandering Crown.

The crown of Hungary, which is said to have been offered to Prince Alexander of Serbia, was once within an ace of coming to England.

In 1849, when Kossuth struck a blow for liberty, he caused the ancient crown of Hungary to be given into his custody, and, when compelled to flee, tried to carry it with him. His intention was to bring it to London, but when in danger of capture he buried it near Orsova.

There it remained until 1853, when he made an attempt to have it unearthed and sent to him. Unfortunately the secret leaked out, and the Austrian Government were beforehand in excavation.—Tit-Bits.

UNLUCKY GIRL WIDOWS.

Who Can Never Go to School or Enjoy Life.

India has many wonderful and queer sights, but perhaps the funniest and saddest thing that a visitor from Canada will see amongst the young folks of the land are India's girl widows, little bits of feminine humanity just two or three years old, never married, but compelled to be widows all the rest of their lives.

The marriage laws amongst the Hindus are similar to those in force with the Arabs. The girls and boys are betrothed, or engaged, by their parents when they are infants and are married when they are ten or twelve years old. But if the fiance of a little Hindu girl dies she is blamed for the calamity, although she may have never seen him, and is classed amongst the widows.

For a little girl to become a widow in India is a very terrible thing. First of all, she must give up all her bright and fancy "surrahs" or robes and wear nothing but the plainest of white gowns. White is a sign of mourning in India amongst the Hindus. All her jewels and ornaments are taken from her and her hair cut off, and no matter what her position may have been before the death of the boy, she must take the lowest place in her father's family and there remain until death ends her misery. There is no possible chance of escape from her hard position. She can never become engaged again and anything that goes wrong is always laid to her blame because her people are certain that she has offended the gods in the temple and that is why her future husband was taken from her.

Up until the year 1827 the little girl was burned alive at the time of the cremation of the body of the boy. The crafty old priests always claimed that it was the duty of the little girl to walk into the flames or to be tied to the great pile of wood beside her husband. They always set up a great shout so that her cries could not be heard and certain missionary doctors found out that the little girl was always drugged in order that the priest might lead her gently to the terrible death trap. Millions and millions of little girls perished in India in this terrible manner until the British Government made a new law, classing it as murder. For nearly a hundred years the great stone altars of sacrifice have stood cold and empty in the public burning places, but the cruel custom is still carried out in some remote parts.

There are said to be over ten million widows in India to-day and unless some progressive mission school gets hold of them they must drudge through life without a chance of any enjoyment or pleasure. They never go to school or sit amongst the other children when they sing or play games and they are classed amongst the most unlucky things a man can look at. The Hindus are very superstitious and if a man was starting on a business trip and saw a widow shortly after he left his home he would turn around and go back. He would be certain that the gods did not look with favor on his venture. The poor girl widows generally hurry down the back streets because they are afraid of the rocks and stones that are often hurled at them if they appear in the shopping district.

POOR EXHIBITION OF BALL SATURDAY

ORIENTAL DEFEAT MATTHEWS-BLACKWELL WITH A SCORE OF 25 TO 10.

The Orientals and Matthews-Blackwell, the leaders of the City League, played an wierd game of ball Saturday afternoon, the former winning by 25 to 10.

Fans journeyed to Riverside Park for two special reason Saturday—to see the two leaders play and decide if the champions were the superior, and to look over the team that intends to play in the O.A.B., a championship series. They decided that neither team were entitled to call themselves champions of a school League and as far as championship aspirations for the big series, they were utterly destroyed Saturday.

The game was the poorest exhibition seen this season and for many seasons. Errors, runs and hits came so fast that it was impossible to follow them. The good plays were so scarce, that they were forgotten in the long drawn out affair.

The Hitting.

The only advantage gained from the game was that the Oriental hitters took the advantage of swelling their batting averages with 25 safe ones. Heenan, the Oriental right fielder, led his team hitting by getting a triple and three singles in six trips to the plate. Murray, of the Oriental team, got into the limelight as a slugger by hitting two long, clean three-baggers as well as a single. Four others hit the five hundred mark.

THE STEAL THAT FAILED

The game went along fairly well until the seventh. The champions, however, failed to give Frost the support he thought he deserved and he started lobbing them over. If he thought the runners-up were also going to take it easy he was mistaken, for by means of seven hits among them, a double by Clancy, a walk, a couple of errors, they drove the pitcher of no-hit fame from the mound, and secured 7 runs. Although the game was a "farce" throughout, no blame can be attached to Hollyman, who took up the task of grooving them over for the Oriental sluggers. They hit him hard, but then he is not a pitcher and he must be credited with being game.

WANTED—A BASKET

Last Game.

This is the last game in the City League and after the events of last week it is well that the league is suspending operations. Last Thursday the fans journeyed to the ball park to see one team practice, but then they got their money back and Saturday they did not. But we shouldn't judge the league by its conclusion, because all summer it has supplied the city with an exciting league race and good ball. Let us forget the last game and support the Central Ontario team to a championship and the local contenders in the O.A.B.A. championship series.

RETURNS TO GOLF

Among the players at the Golf Links on Saturday was Dr. Young, who has been out of the game for some years.

INDIAN OUTFIELDER SLUMPS IN HITTING

HE IS STILL HOWEVER, LEADER OF THE NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Chicago, Aug. 2. Jim Thorpe, the Indian outfielder of the Boston Braves, has suffered a slump in hitting, but not enough to cause him to give up his position as leader of the National League. According to averages released today Thorpe is hitting .366. Manager Cravath of Philadelphia continued to be the runner-up to Thorpe with a mark of .353. Benny Kauff, New York, tied Cravath for home run honors by making his ninth circuit drive. Jake Daubert, Cincinnati, maintained his lead as a sacrifice hitter with 23. Cutshaw of Pittsburg passed his team mate, Bigbee, in the number of bases stolen. Cutshaw has stolen 25 of Bigbee's 23.

Other leading batters for 35 or more games: McHenry, St. Louis, .319; Williams, Philadelphia, .317; Rousch, Cincinnati, .316; Burns, New York, .314; Doyle, New York, .311; Kauff, New York, .310; Young, New York, .309; Wingo, Cincinnati, .306; Daubert, Cincinnati, .306.

George Sisler, the St. Louis star, is setting a merry pace with the stick in the American League, and has boosted his average from .346 to .362. Sisler also is leading the league in total bases, having to his credit 180, made on 119 hits in 85 games. The St. Louis man also has taken the stolen base honors from Johnston, Cleveland, having 22 bases to Johnston's 21.

"Babe" Ruth of Boston tied Seibold's American League record for home run honors by cracking out his sixteenth circuit drive.

Tyrus Cobb is hovering near the top among the batters with a mark of .355, nine points behind Sisler. Vitt, Boston, continued to be the best sacrificer, with a mark of .37. Other leading batters for 35 or more games: Veach, Detroit, .351; Peckinpaugh, New York, .343; Jackson, Chicago, .388; Flagstead, Detroit, .322; Rice, Washington, .325; Chapman, Cleveland, .321; Fewster, New York, .316; Heilman, Detroit, .315; Gandil, Chicago, .314; Ruth, Boston, .313.

JOHNSON MUST GET OUT OF MEXICO NOW

UP TO HIS OLD TRICKS AGAIN, FORMER HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION TO BE DEPORTED.

New York, Aug. 3.—Jack Johnson, the former heavyweight champion, is evidently up to his old tricks again, if the word received from Mexico City is true. According to word received here the negro is to be deported from Mexico for a "scandalous conduct" and defiance of police and refusal to obey the Mexican laws.

Johnson is now exiled from the United States for alleged violation of the Mann white slave law and has been shunned in France, England and Spain. It is said that he intends to go back to Spain from Mexico. It was reported two weeks ago that he was to meet Dan (Porky) Flynn, the Boston heavyweight, in a match at Monterey, Mexico.

CRICKET IN ENGLAND

London, Aug. 2. Lancashire beat Sussex by three wickets, the scores were: Sussex 206 and 320, Lancashire 258 and 272 for seven. Tate made 108 for Sussex; Hallows, 113 for Lancashire. Essex scored 507 against Gloucestershire, including Freeman 91, Douglas 144, Dixon 108 and the match was drawn. Gloucestershire made 242 and 304 for eight. Dipper being not out for 160. Kent beat Middlesex by an innings and seven, scoring 306 against 122 and 177. For Kent, Hargingе scored 142 and Woolley took nine wickets for 118.

FAMOUS CRICKETER DEAD

London, Aug. 2. R. G. Barlow, the famous Lancashire cricketer died at Blackpool in his seventieth year.

SWIMMER RASS HAS AMAZED EUROPE

FAMOUS AMERICAN'S FEATS IN INTER-ALLIED GAMES SURPRISED CRITICS.

America has been represented by some remarkably fast swimmers in international competitions in the past and they have scored more than their share of victories in Olympic meets, but none of them ever approached the sensational record of Norman Ross in the inter-allied carnival just ended in Paris.

A swimming team in himself Ross single-handed won five championships for the American Expeditionary Force and gave the Yankees an easy triumph over the rest of the field.

Short distance, middle distance, long distance, free style or back stroke, Ross proved equally fast and equally proficient at either. He led in every race he started and led by a decisive margin in all.

He won the 100 metre swim, free style; the 100 metre back stroke the 400 metre, free style; 800 metre free style, and the 1,500 metre, free style, defeating among others, Australia's champion and the world's record holder, W. Longworth.

In addition to that he swam last for the American team in the relay event and made up a good deal of distance lost, and in the water polo tournament scored two of America's three goals.

To those who are familiar with Ross's record before he joined the A.E.F. his performance is not exactly a surprise. He is the holder of seven world's amateur records made in national championship events in this country. They are as follows: 200 yards, 2.06 4-5; 260 metres, 2.21 3-5; 220 yards, 2.20 1-5; 300 yards, 3.16 3-5; 400 metres, 5.16 2-5; 400 yards, 5.08 4-5; 500 yards 5.53 2-5.

Mr. J. C. Strickland at present is high man in shooting at 25 birds, having broken 22 out of 25. The members of the Club desire to thank Messrs. Lillicrap and Cinder for their kindness in donating a quantity of scantling for the erection of a railing on the grounds.

FANS TO HONOR DEAD PLAYER

Memorial Services for June Cass to Be Held in Ball Park.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 3. Arrangements were completed today to hold special public memorial services here Aug. 10 at the Western League baseball park in honor of June Cass, Des Moines outfield, who died recently following an attack of tonsillitis. Addresses will be delivered by various persons and a photograph of Cass given to every one attending.

Cass was the leading base stealer of the Western league and had a try out with the Washington Americans. His body has been removed to the home of his family in Scotland, S.D.

The amount involved in the purchase of U. S. army supplies by France is estimated at $260,000,000.

DIAMOND GOSSIP

With a little more practice either team should be able to make at least one hundred runs each in a game.

It was a moving picture of what baseball used to be on the back lots in the old days.

The managers will say in extenuation that the boys had an off day. They were certainly off, but not far enough.

Why does not some enterprising individual serve tea and other light refreshments to sustain the spectators, as they do in cricket matches?

Umpire LeBarre was the coolest man on the grounds. He has been in the war, and accepting Sherman's definition, is not likely to be feazed by anything that can be staged in peace time.

The best play of the game was made by a young man lolling on the grass in front of the grandstand. He stopped a foul with one hand and should be a good man for either team.

The crowd was good natured and long suffering. Not a man demanded his money back or called for the police.

Talk about a comedy of errors! One idea of a joke is to pretend to throw to first base and then fool the man on the corner by letting the ball drop behind you.

BALL GAME TO-NIGHT RIVERSIDE DIAMOND

THE VICTORIOUS "MOOSE" TEAM OF TORONTO TO MEET PETERBORO NINE.

Tonight is the night of the big ball game. The Moose team, champions for the Western City League of Toronto and contenders for the championship of that city, arrived in the city yesterday on the noon train. In their lineup appear the names of two former Peterborough boys, Belleghem and Stringer. The Moose will have their strongest team out this evening, consisting of: Donohue, 3b; Stringer, ss; Belleghem, rf; Eagleson, 2b; Walker, c; Sparton, 3b; Burt, lf; Kenny, cf; Hardman, p. Besides these regulars the Toronto team have a bench full of utility players along with them.

All the local players who have certificates in the Central Ontario League will be on hand, and as many will be used as necessary. The Petes are in fine shape now and it will take something to beat them. The game is called for 6:30 sharp and the largest attendance of the season is looked for.

Lawn Tennis Is Old.

It may be claimed that lawn tennis is at least three centuries old, having been played in 1591 when Queen Elizabeth was entertained at Elvetham, in Hampshire, by the Earl of Hertford. Strutt, quoting from Nichol's "Progress of Queen Elizabeth," tells us that "after dinner, about 3 o'clock, 10 of His Lordship's servants, all Somersetshire men, in a square green court, before Her Majesty's window, did hang up lines, squaring out the form of a tennis court and making a cross line in the middle. In this square they, being stript of their doublets, played, five to five, with handball to the great liking of Her Highness."

Saved!

Jackson came tripping merrily into his tiny hall one day, and almost spoiled his manly beauty by tripping over someone's shoes left lying about. "Whose ferry boats are those in the hall?" he asked later when he entered the drawing room. "Ferry boats?" cried his mother-in-law angrily. "Why, those are my shoes!" "My dear, good ma," said Jackson hurriedly, "who said ferry boats? You misunderstood. Fairy boots, you know—fairy boo's!" And then he wiped the sweat from his brow.

GOOD SOCCER WORK AT STADIUM SAT'Y

OLD COUNTRY VS. HAMILTON IN FINAL OF ONTARIO CHALLENGE CUP.

Varsity Stadium, Aug. 2. Old Country and Hamilton I.L.P. met here today in the final of the Ontario Challenge Cup. The winner of this game will represent Ontario in the Connaught Cup finals. Old Country were minus the services of Jackson, their brilliant outside left, who missed his train from the country, but Logan, their good centre forward of last year, makes his first appearance. Hamilton were at full strength.

Old Country Wins.

Conqueror of Atlantic Downed Seven Machines Fighting Against Huns

CAPT. JOHN ALCOCK, D.S.C., pilot of the Vickers-Vimy bomber which successfully flew the Atlantic, is one of the most widely experienced British aces. He has had an interesting career throughout the war, and is credited with seven German machines, despite the fact that the major portion of his service was devoted to instructional work.

Capt. Alcock was born at Manchester, England, and after being graduated from college there served an apprenticeship in engineering. He took up aeronautics in 1909, chiefly as a hobby. At first he experimented with kite gliders, flying them without engines. During the next three years he worked with several airplane concerns. He secured his pilot's license in 1912.

In the intervening years before the outbreak of the war he took part in a number of flying competitions. In the aerial race between London and Manchester, organized by the London Daily Mail for a prize of $25,000, he finished second. In this flight he used a Farman machine fitted with a 150-horse-power Sunbeam engine of British make.

Following this he won several small competitions, chiefly cross-country flights. He also won several speed contests, and established an altitude record of 12,000 feet.

When the war broke out his machine was commandeered by the military authorities and he went along with it. At first he was appointed instructor at the Eastchurch, Kent, airdrome. Later he was attached to one of the home defence squadrons whose duty consisted of repulsing Zeppelin and Gotha air raids over London.

After a period spent in training fighting pilots in the tactics of aerial combat, including acrobatics, Capt. Alcock went to the Dardanelles and Salonica, where he saw considerable active service. It was there that he won the Distinguished Service Cross for bringing down seven German airplanes.

Capt. Alcock was one of the first pilots to bomb the city of Constantinople. He also bombed Adrianople and other large Turkish and Bulgarian cities.

His final flight over the enemy lines was in a big Handley-Page biplane. While on this flight a hundred miles outside the allied lines one of the propellers of his machine broke and he attempted to return with one engine. The machine actually covered eighty-eight miles of the distance in this condition, but was finally compelled to descend upon the sea near Suvla Bay, within twelve miles of its base.

Two other men were in the machine with Capt. Alcock, and they floated on the machine for two hours. Finally all three swam ashore. On the beach they lay all night within sound of the Turkish sentries patrolling the beach. Daylight came, and all three were discovered and made prisoners after surrendering themselves. They were taken to Constantinople, where they were imprisoned for a month, after which they were sent to an internment camp. They were released when the Turkish armistice was signed.

It was while in the Dardanelles that Capt. Alcock displayed the measure of his engineering ability. For a time the allied forces were without light scouting machines. No aircraft, other than the heavy bombing machines, were near the sphere of action.

Realising the urgent need of a scout plane Capt. Alcock constructed one with spare material obtained from the Mediterranean base at Malta. This machine was built upon the lines of a design he had completed just before leaving England. The machine was highly successful, and attained a higher speed than any other machine in that theatre. It had the distinction of being the first machine to be built on active service.

The navigator of the Vickers-Vimy bomber was Lieut. Arthur Whitten Brown, an engineer by profession, and a pilot of note in the war. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland.

He holds more scientific degrees than any other airman who went to Newfoundland for the trans-Atlantic flight, being privileged to attach the following letters after his name: A.M.I.E., M.I.M.E., and A.M.F.A.I.E.

His professional career was spent with the British Westinghouse Company and Vickers Limited, builders of the machine in which he and Capt. Alcock flew across the Atlantic.

His thorough knowledge of surveying led him to take up aviation, and the study of aerial navigation as applied to surveying. For the past 12 months he has made a specialty of the development of aerial navigation.

In 1914, at the outbreak of the European war, he enlisted in the University and Public School Corps. After a period of training he won his commission and was gazetted to the Manchester Regiment.

He served with the second battalion of that regiment in France for a period, and then transferred to the Royal Flying Corps as an observer. Later he was wounded and taken prisoner by the Germans.

In 1917 he was repatriated, after a period of internment in Switzerland. On his return to England he was assigned to the Ministry of Munitions, where he was employed in the development of aeronautical engines. During the course of this work he did much flying on home stations.

The Samoan Islands.

By the agreement of December 2, 1899, among the United States, Great Britain and Germany, the Samoan Islands were divided between the United States and Germany, Great Britain retiring and accepting compensation for her retirement in the form of colonial concessions elsewhere in the world. This agreement ended a long series of outbreaks and disorder in the islands amounting to a state of civil war, due, it was charged at the time, to the intrigue and aggression of the Germans.

WELL-FILLED PURSE AND AN ADDRESS FOR REV. MEAGHER

On the Eve of His Departure for Ireland.

The following address was read by Capt. M. Kennedy to Rev. Father Meagher, in St. Paul's Church, Lakefield, when the parishioners gathered at the church to testify their love for and appreciation of Rev. Father Meagher before leaving for New York, en route to Ireland

Rev. and Dear Father Meagher—It was with feelings of deep regret that we, the members of your little parish at Lakefield learned that you are about to leave us, called home by the serious illness of your dear mother. We offer you, Rev. and dear Father, our heart-felt sympathy, and assure you that you, and your good mother have the earnest prayers of the people of Lakefield.

In the few years you have spent amongst us, you have by your kindness and fidelity endeared yourself to every member of your congregation.

We ask you to accept this purse as a small tribute of our appreciation of your worth and many good qualities.

Wishing you dear Father Meagher a safe journey and that you may return to us in the near future.

Signed on behalf o fthe congregation.

Denis Garvey,
Patrick Sullivan,
Thomas Spencer,
Thomas Sullivan,
Peter Gooley

Well-Filled Purse

The address and a well filled purse was presented to their pastor by Mr. Garvey

Father Meagher, although taken by surprise expressed his gratitude and appreciation in a few well chosen words.

Later in the evening a dainty banquet was served at the home of Mr and Mrs. Lawless to the visiting clergy.

WELL FILLED WALLET FOR MR. H. C. TRENEER

RETIRING ORGANIST OF ST. ANDREW'S RECEIVES PRACTICAL TOKEN OF ESTEEM.

At the close of the morning service in St. Andrew's Church yesterday, Mr. Treneer, the organist, who made his final appearance in that capacity, was called into the vestry where he met members of the Board of Management and the Session. In a neat speech Mr E. B. Fowler, treasurer of the congregation and chairman of the Music Committee, recorded Mr. Treneer's eight years of service. In that time Mr. Treneer had not only acted devotedly and efficiently as organist and choir leader, but had always taken an interest in every branch of church work and had been ready at all times to lend his aid at every function. He will carry away with him the best wishes of the officers, members and adherents alike and will also be given a letter of highest recommendation.

On behalf of the congregation Mr. Fowler then presented Mr. Treneer with a well filled wallet.

Mr. Treneer gracefully and feelingly acknowledged the gift, speaking like the cultived Christian gentleman he has ever been, and assuring his hearers that he would always regard the eight years spent in St. Andrew's as the happiest period of his life.

Mr. Treneer has not only acted as organist and choir leader, but has officiated as accompanist at the Sunday School and mid-week services, and on every other occasion when required besides teaching a large class every Sunday. He leaves the city today and after a brief vacation will enter St. Andrew's College, Toronto, with a view to preparing for an arts' course in Toronto University.

At the union service in Trinity Church last night Rev. F. E. Malott spoke of the retirement of Mr. Treneer and of the high esteem in which he has been held by the members of both congregations.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

MAGEE—STINSON.

A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stinson, Omemee, on Wednesday, July 30, when their only daughter, Eveline Mae, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Frank T. Magee, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Magee, Orange Corners, the ceremony being performed by Rev. E. R. James.

The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the drawing-room, which was beautifully decorated with American beauty roses and sweet peas, to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Miss Ina Rowan, cousin of the bride.

Standing before a beautiful bank of ferns and flowers, the bride looked charming in a gown of navy blue taffeta and georgette crepe and wore a pretty sand shade hat.

After the ceremony a dainty supper was partaken of by the immediate relatives of the bride and groom. The waitresses were Miss Ina Rowan and Miss Gwendoline James.

The gifts were numerous and costly, testifying to the esteem in which the young couple are held.

Mr. and Mrs. Magee left by motor for their new home at Orange Corners amid showers of confetti and best wishes.

THEATRICAL

NEW LIGHT AND SHADE EFFECTS IN "THE FEAR WOMAN"

GOLDWYN CAMERAMAN EVOLVES WAY TO OVERCOME GLARE IN LONG SHOTS.

New effects in motion-picture photography have been developed by Cameraman Edward Gheller in "The Fear Woman," Pauline Frederick's last Goldwyn production, to be shown today at the Grand Theatre.

In the light-and-shadow scenes, the long shots through windows and doors, up driveways and through arbors, and in the extraordinary close-up effects, Mr. Gheller has brought forth a number of new lens tricks. In his close-ups of the star and her supporting cast he has invented a new focus which brings unusual brilliance to the eyes, intensifies the lighting on the hair, and completely obscures al background without the use of a back screen.

An extraordinary long shot was taken through a second-story window in a hotel, showing the departure of two figures in a motor car. Heretofore such effects have not been procured because, in focusing on the window, the exterior would be blurred This effect, said Mr. Gheller, was obtained by using double lighting behind the camera thus softening the light in front of it, and intensifying the distant objects.

In "The Fear Woman" are a number of scenes that resemble framed paintings, taken through doors and window ledges. A particularly sumptuous hotel lobby is shown through a mission archway, a "shot" of the boudoir of Helen Winthrop (Pauline Frederick) is made between velvet hangings, which give an optical impression of a curtained stage.

Unique lighting gives a novel touch to a number of the interior scenes and Mr. Gheller, through his skill with the lens, has been able to focus on certain objects in the room without obscuring others. Light-and-shadow photography is something new to motion pictures; and in "The Fear Woman," Mr. Gheller has evolved effects that bid fair to make the play a milestone in the development of screen photography.

BLUFFED THEIR WAY TO A FATAL CLIMAX

STORIES OF LOVE AND FINANCIAL PROBLEMS THRILLINGLY TOLD.

A crowded house, Saturday night testifies to the quality of the pictures being shown daily at the Grand Opera House, and also to the interest manifested in the voting competition now going on for a Chevrolet car and other prizes. Then the accompaniments of a six piece orchestra of skilled musicians, whose numbers appeals stirringly to any musical ear, add to the pleasure of a two and a half hour sitting before comedy and drama, told in movies of the highest order of merit. At each performance, also Canadian Industrial pictures are shown, giving one a visualistic education as to just exactly how this, that and the other Canadian product is produced. From the mining or growing of the raw material to the finished article ready for use by all patriotic who are demanding, as they should, Canadian made goods

These days, at the Grand, education and real unalloyed pleasure go hand-in-hand, in a lofty and well-ventilated theatre, where comfort and attendance are as you like them, and where electric fans cool the atmosphere, no matter how sweltering the heat outside may be.

Saturday night the story of how a well-born married couple bluffed each other and finally bluffed their way to a thrilling climax at a western millionarie's home, held one interest throughout.

The Island of Intrigue, where a wealthy oil magnate's daughter is held for ransom, was realistically told, and with such faithful oral effects as the wash of the sea, together with all-star movie performances, this picture presents an irresistible realism that holds.

Love and marriage on board a train, in which the by-play for a negro conductor dominates, presented very acceptable clean comedy of that nature which appeals to all.

LIBERAL GATHERING AT OTTAWA CALLED TO ORDER THIS MORNING

Premiers Gouin and Murray to Act as Joint Chairman—Martin is Favorite For Leader But Fielding is Still Canvassing For Votes

(Special to The Review.)

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—At ten-thirty this morning Hon. Charles Murphy, as chairman of the local committee formally opened the Liberal National Convention at Howick Hall and D. B. McKenzie, Parliamentary Leader, moved that Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec, and Hon. G. H. Murray, Premier of Nova Scotia, should act as joint chairmen of convention. The building was well filled, the delegates having begun to arrive as early as nine o'clock. During the wait telegrams were read, the first from Miss Carmichael of Pictou, N.S., a delegate, regretting her inability to attend. There were many women delegates, particularly from the western Provinces. The Governaor-General Foot Guards band played "Marsellaise" and all stood, the French delegates singing lustily. The tune changed to "Yankee Doodle" and all sat down amid general laughter.

Shortly before the opening a light was flashed on a large picture of Sir Wilfred Laurier over the platform and there was more cheering. In his opening motion Mr. McKenzie said the convention had assembled on the last will and testament of the great Chieftain. It had been unanimously agreed that his wishes in regard to convention should be carried out to the letter as far as possible.

RULES GOVERNING THE CONVENTION.

When the delegates assembled they were given printed rules governing the election of a party leader, which set forth that the vote is to be taken on official ballots to be distributed on the morning of election day, that all nominations shall be in writing, that nominees desiring to withdraw shall do so by a simple announcement without speaking in favor of another candidate. Ballotting is to continue until one candidate receives a majority of the vote cast, and after four ballots with no result, the lowest candidate on each successive ballot shall be dropped. Scrutineers are to be nominated from each Province, three from each of the western Provinces and one from the Yukon. During convention the mover of a resolution is allowed 15 minutes to speak and other speakers 10 minutes, but chairman may limit speeches to 5 minutes.

MURRAY MAKES KEYNOTE SPEECH.

Sir Lomer and Premier Murray were unanimously elected joint chairmen and were heartily acclaimed by the crowded meeting. Mr. Murray delivered an address which probably struck the note to which the convention will be attuned. He was frequently applauded. He asserted that union government's days of usefullness were over. He urged that no difference of opinion should now divide the Liberals who believed in principles of conscription from those who thought otherwise when it was an issue.

Mr. Murray thought there should be no great difficulty about the leadership. The party throughout the country would loyally accept the choice of te convention.

Sir Lomer Gouin then spoke briefly and then came, amid great enthusiasm the motion of Mr. MacKenzie, the Liberal Provincial Premiers, and the Ontario Oppositon leader took seats on platform as vice-chairman, Mr. Dewart beginning singled out for special applause.

Sir Allen Aylesworth moved, and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux seconded, a long resolution on the death of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, which will be engrossed and sent to Lady Laurier. Sir Allen stated that Sir Wilfrid's great wish was the work to which he had devoted his life, should be carried on to the end, and that dissension due to race and creed should disappear from Canada.

D. C. Ross and Mr. Pacaud were appointed joint secretaries of the convention, which adjourned at one o'clock to resume at four.

TROUBLE BETWEEN BRITAIN AND ARGENTINA IS BREWING

Strained Relations Due, 'Tis Said, to Purchase by Argentine Government of German Steamer—Sir Reginald Towers, British Minister is Leaving For Home, Denies However, That This is Due to Diplomatic Situation.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Buenos Aires, Aug. 5.—Diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Argentina, as a result of the purchase by Argentina, of the German steamship "Basia Blanc," are delicate according to La Nacion, which says:

More Than Supposition

"Regarding these rumors which, from the beginning have been founded on more than supposition, we have received versions, the gravity of which are self evident, and according to which the return to London or Sir Reginald Tower, British Minister to Argentina, and the departure of Francisco Alvarez De Toledo, the Argentina Minister to England, from London, are not disconnected. On the contrary, it appears the retirement of both minister is traceable to the purchase by Argentina of steamer "Basia Blanca," from Germans, which purchase the British government refused to recognize.

Is Being Recalled

Another newspaper, Las Noticias, says: "Sir Reginald Tower is being recalled and Senor Toledo is returning recause King George has not received him. One cause for the present situation, it adds is the refusal of the British government to recognise the purchase of Basis Blanca, but the real cause underlying the crisis is the Argentina Government's hostile attitude towards British capital invested in Argentina.

Sir Reginald's Refusal

Buenos Aires, Aug. 5.—Sir Reginald Tower, British Minister to Argentina denies rumors relative to his return to London, which is said to indicate an imminence of rupture of relations between Great Britain and this country.

He declares he is going to London merely for a rest.

AUSTRIA'S TERMS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Aug. 5. — Dr. Karl Renner, Austrian chancellor and head of Austria's peace delegation, informed General Secretary Dutasta of the Peace Conference today that Austria's counter proposals to peace terms would be handed over tomorrow within the prescribed time for their presentation.

MUST SOLVE HIGH COST OF LIVING

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Aug. 5.—Conferences with Republican and Democrat Senators on the League of Nations have definitely been abandoned by the President until problems of the high cost of living are solved, Secretary Tumulty announced today.

The President, Tumulty said, is going to give his whole time to this question of the high cost of living. Whether President Wilson will go before Congress to recommend steps designed to relieve situation, in which the country now finds itself will depend, Mr. Tumulty said, on the nature of a report to be made by Mr. Palmer. Members of President's Cabinet were in conference early today with Mr. Palmer to receive report of a special committee appointed last week to tabulate various suggestions thus far advanced.

NO TITLE FOR LLOYD GEORGE

Bonar Law Announces That Premier Refused Proffered Honor.

London, Aug. 5.—Premier Lloyd George's name was proposed today for some honor by Sir James F. Remnant in the house of commons, but Andrew Bonar Law, the government leader, replied that he had mentioned the matter to the premier, who said he would not for a minute agree to it.

$25 LICENSE FEE FOR BILL POSTERS

Is an Issue Now Being Threshed Out by Our City Fathers.

3000 FT. OF BOARDS IN CITY

Ald. Gainey Thinks Some Sort of Assessment is Due City From Bill Posters.

The City Council proposes to tax bill boards or license bill posters. One course or the other will surely be adopted, and Walter Stocker is to meet the Committee of the Whole on the question.

At the Council meeting last evening Mr. Stocker said he used three thousand feet of bill boarding in the city. He is quite willing to pay a fair license.

Ald. Gainey—"Does Mr. Stocker pay business tax?"

Mr. Stocker—"No."

Ald. Gainey—"Do you think it fair that I should pay a business tax and you escape assessment?"

Mr. Stocker—"It's not done in Ontario." Mr. Stocker here said that his prices had remained the same the past ten years despite increases in all other lines. He was willing to pay a reasonable license, say $25 a year, which he thought commensurate with the $10, $12 and $15 paid by all posters in other small cities and large towns in the province. He thought $25 a year a reasonable fee for a one-man outfit.

Might Create a Monopoly.

The question, which seems an irrelevant one, here arose as to the licensing of Walter Stocker affecting the distribution of hand bills.

Ald. Edgar—"The question before us is one of bill posting only; the distribution of hand bills and other details can be taken up later. If, however, Mr. Stocker is to be given a monopoly, a license fee of $25 is not enough."

Ald. McIntyre thought the whole question should go to Committee of the Whole for a conference with Mr. Stocker.

On motion of Ald Phelan and McIntyre, that is where this question was finally sent.

PETERBORO WORK FOR PETERBORO

Too Many Projects in One Year Would Congest Home Labor Market

DISTRIBUTE WORK OVER YEARS

Ald. Gainey Would Conserve Public Improvements For Benefit of Citizens Only.

Ald. Gainey is anxious that the city shall not undertake so much public improvement at one time as to call for bringing in of outside labor. His platform is a distribution of work over a period in order that Peterborough workingman may receive the fullest benefit from Peterborough civic projects. Last night, in Council, he suggested that the Utilities Commission be requested to postpone the installation of a filtration plant till another year. What with the new bridge, he said, paving George Street and King and part of Water streets, together with the construction of a sewage disposal plant, all coming at one time, Peterborough will be surfeited with demand for labor that Peterborough cannot respond to.

Ald. Gainey was assured that by the time plans were ready for a filtration plant, and rails and ties here, and arrangements completed for new rails on George south, to Romaine, another will have ushered in.

The street railway track on George street, south of the C.P.R. must be relaid with heavier ties and rails before the road can be paved.

PRINCE OF WALES LEAVES FOR CANADA THIS EVE'G

Boarded Cruiser "Renown" at Portsmouth.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 5.—Wearing the uniform of a naval captain, the Prince of Wales left London this morning for Portsmouth to board the cruiser "Renown," which will sail for Canada at six o'clock this evening. King George, Queen Mary and others members of the Royal family accompanied the Prince on his special train. Premier Lloyd George, Winston Spencer Churchill, Minister of War, and other prominent persons were at the station to bid the Prince God-speed.

LONDON ON BREAD RATIONS

Owing to Continuance of Bakers' Strike—Motormen Walk Out.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Londan, Aug. 5.—London is on short bread rations because of continuance of bakers' strike. No buns or cakes are available except for hospitals.

Motor men of the south London subway are on strike in sympathy with policemen and locomotive engineers of the South Western Railway. They declared a strike at midnight.

FUEL FAMINE FACES ALL EUROPE HUGE DISASTER IS THREATENED

Supreme Council of Peace Urged to Appoint Coal Commissioner to Co-Ordinate in Distribution—Big Falling Off in Coal Production in Germany and Great Britain.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Aug 5.—Shipping and fuel representatives of France, Belgium and Italy conferred with Herbert Hoover, head of the International Relief Organization here, yesterday, and decided to urge the Supreme Council of Peace Conference to appoint a European Coal Commission ot coordinate in the distribution of European coal in an effort to avert what threatens to be a disaster.

Pessimistic Forecast

Only greatly increased coal production and an improved organization for its distribution can save Europe from Disaster next year, Mr. Hoover said.

According to figures gathered by experts England's annual production of coal has fallen from two hundred and ninety two millions tons in 1913, to one hundred and eighty three million tons. Germany's decline is slightly greater. Europe at the present rate will produce four hundred and forty three million tons next year, while the amount needed is estimated at 614,369,000 tons.

RUMANIANS KILL 20 HUNGARIAN CIVILIANS IN BUDAPEST CITY

An Inter-Allied Military Mission to Investigate Conditions in Hungary's Capital.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, August 5.—The Supreme Council of the Peace Conference have decided to send an inter-allied military mission immediately to Budapest to make a full investigation of conditions there. It was also decided to partially raise the blockade of Hungary so as to relieve the food situation and to enable the new government to stabilise conditions.

Slaughter Civilians.

Paris, August 5.—Telegrams from American officials at Budapest say that Roumanian troops upon entering Budapest yesterday started plundering in the suburbs. Fifteen or twenty civilians were killed by Roumanians during the day, it is added. These reports said the Roumanians were demanding hostages and had threatened to kill five hostages for each Roumanian soldier injured in Budapest.

Berlin, August 5.—The Hungarian People's Republic is the official title of the new government at Budapest, it was announced at Vienna yesterday by members of the Hungarian government, after a conference with the Allied representatives there.

Budapest, Aug. 4.—(Monday)—Thirty thousand Roumanian troops, including infantry, cavalry and artillery, entered this city today, with a blare of trumpets. Three Roumanian forces, led by General Margha Sov, passed through Andriassy and other streets.

ALEX ELLIOTT GETS APPOINTMENT AS COST ACCOUNTANT FOR NEW BRIDGE

Salary $125 a Month—Eight Returned Soldiers Applied For Position Last Night

Alex. Elliott is Council's choice as cost accountant in the construction of the new bridge, out of twelve applicants, eight of whom are returned soldiers. In his application for the position Mr. Elliott left his salary in the hands of Council, and on motion of Ald. Hamilton and Crowe, the same was fixed at $125 a month, the average salary asked by other applicants.

On motion of Ald. Hamilton, Mr. Elliott will take his instruction as to methods of procedure in his duties from the city clerk, and will report progress to whom of the Council chairman of the Board of Works, Ald. Phelan may name.

The Duties.

As cost accountant, Mr. Elliott will check up the pay rolls and supervise the time-keeper's arrangements; and keep track of the quantities and quality of materials used, together with cost of same. As the Mayor said, the position is an important one, calling for the best man available, and Council have every confidence in their choice.

Other Applicants.

The other men applying for this position and the salaries asked were as follows:

J. H. Claude Bartlett (a returned soldier), salary asked $120 a month.

W. G. Perks (returned soldier), salary $150 a month.

Victor Haimeton, salary $35 a week.

J. M. Davis (an overseas man), salary $1500 a year.

V. P. Lewis, salary $125 a month (an overseas man).

Wm. H. McDonald, $30 a week salary or thereabouts.

S. T. Harris (returned soldier), salary $30 a week.

Ernest Lee (late member Royal Air Force), no salary stated.

J. W. Stevenson (returned soldier), salary $135 a month.

J. C. Smith, who asked half of one per cent. actual cost of work outside contractors' and engineer's fees.

H. F. Warde (returned soldier and inspector Dominion Police), salary $2,000 a year.

How Choice Was Made.

The Board of Works, who first considered the foregoing applications before recommending Alex. Elliott for acceptance to Council, made their selection in the following manner:

Ald. Edgar and Morrison moved in favor of W. G. Perks.

Ald. Crowe and Gainey for J. M. Davis.

Ald Garside and McIntyre for Alex. Elliott.

Ald. Taylor and Turner for T. H. Claude Bartlett.

Ald. Hamilton and the Mayor for G. W. Stevenson.

It was here decided that the candidate receiving the lowest vote should drop out, and so until a selection was made. This was Ald. Hamilton's idea, and it worked without a hitch.

The first vote taken showed 4 for Perks, 4 for Elliott, 3 for Bartlett and 2 for Stevenson and Davis, whose names were then dropped.

The second vote gave 4 for Perks, 4 for Elliott, and 3 for Bartlett. The latter here dropped out.

The third vote showed 8 for Elliott and 3 for Perks, thus giving the appointment to the former.

CITY WILL ANNEX SITE ON MONAGHAN ROAD FOR NEW MODERN PUBLIC SCHOOL

City Fathers in Regular Monthly Session Face Action For Damages to Compensate Boy Who Sustained Injuries in Lake Street Bathing Place—New Hydrants and Water Mains Provided For.

Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Special Bathing Committee, asked Council last night to insure the new bathing house at Lake street.

On motion of Ald. Phelan seconded by Ald. Taylor, this matter was left in the hands of Chairmn Ald. McIntyre.

Transferred Agreement.

E. Worth wrote Council drawing attention to the amalgamation of the Bonner-Worth Co. with the Auburn Woollen Mills of Peterborough and the Standard Woollen Mills of Toronto. And in this connection, the communication went on to say:

"We have two agreements with the city, one for exemption of taxes, and one for a loan from the city of $12,000 which we received when the Bonner-Worth Co. first built here. This loan was to be paid back, $1,000 per year without interest. We have done this right along and at present time there is $6,000 left to pay.

"This company, therefore, ask that an agreement be passed transferring the above arrngement from the Bonner-Worth Co. to the Canadian Woollens Limited."

A bylaw providing for this transferrance from the Bonner-Worth Co. to the Canadian Woollens Limited passed its several readings.

Annex School Site.

Peck, Kerr & McElderry forwarded a resolution of the Board of Education requesting that the city annex the property west of the Monaghan Road, at Sherbrooke street, purchased as the site for a new school.

On motion of Ald. Hamilton, Council agreed to annex these five acres in question to the city, and City Solicitor Widdifield was instructed to take the necessary proceedings.

Sunday Street Cars.

In reply to information asked for the clerk of St. Catharines' Council wrote that in this city street cars run on Sunday. Received for further reference when needed.

Road Oiling Wanted.

Residents of Auburn street sent in notification that they are patiently waiting the oiling of this street as promised. This went to the Board of Works.

One Man Cars.

The Trades and Labor Council doubted the safety of one man street cars, and asked Council to see if such can be legally operated. This gives the Legal Committee something to do.

Exemption of Taxes.

The Building Committee of the G. W. V. A. wrote asking that proper step be taken to secure legistive ratification of the exemption of taxes on the G.W.V.A.'s new home granted by Council.

BRIDGE CHANGES TO SAVE EXPENSE

ENGINEER BARBER'S PLAN TO SAVE MONEY IN SURFACE FINISH ADOPTED.

The Russell Townsend Co., in a letter to the City's Board of Works last night, agreed with Engineer Barber's suggested changes in the finish of the arches of the new bridge, but while admitting a saving in cost would be affected thereby, they did not altogether agree with Mr. Barber's figures. The contractors are however inclined to the use of a trap rock bridge floor level, in place of chipped granite as suggested by Mr. Barber.

On motion of Ald. Taylor and Garside Engineer Barber's proposition for a chipped granite finish below the floor level instead of a smooth run one, as previously planned, was adopted. That is to say, the rail of the bridge and the vertical levels of the arches below the floor level will be of chipped granite, while the soffits (or inner and less seen surfaces of the arches) will be left rough as they leave the moulds.

This Mr. Barber calculates will save several thousand dollars.

THANKS FOR SERVICES

London, Aug. 5.—Premier Lloyd George will move in the House of Commons Wednesday resolutions of thanks to the army, navy, the air force, the Dominions, India and all contributors to victory and to the dead heroes.

CALL A CONVENTION.

DON'T BE CAUGHT asleep. Don't let the riding go by default. Call a convention of the party and put a candidate in the running. Don't give a man a week or two to prepare for the election and then wonder why the fates have been unkind if the day is lost. Give the choice of the party at least time enough in which to gird on his armor.

PREMIER HEARST'S RECORD.

THE PRESENT LEGISLATURE of Ontario has behind it an honorable record. Sir William Hearst succeeded to the leadership, following Sir James Whitney, whose administration was above reproach and whose Government, after three years of trial, had thrice been sustained by the people, each time with an increased majority. The late Sir James Whitney passed from earth before the plaudits of the electors as expressed in the general election of 1914 had died away. His were such triumphs as few public men in this country have ever been accorded.

Sir William Hearst took the helm of the ship of state from the able hands of the pilot who fell at his post, and has guided that ship with consummate skill ever since. Under his leadership not one breath of scandal has ever been uttered against his administration. Personally he is above suspicion. As a public administrator his work has been characterised by a desire to do the best for the Province as a whole without regard to party interests. The measures which he adopted were dropped as soon as peace was declared. Progress and reform have marked every step of his service. Some of the most important legislation which he has enacted has received the unanimous support even of the members of the Opposition. There is not now nor has there ever been from the first a weak spot in his Cabinet. The heads of the various departments and their work are just as far above criticism as is the Premier himself and his administration as a whole.

On that administrative record Sir William Hearst is safe to appeal to the people. The coming election can be won, just as it was won in 1908, in 1911 and in 1914, without the dragging into the contest of any side issue, the exploitation of which would rather weaken the cause than otherwise. No party, whether in the Provincial or Federal field, can hope to gain prestige with the people by racial or creed appeals, by waving either the flag or the bloody shirt or by claiming a monopoly of patriotic or imperial devotion. Certainly in Ontario, at least, the war, four strenuous years of it, did not mark any more clearly the political lines that divide the people. It is a suspicious brand of patriotism that is dragged through the mire of party politics. It is a sorry religion indeed that is utilised largely for commercialized political purposes. Racial predilections are instincts that it is just as well not to attempt to outrage.

Questioning the loyalty of an opposing leader or party will not get the other side anywhere. Hartley Dewart may or he may not be a separatist. That is a question in which there is likely to be a difference of opinion and the voters can be trusted to form their own conclusions. There are, however, issues in which these differences of opinion are more clearly defined, questions of immediate practical moment to the general welfare, and it is these issues with which the people are more apt to concern themselves in the coming election.

In a word, it will be the virtues of the Administration rather than the faults of the Opposition that will decide the election. The Government is prepared to face the people on its record.

MR. TAFT AND CANADA.

LESS THAN A YEAR AGO ex-President Taft made a lecture tour of Canada and was received everywhere with acclaim as one of the leading citizens of the United States, as a man who from the first days of the war was friendly with the British Empire and devoted to its cause, as a man whose presence in this country on a public and educative mission would do a great deal toward cementing the friendship between the two nations. In Peterborough Mr. Taft was extended a specially warm reception. The members of the Law Society presented him with an address and entertained him at a banquet. A capacity audience listened to his address, which was a clear expression of the high ideals of a real statesman. The visit was of mutual advantage, and the pleasure of the occasion was not confined to one party alone. No one enjoyed the interchange of courtesies more than Mr. Taft himself.

But a change has come over the spirit of some Canadian citizens and newspapers. Those who formerly lauded the ex-President of the United States are now gathering up stones to cast at him. All because Mr. Taft, who must really be given credit for originating the idea of the League of Nations, has criticized the constitution of that organisation as now promulgated. He does not believe that the British dominions should be received into membership in the League as so many separate nations. Of course, this applies to Canada, and Mr. Taft is now accused of attempting to belittle the very country for which he professed friendship only a short time ago.

Why all this pother, this jingoism, for that is really what it amounts to? In his present stand Mr. Taft does not lack argument. He regards the British Empire as one country, just as he so holds the United States, which is made up of forty-eight commonwealths, all really independent and self-governing. He sees no more reason why Australia or Canada should have a separate voice or membership in the League of Nations than the States of New York or Texas should be so represented. Mr. Taft is speaking from the standpoint of an American. He fears that the very object of the League may be defeated if any power secures the ascendancy in it. If it were proposed that the British Empire should be represented as a single unit, while the forty-eight states of the Union were given separate representation, anyone who knows Mr. Taft is convinced that he would offer the same line of criticism to the constitution as he does now.

Mr. Taft's position is the same as that of the hostile element in the United States Senate, and if the League of Nations is rejected by that body everyone will understand the main reason for such action.

AND NOW HAVING settled to apparent universal satisfaction that increased production is required to reduce the cost of living, why not stop talking and get busy?

THE ENUMERATION.

SATURDAY the Examiner said that the work of preparing the voters' list in this city had been bungled. At least, some one had so told it. Called to account for its unfounded insinuation, our contemporary tries to get from under by saying that the bungling was the fault of the Government and not of the chief enumerator and his staff in this city. Here is its explanation, printed last night, and no doubt intended as an apology:

> In commenting upon the failure of the enumeration, nothing but credit is due to Mr Fordyce Strickland and his staff for the able manner in which they performed their duties with the Government machinery at their disposal. The inadequacies of the present method of enumeration are general, and it is doubtful if more than two-thirds of the eligible voters are on the list.

So it is the Government machinery that is at fault, is it? Well, that machinery is so simple that even the Examiner can hardly hope to disturb its motion by throwing a monkey wrench into it. The Government appoints a chief enumerator in every riding. This official selects an assistant for each subdivision, and the assistant makes a canvass of his territory, going from house to house and recording the names of all men and women twenty-one years old or over who are British subjects by birth or naturalization. If he fails to find the residents at home, he is required to call three times. If he is still unable to locate them, he has done his duty, but the missing parties still have a chance to get on the list by applying to the board. The work must be completed in ten days, a limit that even the Examiner must approve.

It is impossible to make a complete list during the canvass. A man away on his vacation cannot be located, but if he is left off the list the fault is his own.

Simple machinery, isn't it? How can the Government bungle in such a matter? Surely the Examiner will not do other than approve of the composition of the board that will review the work of the enumerators.

Yes, someone has bungled, but it was neither the enumerators nor the Government.

THE MOST of public men these days are not only unable to serve two masters, but as a rule render even one boss but indifferent service.

AFTER FOUR YEARS OF WAR.

THE WORLD WAS AT WAR for over four years, and the suffering and sorrow was not confined to any one class. The sacrifices that such a catastrophe brings in its wake were generally borne. Appeals for support of the different war funds met with a generous and ready response. There were calls for contributions to the Patriotic Fund, to the Red Cross and kindred societies, and to the fund designed for the benefit of the men who manned the merchant vessels and the warships. Besides this, there was a constantly increasing drain on the resources of the people on account of the high cost of all articles used in daily life, an increase due to the war.

The coming of peace, which really dates from the signing of the armistice last fall, relieved the Canadian people from the tension of suspense. It should in addition have freed them of some of their financial burdens. The calls for help for war objects fell off and the people should be given a respite from other demands upon their generosity. Give the people a chance to recover their breath, to find their feet again, and to repair so far as possible their broken fortunes.

It seems, however, that this respite is to be denied them. Residents of the city complain frequently to The Review that they are being pestered to death by ticket vendors who are raising money for what are really private schemes. In many cases these appeals are made in such a way, arguments so specious are advanced, that it is almost impossible to resist them.

It is unfortunate, too, that all the schemes for which financial assistance are sought are not really worthy. There should be a censor to pass judgment on these matters. It has been suggested that the City Council assume another function and that no person or society shall be allowed to solicit funds without a license or some other form of civic authority. If such a system were adopted, any person offering tickets for sale or canvassing for subscriptions would be engaged in a work above question.

It must be admitted that times are hard. Business is quiet since the signing of the armistice. Scores of men are out of work and have been for months. Money is scarce. Winter is only a few months off, and the country is threatened with another fuel famine with the price of wood and coal higher than ever. It is just as well to face the hard fact that the country is about to pass through one of the gravest industrial situations in its history. That being the case, it behooves everyone to make the most of their present financial opportunities and to save every cent that can possibly be spared from the daily expense account. Even the churches should be willing to set the people an example in economical administration. Citizens should be spared as far as possible all appeals to their generosity, no matter how worthy the object.

Born in Shanty Died in Palace

How the Late Patrick Cudahy Won in His Struggle With Poverty

Patrick Cudahy, whose life began in a little shanty in Callan, County Kilkenny, Ireland, came to an end a few days ago in a mansion on Prospect avenue, Milwaukee. With his passing, brought about by apoplexy, in his 71st year, there was concluded one of those romances of which America has seen a few in the pioneer days of industry. His life story was that of the grocer's boy who became a millionaire; or the waif of Erin who arose to a commanding position in American business. In fact, the birth of the founder and head of the packing firm of Cudahy Brothers Company had a tinge of the romantic in it, for it occurred on St. Patrick's Day, and it was for that reason that his parents bestowed upon him the most hallowed of all Irish names.

A Delivery Boy at Twelve.

He was brought to America the same year, a few months old, and with him came two other ragged brothers, Edward and John, who with him were destined to write their names in the history of the business development of Milwaukee, where their parents settled. Of scholastic training Patrick had little, and of higher education he had none. His formal training was cut short at the age of 12, and it was then that the future millionaire might have been seen trudging from door to door with a basket on his arm delivering vegetables for the poor grocer, who gave him only a few pennies for his labor. For two years he worked at the job, getting to the store in the early morning, sweeping out, washing windows and probably never dreaming of the great business of which he was some day to be the largest owner. During that time his brothers also struggled and scraped to earn a little to keep their poor little household going.

On the High Road.

He was still a child, 14 years old, when destiny transferred him to the packing business, which the little Irish lad entered in a most unostentatious way and in what was naturally an inconsequential position. For a few years he was office boy, clerk, and held other little odd jobs with the Roddis Packing Company, of Milwaukee, and then fate began switching him around from one job to another until in 1874 he began to stride toward his goal. In that year he became superintendent of the firm of Plankington & Armour. His climb then became rapid, and in 1876 he became a member of that established firm. Two years later the former grocer's clerk and John, one of his once ragged brothers, bought the interest which Plankington owned in this firm, and changed the name to Cudahy Brothers. By this time Cupid had crossed his path, and Patrick Cudahy had married Miss Annie A. Madden, of Milwaukee.

One of the "Big Five."

From the day of the establishment of the Cudahy firm fortune continued to smile upon the off-spring of the Kilkenny immigrants, and in 1893, the plant of their company was moved to Cudahy, Wis., and greatly enlarged. At the same time Patrick organized Cudahy Brothers Company which concern, worth many millions, is a great force in the packing industry. The total time which Patrick Cudahy spent in actively developing his packing interests was 40 years. In 1915, he decided that he had done enough, and retired from the presidency of the company, which he turned over to his son, Michael. He had that year lost his elder brother, John. From that time the life of the former grocer's clerk began to cloud with sorrow. His only daughter, Helen Cudahy, whom he greatly loved, in the Falls of 1917 heard the call of her country and sailed for France, where she was to be connected with a Red Cross unit.

Daughter a Suicide.

The next that her father heard of her she was reported to have ended her life by jumping into the sea in the submarine zone. A brief note which she left in her stateroom read: "It is for the best. Keep as much as possible from father and mother." When his sons, Michael and John, entered the service during the war, Mr. Cudahy again took the rein of business in his hands and once more became president of the Cudahy concern, remaining in office until his death. The packing company which this once ragged boy founded was not confined to Milwaukee and the vicinity. It spread out and became national in its operations and today it is known as one of the "Big Five" of the packing industry.

MULES ARE MADE MUTE BY AN OPERATION

ANIMALS UNABLE TO BRAY AFTER HORSE SURGEON TAKES ACTION.

It was not until the war that science discovered a way in which to take the bray out of a mule.

Verterinary surgeons have lately been devoting a great deal of attention to the problem of how to deprive the mule of its ability to greet all and sundry with its loud and hearty "Hee-haw, hee-haw."

Two very simple methods have been devised. The first of these is an operation that is performed on its tail. It is said that if a mule cannot raise its tail it cannot bray. When a mule gets ready to bray it first throws its tail up, and then indulges in its favorite pastime.

Two small muscles at the top of the mules' tail control the raising of that appendage. If these muscles are severed the mule cannot raise its tail. This operation is very simple, and takes only a moment.

Another operation which acts as an efficacious dimmer of the mule's bray is the splitting of the false nostril. The mules' nose differs from that of the horse in that it has what is termed a false nostril. That is to say, it has a nostril through which it breathes, just like a horse, and, alongside of that nostril, a pocket which extends for several inches above the real nostril.

When the mule brays the sound is greatly magnified by this false nostril. Therefore it has been found that the simple operation of splitting the false nostril, thereby making it a part of the real nostril, greatly subdues the sound of the mule's bray.

WHAT IS UP?

Editor Review—The policy of Sir Wm. Hearst ought to satisfy the people. The one issue is Prohibition, whether we will all be tied up like a donkey, to a post or be free as God made us. Hearst will abide by the referendum.

But as The Review says, "where is West Peterborough?" Have we nobody to look after our interests or are they trying to throw the constituency to Mr. Gillespie?

WEST FAIR

COL. and MRS. GERMAIN AT HOME

Omemee, July 5.—Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Germain, nee Amy Parsons, were "at home" to their friends on Wednesday afternoon from four o'clock until six at the home of the bride's mother, who received with her.

Mrs. Germain wore a dainty reception gown of pale pink embroidered crepe de chine, while her husband appeared in uniform.

The floral decorations were carried out in maidenhair fern and sweet peas.

Mrs. Hill, of Mitchell, assisted by Mrs. A. E. Bryson, of Cobalt, presided over the tea table, while Mrs. T. E. MacPherson, Miss Lulu Bushnell and Mrs. Percy Parsons assisted in serving the guests.

BOYS STOLE RABBIT

PARENTS ORDERED TO PAY ALL EXPENSES CONNECTED WITH THE CASE.

Two boys, aged 12 and 14, appeared in Police Court this morning charged with stealing a Siberian rabbit. One youngster claimed the other one was alone; but when the other story was heard it was found that both boys had been guilty of the theft as they were together when the rabbit disappeared, and divided the money received for it.

It cost the owner of the rabbit $3 to get the animal back again.

The parents of the boys were ordered to pay all expenses, amounting to $13.85.

Alleging he has been crippled for life by a handshake which fractured a bone, a Wheeling, W. Va., man is suing R. Briggs for $5000.

THE ALLEN CASE

Remand Granted Until Wednesday, August 13th for Inquiry.

Pte. A. L. Allen appeared again in the Police Court this morning to fight his case with the help of lawyer Hatton. Crown Attorney Hatton asked for an adjournment until Wednesday, 13, on the grounds that as the present information stands another man would be incriminated.

Pte. Allen went overseas with the 247th Battalion and while over there had a clean sheet. This is the first time he has appeared in Police Court, and acting on the advice of others he pleaded guilty to the charge of theft last Saturday, hoping for a lenient sentence.

Magistrate Dumble sentenced Allen to two months, but Allen was allowed out Saturday on the assurance of Mr. Hatton and Adjutant Buntin that he would appear this morning. Pte. Allen may return to Kingston until he has to appear here on the 13th.

THEATRICAL

Found--By Pauline Frederick--An Actor Minus Artistic Temperament

Stocker, a tiny black Pomeranian no larger than an ordinary house cat, is perhaps the most faithful admirer Pauline Frederick has ever had. And what is more, he has appeared in every one of her productions, and plays a prominent part in "The Fear Woman," the vivid star's newest Goldwyn picture, at the Grand Theatre, today and Wednesday.

Stocker started his career with Miss Frederick when she was on the New York stage and he was a tiny puppy. He never leaves his mistress, and while she is at work, he either sleeps on her cloak or in some of the "prop" furniture And while he is only ten inches in length, he is a valiant protector.

In "The Fear Woman" Stocker is perhaps the best foil in the play for Miss Frederick, some of whose finest emotional work is done as she holds him in her arms. He started with her before the camera several seasons ago, and has played almost continuously with her ever since. When she does not require his services he is loaned to other companies at the Goldwyn studios, and has to date appeared with Mae Marsh in "The Cinderella Man" Madge Kennedy in "Daughter of Mine" and Tom Moore in "Lord and Lady Algy."

Stocker has a personality all his own. When a stranger approaches he is alert, and if his nose forewarns him, he bristles after the fashion of an enraged porcupine. On the other hand, if he takes a liking to a person he is unusually affectionate, and parts his lips in a broad smile.

Without her little Pom Miss Frederick would be lost, she says; and she is unusually solicitous about his welfare. When a studio cat bristled in front of him not long ago she ceased an intense emotional scene in "The Fear Woman" to snatch Stocker away · could find himself minus an orb, after which she insisted that the "baby," as she calls him, be allowed to lie in her lap while she "did" the scene.

Asked why she is so fond of the little black puffball, the radiant star declared with her characteristic witticism:

"Stocker is more of a man than some men I have heard of, and beside, he is a faithful, true actor, never suffering from temperament nor indigestion, and always ready to register joy at seeing any one whom he likes."

Exotic, regally beautiful, Pauline Frederick is not associated with athletic supremacy of any kind. But in "The Fear Woman" she is seen as a tennis champion, not only to the extent of winning a cup, but also in all the graceful and strenuous moments leading up to it. As a matter of fact she dislikes athletics, declaring that playing emotional roles is enough to keep any woman in perfect trim. However, she's first of all an actress so if she had to play basket ball or dive for diamonds there's no doubt she would do it convincingly.

THE FEAR WOMEN AND WOMEN'S SOUL

TENSE STORIES OF EVERY DAY LIFE THAT APPEAL TO ALL.

Graced with all the resplendent idealism of a poet's dream—fraught with all the illusive fascination of art perfected, yet strong with a compelling power, "The Fear Woman" was screened at the Grand last night It's a play that will hold for each an individual message. Each intellect meeting the sure and swift impressions of the story will interpret them in its own peculiar way. But for all the appeal is there and that appeal is deep and sincere. The scenic effects ornamented as they are with the supremest touch of loveliness are all that is picturesque—all that is inspiring, and to the mind that appreciates the delicate beauties of color and contour must surely be infinitely absorbing in themselves. Beneath all the brilliant and eminently necessary superfluity of stagecraft is a strong undercurrent of real human feeling and a direct appeal to the inherent fine sense of principle among people in general, that is largely responsible for the success of the production.

Pauline Frederick, starring in this piece is an actress of fine ability. The lure of her personality bears within itself a charm that is complete, so vividly does she flash upon the screen the self-submerging character o fthe ideal woman—the woman of true indwelling culture. So extensively convincing does she teach the nobility of free-will, the consciousness that there is always a choice and within each human heart is the ability to choose rightly. So superbly does she impersonate the woman who cherishes within her soul a lofty conception of what is just and who is strong enough to crush the opposing forces, without counting the cost, that her screen work is all that could be desired. How pitifully weak the characted of the other woman appears by contrast the woman who follows the line of least resistence and find herself at last engulfed in misery. The entire drama tends towards a wider breadth of vision, and a finer conception of the worth-whole things of life.

"The Fear Woman" is a play that is both exclusive and inclusive-- exclusive in so far as it is out of the ordinary as picture plays go; inclusive because of its universal appeal The deep pathos of the story is diffused with the light of a sparkling humor, at intervals, and it is exceptionally well balanced with regard to joy and sorrow, pleasure and pain

A big feature of the evening and one that enhances the changing scenes in no small degree is the orchestra. The musical numbers are unexcelled for beauty of tone and wealth of variety and possess the unique distinction of saying the same thing as the picture says, at the same time.

Another picture of intrinsic merit running tonight and tomorrow is "A Woman's Fool." This play is grippingly emotional wit ha deep vein of pathos. It is imminently original and charged with a delicious humor that would coax a smile from the sternest countenance. It is true to life and brings home to an audience the sad realities of existence—the helplessness of creatures as the tools of circumstances and the all-satisfying fact that the good will outlive all other forces. Who would not be touched by the inborn faith and trustfulness of poor "Len" and saddened when he discovers that he has been the victim of a conscienciousless schemer. And who would not feel thankful when he at last finds happiness In the depiction of western life in this play the action is quick and vital and the scenes deeply interesting.

Hindenburg Is Anxious To Shoulder All Blame And Save the Ex-Kaiser

FIELD MARSHAL HINDENBURG follows Bethmann-Hollweg's example in offering to shoulder William II's war responsibilities. He telegraphs the Ebert Government that he was accountable for all decisions and acts at Grand Headquarters from August 29, 1916, until the signing of the armistice.

In making this assertion Hindenburg shows generosity. Technically, he was the head of the armies during the period named. But little concealment has been made of the fact that early in 1917 his power passed to Ludendorff, who became for the rest of the war a practical military and political dictator.

FIELD MARSHAL HINDENBURG.

Ludendorff's judgment was far less sound than Hindenburg's, and Germany suffered from the substitution. But the former's propensity to take big risks and engage in showy enterprises made him more popular with the clique which controlled the Kaiser.

What part Hindenburg had in planning the 1918 offensives in France is still uncertain. But it was not a decisive part. Logically, therefore, he injures the Kaiser's case when he tries to relieve him of responsibility for the acts and policies of the German High Command. If he is accountable for what others did, William II is similarly accountable. For the latter was always legally and constitutionally the supreme commander of the armies and the head of the state. Hindenburg was responsible to him as "War Lord" to the same extent to which Ludendorff and others were responsible to Hindenburg.

Large Market for Rabbit Skins.

There is a market for rabbit skins. Before the recent war an enormous trade was carried on abroad. It is said that Great Britain and Ireland alone produced about thirty million skins annually. Most rabbit skins are sold in bales, by weight, the fur from them being used for felting purposes, and the skins for making glue. The war interrupted the importations from Europe and Australia to such an extent that the price has greatly increased. The better skins are sold by the dozen. When dressed they become the "cony" of the fur trade, often sold under fanciful names. American breeders are raising all kinds of rabbits that produce the best "cony" of the fur shops.

Saw Cuts Steel Billets.

The largest of a number of power hacksaws in one of the British naval factories is stated to weigh three and one-half tons and is driven by a three-horse power electric motor. It cuts through square billets of steel 26 inches thick. Even a cut like this does not wear out the blade, which is suitable for further work after the cut has been made. This machine is estimated to reduce the expense of sawing to one-sixth of the former cost.

Japan's Leading Industry.

Extraordinarily favorable business conditions in Japan and the continued withdrawal of the products of European nations from competition in the markets of Asia and Australia made the year 1917 an extremely profitable one for the spinning industry and firmly fixed it as the leading manufacturing industry of Japan.

MUCH LIKE PICNIC

How Royalty Engaged in Peace Conference.

Gathering of a Century Ago Had Little Thought of the Welfare of the "Common People"—General Round of Jollity.

A French writer, M. Adolphe Aderer, remarks in the Temps that with the kaiser safely stowed away in Amerongen castle there is little likelihood of any disturbance at the Versailles conference comparable to that at Vienna when Napoleon escaped from Elba. Nor is the atmosphere of the two conferences the same. The congress of Vienna in 1815 was a perpetual round of dances, dinners and amusements, whereas "the kaiser's crimes have cast a pall over Versailles. The delegates of the democratic nations are counting the victims of the kaiser. There is no dancing, out of respect for the dead."

It was not like that a hundred and four years ago at the Austrian capital. "It was an endless series of fetes, banquets, routs, drives and hunting parties. Noteworthy among others was a general 'picnic'—what Americans would call a 'Dutch' dinner—followed by a ball. The price of the dinner tickets was three Holland ducats, while it cost ten florins to get into the ball. The proceeds had first been assigned to buying an immense silver lamp for the holy sepulcher at Jerusalem. Afterwards it was decided to use them for ransoming the Christian slaves in Barbary.

"The dinner was served at the Augarten, with the famous caterer, Yann, in charge. One hundred and fifty celebrities, including all the kings and emperors present, sat down at a huge table shaped like a horseshoe. Never had so many crowned heads assembled before a single board. At dessert a page, carrying a vermilion platter, went around and collected from each guest the three gold ducats. The giant king of Wurttemberg vainly rummaged through his pockets. To the delight of everybody he could not 'raise the price.' The emperor of Russia lent him enough to pay the bill.

"Some time afterward the question of restricting royal prerogatives came up before the conference. The king of Wurttemberg flew into a rage and jumped to his feet. But his enormous paunch caught under the table, which upset, with books, papers, inkwells and all. There was an uproar of laughter. The king called for his escort and left in a fret for Stuttgart. But the loss of one king was hardly noticeable in such a gathering. The conference lost none of its splendor thereby.

"One evening, in March, 1815, the empress gave a great ball. Tallyrand, always so punctual, was not in evidence. Wellington was absent. So was Metternich. What could have happened? At last the marschall of Schwartzenburg came out of the imperial chambers. He spoke a few words to the few intimates who dared question him. Napoleon had escaped from Elba and was entering Lyons.

"The doors swung open and the empress entered on the arm of Emperor Alexander. Then came the king of Prussia with the Empress Elizabeth. In spite of the general emotion, the program was carried out. The conference was over, but the kings danced on."

Aluminum Plating.

An aluminum plating for airplane propellers has been devised for the purpose of protecting the wood from the influence of the weather, which has been a serious problem heretofore. The plating is a thin leaf which is incorporated in the finish of the propellers, and the idea was developed by the forest products laboratory at Madison, Wis., and placed in production by the war department. The process is practically 100 per cent effective in preventing absorption of water, particularly in the storage stage. A French authority states that 80 per cent of the French propellers produced are rejected by the pilots mainly because they are out of balance. This difficulty is due largely to unequal absorption or distribution of moisture and can be greatly reduced by an effective water-proofing coating.

LAWS OF HEREDITY

Vital Facts Which Are Not Properly Understood.

Physical Development, More Especially Among the Lower Animals, Largely a Matter of Environment—In Human Family.

The laws of heredity are not well understood. There are many facts pertaining to heredity which are well known, but there are so many exceptions to the rules, nothing in the way of positive laws can be stated. According to the supposed laws of heredity there should be no difference whatever in the physical appearance of children born of the same parents.

And yet children born of the same parents are never exactly alike and frequently vary to as great degree as if they were not related. Not only do they vary in physical conformation—in shape and size—which might be accounted for on the ground that they were reared under different conditions—but they differ frequently at birth in the color of the hair and eyes and disposition.

But these variations are not so noticeable among the wild things as among the domestic animals and people. There is no question as to an animal's being influenced in its development by reason of its surroundings, its exercise and its food. And, when so influenced, its peculiarities are transmitted to its offspring.

Exercise probably has more to do with physical development of an animal than any other thing. This fact is demonstrated in the case of persons whose ancestors have followed a single occupation for many generations. In the lower animals it is also known to be a fact that acquired characteristics are inherited. The bird dog inherits not only the deep lungs acquired by its ancestors, but the instinct to point birds. The trot and pace are acquired gaits with horses and are freely transmitted through inheritance, even to the formation of muscles conducive to speed.

The wild creatures do but few things in making a living. The wolf hunts after a certain manner; the deer grazes on the grass and buds of plants; the quail picks up seeds and bugs and worms. Over and over, generation after generation, these things follow the same routine in securing a living. So they develop and transmit to the offspring the degree of efficiency needed to make a living. So year after year, generation after generation, the members of the tribe, or pack, or flock are kept at a certain standard and do not vary. But with domestic animals, as where horses are used for various purposes, where cows do not live under identical conditions—and with human beings, where there are so many ways of making a living, variations are developed and transmitted to offspring.

But there are many uncertainties as to what the offspring will be like. We have not learned enough about the laws of heredity even to state positively that the offspring of a famous race horse will have speed, although we know that the tendency will be toward speed. The child of a well-developed man and woman may be a weakling, although the chances are it will be strong. And certainly we do not know that the children of a very brilliant man will be any more brilliant than other children, although, according to the laws of heredity, it ought to be.

New Subway Alarm.

A tunnel of the Metropolitan railway, in London, which much of the time is filled with smoke or steam, has been equipped for its 2,200 feet of length with an iron tube for giving notice of the approach of trains, the tubes to be agitated so as to produce a noise by means of treadles, and being so arranged that it can be out of service when no men are at work in the tunnel. It was found that horns or gongs could be heard not over 700 feet in a clear atmosphere and a much shorter distance when the atmosphere was filled with smoke or steam. A galvanized iron tube, of about three-quarters inch internal diameter, is hung along the side of the tunnel at the height of a man's head, and as trains approach or enter the tunnel this pipe is caused to vibrate in such a way that it can be heard throughout its length.

Betty's Choice.

My grandfather told this story about his cousin Seth's wedding:

When the bridegroom appeared the bride objected to his flaming red necktie. Seth refused to change it. A hot argument ensued. Seth's father, a widower, took Betty's part in the controversy.

"I wish I'd chosen you," declared Betty.

"I wish you had," retorted young Seth.

"'Tain't too late yet," ventured old Seth. And Betty up and married the elder Seth on the spot.—Chicago Tribune.

VEXING PROBLEM FACES CITY OVER RE-INSTATING RETURNED SOLDIER

Withers Claims he Left Foremanship of Incinerator to go Overseas—Some Aldermen Think He Quit Before Deciding to Enlist.

At the Council meeting last evening Ald. Hamilton raised the question of re-instating W. W. Withers as foreman at the incinerator. Withers, Ald. Hamilton said, is a returned soldier, and claims he was promised re-instatement when he left his position to go overseas. He also is not inclined to accept a position "under" Murphy, who is a capable man and who has given the city faithful service. The other employe is a returned soldier, and Ald. Hamilton could not see the consistency of discharging one overseas man to give his position to another. He asked Council's decision in a perplexing problem.

How Did He Leave?

The Mayor—"I understand Withers had resigned before he enlisted and not to enlist; although he told me, ex-mayor Duffus had promised him his position back should he go overseas.

Ald. Edgar did not think the man quit his job with the intention of joining the Canadian Expeditionary Forces. "Should he however, have done so, he certainly ought to be re-instated."

Extensive Experience

Ald. Garside— "Withers has had extensive experience with incineration—installing and putting them in operation. He is a married man and came to Peterborough with the plant, which he ran, until going overseas.

There is a resolution on the Council's books that all returned men who had quit their positions to go overseas shall be reinstated, and Ald. Edgar could not see any other course open to the city in this case.

Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. Garside, that if the city's records show Withers as having left the incinerator to enlist then he be re-instated. Otherwise, Ald. Hamilton to act in his own good judgment.

FLUSHING STREETS WOULD BE COSTLY

$15 A NIGHT WOULD BE THE BILL AND COUNCIL TAKES NO ACTION ON PROPOSITION.

Flushing the pavements by means of hose would be a very expensive matter.

In order to flush George street from London to King; Charlotte street from Water to Park; and Hunter street from Queen street to Stewart, there would be required at least three men to handle the hose and a horse and driver. I am not sure, without experimenting, as to whether as small a gang as this could cover this amount of work or not. This would represent an expenditure for flushing of at least $15.00 per night for the above sections. When the rest of the pavements were flushed there would be required at least two similar gangs. This would mean a cost of $45.00 per night. This would be an average of $30 per night for six nights in the week. Our present sprinkling costs about $3 per day on the average. The flushing of the streets at night in this way would not do away with the sweeping during the day time, although we could probably get along with one, or possibly two less men. I do not think that the idea of flushing from the hydrants with fire hose is economical or practical. In addition to the expense of the labor, there is the wear and tear on the hose to be taken into account and the cost of the water which would be used.

If the question of flushing the streets is to be taken up seriously I think that the only way to do it is by means of a power flusher either horse or motor drawn which will travel along the streets and deliver the water on the pavement at any desired angle or pressure. I have not had an opportunity to get quotations on a machine of this kind but judging from previous quotations would say that we could probably get a horse drawn flusher of a reliable make for something under $1500 and in order to cover the pavements, it would be machines. These machines could probably be operated for $8.00 or $10.00 each per night and I think ould be far more satisfactory than rying to flush with the hose.

The foregoing was the report of City Engineer Parsons to the Board of Works, last night on pavement flushing by the fire department, and Council took no action.

LIBERAL GATHERING

Premier William Melville Martin of Saskatchewan, will be the leader of the Federal Liberal Party if he will accept the position. Even in the face of his refusal to be a candidate for the office there is a strong demand that he reconsider his decision, and it is possible he may do so. There is no doubt of the general desire that Premier Martin succeed to the mantle of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. With such a general demand it will be almost impossible for him to refuse even though his inclination is to remain at the head of affairs in his own province. He is not enamored of political life, but is a strong party man, and his party's desire is to him almost a command.

Fielding Still in Race

Fielding or Martin? Amid the chaos and confusion surrounding the arrival of several hundred delegates to the national Liberal convention the fact emerges pretty clearly that the Liberal Leader soon to be chosen will be either Hon. W. S. Fielding or Premier W. M. Martin of Saskatchewan. Hon. George P. Graham will have quite a following in the convention; something like a Graham boom has been in evidence for twenty-four hours. Mr. Graham will have the majority of the Ontario delegation, some votes from Quebec and a scattered support in the maritime provinces. He is, however, said to be unacceptable to the west. He is likely to have a good vote in the first ballot, but may lose instead of gaining ground after that.

Judge D. D. McKenzie may retire from the race. The Nova Scotia delegates fear the effect of two candidates from the same province and say that Mr. Fielding or Judge McKenzie should withdraw in the interest of harmony. This afternoon it looked as though Mr. Fielding would make the sacrifice but he is campaigning harder than ever, and the report is current that Judge McKenzie will be the one to withdraw from the contest. The French-Canadian members of parliament held a caucus and decided to avoid any appearance of acting as a unit in the convention. Many of them take the stand that as an English Protestant must be nominated the French-Canadians should not be called on to make the choice. Some of them are unfriendly to Mr. Fielding, and the report as to their disaffection prompted a statement by Mr. Fielding that he would withdraw, if necessary to promote party harmony. As a matter of fact the Quebeckers will support whoever is nominated. Sir Lomer Gouin is for Fielding. Mr. Lemieux quotes Lady Laurier as saying that Sir Wilfrid had looked forward to Mr. Fielding being his successor in the Liberal leadership.

Others in the Running

The candidacy of Hon. Sydney Fisher is not taken seriously, though he will get a large vote on the first ballot from Quebec. Hon. MacKenzie King will likely receive some votes, but is not regarded as likely to secure the prize.

Geo. E. Fenton and Earl Pocock, both of Toronto, were drowned from a canoe yesterday afternoon in the river at Oakville.

James Latimer, wanted by the Toronto police on complaints of shopbreaking, was captured after officers had fired upon him with their pistols.

CITY WILL ANNEX

Action for Damages.

Gordon & O'Brien notified Council of their instructions to take action to recover damages for injuries received by Amos Feeley when bathing off Lake street on July 15th. This lad suffered a severe cut on his knee by glass or tin not removed from the bed of this public bathing spot; hence legal proceedings against the city. This was sent to the Legal Committee.

Dr. McCullough, chief Provincial Office of Health, wrote enquiring what steps are being taken toward constructing a sewage disposal plant. The Board of Works will wrestle with this question.

Safety First Measure.

Russel-Townsend Co. suggested that as traffic is to be kept open during the construction of the new bridge, warning signs be posted, and insurance against liability for accidents to the public be secured by the city. The Board of Works will attend to the signs and report to the Legal Committee on the insurance question.

More Damages.

Joseph Roneo is claiming $65 damages by reason of spring freshlets from the Downie street creek, and this went to the Legal Committee.

E. Kennedy and others asked that Water street, north of the G.T.R. be oiled. Ald. Phelan said it would be waste of money to oil this road until graded, which work will be undertaken within a week.

Turntable Site.

A bylaw to authorize leasing for ten years a part of Water street to the C.P.R. at $5 a year, as a site for their turntable, passed Council.

Cut Down Expenses.

Ald. Crowe and Morrison moved that advertising the collection of taxes be eliminated as an unnecessary expense. Carried.

New Hydrants.

On motion of Ald. Morrison and Gainey, the Utilities Commission will be requested to establish a hydrant near the corner of Dufferin and Ross streets; on Simcoe street, opposite the Peterborough Cereal Co.'s property; one on Simcoe street, near Roland Denne's warehouse; one at corner of Charlotte and Lewis streets, and another at the east end of King street. Also to lay an 8-inch main on Queen street, from Hunter to Simcoe, and an 8-inch main on Lewis street from King to Charlotte.

Who Were Present.

Mayor Duncan presiding, Aldermen Gainey, Morrison, Crowe, Garside, J. J. Turner, Hamilton, Edgar, A. A. McIntyre, Taylor and Phelan.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if you feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poisons, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralise these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

FIRST COAL OF SEASON

Has Reached Bridgeburg and is Being Distributed.

Bridgeburg, Aug. 5.—The first coal of the season has just reached here consigned to local dealers. Coal is now being delivered to consumers here.

The frontier was not cheered much, however, by the announcement of Superintendent D. A. Coate of the Provincial Natural Gas Company, that effective with September bills, gas will be increased from forty to fifty cents per thousand cubic feet.

Superintendent Coate also requests that the product be used entirely for cooking and water-heating, and not for heating purposes. If the latter is persisted in, he predicts a gas famine.

FRIENDS ARE ALL TALKING ABOUT IT

SACRAMENTO WOMAN SAYS IMPROVEMENT ON TANLAC WAS WONDERFUL

"Every time I meet any of my friends now, they have something to say about how well I am looking of late, and it just does my heart good to tell them how completely Tanlac has overcome my troubles," said J. G. Faria, who lives at 1105-O Street, Sacramento, Cal., the other day.

"My kidneys went back on me about a year ago," he continued, "and although I have been taking medicine and treatment ever since, I gradually got worse right along until I got hold of this Tanlac. For the past few months my condition has been much worse than it ever it, and I had a dull, heavy pain in the small of my back all the time. I had no appetite to speak of, and when I did get a little hungry occasionally, I would eat just a bite or two and that would satisfy me. I work at night, and often when I would finish my work I would be so completely worn out and nervous I couldn't sleep more than a couple of hours during the day. I was badly constipated all the time and suffered a lot from headaches.

"I heard about this Tanlac and made up my mind to give it a trial, and it certainly has done the work for me. Why, I honestly never felt better in all my life than I do now. I have completely regained my health. That awful pain in the small of my back is a thing of the past, and my nerves are in such good condition that I sleep like a log from the time I go to bed until time for me to get up and go to work. I have such a good appetite that I just want to eat all the time nearly, and my food is agreeing with me fine. I have gained a good deal in weight, and all my strength has come back to me. I haven't had one of those headaches since I finished my first bottle of Tanlac, and am entirely free from constipation. Yes, sir, Tanlac is a fine medicine, and you will have to go a long way to find its equal.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

SCENE OF PLAY AT LAKE ST. BEACH TOMORROW

HILDREN TO INDULGE IN SWIMMING, DIVING AND WADING IN CARE OF SUPERVISOR.

Tomorrow afternoon the scene of play at the King Edward grounds will be transferred to the Lake street bathing beach, where swimming, diving and wading are to be enjoyed.

At 3 o'clock Mr. Allan Draper, director at the King Edward playground, will conduct a demonstration of the rescue of a drowning person. The Sylvester and Schafer methods of resuscitation will be shown.

Leaders in Contest.

In the all-round point contest at the King Edward the following boys are leaders:

Fred Jones, 260 points; Joseph Jones, 258; Peter Milloy, 225; Olaf Kelleher, 195; Douglas Moore, 110.

The contest will continue for about three more weeks. There are five badges awaiting the winners. Much interest is shown and the competition is keen.

CHANGE MUNICIPAL UNION

Proposed to Amend Constitution at Convention Next Week.

Montreal, Aug. 5.—One of the outstanding features of the nineteenth annual convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities, to be held at Kingston from the 12th to the 14th August, inclusive, will be the proposal for the reorganization and development of the union on lines laid down by Mr. Frederick Wright, editor of The Canadian Municipal Journal.

Among the suggestions that will be made will be that the union be incorporated; that its scope be enlarged so as to include rural Councils, and that a Board of Management, consisting of five elected trustees, together with the President and three Vice-Presidents, be appointed as a permanent body to administer the affairs of the union.

The appointment of a permanent Secretary by this board is recommended. Mr. W. D. Lighthall, K.C., who for many years has fulfilled the duties of Honorary Secretary, will now relinquish that position.

Flagmen at Crossings Cost City Tidy Sum

That the maintenance of flagmen at the several railway crossings in Peterborough is costing the city a tidy sum each year was revealed by Ald. Phelan at the meeting of the Board of Works last night, when he presented $764.03 as the city's share of the expense on a 50-50 basis with the railway companies for the first four months of this year. The statement reads as follows:

Grand Trunk Railway

Street	Jan.	Feb.	March	April	Total	Total
Reid	$27.63	$24.38	$94.53	$43.87	$190.41	....
Sherb'ke .	29.66	24.93	39.40	39.24	133.23	....
Hunter ..	35.38	24.84	34.99	26.02	121.23	....
King	44.54	37.70	52.57	38.62	173.43	.....
	$137.21	$111.85	$221.49	$147.75	$618.30	$618.30
Canadian Pacific Railway.
Aylmer .	$36.77	$33.63	$38.28	$37.05	$145.73	$145.73
					Grand Total	$764.03

Not Called For.

Ald. Phelan expressed his surprise that the city should have to contribute in any way toward a protection of the public against a danger created by the railways exclusively themselves. And he suggested that this matter be taken up with the Railway and Municipal Board. A protest will be lodged with this body.

Ex-Mayor Kendry's Way.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the city contributes nothing toward flagmen at the crossings at Charlotte, Simcoe and George street. The Charlotte and George street crossings were installed during ex-Mayor Kendry's regime.

LABOR ALD'MAN MEASURE SWORDS WITH COLLEAGUES ON PURCHASE METHOD

Buying Big Material For New Bridge Thorn in the Side of Ald. Crowe, Morrison and Gainey

Ald. A. A. McIntyre last night proposed that Council take some steps to keep in touch with the purchase of material for the new bridge and the prices paid therefor.

Ald. Crowe endorsed the suggestion and said that C. Townsend had assured him that such action was his desire.

The Mayor—"Mr. Townsend's idea is that a small committee be appointed to whom he could report and advise with on questions relating to the purchase of material.

Ald. Crowe understood that such matters were to be handled by the whole Council in conjunction with the contractors.

The motion of Ald. Edgar and Garside that a small committee be named by the Mayor for this purpose carried.

His Worship named this committee as follows: Aldermen Turner, Hamilton, Taylor and Phelan.

At this juncture Ald. Gainey wanted to know exactly the duties of this committee.

The Mayor—To consult with the contractors as to prices, and if acceptable then the material to be purchased.

Ald. Gainey, Crowe and Morrison were not satisfied with this. They wanted a voice in such questions.

Ald. McIntyre thought these aldermen were expressing want of confidence in the gentlemen named on the committee.

Ald. Hamilton—"If Labor wants representation on this committee I'll withdraw in favor of Ald. Morrison, and in doing so I advise the committee to buy steel now."

Ald. Gainey—"You are taking us up wrong. We simply ask that the matter of big purchases be submitted to Council before decision.

To Ald. Taylor his Worship replied that it was not intended that every time Russell-Townsend wants a load of cement they should consult with a committee or Council before placing the order. Only big deals would be in question.

Ald. Morrison and Crowe here moved that the foregoing motion be rescinded and the whole Council be a committee on material purchase.

This was lost, only the mover and seconder and Ald. Gainey casting an affirmative vote.

RATEPAYERS IN OPPOSITION TO PAVING GEORGE STREET SOUTH

Contend That Time to Prosecute This Work Is Very Inopportune—Ask Indefinite Delay

Twenty ratepayers on George street south of the C.P.R. to Romaine street, petitioned to Council last night against proceeding with the work of paving this section of George street. These petitioners said:

"Whereas, it is the expressed intention of your Honorable Body to construct a pavement on that portion of George street, extending from the C.P.R. station south to Romaine street.

"Therefore, your petitioners pray that in view of the increased cost of material and labor and the other projects undertaken and to be undertaken by your Honorable Body, which will materially increase the taxation in the said city, you refrain from constructing the above mentioned pavement at the present time and delay such construction until such time as same could be done to better advantage and interest of your ratepayers."

Council decided to go ahead and give notice of the city's intention to do this work, although a start may not be made this year.

PLENTY OF TEACHERS OFFERING SERVICES

RAISING SALARIES IN WINDSOR ATTRACTS MEMBERS OF PROFESSION.

Windsor, Ont., Aug 5.—There will be no shortage of school teachers in Windsor this fall, in so far as primary grades, at least, are concerned. In fact, so many applications came into the Board of Education offices during July that the usual advertisements calling for primary teachers were found unnecessary. At present teachers are paid on a schedule beginning at $750, and with a maximum of $1,200. This rating being considerable in excess of that in many other cities of the Province, is bringing to Windsor a splendid class of instructional material.

It is interesting to note that even were every ratepayer in the district affected by this having to petition against the project, the city can still undertake the work and charge against frontage that percentage of the cost allowed by law. The only recourse the ratepayers have is to appeal to the Railway and Municipal Board.

PRETTY GOOD WORLD IF FORD'S VIEWS WERE GENERALLY ADOPTED

Examination of Episcopal Bishop of Michigan in Ford-Tribune Libel Case —If Henry Ford is Anarchist' Bishop Fears He is One Also

Mt. Clemens, Mich., July 4. The 12th week of the Ford-Tribune libel case closed with the case again in the hands of the Ford counsel, who offered estimony in rebuttal of the Tribune's seven weeks of defense.

Most prominent among the witnesses summoned for Mr. Ford were the Rt. Rev. Charles D. Williams, D.D., Episcopal Bishop of Michigan, and Wm. A. Dunning, professor of history and political philosophy of Columbia university.

Both of these witnesses testified that they could find nothing in Mr. Ford's beliefs which would indicate that Mr. Ford was an anarchist, as the Chicago Tribune charged in the editorial on which the $1,000,000 libel suit is based.

Bishop Williams was called in rebuttal of the testimony of Prof. J. S. Reeves, professor of political science in the University of Michigan, who had pronounced Henry Ford's ideas as definitely and distinctly anarchistic.

The Bishop was of the opinion that Henry Ford's ideas were not only not anarchistic, but were Christian, very common, and indeed commonplace.

The Bishop said that if Henry Ford is an anarchist, he, the Bishop, feared that he also was one, and jocularly remarked that he might be on trial for anarchism himself some day.

Witness testified that he had been in the Episcopal ministry for 36 years, and has known Henry Ford for ten or twelve years.

Q. "What is anarchism?"

A. "The philosophy which believes in the abolition of government."

Q. "What is an anarchist?"

A. "One who believes in and advocates and works for the abolition of the government, and properly one who seeks those ends by violence or force."

Characteristic sayings of Henry Ford were repeated to the witness.

Q. "Are those sentiments common to other thinkers?"

A. "The stock sentiments of many social philosophies and most religious notably the Christian religion."

Q. "I quote from Henry Ford: 'Why do vast masses of mankind allow themselves to be marched off to the slaughter, when in their hearts they know that when they did, it will be in no good cause, but will be merely to satisfy the ambition of some greedy individual.' I ask you if that is confined in any way to the teaching of anarchists, or is it common doctrine of people who are not anarchists at all?"

A. "It is so common as to be commonplace. During the first years of the war everybody was saying about the German army."

Q. "Prof. Reeves testified here that all anarchists held the idea that government is something that has been 'slipped over' on the people. Is that idea involved in Mr. Ford's words?"

A. "There is no implication of that sort in the words as I read them."

Q. "Another expression of Mr. Ford: 'The man who finds a way of teaching politicians will have made a discovery comparable in importance to that of the steam engine.' Anything peculiarly anarchistic about that?"

A. "That is an observation I have often made myself, as a good many others have."

Mr. Stevenson—"That is objected to, as we are not trying the Bishop for being an anarchist."

The Court—"Well, not today."

A. "No, not until my turn comes. I am afraid my time is coming if this is anarchy; as I agree with it mostly."

Q. "Another excerpt from Mr. Ford: 'Such events as now rack Europe would wrack my faith in human nature and in Providence, if it were not my firm belief that really there is no bad in the world, to my mind Humanity may make mistakes, but cannot do anything worse. I think everything tends toward good?' State whether or not those ideas, and those thoughs, are common to large sects?"

A. "Yes, St. Paul says, 'All things work together for good.' Tennyson said that good would be the final goal of all. The New Testament is saturated with that doctrine."

Q. "Another question from Mr. Ford: 'I don't blame any man for evading military service. We have many men among our working force who cheerfully admit that they left Europe for the purpose of avoiding enlistment in the army. Why shouldn't they avoid it if they don't like it? Why should any man who doesn't want to be a butcher be compelled to learn the soldier's trade?' Are those sentiments peculiar to anarchists?"

A. "There has been particularly in this country, common opposition to universal conscription as practised in such countries as Germany, France Russia, and that has been a very common sentiment expressed not only by Christians, but by others; and, of course, it is the accepted doctrine of the old sects like the Quakers, the Ammish, the Dunkards, and a great many Christian sects."

Q. "Are Quakers Christians?"

A. "I should say certainly—some of the very best."

Q. "Another excerpt: 'How absurd this war code has become! The French child is taught how horrid murder is —unless the murdered man is a German. The German child is taught that butchery of Englishmen is noble. Then murder becomes glorious! What utter, gruesome nonsense! If we teach children that we are all citizens of a glorious world, full of good-will and opportunity, we should never have another war.' Prof. Reeves says that is anarchistic. State whether it is common to large numbers of people and sects."

A. "Yes. It is to be found in a great deal of our literature—religious literature, and other. Martin Luther, Emerson, Carlyle, Lowell, and I could recall dimly passages from, asserting the same thing."

Q. "State whether the idea that war is murder is entertained in common by large numbers of people who are not anarchists at all?"

A. "Carlyle said so. Victor Hugo said so. I think Emerson said so. If I had time I could find scores of writers who have haid so."

Q. "Is war condemned by the Scriptures?"

A. "By the Scriptures, often."

Q. "Bishop, I will read you more quotations from articles or interviews by Henry Ford: 'The moment we can get people not to acquiesce in war, to refuse to go to war there will be no war.' Is that doctrine commonly held by large numbers of people who are not anarchists?"

A. "A great many have expressed that thought."

Q. "More excerpts: 'Two classes benefit by war—the militarists and the money lenders.' 'The men who finance wars are always those who will make reputation or money out of war.' 'I think that war is largely the result of greed on the part of those who profit by it.' State whether those sentiments are common to people who are not anarchists?"

A. "I have read a great many articles containing these themes in our press, in journals that would not be recognized as anarchistic."

Q. "Bishop, I read you the following paragraphs from an interview by Mr. Ford: "If I had my way, I would throw every ounce of powder into the sea, strip the uniforms of the soldiers and sailors of their senseless insignia, and make all of them apparel fit for honest toil. I would beach every warship and disassemble every rifle and gun, and convert the salvage into commercial implements to be used for the benefit and the upbuilding of mankind.' State whether those sentences are held by others than anarchists?"

A. "I could quote half a dozen passages from Scripture that express almost that idea."

Q. "Can you, off-hand, remember some of them?"

A. "Yes, let me see. 'Come behold the works of the Lord what desolations he hath made in the earth. 'He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow and cutteth the spear in sunder; he burneth the chariot in the fire.'"

"That is from the Psalms, the 46th Psalm. In the second chapter of Isiah there is something on the general subject of disarmament: 'And they shall bear their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.'

"Also in the ninth chapter of Isiah: 'All garments rolled in blood, and the warrior's armor shall be for the burning of the fuel of fire, for unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given; and the Government shall be upon His shoulders; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, THE PRINCE OF PEACE.'"

Q. "If a man practiced what is preached in these Ford articles, what is he?"

Question objected to by Tribune counsel.

Q. "Then I will ask you this If a man practices what is presented in these papers which have been read as the utterances of Mr. Ford, would he be a Christian?"

This question was also ruled out.

Q. "Then state whether the sentiments expressed in these articles are followed, adopted and preached by thousands and thousands of Christians within your knowledge?"

A. "That is a pretty large general order, but I should say the main themes of these articles are distinctly Christian, commonly preached in Christian pulpits, and that if they were lived up to, it would be a pretty good Christian world."

CUT OUT THE REGRETS

If you have headaches, shortsightedness, blurred vision or other signs of weak eyes, let Dr. Fowler have the regular care of your vision. He will fit you with just what is best to use now, and advise you concerning the future. He will tell you how long the glasses will be correct for you without changing them, and other things that will suit your particular needs. This is a valuable feature, and by not putting off coming to him you eliminate regrets later on when the weak condition of your eyes becomes exaggerated by neglect.

Wanted a Little Help.

The young wife gazed sweetly in her husband's eyes. "James," she began, "you know how I have been scraping and saving all the winter for my new summer costume?"

"Yes," said the man, "I know."

"Well," she went on, "I've decided on it now. It is to be made of pale green broadcloth, and it will cost $80. I want you to help me a little."

"How much do you need?" the husband inquired warily.

"I've got it all but $78.00."

Use of Armored Trains.

Armored trains were part of the defenses of the east coast of England, it is now permitted to announce.

With the engine in the middle, these ran to and between the coast fortifications, carrying troops and ammunition.

The coaches, made over coal cars, were plated with steel one-half inch thick. In the sides were 28 rifle loopholes, with sliding doors.

The guntrack had three compartments for Maxim guns, an ammunition storeroom and a gun platform. On each side of the machine-gun compartment were three observation holes, two rifle loopholes and three openings for the Maxims. The ammunition room had observation and rifle loopholes and 50 pigeonholes, each holding two 12-pound shells for the gun mounted on the platform. This car was located at the end of the train.

The locomotive was armored—with a shield for the brakes and lower machinery and sliding metal shutters for the cab windows.

Product of Many Minds.

The federal reserve banking system was the result of several years of public discussion with suggestions from bankers and business men. At one time, in November, 1913, there were three banking bills before congress—a house bill, a bill of Chairman Owens and five other Democrats of the senate finance committee, and a bill of five Republican members of that committee. A bill drawn by Senator Owens of Oklahoma, chairman of the senate committee on banking and currency, and Representative Glass of Virginia, chairman of the house committee, was finally introduced and, after many amendments, passed. It was known as the Owens-Glass bill and was the product of many minds, in and out of congress.

ENGLAND'S RISING HOPE

London, Aug. 4.—A left, then as quick as lightning a right, and Frank Goddard, the soldier giant, was flat on his back and counted out, beaten by Joe Beckett of Southampton in a trifle less than five minutes. And some 15,000 persons who had come to Olympia were for a moment flabbergasted. Even they stood up and shouted and cheered; many men top-hatted, who had come from the boxes of Ascot, rushed from their seats and struggled to shake Beckett by the hand. A big slice of Southampton roared and seemed to yell, "I told you so."

The victory of Beckett was as deserved as it was popular. He completely conquered the feeling that he must have had that he had been previously beaten by Goddard.

The memory of a knockout is ineradicable. I am wondering what Goddard thinks about it. I can imagine him pulling and tugging at his chestnut colored hair and wearing more wrinkles in his expansive forehead than ever before in a voyage of discovery of how it came to be that he found himself measuring his colossal length on the mat;—that his long, heavy arms would not work, but only hang limply by his side.

Why Goddard Lost.

I will tell Goddard, should he not already know, why he was beaten. For the first time in his short and meteoric career he happened across an opponent who knew how to hit; a man who found "the spot' readily and surely. Curpeney, the week before Whitsunday, had chances similar to Beckett, at the National Sporting Club, but he hammered at the wrong place and so tired himself out that Goddard won — because, everybody said, there was no man alive who could hurt him. Goddard himself believed he was invincible because of his prodigious strength.

He was always laughed when he was reminded that he was no boxer; that he left himself wide open, and was forever courting disaster. His manner said: "I know all about that; but here I am—never been beaten. A boxer I have never pretended to be. It is a fighter that I am. Fighting is my game, and there you are."

If Goddard by his experience has not been brought round to a different point of view, then there is little hope of his atoning for his defeat by Beckett.

I would have it understood that Beckett won the triumph of his life at Olympia. He did indeed, and Southampton must be especially proud of him. I could never be easy for Beckett, or any other man, to defeat Goddard, poor, at times wooden, boxer that he is for he is really one of the Sampsons of the ring; and as for fear, he has never heard of it.

Short and Sweet.

The fight was sensational, and in this respect it was precisely what most of us thought and expected it would be; it presented such a drama as to recall the seventy-three seconds affair between Billy Wells, who by the way was present, together with all nobilities, and Georges Carpentier. And as at the N. S. C. then, so on Tuesday night at Olympia, it was all over when some ticket holders were still arriving. Many a man had planted down ten guineas without getting even a glimpse of Goddard.

Few of Becketts' fights I have not seen. Many of them I have refereed, so that I may claim to know him well. I am bound to say that never have I seen him in such form as on Tuesday. There was no hesitancy about him; and on this occasion, from the moment he put up his hands, he looked the winner. Goddard, by comparison, was painfully, unbelievably slow.

It was supposed that if Goddard was really good in one particular it was as an infighter; but half way through the first round he was like a novice compared with Beckett, who at close quarters shaped like a master. He had the Eddie McGoorty left hook, with which he shook Goddard in the first minute, and there was an immense power in his right hand.

Goddard Groggy.

Once Goddard hit Beckett hard just under the nose, but he did not show that he had been hurt; indeed he hammered only harder and more furiously than ever. Goddard, when half a minute had gone, rocked and wabbled about the legs. Beckett was all over him. People shouted, many stood up, expecting to see Goddard fall. The gong saved him from being put out in the opening round; it was the nearest thing in the world.

I have always said that when Beckett convinces himself that he has his opponent in a bad way he is a demon fighter. Well, when he took his corner at the end of the first round he knew, and his seconds told him so, that already he was well on the highway to success. So he snapped his teeth, clinched his fists and when time was shouted he hurled himself at Goddard, who was punched terrifically, mostly on the body, but more than once in the neighborhood of the mouth, which started to bleed.

The excitement was intense; it burst into fury when Beckett sent Goddard down with his left. On the boards the Guardsman first sat and then knelt for eight seconds. He did not know clearly where he was or what had happened when he rose. He was helpless, and Beckett, with right and left, finished the job like an expert.

Winner Outdid Himself.

Believe me, Beckett excelled himself. In every way his show was perfect. It is not every man who will stand up to Goddard without trepidation—his very hugeness must be appalling to the average man. But Beckett very properly cared neither for the bigness of Goddard nor his much advertised strength.

He fought in a natural way, attempting nothing but what he knew he could do, and, better still, he has proved that Great Britain has got a man who, in September, will show himself to be the best fighter that could be found for Georges Carpentier.

It would be interesting to know what Descamps the Frenchman's manager, thinks about Beckett. Descamps came over for the fight and he sucked in every little detail. I can imagine him telling Carpentier what he must expect.

What a fight this should be! Even Olympia will hardly be big enough to accommodate all the people who will want to see the contest. Beckett is ten times a better boxer and fighter than ever he was. He need not fear for his chances against the Frenchman whe they meet.

WNDSORITES "HET" UP.

Residents of Windsor who visited Bois Blanc Island on Sunday threaten to protest to the Dominion Government because holders of refreshment concessions at the island resort, they allege, discount Canadian currency. Most of the concessions are controlled by Detroiters, who, it is further alleged, attempt to charge American "luxury" taxes on goods, although they are doing business on Canadian soil.

VISITING TEAM FROM TORONTO BUNTED THEIR WAY TO VICTORY

Moose Made Seven Runs in Second Inning and Won From Orientals by Margin of Two--Kirn of the Home Team Pitched Suberb Game.

In a fast, hard fought game the locals went down to defeat by a 7 to 5 score last night to "Moose" of Toronto. The unlucky innings was the second when Moose secured all their seven runs. It started by a poor decision, and then a series of bunts and misplays sent the runners across the plate. Outside of this one inning Kirn pitched a suberb game and the team behind him performed in big league style.

The Bunting Game.

The Moose showed they knew how to play ball when they started right off with a bunting game. Cavanah is a steady infielder, but he falls down most miserably on fielding bunts. If Manager Solomon intends to match his team against fast heady teams like the one they played last night, he will have to either train Cavanah to come up fast on those bunts or rearrange the infield to get a fast man on the third corner. If the Moose team had continued their bunting tactics they would undoubtedly have worried Kirn and his team mates into allowing them more runs.

The Fielding.

The fielding of both teams was worthy of great praise. Only one error is credited to the visitors and three to the locals, two of these going to Kirn on a wild throw to first and a muff on a bunt. Rose again performed around second in splendid style. Cherett also showed some of his speed around the short stop position and the error that is credited to him was the umpire's poor decision. The first man up in the second popped to Cherett. He secured the ball and attempted to toss it to Rose, but it slipped out of his hand. Phelan overruled Johnston's decision and declared the man safe, thereby losing a great deal of Juke Solomon's friendship. Jackson on first base accepted 16 put-outs, among them some difficult ones without the sign of a boot. Clancy contributed the fielding feature by his running catch in the ninth.

Two Players Away.

The Petes were without the services of Swanston and Long and this undoubtedly weakened their hitting. Head caught a good game and Jackson's performance at first was equally as steady as Long's and he showed more speed than the weightier boy. The trouble lay in the outfield. Clancy, McCarney and Heenan cannot be considered a hard-hitting outfield. They are all fast fielders, but from now on what is needed is an outfield that can add some punch to the batting.

Why the Locals Lost.

The visitors showed their superiority in their style of play. The locals have equally as good material, but they lack the finish of the Toronto bunch. Every Moose player is fast, can bunt and knows the game. Few of the local team can bunt properly and when they slide they often hesitate before hitting the dirt. What they need is a few good practices on the finer parts of the game and judging by their showing last night it [illegible] take some team to beat them.

The Pitching.

Hardman, the Moose south-paw who started the game on the slab, made good use of his natural advantage against the locals. He showed good form, but except for the bunting session in the first two innings, he had nothing on Kirn.

The fans will regret to learn that the absence of Swanston from the line-up was caused by the sickness of his mother, which resulted in her death early in the evening. The peppery little back stop is very popular and the baseball players and enthusiasts extend their sympathy to the Swanston family.

First Inning.

Moose—Donnohue bunted safely and went to second when Kirn threw wild to first. Stringer bunted a safe one, sending Donnohue to third. Then Stringer stole second and there was men on second and third with nobody out. Kirn tightened in the pitch and forced Belleghem to pop out to Jackson, struck out Eaglson and threw out Walker's grounder. No runs, two hits, one error.

Petes—Walker took care of Cherett's short bunt; Rose and Jackson struck out. No runs, hits or errors.

Second Innings.

Moose—Then came the bad inning. Spanton popped to Cherett, who dropped the ball while tossing it and the runner was called safe. Burt bunted safely! Kenny went out, Kirn to Jackson; Hardman bunted safely and Spanton scored on the hit and run play; Kirn missed Donohue's long bunt and Burt scored; Stringer lay down a bunt on which he could have been thrown out, but Kirn tossed to the plate too late, allowing Hardman to score and the batter get to first; Belleghem then lit on the ball for three bases, scoring Donohue and Stringer! Eaglson stole second, but went out trying to steal third; Walker was passed, stole second and scored on Spanton's hit. This was the second time Spanton batted this inning. Spanton went out trying to steal second. Seven runs, five hits, two errors.

Petes—Cavanah hoisted a high fly to left; Clancy flied out to the second baseman and Head struck out. No runs, hits or errors.

Third Inning.

Moose—Burt opened with a double; Kenny struck out; Hardmen grounded to Kirn who threw the batter out at first; Jackson made a perfect throw to third, doubling on Burt. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Petes—Kirn went out, Hardman to Spanton; Heenan and McCarney struck out. No runs, hits or errors.

Fourth Inning.

Moose—Rose took care of Donnohue's grounder; Stringer struck out and when Head dropped the ball, he was forced to throw him out at first; Cherett picked Belleghem's bounder and threw him out at first. No runs, hits or errors.

Petes—Cherett drew a pass and stole second cleanly; Rose got a single and stole second; Jackson and Cavanah struck out, but Eglson let Clancy's grounder get away from him and Cherett and Rose scored. Clancy tried to get to second on the throw home, but was thrown out. Two runs one hit, one error.

Fifth Inning.

Moose—Eglson grounded to Rose, Walker to Cherett and Spanton to King. No runs, hits or errors.

Petes—Head was safe by the walk method; Kirn flied out to the centre fielder; Heenan was hit by one of Hardman's shoots; McCarney popped a foul fly to Walker; Cherett came across in the pinch with a beautiful two-bagger, scoring Head and Heenan and going to third on the throw home; Rose grounded out to second. Two runs, one hit, no errors

Sixth Inning.

[illegible]rt grounded out to Cavanah; Kenny went out to Jackson and Cherett took care of Hardman's grounder. No runs, hits or errors.

Petes—Jackson popped out to the catcher; Cavanah hoisted one of his high flies to centre; Clancy got a hit and went to second on a wild pitch; Head struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

Moose—Donohue flied to Heenan; Stringer popped to Cherett; Belleghem got a hit and stole second; Rose threw out Eaglson. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Petes—Kirn grounded to short stop; Heenan tried hard for a hit, but Eglson made a nice running catch of his Texas leaguer; McCarney walked, but was out trying to steal second. No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Inning.

Moose—Walker banged one down the first base line, but it bit the bag and bounded in the air as though waiting for Jackson to grab it. Spanton and Burt struck out. No runs, hits or errors.

Petes—Cherett popped a bunt to Harrison, who ascended the mound for Moose at this stage; Rose grounded to short stop; Jackson was hit on the fingers and went to third on Cavanah's hit over second; Cavanah tried to steal second, but was put out. While the play was going on Jackson crossed the plate and Solomon talked Phelan into allowing the run. One run, one hit, no errors.

Ninth Inning.

Moose—Kenny flied to Clancy. Clancy went away back after Harrison's long fly, making the nicest catch of the game; Donohue grounded out to Rose. No runs, hits or errors.

Petes—Clancy grounded to Donnohue; Head struck out and Kirn popped up to the catcher. No runs, hits or errors.

BELLEVILLE SHUT OUT PORT HOPE

SCORE 9 TO 4—PETES AND BELLEVILLE PLAY IN PETERBOROUGH SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Belleville shut out Port Hope yesterday in the Central Ontario League fixture by the score of 9 to 0 and tied with the local team for the league leadership. Belleville got off to a good start scoring four runs in the first innings, while Goyer shut out the Port Hope bunch for the nine full innings. The batteries:—Belleville, Goyer and Mills. Port Hope, W. Hill and Baxter.

This makes a play off necessary between the Petes and Belleville. Belleville will be here Saturday for the first game. The locals are going to practice hard this week and will do everything they can to capture the championship. They are especially anxious to get in the O.A.B.A. championship series for they want another crack at their vanquishers of yesterday.

COSTS MONEY TO WIN THE PENNANT

McGRAW'S LATEST TRADE BY WHICH HE SECURES ANOTHER STAR PITCHER.

New York, August 5.—The fans and press of the West are red hot over John J. McGraw's latest trade, by which he has secured Pitcher Arthur Nehf from the Boston Braves, in exchange for Pitchers Cecil Causey, Jos Oscheger, John Paul Jones and Catcher O'Neill. If the Giants win the pennant now it would not be surprising to see Cincinnati secede from the National League union. The loud, persistent squak goes up that New York is buying the pennant.

The funny part of it is that the West usually laughs at McGraw's trading ability. In the off season the scribes of Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Pittsburg love to point out how the Giant leader let Eddie Roush, Heinie Groh, Fred Merkle, Ernie Shore and other players, who are now stars with other clubs than New York, slip through his fingers.

One of the favorite stories in the West is of the several times that McGraw let Charley Herzog go, only to pay dearly to get him back again. And when Hal Chase was not hitting this spring, while Walter Holke was batting well over .300 for Boston, this fact was offered as further evidence of McGraw's lack of astuteness.

But within the past weeks McGraw has secured Catcher Snyder from the St. Louis Cardinals, Pitcher Douglas from the Cubs and Pitcher Nehf from the Braves.

As a matter of fact, McGraw has strengthened his team materially by these trades. In fact, it is hard to see how he can fail to win the pennant now.

Douglas has already proven his worth to the Giant cause. Nehf will be even more valuable.

The attorney-general of Michigan announces that he will investigate the packers, and if he finds them operating in violation of state laws will move to have them barred.

LABOR TURNS DOWN OFFER

Increase Did Not Meet with Views of Machinists

A largely attended meeting of the striking machinists of the Canadian Locomotive Company, in Kingston, has turned down the offer of the company by an overwhelming majority. The men state that as the cost of living has risen in the last year, and as the company's offer means the same amount in dollars and cents, being a forty five hour week at a fifty hour pay, they cannot see their way clear to sign for the same wages for another year, not knowing where the cost of living will stop. The machinists state that they are willing to submit their differences to the Board of Arbitration.

LONGEST BRIDGE IN WORLD

Will be Put Up in Windsor Across the Detroit River.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 5.—Plans for a suspension bridge between Detroit and Windsor as proposed to Mayor Winter will, if followed, result in the longest bridge of the kind in the world, according to W. H. Adams, Detroit Engineer. The bridge would be 2,500 feet long. The Brooklyn bridge has a span of 1,600 feet. Mr. Adams told Mayor Winter he believed construction of such a bridge would exceed the cost of a tunnel.

Hon. Arthur Meighen addressed a large gathering at Port Credit, where soldiers were honored guests.

Government's Fixed Price

Before the cheese was boarded the report of R. Duff, delegate to the Ottawa gathering of cheesemakers was heard. Mr. Duff stated that there were at least 700 delegates assembled at the city hall, Ottawa, yesterday, to discuss the British government measure of setting the price of cheese at 25c. Speeches were heard, and the delegation appointed a committee to wait on the Premier today in the hope of getting financial assistance in getting to the British Government at 25c.

Mr. Duff went on to say that in his opinion nothing could be done at present toward changing the price. He was however greatly pleased that the cheese sellers had shown the government and the country that they were not satisfied with the price set. Although he failed to see that any change could be effected immediately he hoped that before long some measure of Federal assistance for Canadian cheesemakers will be introduced, so that they can dispose of this season's output to the British government at 25c a pound, less freight and carriage to the wholesalers' warehouses in Montreal.

ROUMANIANS SERVE ULTIMATUM ON HUNGARIAN GOVT.---DEMANDS DRASTIC

Roumanian Army Not Under Command of Marshal Foch—Generals Refusing to Accept French Orders—Reduction of Army to 15,000 Men Insisted on—May Lead to the Overthrow of New Hungarian Government.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Aug 6—The Roumanians have served an ultimatum on the Hungarian government according to messages reaching the Peace Conference This ultimatum makes demands far in excess of aristice terms, and gives Hungarians until eight p.m. today to comply with them.

May Overthrow Government

It is greatly feared in conference circles that Roumanian action will result ni the overthrow of the new Hungarian Government.

Will Not Obey Foch

French circles state that the Roumanian army is not under command of Marshal Foch, Roumanian generals refusing to accept orders from the French. The Roumanians have not been actively participating in the Peace Conference since Premier Bratiano, some time ago took exception to the decision of the conference upon the principle of guaranteeing rights of minorities within national borders.

Army Reduction

In their ultimatum the Roumanians demand the reduction of the Hungarian army to 15,000 men, and the surrender of fifty percent or harvest, animals and farm machinery, and fifty per cent of railway suppiles.

CHARGES OF EXCESSIVE PROFITS FOR SHOE MANUFACTURERS AND TANNERS

Prices the Last Four Years Alleged to be Unwarranted, Trade Commission Reports to Congress.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, August 6.—The high price of shoes was declared to be due to excessive profits taken by every factory in the shoe production industry, in a report by the Federal Trade Commission to Congress, made public today.

The packers were charged with having begun the pyramiding of shoe prices by an unwarranted increase in the price of hides, the supply of which they were said to control. On top of this increase, it was charged tanners have taken exceptional profits, while shoe manufacturers have demanded an unusual margin, and retailers have charged prices that are not justifiable.

The commission's report, covering a four years' period, from 1914 to 1918, is the result of an exhaustive inquiry into the price of hides, leather and shoes, begun more than a year ago, it was said. It has been in the President's hands for some time, and it is understood he urged its speedy printing and transmittal to Congress in connection with efforts of the Government to combat the high cost of living.

To show that packers during the last four years have made unwarranted increases in the prices of packer hides, the report pointed out that price differentials between their hides and country hides of lower grade have increased far beyond the usual proportions.

Charges of excessive profits against tanners and shoe manufacturers were said to be supported by the high rates of returns on investment in both industries following price increases.

Prices Not Justified.

"The public," said the report, "had to pay prices for shoes that not only could not be justified because retail shoe dealers took too much profits, but because the dealer had to pass on to the consumer excessive profits received by butchers for hides, and also the excess profits of tanners and shoe manufacturers."

PORT HOPE ROAD PROV'L HIGHWAY

County Council Committee Endorsed This Project Yesterday.

SUBURBAN AREAS EXPENSE

Coun. Eason Will Confer With City of Peterboro in Regard to Its Share of Construction Cost.

The County Roads Committee met yesterday afternoon on business connected with Provincial Roads in Peterborough County.

Chairman Councillor Max. Brown presided, and Engineer Muir of the Provincial Highways Department, Toronto was present. The other members of the Committee in attendance were councillors Bell, Eason, Griffith, and Warden McIntosh.

Councillor Brown was voted into chairmanship of the committee, on motion of Councillors Eason and Bell.

Port Hope Road

Moved by Coun. McIntosh, seconded by Coun. Griffith, that the County Road, known as the Port Hope road, from the boundary between Northumberland and Durham at Fraserville to Peterborough City, thence easterly from Peterborough city to Norwood through Otonabee and Asphodel, known as the Norwood road, through Norwood thence easterly to the boundary between Peterborough County and Hastings County, be, if approved of by the Department of Highways adopted as a Provincial County Road. This carried.

City's Share

Moved by Coun. Griffith, seconded by Coun. Bell, that Coun. Eason be appointed to confer with the City with regard to city's participation in a Suburban Area. This carried.

To Engage Foreman

Coun. Eason and Warden McIntosh moved that the matter of engaging foremen and necessary help be left in the hands of the superintendent and the representatives of the respective townships, and that they be empowered to pay such wages as are necessary. This carried.

LONDON TIMES FEATURES THIS

Success of Police Strike Would Have Been Signal For Activities on a Tremendous Scale.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 6. This afternoon's London newspapers make a feature of a statement, printed in The Times this morning, to the effect that it was understood British authorities were convinced that present strikes were part of a conspiracy organized abroad to subvert Great Britain's system of Government. The statement added that the Government believed that if the police strike had succeeded it would have been signal for direct action on a vast scale.

CHARGED HE KILLED HORSES

Said to Have Been Deliberate Act — Interesting Case in Lindsay.

Lindsay, August 6.—A case of a very serious nature came up before Magistrate F. D. Moore on Saturday last and was adjourned until Friday morning at 10 o'clock. The case is one where a resident of Dalton township is charged with deliberately shooting and killing two bay horses, the property of a neighboring farmer. It appears that a feud has existed between the two families for some time, and it is thought that this is the result of the ill feeling. Each horse is estimated as having been worth $170.

Mr. Stinson appeared for the prosecution and Mr. L. R. Knight for the accused. County Magistrate Moore presided.

On request of Mr. Stinson the trial was adjourned until Friday, when additional witnesses will be summoned to appear. The accused was allowed his freedom on bail of $1,000.

NATIONALIST MOVED IN CAUCUS THAT QUEBEC HOLD CONVENTION

L. A. David, M. P. P., Declared His Province Was Being Ignored by English-Speaking Wing of Party---Delegates, However, Decide to See It Through.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—Keen interest was manifested in the deliberations of the various Provinces when, at the Liberal Convention the delegates from each unit in the confederation met to organize and prepare resolutions. Not a little concern centred in the meeting of the Quebec delegates. There been rumors of serious discontent among some of the representatives with the part accorded to Quebec, and with the names most generally spoken of for leader.

Would Have Them Withdraw.

The situation was brought to a dramatic and sudden head at the meeting of the Quebec delegates when, without notice, Louis Athanase David, M.P.P. for Terrebonne, launched a resolution calling upon all the delegates from his Province to withdraw from the convention. Mr. David made a fiery Nationalistic speech, bitterly assailing the attitude of the English-speaking Provinces. He declared that Canadian Liberalism was "refusing" French-Canadians the right to nominate one of their own for the leadership of the Liberal party, and had "insisted" upon a man of British extraction and a Protestant. He urged that French-Canadians withdraw in a body from the convention and the counsels of "so-called Liberalism."

Mr. Lapointe Replies.

Ernest Lapointe, the eloquent Federal member for Kamouraska, was on his feet as Mr. David finished, and the atmosphere is described as having been electrical. He declared that Mr. David had submitted a resolution which was a want of confidence motion in Liberalism, and an attempted slur on the memory of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who had projected the convention, whose work the delegates were finishing, and who had spent the soul of a long lifetime seeking to bring together in unity and harmony the two races. The resolution Mr. Lapointe described as "base ingratitude to those splendid English-speaking Liberals who for a quarter of a century loyally followed our beloved Chief."

He Wins the Delegates.

Stingingly he scored Mr. David's position. "Talk about French-Canadian chivalry!" he declared: "this would be shameful imgratitude. French-Canadians do not propose to separate from British-Canadians. It is from Britain we take our Liberalism."

Mr. Lapointe's passionate address swept the committee. Mr. David's proposal was rejected, only himself and his seconder being found to support it.

The incident has done much to re-establish the entente cordiale at the convention.

SIX MONTHS AND $1,000 FINE

Punishment Meted Out to New York Man for Selling Liquor.

New York, Aug. 6.—Sentence of six months' imprisonment and $1,000 fine was imposed upon John H. Veege, a cafe proprietor, by Federal Judge Wilson, following his conviction on a charge of violating the war-time prohibition law by selling a glass of whiskey on July 3. The court granted a stay of ten days to allow for appeal.

BOLSHEVIKI AT TRIESTE

Attempted Street Rioting—Seven Hundred Arrests Made.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Trieste, August 5.—A group of bolsheviki made its appearance here today on the streets and attempted to start rioting. The disturbers, however, were dispersed by the police with the assistance of the population. As a result of the demonstration seven hundred arrests were made.

LIBERALS PASS RESOLUTION OPPOSING IMPERIAL UNION

Matter Was Brought Up in Convention Today by Senator From Quebec---Alberta Man Declares For Free Trade With U. S.---Hartley Dewart One of the Speakers.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—About two hundred delegates arrived this morning to attend the Liberal convention and more are expected in time to participate in the vote for the leader tomorrow. This morning there appeared to be a swing in favor of Hon. W. S. Fielding, due largely to the report that Premier Martin, will definitely decline to allow his name to go before the convention. Premier Murray is being mentioned as a probable candidate, but he is supporting Fielding's claims. D. D. McKenzie, MacKenzie King and G. P. Graham are all still in the race, each with many supporters. The present indications are that no candidate will secure a majority on the first ballot.

Opposed to Imperialism.

At the opening of this morning's session a resolution was submitted that no organic change in the Canadian constitution in regard to the relations of Canada with the Empire ought to come into effect until after having been passed by Parliament and ratified by a vote of the Canadian people on a referendum. This resolution was moved by Senator Dandurand, who said the discussion was now proceeding in London in regard to remodelling the British constitution. Devolution, with local parliaments for England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland, was now before the British public. Any action taken by the British Parliament would have its natural effect on the Dominions. The apportionment of power between the legislature of the different dominions and the Imperial Parliament was threatening Canadian jurisdiction over certain matters and was one of the most important of the questions now looming up.

An amendment by W. D. Gregory of Toronto makes the resolution stronger. It objects to any attempt to centralize imperial control. The amended resolution was adopted with a general shout of approval.

Mr. John Boyd, Montreal, supporting the amendment, asserted are insidious campaign, was being waged in London, which would strike at foundation of the confederation pact, and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux said there is an insidious movement on foot to destroy Canadian autonomy.

Burn Custom Houses.

Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, who was called on for a speech, declared he would be glad to burn every Custom House between Canada and the States. Mr Hartley Dewart, who followed him declared the Union Government which had been appointed to govern on one issue, was abusing its powers. He told the convention Ontario was getting rid of its middle men and declared it was the duty of Liberals to fight for the rights of the people.

A second resolution condemned the Government because it has not properly enforced the Income Tax law. This was carried unanimously and at 12.30 the convention took a recess until 2.30.

In his speech supporting the autonomy resolution, Mr. Dewartp rotested against any usurpation of the powers of the Dominion Government by Ontario. He said again that to tie the hands of responsible government, those who had been appointed to govern simply on one issue were abusing their powers and enacting legislation they had no mandate to enact. But Ontario was getting rid one by one of its political middlemen. There was one, he said, who, after having plundered one party, was endeavoring to bamboozle the other, and then he says, let us have no party strife but a fixity of tenure. The divine right of kings had passed, but there must not be substituted for it a divine right of government. "We must come to the doctrine that the people should govern, and the watchword of the Liberal party should be 'fight on' upon those same aggressive and progressive lines that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would have supported. Fight on for the good and for the rights of the people; fight on, that honesty might reign and the resources of the country be developed."

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 6, 1919

SUNDAY STREET CARS.

ST. CATHARINES, it appears, operates Sunday street cars and St. Catharines is a city the population of which is several thousand less than that of Peterborough. It is not stated in the communication from the city in the Niagara Peninsula to the local City Council under what special legislation the operation of Sunday cars is permitted in the former city, but special legislation there must be, as St. Catharines belongs to that smaller class of municipalities the residents of which are not supposed to know what is good for them. It is only cities of fifty thousand or more that are allowed to decide for themselves whether street cars shall be allowed to run on Sunday.

St. Catharines is more or less of an American city being a favorite resort for tourists from the United States. Perhaps this has something to do with the Sunday enterprise referred to.

In Peterborough, the auto, private and hired for the occasion, is permitted to run as freely as on any day of the week. The livery rig and the private horse carriage are under no embargo. It is only the street car, the poor man's one vehicle of transportation, that is under the ban. Perhaps Sunday street cars would encourage Sunday recreation. If that is so, as much can be said of the auto and the livery rig. People go to church in autos as well as using them for mere pleasure purposes on Sunday, and are surely none the worse for the liberty. People might possibly use the street cars for the same end. Autos carry visitors to the cemetery on Sunday. The poor man at a distance from the resting place of the dead is even denied the privilege of mourning at the grave of his departed friends.

If Sunday street cars would tend to demoralize the people, Sunday autos and livery rigs surely tend to work the same evil. What is good for one class should be good for all; what is evil for one, cannot possibly make for righteousness in another. It is the palpable discrimination in this matter that more than any other feature causes the shoe to pinch.

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW SCHOOL.

THE MEMBERS of the Board of Education purpose erecting a school building, modern in every detail, that will be a model of its kind, a credit not only to the educational system of Ontario, but to the city of Peterborough, where that system has been developed to the highest standard. The matter has been handled with the business tact that has always distinguished the present Board and the Boards of the past.

Yet just one point is lacking to make the new school building complete in every detail. The Province over it is now becoming the custom to install swimming pools in new school buildings. Such an addition to the structure which it is proposed to erect here would leave nothing to be desired. It would provide for the wants of the children of a large section of the community who are now far removed from the advantages in this regard that have been provided by Nature and made available by the City Council. The wise builder builds not for the present alone but for the future as well.

A MEMORIAL FOR THE VETERANS.

ALL OVER CANADA they are erecting lasting memorials to the veterans of the war, some fitting recognition of the valor of those who lost their lives in the cause. This movement is by no means confined to the larger centres of population, but the towns, villages and townships are inspired by the same sentiment of gratitude for what the fallen have done for their country. The matter is not left, either, to take its chances with the generosity of the individual. Municipal councils are taking the initiative and bidding for the co-operation of the people. It is felt generally that the latter during the war were taxed to the limit of their generosity for patriotic purposes and that some relief should be afforded them now, at least from further direct strain upon their resources. The men who fell in the late war gave their lives for the community as a whole. It is fitting, then, that any memorial in their honor should be the result of official action.

The question of a memorial to the martyrs of Peterborough County is being revived. There are various means suggested, but the opinion seems to be that nothing can be done unless the active interest of the City and County Councils is enlisted. One of the plans proposed is that the city acquire possession of Armour's Hill, and convert it into a park. A towering monument could be erected on the summit with a memorial temple for a base, and an illuminated sign at the top, which at night could be read miles away by people coming into the city.

The Trent Canal when completed is sure to become a favorite thoroughfare for tourists, and the proposed memorial would be one of the main points of interest on a water route on which scenic effects, natural and otherwise, abound.

Whatever form the memorial may take, it should be in keeping with the record made by this city and county in the war, a record second to none in the Dominion.

WAGES AND LIVING EXPENSES.

THE DEPARTMENT OF LABOR at Ottawa has unwittingly brought fresh trouble upon its own head and that of the Government. Every month the Department publishes figures showing the cost of living, which marks a steady increase, and an estimate of what it costs to keep a family of five in the necessaries of life. The most recent announcement places this figure at a trifle over $1500 a year, and in this estimate no provision is made at all for rent, which will cost a family an average of $200 a year. Now, the postmen of Toronto, and other civil service employes are likely to follow suit, take the Government at its word and estimate, and announce that they will insist on a minimum salary of $1500 a year. Under the circumstances who can blame them?

As a rule, statistics are dull. There is little interest in studying them. There is scant comfort in the estimates of the Labor Department from month to month to the man struggling to make both ends meet and whose outstanding problem just now is how he is to be able to bring his family through the approaching winter alive.

Families of five, the parents and three children, are nothing unusual in Canada. A yearly income of $1500 for such families is a greater rarity. It avails nothing to the workingman whose pay is $2.50 or even $3 a day, earned spasmodically at that, to have the Department of Labor figure on his living expenses. The official estimate simply confirms his impression that things are out of joint and that the problem which faces him cannot be solved. The workingman naturally looks for a way out and asks for relief. Figures published under the Government seal afford him neither the one nor the other.

ACTION WANTED.

(Kingston Standard.)

The country is sick of commissions. What it wants is criminal proceedings against profiteers and the men who have been fattening on the lives and happiness of the people of Canada. The country demands that these loathsome creatures, who have no mercy themselves in their filthy greediness, shall have no mercy shown them, only justice—a justice which will make them disgorge the enormous profits which they have wrung out of the patriotism and the sufferings of Canadian men, women and little children—and a justice which will lodge them in jail for very long terms.

Stop Talking And Get To Work

(St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

We can get to work. Five years of war have proven what we can do when we settle down in dead earnest. Men who thought themselves fit for the shelf only have done exploits that threw the best days of their youth into the shade. Women, delicately reared, whose backs had never ached with useful toil kept pace in the march of achievement with the most experienced of their sex. In a night the whole of our farming and manufacturing and social life was changed with a completeness that made the magic of Aladdin's lamp look commonplace in comparison. If Germany won, then nothing else mattered, and every man in our nation highly resolved to do all that becomes a man.

Gone are those days as irrevocably as are the days before the flood. The war is over. The wise have learned its lessons. Now let us get to work.

Even greater at this hour is the necessity for united effort than in the war days. The men who worked must keep on working. The war, economically, wasted the nation's food and clothing and life's material necessites as effectually as if an earthquake had swallowed them. Storehouses of cottons and woolens are empty. Elevators are calling for grain. Worse still, the fields are not laden with supplies for loom and mill and pantry. Flocks have been slaughtered for the battlefield. Herds painfully built up by the accumulated experience of decades have been sent to the shambles. Worse still, the herdsmen and shepherds lie out there on Flanders' fields.

Inventors will need still to ply their art. They have done wonders in devising engines of death. Manifestly it is their duty to open wider the gateways to life. The feeble must be made strong and the strong prepared for a greater efficiency. Tools must be found for every pair of hands. Jewelled fingers must not be exempted. Feet accustomed only to soft carpets must tread the road to industry. Wealth hitherto devoted to pleasuring or to miserliness must be set to turning the wheels of production. The idle dollar and the idle human are foes to the commonwealth and must be given the traitor's reward. He who indulges in luxuries now sucks the national life blood.

Never were there more hopeful days for Canada than those in which we live. At the same time never did the country pass through days in which a blunder on our part may be more fatal. The foolish turn of a hand may easily turn aside Canadian advancement for a century. If we but put ourselves to it earnestly and in the fear of God we may take the place of leadership amongst those who dominate the markets and the political life of the world. Should we prove guilty of a sluggard existence as the nations face the world's new day, we may as well prepare to reap a harvest of disgrace and backwardness and poverty and tears.

We have talked enough. We have jingled the change secured from war contracts sufficiently. Too long have we offered our savings for luxuries. Enough has been said about recreations and pleasures. Duties call to us even more imperiously than the bugles that roused our sons to battle, were our ears but open to heed them. Professional agitators and self-seeking political humbugs have misled us far too long. In the interest of everything worth while, it is the paramount duty of the hour for all of us to get to work.

FRANCE'S NATIONAL HYMN

The following are the words of France's national hymn, "La Marseillaise." The tune was played by the band at the opening of the Liberal convention at Ottawa, the Quebec delegation singing the words lustily while the audience stood. The song has often been sung in the original in this city by Mrs. Maurice Park:

Ye sons of France, awake to glory!
Hark, hark! what myriads bid you rise!
Your children, wives and grandsires hoary
Behold their tears and hear their cries.
Shall hateful tyrants, mischief breeding,
With hireling hosts, a ruffian band,
Affright and desolate the land,
While Peace and Liberty lie bleeding?

Chorus
To arms, to arms, ye brave!
The avenging sword unsheath!
March on, march on, all hearts resolved
On victory or death!

O Liberty! can man resign thee,
Once having felt thy generous flame?
Can dungeons, bolts or bars confine thee,
Or whips thy noble spirit tame?
Too long the world has wept, bewailing
The blood-stained sword our tyrants wield;
But freedom is our sword and shield,
And all their arts are unavailing.

WIT AND WISDOM

"Your cousin's medical practice, I suppose, doesn't amount to much yet."

"No. We relatives do all we can, but, of course, we can't be sick all the time."

"Now, then! Line up alphabetically for pay," said the English sergeant. "What's your name, my lad?"

"Phillips, sir."

"Well, what yer doing down here? Get back with the F's at once."

He was a young doctor and he had been asked to break the news to the wife of the man who had been run over by an automobile.

"Is my husband really ill?" asked the lady.

"Ah-er—a little run down," said the young doctor hopefully.

"Jack, dear, before our wedding I wish you would see a doctor."

"Why should I? I am well, except for a touch of dyspepsia."

"That's just it. I'd like you to antedated our marriage."

"Why don't you make an oration on this subject?" asked an admiring friend.

"I've quit making orations," replied the Senator. "I find too often that when I make a speech in favor of something. I simply suggest ideas for some new arguments against it."

"Did you call Edith up this morning?"

"Yes, but she wasn't down."

"But why didn't you call her down?"

"Because she wasn't up."

"Then call her up now and call her down for not being down when you called her up."

"Waiter," said a diner in a country restaurant, "this chicken is very tough."

"Very sorry, sir, but you see that chicken was a peculiar bird. Why when we came to kill it, we could arn and we had to shoot it."

"Are you sure you didn't shoot the weathercock by mistake?"

ELECTING A LEADER

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—When the delegates assembled for the Liberal Convention today they were given copies of the rules to govern the voting for the party leader, and the rules governing resolutions and their discussions. They were as follows:

1. The vote shall be taken by ballot. The official ballots will be distributed on the morning of the day upon which the vote is to be taken.

2. Nomination for candidates for the leadership shall be made in writing by delegates present at the convention, and may be handed to the General Secretary at any time previous to the hour appointed for taking the vote.

3. The Chairman will read out from the stage the names of the candidates so nominated and will afford those desiring to withdraw before a vote is taken an opportunity to do so. Those withdrawing will merely announce the fact without making a speech in favor of, or in opposition to, any of the other candidates.

5. Only one person may be voted for on each ballot. The name of the person so voted for shall be legibly written on the ballot by the delegate voting.

6. The result of each vote shall be announced by the Chairman.

7. Any candidate nominated may withdraw his name at any time before a final choice is made, and in such case the Chairman shall announce the withdrawal to the convention.

8. The balloting shall continue until a candidate receives a majority of the total ballots cast, and thereupon he shall be declared elected. Provided, however, that if no choice is made on the fourth ballot the candidate receiving the lowest number of votes of the fifth and succeeding ballots shall drop from the contests.

9. The delegates will remain in their seats and deposit their ballots in ballot boxes provided for the purpose. The said boxes will be in charge of scrutineers appointed by the delegates from each Province for the purpose of collecting the ballots and conveying the boxes containing them to a room in the rear of the convention hall where the votes will be counted.

10. Prior to the voting, the delegates from each Province will meet in their respective committee rooms and appoint scrutineers to collect the ballots and tellers to count them.

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

THE MERCHANTS olrhaveeaien

(In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general. All phases of store management—buying, accounting, advertising and retail salesmanship—will be dealt with, not theoretically, but by descriptions of methods actually in use by successful merchants.)

THESE SIX MERCHANTS SAY IT PAYS TO SPECIALIZE

Operating in her advertised belief that "The Successful Dealer Must Be a Specialist," Clara D. True of El Paso, Tex., opened "The First Exclusive Apple Store in the Southwest." She sells nothing but apples and cider, but she sells them by the carload where other retailers sell them by the peck.

Clara thinks of apples in terms of trainload lots, not barrels. She's got the public thinking about them and her in the same way and she has the apples to "there's nothing to it."

Her success is due to the fact that she gives an unusual service in the wide selection she offers and that in the idea itself she has seized upon most striking advertising material, which she has handled in an individual way. A typical example is from a recent announcement:

"Have taken New Mexico apples this year and made them a formidable rival to the famous apples grown in the northwest fruit section.

Miss True does not waste any time singing the praises or arguing the merits of the New Mexico apple. She just makes a flat news statement of what she has done with it and lets the reader draw conclusions.

Clara has attracted attention, aroused curiosity and created a desire to buy, all in that one sentence.

A Shirt Built Success

When a Chestnut street, Philadelphia, haberdasher got tired of doing a mediumly profitable business in a mediocre sort of way, just getting a "reasonable share" of the Chestnut street trade, and lying awake at nights worrying over the chances of some one of his rivals getting an inch or so ahead of him, he determined to specialize himself out of mediocrity.

He didn't hunt for a novelty to handle. Novelties are good for little temporary specialties, pullers for regular lines. He wanted to keep his business stable. So he chose the most staple line he had, shirts. He threw everything else out of his store to make way for more shirts, and he made it a point to have every kind and style of shirt on hand that a man could come in and ask for.

His business immediately stood out in contrast with those of the usual Philadelphia haberdasheries. Men came to him first for shirts they couldn't get elsewhere, and became regulars with him for all kinds of shirts because one always has that safe, contented feeling of having missed no good bets when one deals with a specialist.

Iron Pipes and Oranges

The Ftter Company down in Texas specializes on nothing more or less than iron pipe. Each season, when the farmers are planning their irrigation systems, this company holds a big sale of pipe. Naturally it offers the farmers every size and type they possibly can desire.

The Climax Grocery, in Salem, Mass., has not given up its general line to go in business on the same line as Clara D. True, but it does specialize in oranges. The following is a typical announcement which illustrates the manner in which it keeps its "orange drive" going. "Oranges for slicing must be firm, solid and juicy. That's the kind we're offering." The next time perhaps there will be a few words on the proper kind of oranges for making marmalade.

Battles, the Philadelphia florist, has made his business different from that of most other florists in the city by specializing on jardinieres and various kinds of containers for flowers and flower pots. Others do this too, of course, but none of them carries the specialization to the extent that Battles does. He claims that his trade in such articles is merely accessory to the flower business. It is. But his display of beautifully blended colors and shapes in pottery and glassware is so big and the selection so wide that so far as the customer is concerned, at least, the sale is of the container-plus-the flowers as often as it is of the flowers-plus-the-container.

The Heiss Floral Company, of Boston, also specializes in this manner, quoting two prices on its flowers, one with and one without the container.

"PENNIES PLEASE," IS NOW A RETAIL SLOGAN

The penny problem has been quite an annoyance for the majority of small retail stores ever since the luxury and other federal taxes have made the odd cent price the rule rather than the exception. There is a strong tendency for the smallest coins to flow outward over the counter much more rapidly than they flow inward.

A Philadelphia tobacconist has solved the problem by little signs on his counter, on the walls and over the cash register of which the following inscriptions are typical:

"Pay us in pennies if you can."

"We're glad to get pennies."

"Have you got five pennies for a nickel?"

"We need pennies to make change."

It works very well. Most men, says the proprietor, are really bothered these days by the accumulation of pennies in their pockets, but simply through habit or the mistaken notion that the store doesn't want to be bothered with them or that it "looks cheap" to count out seven pennies instead of laying down two nickels or a dime, they just let them continue to accumulate in their pockets when as a matter of fact the cash register is hungry for them.

"The signs serve another good purpose that I didn't think of when I put them up," the proprietor continued. "They generally bring out some little comment of surprise or humor on the part of the customer. That gives us the opportunity for a cheerful word or two ourselves on something not quite so dead as the weather. The cheerful word or two has a great deal to do with winning steady patronage, but believe me, you commence to feel silly and uninteresting when you have remarked that it is a pleasant day to about ninety eight people in succession."

PERILS OF PEACE NOW INCLUDE BUTTER-BOMBS

How'd you like to be beaned by three pounds of butter?

That was the first thought which popped into the heads of residents of Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton and the surrounding country when the Allentown, Pa., Advertising Club, announced in full-page advertisements that an aviator hired for the occasion would drop some $500 worth of premiums from the clouds in order to boost "Trade Day" in June.

The copy stated that a diamond ring, coffee, tea, butter and other necessities would come down from the airplane and pepper the Lehigh Valley, thus announcing to every one that Allentown merchants were real live wires and that the stores contained values far superior to those in any other neighboring cities.

But immediately protests began to pour in.

One man in Easton protested violently against being subjected to the danger arising from a "butter bomb." "Three pounds of butter," he wailed, "dropped from that height wouldn't go well on the head!"

Stroudsburg people said that they didn't particularly wish to have their front yards decorated with coffee and Bethlehem maintained that flour or tea would add nothing to the beauty of their township.

To each and every one of the protestants, Allentown replied calmly: "Don't be worried, we're not going to drop groceries on you from a thousand feet in the air. We'll only drop checks which will be accepted in payment of the goods mentioned."

So the Lehigh Valley heaved a sigh of relief and admitted that "You have to hand it to Allentown for being live."

The Story

Boston Blackie, crook, philanthropist and scholar, was doomed on the eve of his marriage, to twenty years penal service. Blackie had planned his marriage, bought ticket to Honolulu for his prospective bride and himself and was feasting at a farewell party given by his pals when the blow came.

The night before a daring robbery had been committed by Fred, the "Count." At the party this gentleman had craftily slipped the loot consisting of jewels and gold into the pocket of unsuspecting Blackie. In the midst of the festivities unexpected guests arrived in the shape of several blue coated policemen who immediately searched the revellers. The gems were found on Blackie, also the tickets and the wedding ring. He was immediately arrested and his sentence was — years hard labor.

With Blackie in prison the "Count" tries to win the love of Mary but she protests that she would rather wait for Blackie till the day of Judgment and spend one hour with him that live a life in Paradise with Fred.

At the prison, Warden Sherwood receives Blackie with grim satisfaction. Time passes and Blackie feigns illness. He is put into the hospital. With the aid of the "Squirrel," a half-witted convict he escapes and immediately goes to Mary. The police find him there disguised as an old woman but before they get an opportunity to capture him he manages to draw a gun and cover the Warden.

His sense of fairness, however, prevents him from shooting but he demands that the officer defend himself. This, Warden Sherwood refuses to do and he fearlessly faces Blackie and the deadly looking gun. Blackie again demands that the warden defend himself and at the latter's persistent refusal he throws down the gun, declaring: "You win, Warden, I can't shoot!" He then holds out his hands for the manacles.

The warden glimpses the grief-stricken faces of Mary and Blackie and, with a whimsical smile, tells them that he came with the intention of finding an escaped convict but he guesses that his man isn't there.

Hardly believing the miracle, Mary and Blackie watch the departure of the big hearted man and then continue with their plans for a honeymoon trip to Honolulu.

Expect India to Export Sugar.

Sugar making is one of India's most ancient industries, but the loss of three-fourths of the sugar value of the cane by use of primitive machinery and the muddy character of the product, because religious prejudices prohibit the use of animal charcoal for refining, have confined India's sugar to local consumption, says World Outlook. With nearly three million acres under cane, producing considerably more than a third of the world's total, India nevertheless exports no sugar. On the contrary, in addition to her own stupendous production, she spends $25,000,000 for sugar annually.

With new methods of refining, there is now a steady development of centralized plants, and soon India—the aboriginal home of the cane—will doubtless take a place as a sugar-exporting land commensurate with the size of her cane crop.

Submarine is Blind and Slow.

In spite of the fact that the British have some steam-driven 2,700-ton submarines, capable of a surface speed of from 23 to 25 knots, the submarine, as a weapon of war, is too slow and too blind when it is submerged to be considered a serious weapon of naval warfare. When it can see, electrically, to a distance of 10 to 15 miles, while it is submerged so deeply as to be invisible to the aircraft, and when it can steam 20 knots submerged, it will dominate the naval situation.—Scientific American.

VEGETABLE POISONS.

Some of Them Have Very Peculiar Effects.

Sixteen years ago a young man was brought into the hospital at Cairns, in Queensland, Australia, suffering from a strange paralysis of the optic nerves. In spite of skilled treatment, he became blind.

Other cases occurred in the same district, and were traced to the eating of a wild fruit known as the finger cherry, a long, bright red berry, which has nothing in common with the English cherry.

The effects of certain vegetable poisons are at present beyond scientific explanation. The finger cherry is not the only Australian plant which has a baneful effect upon the optic nerves.

Some years ago Mr. W. H. Morrison, a well-known Australian horse breeder, wrote to the Sydney Morning Herald pointing out that numbers of horses were being blinded by eating the wild melon, which is common in many parts of Australia, and which grows in great profusion after the breaking of a long drought.

One of the most terrible plants in existence is the Asclepias gigantea, which is common in Abyssinia, and grows also in Ceylon. When cut a milky sap exudes from the stem and leaves, and the least drop of this will cause total blindness if it comes in contact with the eyes.

The asclepias is used largely for firewood, but the men who cut it have to exercise extreme care. If a man accidentally rubs his eye with his hand while engaged in cutting this wood, acute ophthalmia is certain, and the sight of the eye is gone for good. There is no cure. Yet the strangest thing is that goats eat the asclepias without suffering harm.

Goats, too, can eat the Texan loco weed, which kills horses and cattle. This poisonous plant drives horses mad. They run in circles, and sometimes are seized by a sort of mania.

We have plants, even in the British Isles, which are none to safe to meddle with. Reference is not made to the regular poison plants such as hemlock, deadly nightshade, or wild parsnip. There are plants which are popularly supposed to be harmless or even wholesome yet which have very queer effect on certain individuals.

Mountain ash, for instance. The pretty fruit of this tree is made into jam, jelly, and a sort of spirit. The spirit has the extraordinary power of destroying the memory.

Mixtures of fruits or leaves, each harmless in themselves, may have unpleasant consequences. Be careful not to eat spinach and an orange at the same meal. The oxalic acid of the former is freed by the citric acid of the latter, and the result is a more or less sharp case of poisoning. Tomato must not be followed by lemon or the result may be the same.

Some fruits are injurious in an unripe condition. The juice of a raw pineapple if injected under the skin is most dangerous.—Tit-Bits.

Real Names of Nobility.

When one glances casually at the roll of British peers, says London Answers, and sees such high sounding names as De Montmorency and Cholmondeley, Grosvenor and Howard de Walden, one is impressed by a sense of the grandeur and proud descent of our nobility. But a closer examination dispels this illusion; for, rubbing shoulders with such splendid patronymics, suggesting long centuries of blue-blooded ancestry, you will find scores of surnames such as Smith and Robinson, Hogg and Gardner.

Two of our marquesses have for surnames Browne and Hay, in common with many a farm laborer, while Lord Headfort is a Taylour, like his remote forefather, who probably earned his bread by his scissors. Among the wearers of earls' coronets, Lord Enniskillen is a Cole, and his lordship of Leicester signs himself Coke. The Earl of Dartmouth is a Legge; Lord Desart, a Cuffe, and Lord Dudley bears the name of his ancestors, the goldsmith's apprentice—"Ward," with "Humble" before it. We have an earl who is Hardy; one is a Boyle, two others are "Hay." There are also a Browne and a Scott, a Harris and a Hare.

In the group of viscounts figure a Ward and a Flower; a Gage and an O'Grady; a Smith and a Gully, first made famous by an old-time prize fighter. Among the barons are Luke White, Lord Annaly, and Algernon Strutt, Baron Belper. Lord Concurry is "Lawless" by name, though not by nature; Baron Glentawe calls himself Jenkins and Lord Dynevor is a Rice. Howard de Walden is a title of which its bearer is probably prouder than of his patronymic Ellis; and Lord Inverclyde is really plain "James Burns."

We have a baron who was cradled a "Green"; another whose father, like himself, was dubbed Hogg; and a third, who, if he were not a peer, would be simply James Hozier, a name probably derived from an ancestor who sold stockings.

Lawyers on Strike.

Lawyers, as well as policemen, have been known to strike. Some years ago the barristers practicing in Sierra Leone were so dissatisfied with the judge who was acting as substitute for the chief justice while the latter was on leave that they unanimously elected to give up pleading before him. Legal business in the colony was, therefore, at a standstill until the chief justice returned. France, too, affords an instance of a legal strike. One of the judges at St. Amand accused the local lawyers of deliberately promoting disputes in order to fill their pockets with fees. Thereupon all the lawyers in court departed in a body, declaring that they would not return until this insulting statement had been withdrawn. Eventually the judge apologized, and the lawyers resumed practice.—London Daily News.

General Pershing's Religion.

General Pershing was understood to be a Presbyterian, but according to published reports, he has later been confirmed as a member of the Protestant Episcopal church. The Living Church, an organ of that faith, states that the confirmation service took place in France, and was conducted by Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent, bishop of western New York. It is said that General Pershing desired to unite with the Episcopal church in memory of his wife, who was of that faith. She and their three daughters lost their lives in a fire at the Presidio military buildings at San Francisco, August 27, 1915.

Not Walking.

"Do your troubles make you walk the floor?"

"No," answered the irascible man. "That's the worst of it. My principal trouble is gout."

Real Philosophy.

"Can you see any reconciling factor at all in this increased tax on incomes?"

"Oh, yes; that I have an income to tax."

NOT ASPIRIN UNLESS "BAYER" ON TABLETS

Only Tablets Marked With "Bayer Cross" Are Genuine Aspirin—Others Not Aspirin at All!

"Bayer" Now Made in Canada by a Canadian Company All Rights Purchased from U. S. Government

BAYER

If anybody intimates that "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" are German made or owned, he is playing unfair to a Canadian Industry, and to Canadian Workmen. Absolutely no German interest in Canadian Company.

Unless you see the safety "Bayer Cross" on the package and on the tablets you are not getting Aspirin at all. The "Bayer Cross" means true Aspirin—no other tablets are Aspirin.

Don't accept Aspirin in a pill box. Buy a "Bayer Package"!

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" have been proved safe by millions for Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Toothache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Colds, Grippe, Joint Pains, Neuritis.

Proper and safe directions are in every "Bayer" package.

Boxes of 12 tablets—Bottles of 24—Bottles of 100—Also Capsules.

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

W.F. NICKLE RESIGNS AS MEMBER OF HOUSE

SAYS HE WAS ELECTED UNIONISTS FOR DURATION OF WAR.

Kingston, August 5.—Hon. J. A Calder and Hon. J. D. Reid were in the city Monday and made the announcement that W. F. Nickle, M.P. for Kingston, had placed in the hands of the Speaker of the House of Commons on July 7 his resignation. Mr. Nickle confirmed the statement and indicated that in 1917 he accepted the nomination as a Union candidate up till the end of the war. On the day peace was signed he put in his resignation. He stated that he felt like a soldier who had finished his work and asked for his discharge. He stated that his resignation was absolute.

Mr. Nickle has been a member of the Dominion House since 1908. In resigning he states that as he was elected as a supporter of the Union Government during the war his work is over

ORILLIA HONORS ITS RETURNED SOLDIERS

MEDALS PRESENTED TO EVERY MAN WHO SAW ACTIVE SERVICE.

Orillia, Aug. 4.—Orillia's official welcome to her returned men was an unqualified success. The weather was exceptionally favorable for both land and water sports, and there was a full day's program from early morning till late at night.

The procession in the forenoon was over a mile in length, and consisted of a parade to Couchiching Beach by returned men, cadets, boy scouts, school children, four bands of music, score of emblematic floats and more than a hundred gaily-decorated motor cars, as well as many other conveyances carrying disabled soldiers, nursing sisters, official boards and citizens.

Noonday lunch was served to all returned men in the open at the park. Addresses were delivered by Mayor Anderson and Capt. N. H. McGillvray, after which every soldier was presented with a handsome medal specially designed for the town of Orillia. These medals are intended for presentation to all men from Orillia town or township, whether they enlisted at Orillia or elsewhere.

The medal is of bronze, and consists of bar with blue ribbon and medal bearing the town's crest, and on the reverse is engraved the name of the recipient, date of enlistment and discharge and unit in which he served. There is also a special memorium medal for those whose sons or husbands made the supreme sacrifice.

A lengthy program of land and water sports was run off during the afternoon and evening, and the whole concluded with the finest display of fireworks ever seen here.

AGRICULTURAL STRIKE.

Paris, August 6.—An agricultural strike has been declared in the region of Melun, about 25 miles south east of the city. The men demand wages of thirteen francs per day with double pay during harvest. The farmers offer eleven francs a day.

HAVE ROSY CHEEKS AND FEEL FRESH AS A DAISY—TRY THIS!

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the whole alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, are assured that one week of inside bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.

LIQUOR SEIZED IN GALT

The first big seizure of liquor made in Galt since Ontario went dry, followed a visit Sunday night of License Inspector J. Winterhall, of Kitchener who, having obtained a tip that a shipment had been received had Inspector Brockett and the local police accompany him and make a search of the home of S. Harris, East Main street, locating 135 bottles of liquor hidden in bags in the cellar.

FARMERS PICNIC

The Peterborough branch of the U. F. O. will hold their first annual picnic by steamer Stoney Lake down the river, landing for sports and supper, on THURS., AUG. 7TH. The boat leaves George street wharf at 1 p.m. (new time). A good program of sports including a tug of war for the Township championship of Peterborough County. Orchestra and booth on board. Special speakers will be in attendance. Adults' tickets 60c, children's tickets 30c. Every body welcome. Come and bring your baskets

Sir William Crookes Was Very Famous Scientist, Died at a Ripe Old Age

SIR WILLIAM CROOKES, who was born in London in 1832, and died a short time ago at the age of 86, began his scientific career under the direction of the German chemist, A. W. Hofmann, at the old Royal College of Chemistry in Hanover Square, and later filled appointments as superintendent of the meteorological department of the Radcliffe Observatory at Oxford (1854), and as lecturer in chemistry at Chester Training College (1855); but he soon returned to London, which remained his home for the rest of his life. In 1875 Sir William Crookes constructed the instrument now well known and in every physicist's laboratory, called the radiometer. This consisted of a number of light vanes mounted round a delicately poised vertical axis and suspended in a partial vacuum, each vane being blackened on one side and polished on the other; when exposed to light the vanes rotated, and the apparatus received the name of radiometer because it was supposed that the speed of the vanes would afford a means of measuring the light incident upon them.

It was soon realized, however, that the rotation was not a direct mechanical effect of the light, but arose from stresses set up by the radiation between the walls of the containing vessel and the vanes, and acting in and through the residual air in the globe, and in this way Crookes' work originated a new and not yet fully worked out series of problems concerning the stresses caused in rarefied gases by inequalities of temperature. Sir William also made many experiments in the field of radiant matter and found new and unsuspected properties in gases, discovering in his experiments a "fourth state" as far removed from that of a gas as gas is from a liquid.

Another subject into which Sir William has made unusual investigations has been the wheat supply of the world. In his book, "The Wheat Problem," he argued that we were within measurable distance of utilizing the last areas of land available for wheat-growing, and, therefore, with increasing population, are confronted with the danger in the near future of a shortage in the wheat supply, unless the average yield per acre can be increased beyond its present comparatively low figure. But since wheat demands as its dominant manure nitrogen fixed in the form of ammonia or nitric acid, that result, he maintained, could be effected only by the aid of nitrogenous manures, the natural supplies of which, however, are strictly limited and insufficient for our requirements. Hence, he urged, the only hope of averting starvation lay in the artificial fixation of atmospheric nitrogen, and he prophesied that, unless that could be classed among the achievements of the chemist, the great Caucasian race would cease to be foremost in the world and would be squeezed out of existence by peoples to whom wheaten bread was not the staff of life.

Many other lines of research pursued by Sir William Crookes might be mentioned, such as his investigation in 1865 of the action of disinfectants in arresting the spread of cattle plague, his contributions to the problems of sewage disposal and his studies on the formation of diamonds and his attempts, which were successful, in producing some minute specimens, to make them by causing carbon to crystallize under great pressure. But special reference must be made to his work on one subject, spiritism, which is usually regarded as lying outside the scope of physical science. As the result of many experiments conducted with various mediums, one of whom was D. D. Home, he was led to the view that outside our scientific knowledge there exists a force exercised by intelligence common to mortals.

Some thirty years later, before the British Association in 1898, he declared that he had nothing to retract from his earlier opinions, and that he adhered to his already published statements, regretting only a "certain crudity in his early exposition." Besides publishing a large number of scientific papers Sir William wrote, or edited, English translations of many books on pure and applied chemistry. He became editor of the Quarterly Journal of Science in 1864, and in 1859 he founded the Chemical News, which he owned and edited until his death. In 1856 he married Ellen, daughter of W. Humphrey, of Darlington, and their golden wedding was celebrated in 1906. Lady Crookes died in May, 1916. They had four sons and one daughter.

A Ready Wit.

The late Sir John Mahaffey, provost of Trinity College, Dublin, was noted no less for his wit than for his learning. There is a story about the Kaiser and him. At a reception in London he was conversing with the Queen of Spain—the Princess Ena—then newly married. He asked her how she was getting on with her Spanish, and fell into a eulogy of the language, quoting Charles V's saying that he "spoke Spanish to his God, Italian to his wife and German to his servants and dogs." The Kaiser heard the queen's laughter, and crossed the room, asked what the joke was. "Sir," said the Irish wit, "I have known her majesty only ten minutes, and already we have something to conceal."

Sounded Like It.

Redd—I'm going to move to-morrow and my partner's going to move next week.

Greene—What are you doing? Playing a game of chess?

AWAY back in 1851, E. B. EDDY began the manufacture of matches in Hull. It may seem that there is no connection between matches and the other products listed here, but there is a real, logical and economical connection.

Good matches require soft, smooth-fibred pine. But the match factory receives many grades of pine, together with wood of other sorts. It will not make good matches but it is quite satisfactory for other products which are derived from wood pulp. So we make matches only from the wood which is suited for that purpose, and the remainder, instead of being waste [illegible] matches, is used for other [illegible].

[illegible] PRODUCTS are used [illegible] in the majority of Canadian homes. Eddy's Matches, Eddy's Indurated Fibreware, and Eddy's Paper Specialties are known everywhere. They not only are efficient time and labor savers, but they help to eliminate the waste of an important national resource.

Game of Season Saturday Next

GREAT INTEREST IN BELLEVILLE—PETES TUSSLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

The ball game to be played here next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock is creating more interest in this district than any ball game for a long time. The Petes lost to Belleville at Belleville in the tenth innings, and again in Port Hope by a close score. When Belleville came here they were defeated by a 3 to 2 score. On Saturday the Bay of Quinte aggregation will be here for the first game in the play-off for the championship. Goyer, the Belleville southpaw, shut out Port Hope in his last game, but the locals are now going to go right after him from the start and hope to get to him for a nice bunch of runs. Anyway it is going to be another scrappy game.

SMALL POX IN BRANTFORD TO VACCINATE CHILDREN

Only Four Cases at Present and Therefore no Cause for Alarm Exists.

Brantford, Aug. 5.—In view of the fact that small-pox exists in Brantford at the present moment, the parents of children who have not been vaccinated are strongly advised to take their children to their family physician and have them vaccinated. Adults who have not been vaccinated for a period of seven years and over are advised to consider seriously whether they should not be re-vaccinated.

There are only four cases of small-pox at present, and therefore there is no cause for undue alarm, but there's an old adage about "a stitch in time saves nine." The above statement was issued to-day by M. O. H. Hitton. One new case of small-pox was reported to be quarantined.

GEORGE ST. MORE SIGHTLY

Old Wooden Wire Poles Cut Down by Utilities Commission.

Citizens this morning were delighted to see that the unsightly old wooden poles, which have been spoiling the appearance of George street, were cut down over night, never to be re-erected.

George street presents a very much improved appearance today, and the work done by the city's Utilities Commission in preparing for this is amply repaid. The power wires are now carried on the neat electric light metal standards, erected with exactly this end in view.

Beginning with this year, some part of the Bible will be a part of the requirements for admission to Columbia University.

CONDITIONS ON ONTARIO FARMS

The following is a summary of reports made by Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The season for small fruits has been shortened by the drouth, but on the whole those raising these crops have done well.

Fall wheat threshing continues to show fairly good yields although not equalling early expectations.

Spring grains are now being harvested, and very from poor to fair in both yield and quality, even in the same township.

Buckwheat and millet, which were sown as substitute crops for some of the more standard spring grains, are not doing so well owing to the hot, dry weather that has prevailed since sowing.

Potatoes are likely to be a light crop, generally speaking although late fields have been helped along by recent rains.

All classes of roots have suffered from drouth, and in Middlesex some turnip land will be resown to fall oats. The second growth of clover and Alfalfa are reported to be very light but the latter is described as being of very good quality.

Hay sold in Brant during the week at from $14 to $18 a ton in the field. Wentworth reports hay as selling on the Hamilton market at from $22 to $23 a ton.

Norfolk states that more fields than usual are in summer fallow, and claims that the season has proved to be an especially good one for the elimination of noxious weeds.

Cattle, generally speaking, are not in good flesh, owing to poor pastures. Elgin, however, reports the sale of some heavy steers at $13.50 a cwt.

Milk production has been falling off rapidly owing to the poor grass and the prevalence of flies. Milch cows range in value from $100 to $175.

Hogs are in firm demand at from $22 to $24 a cwt. Brant reports little pigs bringing from $10 to $12 on the market on Saturday.

Horses for lumbering still bring good prices in Renfrew. One team, weighing 2700 lbs. was sold for $650 last week.

With the rush of harvesting over, the demand for farm labor is lessening.

Caterpillars.

Some of the caterpillars found in the vicinity of Darling river, Australia, are said to be more than six inches in length.

Trade With South America.

South America looks to us for so many manufactured articles it once purchased abroad that in the last two years our trade with that continent has more than doubled. And we are returning the compliment by sending southward heavy orders for raw materials.

Washing Oysters.

"Old songs, old books, old friends"—and old methods of agitating oysters. Specialists of the bureau of chemistry, United States department of agriculture, have determined that oysters soak up a great deal more water and lose much more in nutrients when washed by the new air blast and mechanical device method than when washed by the old method, on a skimmer with a hose and paddle.

DIES FROM ALCOHOL

London, Ont., Aug. 5.—John Walsh, a native of Stratford, who served overseas with the Canadian Army Dental Corps, and who was discharged from the army here in January, last, died today at the Morkin House from the results of drinking wood alcohol.

FIREMEN GET INCREASE

Belleville Aug. 5.—The members of the Permanent Fire Brigade of this city have received an increase in salary of $10 per month. This makes their salary $1,020 per year. Re- [illegible] a proposal was made to erect a new central fire hall and establish the platoon system, but the proposition was dropped.

Wages of firemen in U. S. cities range from $951 in Providence, R.I., to $1440 in Denver, Col.

Investigations at New York show the drug habit is strongest among persons from 26 to 30 years old.

FORD STANDS FOR NO REFORM THAT WOULD INVOLVE ANARCHY

Essentials of Anarchy Are Denial of God, State and Society---None of These Ideas Occurs in Henry Ford's Utterances---Ford-Tribune Trial

Mt. Clemens, Mich, July 5.—In the Ford-Tribune libel case, William A. Dunning, professor of history and political philosophy in Columbia University, New York, for 28 years and now or emeritus rank, testified as to the alleged relation between the ideas of Henry Ford and the doctrines of anarchists.

Q "What is anarchism?"

A "Anarchism is a theory that society should exist without government; a theory that there should be no control of a human will by another human will."

Q. "What is an anarchist?"

A. "An anarchist is a believer in the system of thought just stated. In common parlance a man who seeks to bring about the realization of that theory by violent means. That is the common meaning."

Q "When Henry Ford said that we should cease talking about 'this factory, this state, this country, and began to talk about this world. 'World-Citizenship, that is what we want to teach.' is that a doctrine of anarchists?"

A. "That is the general thought of cosmopolitan—humanitarian inclusiveness; it has permeated all speculation on political philosophy ever since there was such a philosophy. The first record to be put down that has survived to our times was made by the Cynical school of philosophy, to which Diogenes belonged. It was held in a very definite way by the Stoics in Athens as early as 300 B.C."

Q. "Is there anything peculiarly anarchistic about that?"

A. "No."

Q "Is it in any way essential to anarchism?"

A. "No."

Q "Mr Ford also said that he believed humanity could make mistakes but could do nothing worse; he said that he believed everything tended toward the good, and that even the terrible war would result in blessing to the world. Is there anything anarchistic about those ideas?

A. "They were very commonplace before an anarchist was ever heard of. The idea that man is naturally good is the basis of Plato's morals. It has permeated moral philosophy ever since. There is nothing characteristic about that."

Q. "Now, here is this statement by Mr Ford that 'War is murder;' is that anarchistic?"

A. "It is essentially anti-militarist and pacifist but it is not anarchistic. It is frequently uttered at every peace conference at which anarchists do not attend."

Q. "Now, here is this expression attributed to Henry Ford, to the effect that the word 'murderer' should be embroidered across every soldier's breast. Is that anarchistic?"

A "Well, the 'embroidered' part of it is new; I have never seen it before. But the idea that war is murder is very old much older than anarchy."

Q "There is some evidence in this case tha a lady used that expression—embroider?"

A. I should think so. No man would have thouht of embroidery!"

Q. "Mr Ford stood for a eneral disarmament—was that anarchistic?"

A. "No. The idea is held by a great many law-abiding citizens. It is quite consistant with the continued existence of government under socialistic management, and is therefore not anarchistic."

Prof. Dunning was then asked to run his eye through the articles and interviews sponsored by Henry Ford and indicate portions which would convince a critical examiner that Mr Ford was not an anarchist.

Prof Dunning pointed to numerous references to Government whose rules and context indicated that Mr Ford believed in Government.

He also called attention to Mr. Ford's numerous references to the ballot in advising its use. These, he said, indicated a confidence in the orderly processes of government.

In no writing or interview of Mr. Ford did he find a single indication that Mr Ford was an anarchist, either in the common or philosophical conception of that term.

Tribune counsel worked hard to get damaging admissions from Prof. Dunning, who by the way, is the foremost American authority in his field.

Prof. Dunning said that the essentials of anarchy are three in number; Denial of Almighty God, abolition of property, and destruction of organized society. Anarchists opposed God, the State and Society, because the purpose of these can only be fulfilled by the subordination of Humanity.

None of these ideas or any ideas even remotely resembling them, occur in Henry Ford's utterances, the witness testified.

"Henry Ford knows nothing whatever of the anarchist antagonism to God.

"Henry Ford does not share the anarchist antagonism to property—quite the contrary."

"Henry Foard expressed no opposition to the orderly processes of society; he rather upholds them."

"Henry Ford stands for no idea or reform which, carried to its ultimate limit, would involve anarchy or anything resembling it."

Tribune counsel insistently linked the names of Henry Ford and Emma Goldman, intimating that both stood for the same ideas. After an exhaustive examination on the principal teachings of Emma Goldman, the witness gave theinclusive answer that their ideas was as opposite as day from night, and Emma Goldman would be the last person to say that Henry Ford was even inclined toward anarchism. It was shown that she had violently attacked the Ford profit-sharing plan, calling it "sharing with the thief," Ford being the "thief."

MICHIGAN RAISES SALARY OF TEACHERS

THAT IS ONLY WAY POSSIBLE IN WHICH TO SECURE INSTRUCTOR.

Detroit, Mich. Aug. 6.—Apprehensive lest there be shortage of school teachers unless salaries were increased, village and rural school boards in Wayne county have announced substantial advances in pay to take effect when schools re-open in September. Where salaries formerly ranged from $40 to $110, they have been increased to $60 to $130. Others range from $100 to $125 a month.

MILLIONS STARVING MUCH LAND LYING IDLE

NEED FOR INTENSIFIED GARDENING AS GREAT AS DURING THE WAR.

Local enthusiasm for back-yard and vacant plot gardening has deplorably subsided since signing of the armistice; and yet the need for intensified food production is as great as ever.

There is much vacant land in and around Peterborough idle this year, the cultivation of which would have, in a measure, eased prices, and contributed to the sustenance of millions of people in Europe lacking the necessities for a mere existence. Intensified gardening should be kept up until the world has settled down again to normal conditions, and the appalling results of the great war put behind us as a thing of the past never, it is to be hoped, to be repeated.

M. O. H. Dr. Hastings says: "If you have health, then friends, cherish it, guard it and treasure it as you treasure life, for out of it are the issues of life." and he asks, "are we going to profit by the lessons of the war?" and it states that with the signing of the Peace Treaty and the formation of the League of Nations, the world has probably been made surer of permanent peace than ever before.

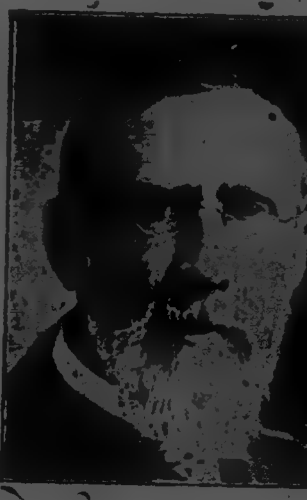
In summarizing the facts as brought out by the war, Dr. Hasting's bulletin says that on an average, forty per cent. of the men between eighteen and forty years of age were found physically unfit. In dealing with some of the possibilities of preventive medicine, it is pointed out that during the war, disease on the Western front has been almost negligible and that the war has demonstrated that disease can be almost eliminated by the intelligent application of the scientific knowledge which is now possessed by the medical fraternity.

* * *

The agitation in newspapers has had a great deal to do with increases in both rural and village schools.

While it does not look as if there would be any serious shortage of teachers this fall, there may be some trouble experienced in getting teachers for certain of the more remote rural schools which have not easy access to electric car lines or to a railroad.

VETERAN TO RESIGN



SIR GEORGE FOSTER

There is good reason to believe that when the further reconstruction of the Dominion Cabinet takes place, probably within the next ten days, that Sir George Foster, the veteran Minister of Trade and Commerce will resign. It is expected that Sir Henry Drayton will run in his seat, North Toronto. The writs will have to be issued shortly. The election may not be able to be held in time for Sir Henry to take his seat at the opening of the session which has been called for September 1st.

Dr. Tolmie, the new Minister of Agriculture will arrive in Ottawa the end of this week, where he will be sworn in. He will run in Victoria and it is not expected he will have serious opposition.

There are no rumors current as to the likely successor of Sir George Foster, although there has in the past been talk of Lloyd Harris, chairman of the Canadian Trade Mission. H. H. Stevens, Vancouver, is looked on as likely to be the new Minister from British Columbia, succeeding Hon. Martin Burrell.

FIR EIN BASEMENT

Vulcanizer and Tires Damaged in Home of J. Anglesey.

Fire broke out in the basement of the home of J. Anglesey, 149 Rubidge street, at noon today.

Mr. Anglesey has a small room in the basement of his house in which he vulcanizes automobile tires. The vulcanizer caught fire by a spark entering the gas jet. Some damage was done to the vulcanizer and tires around the room, but no damage to the houser esulted. The fire was extinguished by a 45-gal. chemical.

Anticipated calamities seldom show up.

CUT OUT
THE REGRETS

If you have headaches, shortsightedness, blurred vision or other signs of weak eyes, let Dr. Fowler have the regular care of your vision. He will fit you with just what is best to use now, and advise you concerning the future. He will tell you how long the glasses will be correct for you without changing them, and other things that will suit your particular needs. This is a valuable feature, and by not putting off coming to him you eliminate regrets later on when the weak condition of your eyes becomes exaggerated by neglect.

MINERAL OIL
For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the highest in quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE. There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased, as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative, and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

"Doughboys" to the Rescue.

French newspapers are warm in their tributes to our soldiers. The American's appearance, their behavior, their ability to meet emergencies, have won great admiration. The Paris Figaro tells the following story:

A train for the country had been stalled by some strange condition of the locomotive. The passengers beat their feet on the floor and uttered objurgations from the windows. Much time went by. The conductor walked vainly up and down the track. Nothing availed to start the engine.

Suddenly some one shouted: "Why don't you bring in the Americans?" The cry went up and down amid laughter when, sure enough, two young American soldiers appeared upon the scene from some corner of the train. They went to the engine, took possession of it, dumped all the old slag out of the firebox, broke up some coal into small bits, renewed the fire, hammered a little here and there, and, presto! up started the train all at once, and proceeded without interruption to its journey's end.

Fish Meat vs. Beefsteak.

"Fish is not filling" said a business man the other day. "It's all right for a light luncheon, but somehow I never feel that it is really nutritious. For real food give me good old beef."

That man needs educating. He should know some of the simple facts stated by H. F. Taylor, a scientist of the bureau of fisheries, who tells us that pound for pound there is nearly if not quite as much protein in fish meat as in beefsteak. Oily fish, like shad, herring and eels, are especially nutritious, affording a large quantity of fat as well as protein. Fish roes contain more protein than beef, with some fat. Fish meat is quite as easily digested as other meat, and is a suitable form of protein for sedentary workers.

Practically every fish taken from pure water is fit to eat, the only objection being to some varieties being toughness and coarse texture, which can be remedied by proper cooking.

Gathers Unexploded Shells.

General Badoglio, underchief of the Italian general staff, has presented the minister for reconstruction of the invaded territories, Signor Fradeletto, his report on the recovery of unexploded projectiles and bombs in the zone of war, and in the localities where the principal battles occurred.

From the beginning of the war to October 17, 1918, 7,800,000 did not explode. Up to November 1, 1917, there were collected about 7,000,000 unexploded bombs. From 1917 to the end of hostilities, about 3,700,000 unexploded projectiles were found.

The raking of the ground to find them goes on actively; but it will be a long time before the work generally has been completed.

Modern St. Bernard Dogs.

Although the tunnels which now connect Switzerland with Italy have greatly decreased the importance of the Saint Bernard and other passes, especially during the eight months of snow, it is still deemed advisable to employ Saint Bernard dogs. It is no longer customary, however, to send out the dogs alone with baskets of food and drink; a man always accompanies them. These dogs are not really of the famous old Saint Bernard breed. That originated in the fourteenth century, through a cross between a shepherd dog from Wales and a Scandinavian dog whose parents were a Great Dane and a Pyrenean mastiff. The last pure descendant of this tribe was buried under an avalanche in 1816. Fortunately, there were found subsequently at Martigny and on the Simplon Pass a few dogs which, by crossing with mates from Wales, yielded the modern Saint Bernard dog, which is physically even stronger than his mediaeval namesake and shares most of his traits.—Family Herald.

Jade Very Valuable.

Practically all the jade now mined comes from Burma, though New Zealand is a producer of some note. China takes practically the entire output. In Burma the privilege of mining it has been held by the same Indian or Shan tribe for many generations. The method employed is the crudest. Indeed experts declare that the introduction of modern methods would, even if they proved successful, defeat themselves by demoralizing values. The Chinese prefer jade which is of a dark green color, free from all mottles, and jade of this particular grade is worth its weight in gold. There are imitations of jade on the market, generally produced in Europe, which only experts can detect, and a large amount of this imitation stone, manufactured into jewelry in Hong Kong and Canton, is sold to tourists as jade.—Family Herald

CORK.

Lightwood Has Many Valuable Qualities.

Cork was known to the ancients. Pliny describes the Roman fishermen as using floats of cork to support their fishing-nets. Cork was used by the Romans in the construction of buoys for rivers and in facilitating swimming; for we read that the soldiers whom Camillus sent to the capitol when it was besieged by the Gauls put on a light dress with cork under it, and when they arrived at the River Tiber they bound their clothes upon their heads, placed the cork under their arms, and so swam across.

Cork was used by the Roman sandal-makers for soles, and they sometimes applied it very thick in order to increase the stature of those ladies who wished to be thought taller than they really were.

The ancients kept their wines in casks, and it was drawn off as wanted. When bottles first came into use the primitive material used as stoppers consisted of the root of liquorice, which was cut and formed to the shape of corks. These roots are still often used in North America for the making of bottle-stoppers, and it was not till the manufacture of glassware become general that the practice arose of storing wine in bottles, and then and not before the value of cork as a stopper for bottles became generally acknowledged. Thence came the saying, "This wine is corked"—meaning it tastes of the cork.

We do not know for certain when cork was introduced into England, but Shakespeare knew about it, for in "As You Like It," Act 3, scene 2, he writes—"I prythee take the cork out of thy mouth that I may drink thy tidings." In "Child's Ballads" are these lines:—

"When she gaed up the tolbrooth stairs
The corks frae her heels did flee."

Imperviousness to air and water is a rare quality which cork possesses over any other known material; besides, it conveys no disagreeable taste or flavor to the liquid. These, coupled with such other qualities as compressibility and elasticity, are virtues which cannot be found in any other substance outside the range of cork, and it is its power of compression that gives to a piece of cork its chief value as a bottle-stopper, for when it is in its right place in an unopened bottle of any liquid the lower part swells out in the wider part of the bottle's neck and renders extraction difficult.

There is much spare material in the cutting of corks, which is all utilized. The shreds are ground into powder and mixed with melted india-rubber, which forms kamptulicon, and is more durable than floorcloth. Models are made of cork, burnt cork makes Spanish black for artists and colormen, our boys learn swimming on cork jackets, and where the cork tree grows pails and tubs are made of cork; the roofs of the houses are lined with cork. And what is more comfortable than a pair of cork socks to keep our feet dry?

It is believed pretty generally in some parts of Lincolnshire that cork has the power of keeping off cramp; it is placed between the bed and the mattress, or even between the sheets, or cork garters are made by sewing together a series of thin discs of cork between two silk ribbons. Pope writes:—

"In genial spring, beneath the quivering shade
Whose cooling vapors breathe along the mead,
The patient fisher takes his silent stand,
Intent his angle's trembling in his hand;
With looks unmov'd, he sees the scaly breed
And eyes the dancing cork and bending reed."

Cork is the soft elastic bark of a kind of oak which grows in the south of France, Italy, Spain, and in the greatest perfection in Portugal; but the wood of the tree is of small value except for fuel.—Family Herald.

India's War-time Trophies.

A War Memorial Museum is being formed at Delhi, which it is hoped will be completed and formally opened by the viceroy during the next cold weather. In the meantime the public who desire to inspect the collection as far as it has been accomplished are allowed to do so. There are a number of guns from Mesopotamia — some of them from Kut and others from Bagdad and various places which were captured by our armies on the Tigris. The biggest and most imposing gun is an old Persian one, which was captured in Bagdad in March, 1917; the inscription on it was made in 1684. There are most interesting specimens of many smaller instruments of destruction such as, for instance, flammenwerfer, bomb-throwers, gas engines, etc., while in another division there are specimens of gas-masks, flame-masks, etc., which have been presented to the museum by the Australian Corps.—Family Herald.

Moving a House.

An automobile tractor which uses motor-truck tires on the front, and a caterpillar tractor as motor power, was recently employed in hauling a bungalow several miles on ordinary oak runners.

The weight of the house was so great that within the first two miles two inches of the runners were worn down. But that did not prevent the movement of the house to its new position.

This type of automobile truck is used for heavy haulage, and not only can it carry a load of five tons on its own body, but the 100-horse-power tractor engine that furnishes the power enables it to pull from fifty to sixty tons more on four-wheeled trailers.

This is the first tractor we have heard of going into the house-moving business.—Popular Science Monthly.

William McMahan of Petrolea was drowned at Ford.

Okwawa's Skull Is Important

So much curiosity was aroused by the provision in the Peace Treaty that the German Government should restore the skull of the Sultan Okwawa that the National Geographic Society issued a special bulletin giving an explanation. Even though there are as many sultans as there are tribes in German East Africa the Sultan Okwawa was a very special sort of sultan, it appears, and in getting possession of his skull the British Government will accomplish more than it might be able to do with a small army to pacify the former German East African possessions. The National Geographic Society's bulletin gives this account of the skull and its former owner:

Sultan Okwawa was a sort of Mohammed or Confucius among his clansmen, and it is to be inferred that the nation which assumes sovereignty over the people who revere his memory, and probably worship his remains, will be received with greater friendliness if it can restore the precious talisman. Furthermore, the removal of the skull sheds a sidelight upon the long arm of German propaganda, reaching even into darkest Africa in contemplation of Prussia's day under the scorching equatorial sun.

The German Government contributed a goodly sum for an expedition headed by Adolphus Frederick, Duke of Mecklenburg, which ostensibly made a scientific study of the German protectorate in Africa in 1907-1908. There is good reason to believe that the explorers were not wholly unaware of political advantages and accomplished a tribal coup d'etat by taking away with them the skull.

The duke wrote a book about his travels in which he states, in summarizing the results of his expedition, that "1,017 skulls and about 4,000 ethnographs were collected." He described visits to various "sultans." At one point he digresses from botany and linguistics to give this naive comment on German policy: "It is desired to strengthen and enrich the Sultan and persons in authority, and to increase thereby their interest in the continuance of German rule.

"At the same time, by steadily controlling and directing the sultan and using his powers, civilizing influences would be introduced. Thus by degrees, and almost imperceptibly to the sultan himself, he eventually becomes nothing less than the executive instrument of the German governor."

But Germany's early policy in her African colonial expansion was marked by no such adroit methods; rather by just such disregard of native customs and ruthless measures as that indicated by her removal of the skull referred to in the treaty. Karl Peters, one of the first Germans to seek to exploit African resources, instituted such a reign of terror among the natives by inhuman treatment, and especially by wholesale murders of their women, that the German Government was compelled to remove his commission until the storm of civilized protest blew over.

But Peters was soon restored and other bureaucratic German officials rudely deposed native rulers, instead of co-operating with them as did the British, and thus incited numerous native uprisings. One of these, in 1906, cost nearly 125,000 native lives before the Africans succumbed to the same sort of terrorism as that instituted in Belgium in 1914.

The duke commented on the generosity of the natives in presenting gifts but noted that "yet the purchase of ethnological material met with obstinate opposition." He explained that each clan reveres some totem, believing that the spirit of the deceased enters these objects of reverence.

The totem is just as likely to be an animal, or part of an animal—the duke mentions the toad, crested crane, the leopard, and the goat—as a skull. Incidentally this fact helps to explain the reverence of the old-time Southern darkey for such tokens as the "left hind leg of a graveyard rabbit caught on a dark night."

An Unsinkable Ship.

For many years, and particularly during the war, much time has been spent in producing an unsinkable ship. Now a vessel has been designed on the northeast coast of England, which, it is claimed, has this attribute.

The idea is simple, but very ingenious, and consists of the bridge (which will be larger than usual) being hollow and air-tight. Its normal position will be close down to the decks, to which it will be attached by an apparatus which will permit of its being raised to a certain height above the deck.

Should the ship be so damaged that the hull will sink, the bridge will be elevated to the full extent allowed by the deck attachment, and when the hull sinks the bridge not only remains afloat, but will carry the submerged shell. On the bridge accomodation is provided for those on board.

Shipowners who have examined the design consider the idea justifies the claims made in regard to it, and with a view to testing its practicability arrangements are being made for the building of a ship in accordance with the plan.

Liked Pheasants' Song.

An English actor-manager had taken down to dinner a lady, a stranger to him, and indeed a nouveau riche, who had recently returned from France.

"And what did you most enjoy in France, madam?" he inquired.

"Well, I think it was the French pheasants singing the Mayonnaise."

The Master of Balliol's Letter.

Another gratifying assurance of the resumption of life at Oxford, England, comes in the publication of a letter from the master of Balliol to a member of the British Embassy at Washington. Of the 12,000 young men that Oxford is estimated to have sent to France, the majority who can do so are now, it seems, coming back. Oxford, writes the master of Balliol, is much as it was before the war, cheerful and active with undergraduate life, but the returned students have brought an atmosphere of serious purpose which the old college town did not know five years ago. They have gained intellectually more than they lost by temporary separation from books. The college life which had "dwindled to a thread" resumes its full vigor, with something added which is making men like the master of Balliol feel that the new college life will be better than the old.

Gratitude Due.

"Are you one of those conscientious objectors?"

"Yes."

"Well, you ought to be deeply grateful to the men who kept the Germans off this country. Those Hindenburg boys would have made you fight and work, both."

More Mystery Ships.

The first of a new type of "mystery ship" for the British Admiralty has been completed in Southwich, near Brighton. Unlike the "mystery ships" built during the war, the new vessels are not intended for destruction, but for salvaging merchant vessels sunk by German submarines around the coast of the United Kingdom. Six ships of the new type are to be built, each at a cost of nearly £1,000,000.

"The House That Jack Built."

Some commentators say that "The House That Jack Built" is only a jingle taken from "Chad Gadyoh," or "The Only Kid," a nursery doggerel, which later became a Jewish legend. It has found its way into the "Hagodah," the Jewish book used the first two nights of the Passover service of the Jewish people. After the service is over and the dinner eaten the father sings aloud "The Only Kid," with his children following him. Then he translates it into English or Yiddish for those of the family who do not understand Hebrew.

"The Only Kid" tells of a kid eaten by a cat; of a dog which bit the cat; of a stick that smote the dog; of a fire that burned the stick. Then it tells of water that extinguished the fire; of an ox that drank the water; of a butcher who killed the ox; of the angel of death who killed the butcher and finally of God who killed the angel. The legend is supposed to represent Israel's trials, with Israel cast as "The Only Kid," and the butcher, the cat, dog, fire and the stick as his tormentors, who are in turn killed by God.

"The Only Kid" has a swing and lilt to it resembling "The House that Jack Built," which gives rise to the belief that the latter is copied from it. Some say the Jewish legend is an old German ballad sprung from a French song.

CARPENTIER IS NOT IN CONDITION

RIDICULOUS TO MATCH THE FRENCHMAN AGAINST DEMPSEY.

Detroit, Aug. 6.—Just who to put against Jack Dempsey—in other words, who to lead to the the slaughter—is keeping the impresarios of fistiana awake o' nights, judging from the columns in our dailies, and the [illegible] of the wise owls in the magazines.

Since this prediction—Dempsey can knock out either Georges Carpentier or Joe Beckett in a round.

There's work for the society for the prevention of cruelty.

During the last week Detroit entertained unawares a guest who knows more about the French and English champions than anybody in our midst. For business reasons his name is not revealed, but suffice it to say that he was the lightweight champion of the prep school he attended, middleweight champion of his college, and has won many important amateur events in England. He served from the start of the war until incapacitated, was an English ace, and is a remarkably clever young man.

Finish of the Lamb

"Talk of Dempsey meeting Carpentier or Beckett is not sportsmanship," he said the other day at the D. A. C. "It borders on the finish of on him.

"Carpentier," he pronounces it Carpon-tear," chopping off the nether end—"I know him intimately, have boxed with him and seen him fight. He will not stand punishment, that I know. Anybody who gets to him and keeps at it can beat him down, and I'd almost bet I can beat him if given 10 weeks time.

"There's a lot said about Carpentier in the war, but let me tell you he never made a flight. He was kept in prominence by the Grench Government, for they put pedestals under their heroes over there. At his best Carpentier should scale 11 stone (154 pounds) and do it easily; in fact, 10 stone eight (148 pounds) was his best weight.

Going the Pace

"Carpentier has been going the pace in the last four years. He weighs close to one-ninety, and it isn't good surplus.

"I've seen Dempsey in action. I cleaned up bully on his fight with Willard. Laid five hundred against five thousand that he'd win in six rounds by a knockout. They thought in the Ritz that I was a bit off my head, but I have part of the money left.

"Beckett is a different proposition. He's a comer. Give him two years with good handling and no accidents and he will be able to beat Dempsey just as sure as we are talking. He has everything but experience needed to meet a man of the Dempsey type, and when he gets that he'll win, just jot that down in your memory And forget Carpentier."

Awaits Beckett

This chap knows the game. He impressed me more than anybody I have met. I saw them fight before Dempsey was born, having seen the original Jack Dempsey, the only John L., Jake Kilrain, Jim Corbett, Peter Jackson, Bob Fitzsimmons, Kid McCoy, Tom Sharkey and lesser heavies, most of the middles, welters and lightweights in action. To me there is nobody in sight who holds a candle to the new Jack Dempsey, who appears to be heading for a long vacation from actual battling, not voluntarily but enforced by the condition.

Let's follow my English friend's advice and forget Carpentier and await the arrival of Beckett before we count on any real sport for one-round championships are not worth while.

RACING EVENTS FOR MONTREAL COURSE

PREPARATIONS IN FULL SWING AT INDEPENDENT COURSES FOR RESUMPTION OF RACING.

Montreal, August 6—Preparations are in full swing at the Independent race courses for the resumption of racing. It was decided to hold races at four courses at a meeting of owners held on Saturday. The pari-mutuel system will be used.

The racing depends largely upon the ability of clubs to secure horses, and emissaries are scouring from Baltimore to Saratoga, arranging for shipments. There are fifty or sixty horses quarterd now at the various Montreal courses, but with scores of owners across the line unable to place their horses, no difficulty in getting thoroughbreds here is looked for.

The clubs will run in the following order: Delorimier, King Edward, Mount Royal, and a mile track. Delorimier is fit and ready for racing. The plant was recently overhauled and put in first-class condition. Work was started yesterday on Mount Royal, and King Edward, it is said, is in excellent order.

The track owners at their meeting decided to give the preference in the matter of employment to returned soldiers, following the example of the Australian clubs, where thousands of jobless soldiers, returning from the front, frequently crippled, have been provided with lucrative employment, often at far better salaries than they could in the ordinary way command.

The tracks will run in the following order: Delorimier, August 16 to 23; King Edward Park, August 25 to Sept. 1; Mount Royal, Sept. 2 to Sept. 9.

It is likely that a mile track will fill in for the fourth week. The second series will start at Delorimier on Sept. 17, and the clubs will run in the same order as before.

WILLIE JACKSON DEFEATED

Tendler Knocked Down Twice in Lightweight Bout Yesterday.

Philadelphia, August 6. — Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia lightweight, defeated Willie Jackson of New York in six rounds at Shibe Park. Although Tendler was knocked down twice in the first round, taking counts of seven and nine, he came back strong in the second round, and from then on administered severe punishment to the New Yorker. Jackson's nose was broken and his left eye cut. Tendler discarded boxing and tried to end the fight with a knockout, but Jackson stayed the limit.

Ted Lewis of England, former welterweight champion, outboxed Steven Latzo of Hazelton, Pa. Latzo forced the fighting, but Lewis' cleverness enabled him to keep the lead throughout.

LINDSAY RINKS FOR TORONTO

It is understood that Messrs. Tony Bakogeorge and L. V. O'Connor will take bowling rinks to Toronto next week to compete in the Dominion bowling tournament.

BOXING BOARD A SPLENDID IDEA

SAYS RYAN, FORMER MANAGER OF OLYMPIC BOXING CLUB, TORONTO.

Tornto, August 6.—"Tommy" Ryan, former manager of the Olympic Boxing Club, and at one time Toronto's leading professional boxing promoter, is another who is strongly in favor of the formation of a Boxing Commission in Ontario to control the sport.

"What is yous opinion about such such a commission?" he was asked.

"I think it is a splendid idea," he replied emphatically. "And I want to state right here that unless such a commission is formed pretty soon, the game will receive a knockout similar to the one it did a few years ago when a certain individual staged a heavyweight bout.

"For years I have been advocating such a commission myself," said Mr. Ryan, "and I am glad to see you working for such an organization. Boxing is a splendid sport—there is none better—and it is a pity to see the game again go into disrepute because there is no proper organization to look after it. A good, strong boxing commission would give a wonderful impetus to the sport in Canada."

"Remember, however, the commission should be composed of men who have the confidence of the public; men who know the game from every angle; men who have done their bit in the greatest fight of all," continued "Tommy."

"Only those men who wear a first class overseast button are entitled to act as members of a boxing commission here," said Mr. Ryan. "I see where one paper has named three men as commissioners. I would like to know what they have ever done to entitle them to be considered."

In conclusion, Mr. Ryan hoped the commission would soon be formed.

"Tommy" Ryan's views are worthy of consideration. He has quit the game himself and his judgment is impartial.

His views are endorsed by the majority of boxing enthusiasts in Toronto.

TIP FOR M'CAFFERY.

Salt Lake City, August 5.—Announcement was made here by the directors of the Salt Lake Basebell club of the Pacific Coast League that $10,000 would be divided among the players if they succeeded in winning th league pennant this season.

The club directors and prominent business men are understood to have guaranteed the prize money.

BUILT FOR PIETY OR LUCK

Two Reasons Assigned for the Construction of Pagodas in Countries of the Far East.

The word pagoda is a Portuguese corruption of the Persian "butkahdah," meaning "but," an "idol," and "kadah," "temple." In the far East, as in India, China and Burma, they are regarded as sacred towers, usually more or less pyramidal in outline, richly carved, painted or otherwise adorned, and of several stories, and are sometimes connected with a temple. Such towers were originally erected over relics of Buddha, the bones of a saint, etc., but are now built chiefly as a work of merit on the part of some pious person, or for the purpose of improving the luck of the neighborhood. In China pagodas are from 3 to 13 stories high (always an odd number). Their Dravidian shape indicates that they originated with the earliest races of India, who inhabited the country previous to the advent of the Aryans. The date of the great pagodas at Tajore is not certainly known, but it, with much probability, referred to the beginning of the fourteenth century. The so-called "Thousand Pagodas" of Brambanan in Java are obviously modeled on Hindu originals, either Jain or Buddhist.

THE REVIEW

His Trouble.

Little Ben woke up February 12 all out of sorts. Things had gone wrong the day before, and the prospect was dark when his father began to help him dress. He was on the verge of tears, and in a few seconds he was boo-hooing.

"What's the matter, Ben?" asked his father.

"Why, I lost two marbles yisteday, and Johnny Abel frew rocks at my little rooster, and Buddy Jones tried to break my wagon and this is Lincoln's birthday and I can't give him any present because he's d-e-a-a-a-d."

Whereupon little Ben burst into weeping that relieved him of an accumulation of sorrow and disappointment and prepared the way for another and better day in boydom.

Starlings.

A certain Boston bird student reports having seen a flock of starlings in his own city, settled on some thick bushes from which they were busily picking the red berries. Boys and girls of the British isles know these birds well, but they are not so common in the United States. Not long ago they were introduced into New York state and into Connecticut, and from the birds having been noticed in Boston it would seem that they will likely spread to other parts of the country. Starlings have a dark plumage of green and purple, spotted over with buff or white.

Naturally.

"I know a man who was making money hand over fist when the police caught him."

"What was he doing?"

"Porch climbing."

Jet.

If you have made the trip to the bottom of a coal mine and have seen how the black lumps are made ready for use, perhaps you know that jet, the shiny black substance that you see so often made into pretty ornaments, beads, buttons, etc., is closely akin to coal. The history of the formation of jet is much like that of coal. Thousands of years ago, masses of wood were carried down into the sea by the rivers, and, there water-logged, it sank and became embedded in the mud. Pressure and heat and the salt water wrought the change in the wood. Even now traces of the wood structure can be detected in the jet itself. In years gone by jet used to be found in lumps off the coast of Yorkshire, the jet incased in shale known as jet-rock, washed up by the sea; but now that supply is not sufficient and jet has to be regularly mined. In Whitby, Yorkshire, the best jet is produced, but there are also important mines in France and Spain, and America, too, has quantities of the shale, though it is not systematically mined.

HIS OPPORTUNITY TO SERVE

Old Soldier Could Not Fight in Ranks, But Could Prove He Was of Some Use.

A year ago Americans were saying that this was not an old man's war. And the old men, many of whom had been soldiers in their younger days, were feeling the same way and suffering over it, too. Old women could knit, roll bandages, and do a hundred other things quite as well as the younger women. But what could the old men do? And because there seemed to be nothing for them to do, they suffered more keenly than most people knew.

But as the young men left there began to be work for the old men. Retired farmers were needed to teach boys how to farm. Retired bankers were put on Thrift stamp and finance committees. All carpenters, whether young or old, were needed. And there came a new look—one of usefulness and happiness—on the faces of the old men.

But one of the most patriotic of all was noted the other day.

"I'd like to buy your old rubber and rags," he said courteously, "or if you'd give it to me it would be still better."

The woman of the house glanced out at his push cart which was almost full of junk. "I'll try to find something," she began.

The old man's face was radiant.

"You see, lady," he explained. "I'm an old soldier and I'm on a pension so I'm giving all my time to my country. I get this junk for the Red Cross. You just go down and ask them how much I've turned in and you'll decide that I'm not a worn-out plug after all."—Indianapolis News.

Alcohol From Molasses.

Several large concerns are making alcohol from cheap molasses brought from the West Indies. This molasses, which is uneatable, is known as "black strap." The internal revenue chemists have been able, however, to ferment it and to obtain not only alcohol but to so use the residue that they get glycerin.

Four lots of "black strap" of 1,000 gallons each subjected to the new process turned out a very excellent quality of glycerin. There are 100 gallons of this clear dynamite glycerin, as it is called, now on exhibition in the treasury department. Samples of it treated with nitric acid by a well-known firm of explosive makers, at the request of the government, produced as good a nitro-glycerin as the market affords.

Nitro-glycerin when incorporated with pulp or other infert substance becomes dynamite. Thus out of the simple sweets of the sugar bowl comes forth the strength which will rend the rock.

FEW NEW PHRASES COINED

In That Respect the Recent Appalling Conflict May Be Considered to Have Been Tame.

In one particular it was not the greatest war in history.

We know that more men lost their lives, more soldiers were in battle and more money was spent than in any previous war.

But colossal as was the conflict in other respects, it was quite tame in its supply of new words and new phrases, "Girard" writes in the Philadelphia Press.

Hardly a word came into the language as the result of four years of appalling disaster.

Only a few new expressions were born.

Even in the matter of war songs this German war was different.

It was more sentimental and less militant than some great wars of the past.

Of all new English phrases coined since that memorable August, 1914, "Over the top," is by far the most frequently quoted and the most significant.

It is now in general use to express an emphatic finish. But what other did we get?

Of course, we had the "Hun," but that was old, and it lacked the punch of originality.

It didn't carry the hatred and sting that went with what our ancestors called the Hessian, nor the fathers baptized the Copperhead.

"Pacifist" was entirely new, but that lacks the venom that signified "Tory" of the Revolution and even yet carries on with that phrase in this country.

The South got many a wild curtain call with its telling phrase, "Northern Mudsills."

"Dough-face" was a highly expressive title that still reeks with the campaign against slavery and was first used by John Randolph of Virginia.

Oliver P. Morton's graphic phrase, "waving the bloody shirt," had a whole bootful of meaning behind it and really summed up a great national issue.

Since the Mexican war "Greaser" has been a fighting word from the mouth of the Rio Grande to the Gulf of California.

Gen. Ben Butler's interpretation of the status of a negro during the Civil war gave an entirely new meaning to the word "contraband."

No unit of this new and greater American army had a title that will stick longer than did that of the "Bucktails."

No general in any of the allied armies won a sobriquet to match that of "Stonewall" Jackson of the Confederate hosts.

A presidential campaign in 1840 was keyed upon the slogan, "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too," the "Tippecanoe" being old General Harrison, who won the name and his fame in Indian forays.

New Synthetic Milk.

A recently patented synthetic milk, that can be made into butter and cheese, is produced by boiling separately, in three quarts of water for each, a grated coconut and three ounces of a mixture of rice and oatmeal. When the water is reduced to one-half, the two liquids are mixed together and filtered. The process seems to admit of variation, and other vegetable material rich in oil may be substituted for the coconut.

A Budding Inspector.

Little Harold had been thinking things over, and at last burst out:

"Pop."

"Yes, my son."

"Why does a cow chew at night?"

"Well, my son, a cow takes food during the day, and then chews her cud at night."

"But, pop, isn't that hoarding food?"

Up Among the Birds.

In spite of their difficult and exacting task, a few airmen have found opportunity to observe and record the height at which various migratory birds are accustomed to fly. Thus, from French soldiers of the air it is learned that swallows have been observed to maintain an average altitude of 700 yards and wild ducks one of 1,800 yards, and that green plovers have been seen at a height of 2,150 yards. Incidentally it may be mentioned that the ducks were moving at a speed of 62½ miles an hour when flying upward, and 69 miles an hour when flying horizontally. Another aviator when flying at 9,500 feet saw swallows high above him. And another, who made his observations at a height of 6,000 feet during a heavy bombardment, with antiaircraft shells bursting all about him, says he saw 200 golden plovers, perhaps driven higher than usual by the fact that the vicinity was an unpleasant belt to cross.—Youth's Companion.

EDITOR'S MAIL

THE MATTER OF A LICENSE

Editor Review:—In your paper of the 5th, we note your article on licensing the bill poster, Mr. Stocker, and could scarcely understand how this man could not have escaped a business license or tax so long while other people were paying same, and have been for years. Some people seem to be able to get away with anything. We know of cases where the business tax has been charged, yet when the only reason was that this person had an office in his bedroom. While this person has an office built in his house and his premises cover about a quarter of an acre, and in addition controls and maybe owns 3000 feet of bill board. What is the ratepayer and business men doing to allow such a piece of injustice.

Then when it is put up to him he has the nerve to offer to pay $25 per year when $250 would be a light business tax on his income compared with what others are paying in proportion to space taken up which we understand is the basis on which the business tax is based. Where is the justice in this thing anyhow? $12 per year for a few square feet in a bedroom used partly as an office and nothing to a man with about a quarter of an acre business premises and controlling 3000 feet of other property for business purposes. To tax the man in proportion to the $12 man $2500 would be nearer the mark.

I trust that the Honorable Gentleen who have this matter in hand will give justice in the case.

RENEWING ACQUAINTANCES

Mr. John G. Hall Returns to City After Absence of 25 Years.

Mr. John G. Hall, President of the Gardner Wire Fence Co., Chicago, is in the city renewing old acquaintances and is stopping with his sister, Mrs. J. C. Smith 534 Charlotte street. Mr. Hall served his apprenticeship in the hardware business with the late Mr. George Stethem, and left Peterborough some twenty-five years ago. He notices the many changes and advances made by the city during this time.

Mr. Hall will visit his sisters, Miss Hall and Miss Birdie Hall, at their cottage at Buckhorn before returning.

NEAT ROAD SIGNS FOR GUIDANCE OF AUTOISTS

POINT THE WAY TO PETERBORO CITY—WILL BE MUCH APPRECIATED BY TOURISTS.

The Peterborough Automobile Association are to be congratulated on the neat road signs recently erected at every entrance to the city. These signs are 18 x 24, painted white with "City of Peterborough, speed 20 miles per hour," neatly painted in black; and they will be appreciated by tourists who are anxious to know the name of the city they are about to enter, as well as the location of its limits.

Quite a few foreign cars are noticed in our midst these days, and undoubtedly there will be a great many more as soon as the roads are improved. There is no reasan why Peterborough should not become the gateway to the Kawartha Lake system, which for scenic beauty, fishing and general holidaying has no equal anywhere in the world.

HOURS AT POST OFFICE FOR MONDAY CIVIC HOLIDAY

On Civic Holiday, Monday, August 11th, the Post Office will be closed except between the hours of 10.30 a.m. and 12.30 p.m., during which period the lobby of the post office will be open, postage stamps will be on sale and the general delivery and registration wickets will be open. There will be no delivery by letter carrier and all outgoing mails due for despatch after noon on that date will be closed at that hour. All money order, savings bank and postal note wickets will be closed. There will be two street collections only, made from the street letter boxes, commencing at 8.30 a.m. and 9 p.m.

SEVENTY-FIVE MEN NOW AT WORK ON NEW BRIDGE SITE

The scene of the new Hunter street bridge is a busy sight now. About seventy-five men are now employed, and more are being added daily to hurry the work along. Carpenters are busy erecting a cement house, and a large gang of diggers is employed excavating for the retaining wall on the eastern approach. Every effort is being made to rush the work and the steam mixers will be put into operation in a few days.

CAUGHT HUGE LUNGE

Weighs 28½ Pounds—Fish Measures 4 Feet, 3 Inches.

Lindsay, August 6.—To Mr. W. Bruce of Lindsay goes the honor of landing the largest maskinonge of the season, namely, a fish measuring four feet three inches, 20-inch girth and weighing 28½ pounds. It was one of the largest members of the piscatorial tribe ever gaffed out of Sturgeon Lake. And needless to say, Mr. Bruce feels justly proud of his catch. The monster, which no doubt could easily swallow a five-pound fish, so big is its mouth, was caught while trowling in the vicinity of Sandy Point, and on Sunday and Monday it was the wonder of the Point. It is understood that Mr Bruce intends sending the entire lunge to Toronto to have it mounted.

PUNISH PROFITEERING IN THE MOTHER COUNTRY

PENALTIES OF SIX MONTHS' IMPRISONMENT OR $1,000 FINE TO BE IMPOSED.

London, Aug. 6. — Sir Auckland Geddes, minister of reconstruction announced today in the House of Commons sitting as a committee of inquiry into the high cost of living, that it is proposed to establish a central authority to deal with profiteering.

He was asked whether an attempt would be made to make profiteers disgorge, and his reply was the question of specific action was now under consideration. The tribunal to be set up would have power to inflict penalties of six months' imprisonment or a fine of 1000. The Commons would not adjourn, he said until there was some power in the hands of the Government to deal with profiteering.

OBITUARY

MRS. THOMAS JEWITT.

The death occurred yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her late home, 505 Patterson street, of Mrs. Thomas Jewitt (nee Maria Davidson), in her 58th year.

Deceased was a lifelong resident of Peterborough.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her husband, one son, Edward, of Auburn, N. Y.

The funeral will leave the family residence, 505 Patterson street, at 2 o'clock and proceed to Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

LICENSES OVERDUE ON FIRST OF AUGUST 1919

MUST BE RENEWED AT ONCE OR HOLDERS WILL BE SUMMONSED.

The Police Department issue a warning to the holder of various city licenses which were overdue on the 1st of August, 1919, namely, eating houses, milk, express, theatres, scavengers, bakers, cab, auto livery, and unless these licenses are renewed immediately a summons will await the holder.

The holder of the above mentioned licenses have been notified once already regarding their licenses being overdue and being notified once ought to be sufficient.

Every person who holds a City License of any kind should look it over and see if his license is one of the licenses overdue as the Police Department does not want to mention the names in the press of the persons whose licenses are overdue.

If the Holder of any of the above mentioned licenses is out of business or has sold his business he should notify the Police Department at once.

CONTEST LIES BETWEEN W. S. FIELDING GRAHAM, MACK. KING AND MACKENZIE

Result of Balloting For New Liberal Leader May Be Known at Seven or Eight O'clock This Evening No Foundation For Rumor That Fielding Will Drop Out---Fisher Proposes Provision Of Capital to Aid Agricuture

(From Saturday's Daily.)

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—Unless there are some complimentary nominations the contest for the Liberal leadership will lie between Fielding, Graham, MacKenzie King and D. D. McKenzie. The convention is seething with excitement over leadership race, and while these four candidates are all expected to poll a heavy vote, there is absolute lack of certainty as to who is most likely to be winner. Rumors of last night that Fielding might retire owing to opposition of his candidature from a considerable section of the Quebec delegation, has not materialized, and it is authoritatively stated this morning that Fielding will be nominated. One of his supporters from Quebec stated this morning that Fielding would get a large vote from that province.

It is expected there will be between eleven and twelve hundred delegates present with the right to vote. After the fourth ballot without result, the lowest candidate will be dropped..

Capital for Agriculture.

At the opening of the convention this morning a resolution was moved by Hon. Sydney Fisher, favoring encouragement of agriculture.

Mr. Fisher's resolution proposes the use of national credit to provide capital for agriculture at lowest possible rates, a great extension of government elevators and cold storage transportation facilities and distribution of fertilisers by the government at lowest possible cost, and adaptation of Canada's banking system to issuance of loans on lands and live stock.

Even if as many as five ballots are required to elect a new Liberal leader, the convention managers are hopeful that a result will be known by seven or eight o'clock this evening. Arrangements for taking and counting the vote, and for announcing its result are very complete. Different provincial delegations met at two o'clck this afternoon in their committee rooms where ballot books were distributed. Balloting began at three thirty.

It is possible that one candidate may receive a majority of votes cast on the second or third ballot, in which case the result will be known at a comparatively early hour. There is, of course, the possibility that ballots may be necessary with all four candidates' names on the papers, and three eliminating ballots. But what is expected, is that the lower candidates will drop out early in the contest, and a final vote be reached on the third or fourth ballot.

A resolution affirming faith of Liberals in a reciprocity pact and expressing the hope that its defeat there will not be repeated by the Washington Government, gave Hon. Fielding his first opportunity of being heard by the delegates to the convention. He received as good a reception as was accorded to other candidates for leadership, who all spoke last night.

Immense Campaign Fund.

Mr. Fielding asserted that in 1911 Conservatives as well as Liberals knew improved relations with the United States would be a good thing for Canada, but the reciprocity pact was defeated for political reasons. He had too much respect for Sir Robert Borden to think that the Prime Minister did not know that reciprocity would be a good thing for the country, but the then leader of the Opposition had been tempted and interests opposed to reciprocity had defeated it with the aid of a campaign found so large that not all of it could be absorbed in the contest.

Re-establishment and Pensions.

After adjournment for lunch the convention reassembly at two o'clock. During progress of the balloting this afternoon consideration is being given to a resolution respecting civil re-establishment and pensions. In this resolution cash grants for soldiers are favored, the education of returned soldiers should be placed in hands of competent educationists, soldiers with health impaired by war service should have life assurance made available to them. Pensions are demanded, which will permit of a comfortable standard of living, and a more liberal pension law is advocated.

RE-OPENING OF APPOINTMENT COST ACCOUNTANT DEMANDED

G.W.V.A. Contend Interests of City Were Discriminated Against-Allege Six Aldermen Committed Themselves to Appointment of Alex Elliott Without First Cosiderating Qualifications of Others

At a special session of the Great War Veterans Association last night, the following resolution was moved by William Stanley, seconded by Frederick A. Dainton, and carried unanimously:

RESOLVED—That we, the members of the Peterborough Branch, of the G. W. V. A. and returned soldiers of the City of Peterborough, in special session assembled, do hereby place ourselves on record as being bitterly opposed to the unfair and undemocratic action as shown by the City Council in appointing a cost accountant for the Hunter Street Bridge.

AND WHEREAS we understand six aldermen of the city council had pledged themselves to support Mr. Alex Elliott for the position without first taking into serious consideration the qualifications of all other applicants. Therefore we consider they were not acting in the best interests of the ratepayers and citizens in general, and in our opinion we consider the whole matter was a framed job.

AND WHEREAS we understand that a Mr. Perks, a returned soldier, and whose occupation is civil engineering, was an applicant for the said position and whose qualifications we believe were equal if not better than those of Mr. Chas. Elliott. We therefore consider the returned soldier should have been given the preference in the appointment.

THEREFORE We ask the support of the ratepayers and citizens in general in demanding that a thorough investigation be made into qualifications of all applicants for the position, and that where the returned soldier has better qualifications or equal he should be given the preference in the appointment. We also call upon the city council to have published in the local press the names of those aldermen who voted for the appointment of the cost accountant for the bridge.

RESOLVED—That in the event of the City Council refusing to have the whole matter re-opened up and a just consideration given to the qualifications of all the other applications, we pledge ourselves to use all our energy and determination and all means at our disposal, to oppose

TWENTY-FIVE MAY HAVE DROWNED

Schooner and Steamer Collide Near St. Fierre in Heavy Fog Hanging Off Coast.

SCHOONER "GALLIA" SINKS

Probably Only Seven Survivors Out of a Crew of Thirty Persons---No Definite News Available.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 7.—Twenty-five people may have lost their lives in a collision which occurred during the night between the steamer "Warwitch," bound for North Sydney, from Wabana, Newfoundland, and the schoner "Gallia" from Concape, France with St. Pierre, as her destination.

It is believed the accident occurred very close to St. Pierre and was due to heavy fogs which have been hanging off the coast for several days. Nothing definite is known of the loss of life besides the names of seven survivors, which indicate that the schooner with probably 30 persons aboard, sank and 7 survivors were rescued by the "Warwitch."

AGED PETERBORO COUPLE KILLED

Terribly Mutilated by C. P. R. Engine at Bridge Over Don River, Riverdale, Toronto.

LIVED HERE NEARLY 60 YEARS

Three Cars Passed Over Man's Body---Both Almost Instantly Killed---No Protecting Gates at This Point.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kadie Bell, residents in Peterborough nearly 60 years, were almost instantly killed by a C. P. R. shunting engine, at the entrance to the foot bridge across the Don river at Riverdale Toronto, Tuesday.

The aged couple were dead when the train stopped and the crew reached them. Registration cards [illegible] the victims of the tragedy disclosed their identity as John Kadie Bell aged 7[illegible] years, 2390 Gerrard street, E., and Maria Elizabeth Bell, aged 78 years 70 Osborne avenue, Toronto.

Old Peterborough Boy.

For nearly sixty years Mr. Bell had been a resident of Peterborough, acting as bookkeeper in the lumbering business, and also as Government cutter. He was an employee of the Alfred McDonald estate, South City, for years, his duties being to measure all logs and timber that passed through the mill. Deceased is characterized by all who knew him as an upright honorable man, enjoying the fullest measure of esteem and respect of a host of friends and acquaintances. His Peterborough home was on Harvey street.

Terribly Mutilated.

Three cars passed over the man's body, terribly mutilating his body. Mrs. Bell was thrown fifteen yards, but she lived in an unconscious state for fifteen minutes after being struck.

The police say that the couple had just passed west over the bridge toward the tracks. These are entirely devoid of any protecting gates, and guarded only by a flagman. Passing behind three standing freight cars near the bridge, the couple walked toward the second track just as the shuntin train was backing in that direction. The ringing of the engine or the shouts of the flagman they did not hear. It was only when the train was within a few feet of him, that the man, became apprised of his danger, but he took a step forward instead of back. The woman, who was farthest from the train, was ignorant of its approach. The rear of the tender of the engine struck Mr. Bell, who was carried fifty yards under the wheels of the cars. Mrs. Bell was thrown to one side.

In Toronto Three Years.

Mr. Bell had been a resident in Toronto the past three years, living with his son, Herbert, at 2390 Gerrard street east. Mrs. Bell was stopping with her daughter at 70 Osborne avenue. They went out together Tuesday night to attend the band concert given by the 48th Highlands Band at Riverdale Park. Mr. Bell did not want to go as he was somewhat deaf.

Besides their son at 2390 Gerrard street west, Mr. and Mrs. Bell are survived by two sons, Alfred, at 38 Annis avenue, and Percy in Moose Jaw, and four daughters Mrs. Lindo, 16 Harvie ave., Mrs. Bradford, 70 Osborne ave., and Misses Beatrice and Blara, both nurses, of Toronto.

IMPORTANT JUDGMENT

Quebec Judge Rules That All M. S. A. Exemptions Should Stand.

Montreal, Aug. 6. — A judgment which may have an important bearing upon all exemption cases under the Military Service Act, is that it questions the legality of an order-in-Council cancelling exemptions which been duly and legally granted under the letter of the Act, was handed down by Judge Leet yesterday. The judgment says that no order-in-Council could abrogate penalties imposed under the M.S.A. and likewise should not be allowed to cancel exemptions granted.

BOLSHEVIKS RISE IN BELLAIRE, OHIO

Two Hundred Strikers Threaten Battle, Face Posse and Prepare to Rush Coal Mine.

FIRE TO KILL ORDER GIVEN

Score of Deputy Sheriffs, Armed With Riot Guns, on Scene to Protect Mines at All Cost.

Bellaire, O., Aug. 6.—Bolshevism, which has been smoldering for some time among the foreign miners of Belmont county, burst into flame today at the Fort Pitt coal mine, south of this city, when 200 radical workmen clashed with 100 other miners who refused to join them in a strike for a six-hour day and large wage increases.

As a result a score of deputy Sheriffs, armed with riot guns, were ordered to the mine this afternoon, and federal authorities are investigating the trouble.

Calls for Protection.

Sheriff John W. Osburn received a hurry call this morning from the Central Coal Company which owns the mine, for aid in subduing rioting and sent the deputies to the scene with orders to shoot to kill, if attacked.

On the arrival of the officers, the strikers retreated to a hill near by, where, it is said, they planned to make an atack on the mine. Up to 2 p.m. however, no attempt had been made.

Strikers Defy Union.

The action of the strikers, it is said, is in defiance of the United Mine Workers who, at their recent state convention here, adopted resolutions condemning bolshevism and favoring the expulsion of all members of bolshevist tendencies.

Russian agents, it is said, have been working among miners of the Bellaire district for some time.

POTASH MINERS STRIKE

Latest German Trouble Almost as Important as Coal Uprisings.

Madgeburg, Aug. 7.—A general strike has been begun in the potash mines through the Stassfurt district. The strike is almost as important as the uprisings in the coal regions, for potash is one of Germany's remaining raw products which is urgently needed for export and for fertilizing purposes.

PROTEST FROM LEATHER MEN

Deputation to Wait on Cabinet Re Embargo on Hides and Leather.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—Consequent upon the Government's action of placing an embargo on the export of hides and leather, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association of Toronto is sending a deputation here to confer with the Cabinet today. It is understood that the personnel of the deputation will consist of several leading Canadian tanners and leather manufacturers.

LIBERAL TARIFF PLATFORM

Ottawa, Aug. 6. The tariff resolution which was carried this evening in the Liberal Convention is as follows:

That the best interests of Canada demand that substantial reductions of the burdens of Customs taxation be made with a view to the accomplishing of two purposes of the highest importance:

First—Diminishing the very high cost of living which presses so severely on the masses of the people.

Second - Reducing the cost of the instruments of production in the industries based on the national resources of the Dominion, the vigorous development of which is essential to the progress and prosperity of our country.

That, to these ends, wheat, wheat flour and all products of wheat; the prinicpal articles of food; far mimplements and machin farm tractors, mining, flour, and sawill machinery and repair parts thereof; rough and dressed lumber; gasoline, illuminating, lubicating and fuel oil; nets, net-twines and fishermen's equipments; cements and fertilizers, sholu dbe free from Customs duties, as well as the raw material entering into the same.

That a revision downwards of the tariff should be made whereby substantial reductions should be effected in the duties on wearing apparel and footwear, and on other articles of general consumption other than luxuries) as well as on the raw material entering into the manufacture of the same.

That the British preference be increased to 5 per cent of the general tariff.

And the Liberal party hereby pledges itself to implement by legislation the provisions of this resolution when returned to power.

ANARCHY EXISTS IN CHICAGO MUST SURELY BE STAMPED OUT

Judge Crow Declares Hoodlums Participating in Mob Violence at Chicago Riots Should Hang---Would be Great Calamity Were Grand Jurors To Show Discrimination

Chicago, Aug. 6. — Hanging of hoodlums who participate in mob violence such as characterized the race trouble on the south side, was urged before the special grand jury sworn to investigate the riots, by Judge Robert E. Crowe in the Criminal Court today.

The judge's charge to the grand jurors was one of the sternest heard in years. He characterized the conditions existing in Chicago as anarchy and exhorted the inquisitors to deal with it as anarchy. He referred to the hanging of Spies, Parsons and the other anarchists of Haymarket Square years ago and declared that those responsible for the recent murders on the south side should be similarly dealt with regardless of color.

"Anarchy exists in Chicago at the present time," said the court, "and it is the duty of you jurymen to stamp it out through the most effective means known to the law and that is by the indictment of those guilty.

For Equal Opportunity

"I am firmly convinced on the other hand, that prejudice and hate will be lessened and the problem more nearly solved by the establishment of an equality of opportunity. This does not mean the indiscrminate mixing of whites and negroes in residential neighborhoods will result. In fact the very opposite will occur. 'Racial separateness,' as I think it should be correctly termed will work itself out spontaneously if the opportunity is given it.

No Discrimination

"It would be a public calamity were any discrimination by any grand juror or any court in favor of any hoodlums who may in any way be responsible for the murders which have been committed in these riots. Evidence will be presented to you by the state's attorney from time to time and indictments should be voted in every case where there is warrant for it.

On the part of the judiciary I promise that prompt trials will be given those who are indicted.

"At this time I also want to appeal to all persons to bring any evidence they may have in these cases to the attention of the state's attorney. It is the duty of the public to assist wherever possible in this crisis and I hope that this help will be given. A great many people are being deprived of their liberty because of being prevented from going freely about their business because of this condition, and it should cease immediately. Teach these anarchists who are responsible the lesson that was taught a lot of similar hoodlums through the execution of the Haymarket square anarchists."

All Slayers, Says Judge

Judge Crowe declared that all persons who participated in riots where victims were killed are guilty of murder whether they did the actual slaying or not, and should be punished accordingly. As soon as the judge had finished his charge the grand jurors went immediately to their room on the sixth floor and organized.

NEW HUNGARIAN GOVT. HEADED BY JULES PEIDLL OVERTHROWN

Archduke Joseph Establishes New Ministry—Members of Social Democratic Government Arrested--- New Head of Hungary a Warrior

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Aug. 7.—The Peace Conference was advised today that the Hungarian Cabinet, headed by Jules Peidll, had been overthrown and that Archduke Jobeph had established a ministry in Budapest. Advices to the conference stated that Roumanian forces had crossed Danube into business section of Budapest, and were seizing supplies, preparing to ship them to Roumania.

Endorsed by Entente.

The Entente mission in Budapest delegated all governmental authority, to Archduke Joseph tonight, when the Peidll Government resigned.

Archduke a Warrior.

Archduke Joseph was commander of Austro-Hungarian forces on the southern section of the eastern battle front, during the first two years of the great war. He was born in 1872.

Social-Democrats Arrested.

Messages to the conference regarding new cabinet, stated that at six p.m. yesterday members of the Social-Democratic Government, while they were in session at the National Palace, were arrested by the Hungarian police. The cop data was carried out without disorder.

LINDSAY CHILD BADLY BURNED

HAD ACCESS TO MATCHES AND SUCCEEDED IN LIGHTING ONE.

On Tuesday morning the little infant son of Mr. Reginald Farthing, No 30 Colborne street, Lindsay, had a narrow escape from burning to death. It seems that the little fellow, while his mother was dressing, in some manner got hold of some matches and going outside succeeded in lighting one. The flame from the match caught fire on his nightgown and the youngster was painfully burned about the legs and lower part of the body.

Every hope is entertained that with care and attention the little tot, who is but two years old, will recover. He is a real sunbeam in the home and his little playmates hope and pray for his speedy recovery.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

THURSDAY, AUGUST 7, 1919

PETERBOROUGH AND THE TARIFF.

THE WESTERN DELEGATES to the Liberal convention at Ottawa insist that the tariff on imports from England, which already enjoy a preference over those from any other country, shall be cut in two. The Globe argues that the Canadian manufacturers of woollen goods has nothing to fear from such a reduction. The cost of production, labor included, has gone up in Great Britain since the beginning of the war, so that a tariff cut by fifty per cent. will afford the Canadians just as much protection as did the pre-war schedule. of the cost of production, labor included, has gone up as a result of the war, that increase will be only temporary. The old rate of wages will prevail just as soon as British industry is re-established. Goods will be produced in England cheaper than in any other country in the world where woollen products are manufactured. A reduction of the tariff as drastic as that proposed by the Western delegates will ruin the woollen industry in Canada. A cut of fifty per cent. in the tariff would mean a corresponding decrease in the wages of the employes, and everyone who is at all familiar with the subject knows that Canadian wage earners could not live under such conditions. The threatened lowering of the tariff affects the manufacturer, and to a still greater degree the workingman. It means loss of business for the one and the actual loss of livelihood for the other.

Just at this time of all others, Peterborough is interested in this phase of the tariff discussion. Peterborough now has an opportunity to become the centre of the woollen industry of Canada. Two of the largest mills in the country are located here, and have recently been amalgamated and taken over by the company that really controls the business. This city is to be made the headquarters of the concern, and Peterborough is likely to enter upon the greatest industrial boom in its history. That is, of course, provided there is no tinkering with the tariff. Let the rate of duty on woollen goods be pared down to suit the views of the Western delegates, and the industry will collapse. The greatest opportunity that Peterborough has ever had for industrial prominence would be lost. That is the real situation as it confronts the city today.

In order to placate the selfish West the Liberal party may consent to a measure of reduction in this section of the tariff. Still, the interests of the country as a whole and the welfare of the workingmen of Canada should be held in higher esteem, should be deemed of vastly more importance than the integrity of a political party intent on acquiring office at any cost.

The woollen industry is not the only local enterprise that is threatened by this talk of tariff reduction. The manufacturers of agricultural machinery are menaced from the same quarter. The West insists on free farm machinery, even though such a policy would ruin half the industries, and cripple the remainder, engaged in that line of manufacturing.

Every city in Ontario is directly interested in this tariff discussion, Peterborough especially so because of the number of industries already established and those in immediate prospect.

A CHANCE FOR PRIVATE ENTERPRISE.

THE EMPLOYES of the Toronto street railway, a private corporation whose franchise has a scant two years to run, recently appealed for an increase in wages that would raise the operating expenses of the road thousands of dollars a month. The company declared that the present receipts would not stand another levy unless the city gave them permission to raise the rate of fare. This proposition was rejected, and the result was a strike, the men going back to work when a board of conciliation was appointed to adjust the differences.

This board of conciliation has just recommended that the company be allowed to charge a straight fare of five cents before they be required to add to the wages of their employes. There the matter rests at present. Toronto citizens, however, appear to be of the opinion that they are already paying enough for the kind of service they are getting.

The company appears to have been perfectly fair and above board in this matter. The books of the concern were open to the members of the board and to expert accountants chosen by them. Their contention of receipts out of all proportion to expenditures that it was impossible to foresee seems to have been well founded. In short, the company made out a case.

A corporation takes a franchise, agreeing for a number of years to work under certain conditions, to give a service at a certain fixed price. The wages paid twenty years ago were less than half what they are today. Other expenses have increased in a like ratio. Business may have grown, but not in the same proportion, all things considered. The price of the finished product or of the public service rendered remains stationary. When the company complains of conditions, the old charge is made that the corporation is unreasonable in its demands.

Why hold even a private concern to a cast-iron agreement made two or three decades ago when the most astute business man was unable to forecast, even approximately, conditions that have since arisen, if insisting on the terms of the contract plunges the concern into bankruptcy or makes it impossible for them to pay living wages? Even in the case of public ownership the same remedy is applied. When the receipts fail to balance with the outlay, the cost of the service is raised. This has already been demonstrated in the case of state-owned roads and other public utilities. Any private concern is entitled to the same consideration as that extended to the management of an enterprise under public ownership.

When the receipts of the Peterborough street railway, under public ownership at that, fell off, compared with the outgo, in order to meet an increase in the wage scale, the rate of fare was raised, with still another boost in prospect. The gander and the goose should be served with the same variety of sauce.

ONE WAY TO DEAL WITH VAGRANCY.

CHATHAM HAS SET a new pace in dealing with the vagrant stranger who wanders within its gates. A man unknown to the police and the citizens found himself in the Maple City the other day. He appeared to have no regular business, no means of support visible to the official eye. Consequently he was arrested on suspicion.

When searched at the police station the stranger was found to be seized and possessed of $177 in legal currency, a bank book that showed a balance of $1700, thirty-nine jackknives, ten razors, a flashlight, three mouthorgans and other articles too numerous to catalogue. The paraphernalia did not indicate a dangerous character, although the possession of the mouthorgans may have denoted a man likely to become a harmless public nuisance if he put the instruments in commission. The amount of available funds should have been sufficient to maintain a stranger in comparative comfort even in Cahtham for several months, the high cost of living notwithstanding.

Still, by some process peculiar to the magisterial mind, the prisoner was deemed a vagrant in the meaning of the Act and was given his choice between paying a fine of $9.50 or spending two months in jail. He paid the fine and was then ordered out of town. The stranger told the police that he made his living by selling the articles found in his possession, but his entire stock-in-trade was ruthlessly confiscated. Apart from the fine, however, no further official appropriation was made of his cash capital.

Chatham fails to show the modern spirit of civic thrift. The mistake made was in chasing a capitalist out of town. By permitting him to remain, the city would have added to its revenue by arresting him daily as a vagrant and repeating the performance until his money was exhausted. Then having drained him dry, they could have passed him on to some other municipality.

FOR THIS MEMORY WILL REMAIN.

HENRY FORD may not know the difference between a mobile army and a large army. He may have in mind no clearer definition of parallelogram than O'Connell's fish wife had.

But Henry Ford had the heart and the brain to conceive a great idea. He visualized the unspeakable horrors of uncountable millions of men moving in unending procession into an inferno of destruction. There was ever before him myriads of Rachels nightly bedewing their pillows with tears for sons who would return no more. And Henry Ford, to the measure of his ability, sought to do his part towards ending all this.

For what he endeavored in these things Henry Ford will be remembered when the car that bears his name and men whose one present claim to fame is the amount of blood by which their hands are stained have passed into oblivion together.

RELIGION OF PERSONAL ENDEAVOR

(By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory.)

"And when He saw the multitude, He was moved with compassion on them."

Perhaps the one word of all others that comes nearest to being a true and faithful revelation of the character, not alone of Jesus, but of all his "brothers of the spirit" the world over and the ages through, is that word "compassion."

Jesus was in no sense a theologian or philosopher. Of metaphysics He knew nothing. First, last and all the time He was a philanthropist—a lover of His fellow-men.

For logic-chopping and intellectual somersaulting he had nothing but contempt, but He was always ready to reach out His hand to the poor fellow who needed help.

When the "wise men" saw a crowd of their fellow human beings the first thought with them was: "How can we convert those people to our school? How can we make them Stoics, or Pythagoreans, or Epicureans, or Pharisees or Sadducees?" But when Jesus saw the multitude He "had compassion on them."

The old moldy-hearted scholastics might talk themselves blind over their creeds and symbols, their cabalistic signs and syllogisms, but while the savants were discussing their abstractions the Big Brother was out working among the poor, the sick, the sinful, the sorrowing, trying with all His might to put a little more light into their darkness, a little more gladness into their lives.

He did not send dapper representatives to say that He had arrived and that He hoped men would profit by His coming—He went Himself. He got into personal touch with all who needed His help. He stood breast to breast and heart to heart with the one who was down and out, and in such direct way got him up again.

In a word, the religion of the Carpenter's Son was from start to finish the riligion of personal endeavor.

And right here we may find the explanation of the wonderful work that is being done by the Salvation Army.

The Salvation Army goes at men as Jesus went at them—in person. It does not send out word to men to come—it goes out after them.

And it goes after them in the good lod human way, not with doctrine and ritual, but with direct, real, practical help.

Far be it from me to attempt to belittle the work of the churches, but while the churches are rendering their fine music and echoing their fine sermons, the Salvation Army folks are out among the people, buttonholing them, taking them by the arm, looking into their eyes, directly pleading with them to lead the better life.

I am not a pessimist, but I realize all the same how perfectly appalling are the conditions, especially in the great cities.

The prospect is quite enough to make the heart bleed—so many poor fellows "fainting, and scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd," mentally and spiritually blind, morally indifferent, hideous caricatures of humanity.

Lonely, forsaken, wretched, shut off from all helpful, ennobling influences, bereft of all true and genuine human sympathy, just waiting to die!

In the cities and larger towns there are millions of people who are regular attendants at the various churches. It is well. Let them keep on going to church. Beyond a doubt they are the better for it. But there is something else for these churchgoers to do—something immediate and urgent.

Let each one of these churchgoers say to himself something like this—and mean it, too: "I will constitute myself a committee of one, whose duty it shall be to go out and find some fellow human being whom I may help. And finding him, I will help him. I will catch hold of him and hold on to him with all the loving kindness of my soul until I get him into the sunshine where he will be happy and useful. I will give this brother of mine my money, if the money should be necessary, and more than that, I will give him myself, my time, my love, my warmest human sympathy and effort."

If such a resolution were made and carried out what good results would come!

How the downcast would lift up their eyes!

How the sorrowing would rejoice!

How the despondent and degraded would stand up full of hope, courage and self-respecting manhood!

Try it! Start the ball a-rolling. And watch for the glorious results.

THAT BUSINESS TAX

Editor Review: Controlling, if not owning 3,000 feet and some of it on the best business sites of the city, and paying no business tax. Business men of Peterborough, did you know this before, and if so, what are you doing to allow such a piece of injustice when some of us are too heavily taxed already, and this man, the bill poster with a big nerve, gets away without paying anything. Surely we should be able to bring pressure enough on the Council or whoever is responsible for this and bring this man to justice and see that he pays a proper portion of business tax, after obtaining such a large income from his business.

How do the Council or those responsible for the same figure this out, from $200 to $300 per year for a few square feet on George street and a man controlling some hundreds of feet on the same street, and quite a number of feet on one of the best business corners of the city, and paying nothing? What are we doing to have it put over us like this? The taxpayer, direct or indirect, should have a say in this, in addition to the business man, as what is short he has to pay direct or indirect. Just think of it! Tax payer, a man making a few thousand dollars a year, direct or indirect out of you, and then getting away without paying any business tax! It is evident that the man with a loud voice and big nerve can get away with something even in Peterborough where we are supposed to be much sharped than they are in Lindsay.

Business men and taxpayer, would it not be to your interest to look into this?

PLUCKY BATTLE WITH HUN SUB

GERMAN UNDERSEAS CRAFT DESTROYED WITH 23 OFFICERS AND MEN.

The story of a plucky battle with a big German submarine was told in a British prize court.

Charles Everard Hughes White, R.N., D.S.O., Lieutenant-Commander, on October 22, 1917, was in command of his Majesty's ship "Melampus," towing a seaplane lighter in the English Channel before a heavy southwesterly gale. At 12.15 p.m. the lighter broke adrift, and at 1.30 whilst securing the town again, a submarine was sighted five miles to the southward of Selsey Bill. The submarine was later found to be the German submarine "UC16." She was on the surface moving westward at high speed. The lighter was slipped with some difficulty, and the "Melampus" proceeded at full speed to attack the submarine. The ywere not observed until they had closed the submarine to within three-quarters of a mile. The submarine then dived rapidly, and the "Melampus" just missed rumming her.

The "Melampus" eased speed, and slipped both explosive paravanes, and towed them backward and forward in a broad zigzig course. Only one paravane dived and 35 minutes later hooked the submarine, and exploded immediately. Lieut. White then dropped three depth charges, and there were explosions.

Whilst the "Melampus" was steering another igzag course to ram the submarine if she re-appeared, large blisters of air bubbles, each 17 feet to 20 feet in diameter, broke surface at a spot aout 20 yards on the "Melampus's" beam.

The second paravane was then made to dive slowly, and was deeply towed across the spot, and fired from the ship. Oil was seen on the surface, but owing to the very high seas and the rising gale, it was impossible to stay on the scene, and nothing was picked up.

There is every reason to believe the submarine carried the complement usual with craft of its type of 25—23 officers and men, and three supernumeraries.

SCENES IN LYTELL PLAY TAKEN IN SANTA CRUZ

Many of the beauties of the semi-tropic island of Santa Cruz will be seen in "Blackie's Redemption," the latest Metro production in which Bert Lytell is starred and which will be shown at the Grand Theatre today, Friday and Saturday.

The picture shows the rugged coast and much of the magnificent grandeur of the interior of the island. Scenes of this kind were necessary to the production as, in the latter part of the story, where the beautiful romance of the play comes to a happy ending, Blackie, played by Mr. Leytell, and Mary Dawson, the girl of his heart, go to a tropical island for their long-deferred honeymoon.

The picture is replete with unusual and exciting incidents that end in a startling and surprising climax.

WHITE TRIBE IN CHINA HILLS

Are Said to Resemble Anglo-Saxons, and Are Noted for Their Ferocious Courage.

A tribe of white men whose chief characteristic is their ferocious courage, has been found in the western mountains of China by Dr. Joseph Beech, president of the West China Union university, at Changta. Doctor Beach, who recently arrived in this country to aid in the Methodist Episcopal centenary campaign for $85,000,000 for missionary work at home and abroad, tells also of another race of white men, who greatly resemble Bohemians, to be found in the great hills.

"There are 40 or 50 differant tribes Doctor Beech said, "all speaking different languages and all different in physical appearance in the mountains of west and southwest Szechuen. On our maps these tribes are called a part of China, but they are really independent, and have fought the Chinese from time immemorial.

"This tribe, resembling Anglo-Saxons, lives in the district of Sung Pan. It is described to me as consisting of large men whose bravery is considered a marvel by the Chinese. "They never run away," a Chinese friend told me. "They love to fight."

Taking Out the Squirt.

Relief is in sight for the man who, hurrying through his breakfast to get downtown, has had to run for the car with one eye blinded by a generous stream of very acidy juice which sprang out of his grape fruit as he applied an overamount of pressure. Department of agriculture experts have taken out the squirt, and incidentally some of the other qualities of the grape fruit which prevented it from becoming as popular as it might otherwise have been. The new fruit has been produced by crossing the grape fruit with the tangerine orange and it is called the tangelo. It is described as being not nearly so sharp in taste as the grape fruit and as resembling a ripe orange. It requires no sugar and the pulp is so tender that it may be removed with a spoon without having previously cut the segments.

Music in the Home

THE VALUE OF MUSIC IN THE FARM HOME

Music is an elemental part of life—as Gladstone has said, "one of the most forcible instruments for training the mind and spirit of man,' and the advantages of this most charming of arts in Canadian farm home life must be obvious to all. Music has made enormous strides in its evolution as an art, and in its effects upon emotions and morals of the nation. The family life of a farmer's home which should make music one of its chief recreations, is affected in many ways, a closer bond of union, of affection being found among its members. Happy the child whose lot is cast in joyous musical atmosphere. There is thus implanted in his inner being a something which will help him to go through many trials with a brave and an unconquerable hope and faith. If mothers would but understand the difference between music as a performance and music as a life element, they would not hesitate to give the children every possible chance to acquire a taste for this art which more than all the others stirs the vital forces by which one lives.

One of the first steps in arousing an appreciation of music is to lead a child to listen. How much stress is laid in educational schemes upon teaching a child to observe, to see; how little is a rule made dominant and much enjoyment is lost which a trained sense of hearing might bring. The greater part of children's time is spent in elaborate impersonation and make-believe, and the entire basis of their education is acquired through this directly assimilative faculty. This applies most forcibly to music and gives to those who have the care of children an almost unlimited opportunity for developing musical expression. The charm of music is most far reaching with the child who is either endowed by nature with the ability to respond to musical influences or has been trained in ear and heart to feel its effect and in the latter case the sound reproducing machines of the modern day are playing an important part. Their value and efficiency within certain limits cannot be denied. Within recent years wonderful improvements have been made in the method of recording and reproducing, and where the best machines procured and reproductions of the best artists provided, they will be found a very valuable aid in training a child's sense of hearing to an appreciation of music. The reproductions of the world's best artists are available, and only such should find favor in the home. This phase of the question is deserving of careful consideration, but with cautious discrimination in the selection of machines and records these forms of music will be found advantageous in training the musical tastes of the young, provided, of course, they are not permitted to substitute the actual study of music. That the Canadian farmer is fully alive to the value of music in his home is shown by the ever increasing demand for reproducing instruments.

MUSIC IN INDUSTRY

The philosophy of music in industries is as old as the human race, but until recent years it has never enjoyed any continued activity. One of the most pronounced developments of the great war is the ease with which great masses in the industries of the United States and elsewhere, are now practicipating in singing. To those who are fully alive to the trend of events, this is a very significant thing and one which emphasizes the fact that music is a potent socializing medium, a medium which must be taken into account in the endeavor to settle the unrest which is daily making itself more and more manifest.

Community singing is an avenue through which we can give fullest expression to our pent-up thoughts and innermost feelings, and the more we exercise our musical senses through this medium, the greater will be our ability to attune ourselves to a higher level of thought and work. It has been said that "a singing man never grows old," and those who would hold back in the movement to promote music into industry, need to be constantly reminded of this and of the fact that a man who has had recreation through singing will produce a better quality of labor.

Indeed the day has gone past when workers will be willing to toil all day without any relief from the monotony of their job. They are going to demand relaxation, and get it. The introduction of music into industry is a cultural element that is fast going to permeate the life of the nation. It will slowly but surely make progress, and its influence will be like the ripples on a lake, caused by the dropping of a stone into the water, the last wave finding its way to the most remote parts of the shore.

The fostering of music in the work-a-day world is not alone an element of pleasure, for it stimulates the participants to a sense of imagination and rhythm. it makes them heirs to a sense of time that proves practical in their daily lfe and work. Singing at the noon hour has been found to reduce much of the monotony of daily work, and not only that, but it has sound physiological reasons for its beneficial effect.

When a monotonous task is carried on hour after hour without any appreciable change of duty, there must be a certain amount of fatigue poison gathered around the brain centres and muscles in particular use, hence it follows that anything which will relieve the consequent congestion and at the same time raise the spirits, as in singing, is of a decidedly beneficial effect. Music is the universal language, and in addition to being a promoter of a better physique as a consequence of deeper breathing induced by singing, it is a very big social factor, one of the most potential in welding together the strands of community life. Singing in industry may not be the solution of industrial troubles, but it goes a long way towards bringing employers and employees together in an endeavor to settle their differences; it gives them an understanding of their common humanity.

ENHANCING PUPILS' PROGRESS

Possibly the most optimistic of piano teachers fails to realize the immeasureable difference that will be apparent in their pupils' progress by having credit given for practice. The ours the pupil will find time for practice will be doubled, nay, trebled. The worth and dignity of music will be incalculably enhanced in the young mind. No longer will the study of music be relegated to time when the student is exhausted physically and mentally, but it is to be acknowledged as worthy to stand side by side with mathematics as an exact science. It is to take its place as the peer of poetry for it is imagination, fancy; it embodies, as no other study, all that is wonderful, most beautiful in life.

TWO CLASSES OF STUDENTS

Students naturally fall into two classes when we come to consider the question of music in the college; those possessing musical aptitude, and others. In colleges that differentiation will carry through the entire four years. The first class embraces those in whom aptitude for music is inherent, who have a natural capacity and love for the art. Now every child has the right to the fullest development of every capacity including music. To crowd out with other things the pleasurable eqercise of that capacity is simply bad economy. Education is a branch of economics; it is the economy of experience. If only from the point of view of economy let us develop a child's every capacity. If the natural aptitude is for music develop that aptitude. What would be thought of a farmer whose land was particularly adapted to the growing of apple trees, but who insisted upon utilizing it to raise pigs?

CAPITALIZE THEIR CURIOSITY

Curiosity! If it had not been for the blessed vice of curiosity the world would never have progressed. It has been said that certain Oriental nations which seem to lack in curiosity are the ones which go ahead the slowest. If it had not been for human curiosity America might never have been discovered and the North Pole never found.

Why do not teachers employ this principle of curiosity more? Children love to find out things for themselves. Let them ramble over the keyboard and make up major and minor triads, starting from each of the white and each of the black keys. Their ears and sense of measurement will guide them.

great fun, and the children will gain, unconsciously, a great deal of useful information which, later, can be correlated and utilized. Call this camouflaged practice, if you will—it produces results—that is enough.

RELATION OF PARENTS TO CHILD'S MUSIC STUDY

It is a big job to be a sensible parent. A good many people come to be parents sooner or later; but how many apply the same careful consideration to this "job" that a good business man does to the details of his business?

Contining our remarks to the matter of a child's musical education the wise parent will analyze, as far as possible, a child's natural tendencies before choosing the instrument he is set to learn to play. Many a good violinist has been spoilt to make a good pianist and vice versa.

The wise parent will not break into a child's lessons for so long periods as to allow the gain that has been made to evaporate. "Evaporate" is just the word for the case as every teacher will admit.

The student who drops his music in June and takes it up in October generally has to spend two months getting back to where he was in June. This is not only a loss of the pupil and to the teacher but is a disinct financial loss to the parent. A much better plan would be to give the student two week's vacation from his music at the close of the school year and two weeks at the opening of school in the fall. The intervening period should see the lessons going on as usual and the joys of summer vacation time should not be permitted to debilitate the practice. The wise parent will see that the practice hour is properly used through the summer as in the other times of the year.

William Byrd, the early English composer, of both sacred and seculiar works enjoyed the curious trading privilege of being one of the few persons licensed to vend in music paper and to print music.

The impression that the French Horn is too difficult for the average person to learn to play it is not well founded. The French Horn does not require as much breath pressure and lip tension as the cornet.

The most popular instrument with the Greeks was the flute. The players on the flute were paid extravagant sums for their performances while the cost of their instruments was so high that no persons but the wealthy could afford them.

Sacred music was first fostered in England by the nobles who maintained private chapels, each of which had its retinue of singing men and boys. The former were not only accomplished singers but were often organists who took, each in his turn, the seat at the chapel organ.

In early times the Chinese had three types of flute—the straight flute, the cross flute with the blowhole in the centre of the instrument, and a collection of bamboo reeds of different lengths fastened side by side and blown into as you would into hollow keys.

Uncle Sam Returns Glasses.

As several correspondents have already revealed by means of appreciative letters, the field glasses which the government was forced to "borrow" for the use of its sailors when it went into the war are beginning to come back to their original owners—and to come back almost infinitely increased in value by the marks of hard handling which most of them bear.

For thus these once prosaic utensils have been made into precious relics and souvenirs. Every mark and mar and stain on them is proof that they have helped to win the great victory, and to have one of these war-worn treasures is also evidence that its possessor made a willing sacrifice, small but real, when a need of his country was brought to his attention.—New York Times.

Feeding the Doughboys.

Food stores for the army on hand in the United States, its possessions, France, and in transit to France on Jan. 1, 1919, were valued at $300,000,000. At the time of the signing of the armistice approximately 10,000,000 pounds of food were being consumed by our troops in France each day, and there were on hand in France at that time 1,000,000,000 pounds of food in reserve. All this food has been transported on an average of 5,000 miles. It is estimated by the subsistence division that 3,000,000,000 meals were served to the army during the nineteen months of warfare with Germany.

Recovered Pocket Piece.

An Odd Fellow's pocket piece, with an inscription showing that its owner had belonged to Keystone lodge, in Bethlehem, Pa., was picked up on a battlefield in France and eventually came into the possession of C. L. Fox of Houlton, Me. An article about the little aluminum disc was published in the Houlton Times and a copy was sent to the lodge in Pennsylvania. C. H. Fogg of the Times, later received a letter from the secretary of Keystone lodge saying that the pocket piece belongs to Walter Schonenberger of Bethlehem, and that if Mr. Fox would send the disc to him he would see that Mr. Schonenberger got it after he returned from France.

GARDNER SAYS EFFORTS FAILED

MINNEAPOLIS MAN WAS UNABLE TO GET RELIEF FROM TROUBLE UNTIL HE TOOK TANLAC

"My efforts to find a medicine or treatment that would overcome my troubles failed completely until I commenced taking Tanlac," said Earl O. Freeby, a well known gardener, who lives at 705 Kenwood Parkway, Minneapolis, while talking to a Tanlac representative the other day.

"I had a bad attack of pneumonia about eighteen months ago," continued Mr. Freeby, "and up to the time I commenced taking Tanlac I had been having a pretty tough time of it ever since. For about three months after getting up from this spell I was not able to do any work at all. I finally improved to the extent that I was able to do a little work and then the Flu hit me, and this just about put the finishing touch to me. Well, I managed to pull through this trouble and after being in bed for several weeks I was able to be up again, but my entire system was left in a terrible weak run-down condition. I didn't have any appetite to speak of and what little I did eat didn't seem to give me any strength or energy to get about very much and the different medicines I took didn't seem to do me any good at all.

I had been reading so much about Tanlac and what it had done for so many other people, so I decided to give it a trial myself. I didn't think it was possible for anybody to improve as fast as I did after I began taking Tanlac. Why, my troubles have been completely overcome, and I am so well and strong now that I not only put in full time at by work every day, but I work in my garden at home until dark every night. I have such a big appetite that three hearty meals a day doesn't satisfy me and I have to eat a little between meals. In fact, I just feel fine all the time and never enjoyed better general health in my life. I have induced a good many people to take Tanlac, and every one of them have been greatly benefitted by it, and I certainly take pleasure in recommending it to anybody who is in a run-down condition from any cause."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

"MISSING" GIRL RETURNS

"Nobody's Business," She Says, but Court May Act.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—It may all have been a joke—15 year old Caroline Pelluccia's disappearance and five days' absence from her home at 1 East Delaware place while police were searching far and wide and park authorities were dragging the lake. It may have been a "joke" and "nobody's business," as the girl expressed herself last night, but Juvenile court authorities will have their say today. Upon the admission of Mrs. Pelluccia, mother of the child, that Catherine was not under her control, East Chicago avenue police advised that she be sent to a home. A school at Momence, Ill., may be selected, it is said.

Walking in last night unannounced, Catherine told her mother that she had been visiting the family of her uncle, David Hobbs of Highland Park. Police had been searching for her on the theory that she might have met the fate which befell Janet Wilkinson.

HAPPY CHILDREN AT QUEEN MARY PLAYGROUNDS.

The above illustrations show groups of children at the Queen Mary playgrounds, photographed by Mr. R. M. Rey. This was the third playground to be established in this city, and has reached a state of efficiency equal to any in large cities and better than some. Great credit is due the Playgrounds Association, for their splendid work in supplying the modern equipment for the children. Chief supervisor Tillitson and his assistants are also worthy of praise for their efficient work in taking care of and interesting the children.

CHICAGO NEGROES URGE ENDING OF RACE ANTAGONISM IN STATES

Education and Equal Economic Opportunities Advanced as Solution—Don't Care About Mixing.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Education and fair dealing, without recourse to law, save for the prevention of violence, will solve Chicago's race problem, in the opinion of leaders of the colored race, who gathered at the Olivet Baptist Church South Park Avenue and East 31st street.

The sentiment was in favor of a commission appointed by the governor or other recognized authority to study impartially the whole racial problem from the industrial and social standpoints, to make public its findings and to suggest lines of future activity to which all classes might voluntarily adapt themselves.

"The race problem of Chicago is one that can only be met by the coming to a common understanding by both white and colored people," said the Rev. L. K. Williams, pastor of Olivet Baptist church, the largest colored congregation in the city, and one of the acknowledged leaders among the negroes. "Putting laws on the statute books and drawing the color line officially will only intensify antagonism and make matters worse. Racial consciousness thereby will be only intensified among both the white and the colored races and the feeling of bitterness increase.

"In other words, the negroes, if given the chance to do it, will flock to themselves naturally and instinctively just the same as the white people do. By the chance, I mean the opportunity to find good homes together and not be crowded into the slums of he city. The colored people are not seeking social contact with the whites. Very few, if any, of them want it. They want to live to themselves and will do it of their own accord if circumstances are provided for them.

"Negroes have scattered over Chicago in a large measure merely seeking places to make homes. Some white real estate dealers have largely been instrumental in encouraging them in this. Every one knows the colored people have never tried to break into white society, and when they are compelled to move into a white neighborhood they make no attempt to fraternize with their neighbors. When they talk about equality and 'being as good as the white man,' they mean merely that they feel they have the right to equality of opportunity and as good a chance to advance as any American citizen, regardless of color.

Don't Want to Mix

"There are instances, of course, of white and colored people 'mixing' up socially, as we call it, but that is an individual matter. As a group the colored people stay to themselves as much as the white people. But they want the chance to have good homes and that is the main reason they have scattered. If the white people will work with them in giving them the opportunity to expand into good homes, with as good treatment for their communities in the way of police protection, elimination of vice and gambling, development of parks, etc., the colored people will naturally stay together; and this policy of 'racial separateness' will work it and for the good of all and without prejudice."

"All we want is equality of opportunity," was the plea of Dr. G. R. Bryant, pastor of the South Park M. E. Church. "We are American citizens and we feel we have the same rights as all others. We will naturally live together, have our own churches, clubs and societies, and do it voluntarily and with the utmost good feeling, if we have the chance to develop under the constructive influences and decent surroundings similar to those white people themselves want. As ministers and leaders we are urging this 'racial separateness' upon our people and encouraging them in the practice of it."

Col. Denison Asks Good Will

Col. Franklin L. Denison, former assistant attorney-general and former commander of the "old 8th" infantry, the colored regiment that distinguished itself in France, declared that discriminatory laws would be unconstitutional as well as unwise.

"The constitution of Illinois does not permit any discrimination because of race or color," he said, "and it is far from the spirit of Illinois. Chicago has always been known as the most friendly city to the negro in the north. It can solve its race problem now. The riots do not express the real Chicago—they were hoodlums broke loose among both races. Chicago will solve the real problem by mutual understanding and good will, and not by any weapons of force either physical or legal."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said:

"After all what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to in it than in Life Insurance.

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man sixteen years of age took out a 15 years Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years and he now has, through that investment, an immediate estate of $3495.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15 PER CENT COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said—and he might have added (no better place than the Sun Life of Canada)—"there is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

VACUUM CLEANER FOR STREETS

Best Process For Pavement Sweeping If Worked Economically.

The City Council have been considering adopting some new method of cleaning the streets for some time. By the present method of sprinkling the streets the pavement is kept continually wet, this softens the surface and makes it more subject to wear. Cleaning the streets by hand removes the large dirt but it does not remove the small particles of fine dust to which cling disease germs.

The best method would be by the vacuum cleaner process if it could be worked on an economical basis. At present the vacuum cleaner process is much too expensive.

Some members of the council were considering flushing the streets with fire hose by night. This would be a cumbersome and expensive operation. Also it would not be an efficient method. It would not be possible to turn the hose on the pavement at a constant angle or pressure. The hose would necessarily sway around in the hands of those holding it. This would put upon the pavement at times a stream of water at a pressure that would do injury to the pavement. At other places the streets would not get a sufficient pressure to clean them properly.

THIRTY DAYS FOR WOMEN TRADES UNION PICKET

GARMENT WORKERS STRIKES MUST NOT ASSULT NON-UNION WORKERS.

Toronto, Aug. 7.—In the Women's Court a number of cases arising out of the garment workers' strike occupied the attention of Magistrate Denison. The defendants were acting as pickets during the disputee.

Ida Rosenburg was charged with assaulting Mrs. Eva Milligan. Complainant stated that she was struck on the face while on her way to work in her employer's car. Accused denied the assault. "This has got to stop," said his Worship, imposing a sentence of 30 days without the option of a fine.

Rose Tobias was the next on the list. Mrs. G. Greenland alleged that accused grabbed hold of her and in the melee she lost her purse. Accused called her a "scab." Accused swore that complainant had made reflections against her character. Mrs. Greenland denied this. In imposing a fine of $10 and costs the magistrate said he thought it was possible that accused might have had some provocation.

"I have no respect for people who idle their time away picketing," he added.

Fannie Drintz was then charged with assaulting Nellie Kennedy, but in the absence of complainant, was remanded until Friday on her own bail.

Annie Farcowitz faced a charge of being disorderly on Adelaide street. It was alleged that she struck Alice Turner. Col. Denison imposed a fine of $30 and costs or 30 days in this case. Mr. J. G. O'Donoghue appeared for all accused.

CITY PLAYGROUND RESULTS

Broad jump 1st Killoran, 2nd Moore, 3rd McDonald.

Distance 1st Moore, 2nd Evans, 3rd F. Jones.

Shoe race—1st Milloy, 3rd Evans, 3rd Grady.

Unknown event 1st Moore (time 27 seconds), 2nd Evans, 3rd S. Jones.

High jump 1st Kilborn (height 4 feet), 2nd Evans, 3rd Moore.

Philadelphia mint turned out 39,931,000 pennies, 950,000 dimes and 9,307,000 nickels in July.

Cases of non-support and abuse of women growing out of drunkenness have greatly decreased in Chicago since July 1.

There is only one other method to adopt and that the city will have to do before very long. That is to procure power flushers equipped with devices for regulating the pressure at which the water is forced upon the pavement and the angle at which it strikes it. These would remove all dust and dirt from the streets daily and it would not be necessary that pavements be wet all the time. This is the most efficient and economical method.

GAS GETS 756 SOLDIERS

Washington, Aug. 7.—Seven hundred and fifty-six of the American soldiers killed in action were victims of gas, according to an announcement by the war department. The average age of the men killed was twenty-three years. The total of missing in action on July 31 was 241, the department announcing that large reductions had been made in the list as a result of the checking against the list of the central records office of the expeditionary offices.

AIRPLANES IN GREAT WAR

Fokkers Must Be Credited With Remarkable Work That Contributed to Victory of Civilization.

The Fokker series is interesting. First, there was the monoplane Fokker, so long a menace at the front. Then they tried the little triplane Fokker, a weird-looking machine, whose specialty was climbing high and diving down on the foe. Unfortunately in the dive the top plane had a way of coming off. It was in a Fokker triplane that the "Red Devil" Baron von Richthofen came to grief, and you can see the engine of his machine, a 110 La Rhone, copied from a French rotary engine.

The last type of Fokker—and a very good one—is the D7 biplane, all metal except for the wings, with a high-power engine and a tremendous climber. The specimen on show belonged to Richthofen's circus. You can follow the attempts of the Germans to win security by armoring their machines, but armoring did not pay, owing to the weight and clumsiness.

Late in 1918 an extraordinary machine was brought down, made entirely of metal, with wings of some kind of aluminum alloy, and a brass seat for the pilot—the whole thing a marvel of bold inventiveness.

HUN BOOBY TRAPS

Left When Armies Were Driven From France.

Detection of Contrivances Which Had No Part in Civilized Warfare Was Made Work of Special Organization.

Detection by British army investigators of German "booby traps" saved the lives of many an officer or man of the British armies during the period when the Germans were retreating from France.

"I am convinced," says one officer, "that we nipped many of the Hun's favorite plans by capturing near Bray a little factory where he made his 'booby traps.' When we occupied it we learned much from the partly completed traps we found lying about the place.

"One of them was an iron plate. This the wily Hun dropped in a roadway so that it would likely be trod upon by soldier or horse of our advancing troops. The plate was in two parts, with a spring inside, and usually contained a detonator connected with a heavy charge of explosive. When the weight of the foot was removed the spring slipped into place and exploded the detonator, and the damage was done.

"These spring detonators were the Germans' specialty. They consisted of a tube containing a little spring with a hook at one end. Attached to the hook was a string or wire connecting with the explosive charge. Any arrangement by which the spring could be distended and then suddenly contracted served to jerk the string, and the charge was exploded.

"One night I received a call from our lieutenant colonel who had spent the day directing movements from a recently captured German dugout. He told me he was nervous, and believed he was associating with a 'booby,' and asked me to send him a squad of engineers to look it over. I went myself.

"The colonel sat in the dugout, about ten feet down, on a chair by a table. Directly in front of the chair was a petrol can, and it was the can he feared. He had noticed it early in the morning when the dugout was first occupied, but had no time to examine it until evening. Then he found nothing, but he had a 'hunch' that it was a trap and wanted expert assistance.

"I dug a little trench around the can, but could find no wires, and then tapped it, but received no sound other than that which might come from any old empty can. There was nothing to do but open it, and, borrowing the colonel's can opener, I went at it as gingerly as I could.

"It was partly filled with about eight pounds of one of the most deadly powder explosives known to science. This I removed very carefully, and in the bottom of the can found the spring detonator. It had been fastened to the bottom of the can in such a way that if the can had been lifted from the floor of the dugout the charge would have exploded, and the colonel and his party would have been blown to bits.

"The colonel paled a little when I showed him just what he had been associating with all day, and very fervently thanked himself for obeying his 'hunch' to let that can alone."

As Good as a Youth.

Workmen at a mill in Greencastle are telling a good story regarding one of the workmen. It has been a rule of the company not to employ men over a certain age.

A few days ago a man living within a stone's throw of the mill solicited work, but was turned down because of his gray whiskers and his snow white hair. The "old" man was not daunted. He felt he was still good for many days of work, so he went to a drug store, bought a bottle of black hair dye and soon had his whiteness a jet black. He again asked for work of the same foreman and was accepted at once. He was put to work and made good from the start. Then he was worried because his white hair was growing, as also were his equally white whiskers. He again bought a second bottle of dye and used it to hide his identity.

The "old" man is still working his eight hours a day and one official of the company stated he had done such a good job he did not have to buy another bottle of dye, but could hold his job, even with his white hair and whiskers.—Indianapolis News.

DROPPED DEAD AT DOWNEYVILLE PICNIC

JOHN CARROLL EXPIRES SUDDENLY WHILE GETTING HORSE OUT OF STABLE.

John Carroll dropped dead last evening while he was getting his horse out of the stable to return home from St. Luke's Catholic congregational picnic at Downeyville.

Deceased had not been well for some time, but his sudden death was a shock to his friends and relations.

The deceased leaves one son, Wilfred, on the homestead, and two daughters, Leona, at home, and Mrs. Austin Dorin of Emily Township. Mr. Timothy Carroll is a brother and Mrs. Andrew Sullivan a sister. Both are residents of this city. The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock to St. Martin's cemetery, Ennismore.

NEW FINANCIAL WIZARD

Waukegan, Ill., Aug. 7.—John Neveller of Zion City can lay claim to unique distinction as a financial genius. In the Lake county court in Waukegan, his daughter, Grace, who was sent to the Geneva school for girls, declared she had been forced to support herself ever since she was twelve years old and that her mother was compelled to take in washing. One day the pump was broken, which prevented Mrs. Neveller from getting water so she could do a washing. She asked her husband to fix the pump. Grace said, and he charged her a dollar for doing it.

FATHER SEEKS MISSING GIRL

John E. Thomsen of Davenport, Ia., arrived in Chicago and asked Chief of Detectives J. L. Mooney to search for his daughter, Vera Thomsen, aged 17, and another Davenport girl, Edna Monecke, aged 18. Thomsen told Chief Mooney that the girls left Davenport on July 8 and have not since been heard from by relatives.

Thomsen said that Miss Monecke had been in Chicago before and had tried to obtain a position on the stage. He believes she was working in a chorus and then went back to Davenport to induce her friend Vera to join the chorus. Policewomen Alice Clements and Margaret Riley were assigned to search for the girls.

BANQUET AND RECEPTION TO VETS. OF CAVAN AND MILLBROOK

Biggest Day in Millbrook's History---Baseball Tournament and Races Galore---$20 in Gold Given All Who Enlisted and Went Overseas---Stirring Addresses by Col. Boggs and Others

Monday, August 4th, the fifth anniversary of the world war, will go down in the history of Millbrook and Cavan as one of the greatest days these municipalities have ever had.

The Millbrook baseball club, under whose auspices the big list of afternoon sports was held, are deserving of great praise, for indeed there have never been sports run off with more tact than on this occasion. Mr. Percy Stinson, manager of the sports, assisted by Mr. R. H. Edmunds and Mr. G. A. Duncan, are to a great measure accountable for the very fine feeling that prevailed among the players and spectators.

The first prize was won by the Millbrook club, but Mr. Doak was asked to state that they would give the Veterans first prize. Mr. Doak spoke in highest terms of the good playing of all the clubs. He was pleasedpleased to present the first prize to the Veterans. Rev. Capt. Spencer, on behalf of the Veterans, acknowledged the gift and said he greatly appreciated what the Millbrook club had done in the way of helping to make the day such a success. Three cheers were given for Veterans and the umpire. The Millbrook club was generous in giving the losing clubs $5 each. We are glad of this, as it shows that the Millbrook baseball players are not anxious to "hog" everything.

First Round

Millbrook 16, Carmel 3.
Cavan 8, Mount Pleasant 1.
Veterans 12, Elizabethville 5.

Semi-Finals

Millbrook 10, Cavan 1.
Veterans, bye.

Final

Millbrook 7, Veterans 4.

The teams lined up as follows:

Millbrook—E. Richards, B. H. Price, Robt. Edmonds, Ross Edmunds, B. Richards, L. Russell, C. Nattrass, C. Larmer, H. Nattrass.

Carmel—Bob Robinson, Smith, H. Ball, Brown, L. Grey, F. Gibson, D. Vance, N. Henry, A. Thorne.

Cavan — B. Janes, O. McGill, J. Whitfield, N. Henry, W. McDowell, L. Newton, M. Staples, E. Touchbourne, A. Doughty.

Mt. Pleasant—N. Lowes, H. Gardner, J. Fee, F. Shields, C. Morden, H. Jameson, C. Shields, B. Lowes, B. Morden.

Veterans — H. Page, W. Pitt, S. Johnston, J. Whitfield, J. Shaw, E. Lefroy, A. Thorne, B. Janes, N. Hunter.

Elizabethville — W. Beatty, G. McGohey, T. Mildrew, C. Beatty, W. O'Neal, S. Gray, H. True, F. White, R. McGohey.

The Races.

The following were successful in the various racing events:

Tug-of War — [illegible] vs. All-Comers, won by Civilians.

100 yards, open to all—B. H. Price.

100 yards, Veterans only—E. Lefroy.

50 yards, boys under 7 years—E. Nattrass.

100 yards, boys 10 and under—S. Brown.

100 yards, boys under 13—V. Nattrass.

100 yards, boys 16 and under—M. Collins.

Fat Man's Race—Mr. Beatty.

50 yards, girls 7 and under—H. Dunford.

50 yards, girls 10 and under—Gladys Tucker.

75 yards, girls 15 and under—Gladys Tucker.

75 yards, single ladies — Miss Guthrie.

Married Ladies' Race—Mrs. Martin.

Buiscuit eating contest—1st, M. White, 2nd, M. Byers.

Three-legged Race, girls—Misses Spencer.

Boys' boot contest—N. Rowland, V. Nattrass.

Sack Race — M. Collins, M. Gray.

Wheelbarrow Race — N. Gilmour, V. Nattrass.

Grandfather's Race — R. H. Edmunds.

[illegible] yards, Veterans, fathers only—T. Harkness.

Farmers' Race—H. True.

Open Race, 3 times up Main street—H. True, D. Vance.

Walking Race, veterans only—G. McBride, H. Donaldson, Jack Shaw.

There were also a number of good prizes, principally for veterans, that could not be contested, owing to extra games of ball and the banquet.

The Presentations

In the evening, after about 300 of the Veterans and their friends had partaken of a bounteous repast in the Armory, further sports were run off on the street, and then the grand finale proceedings took place in front of the Town Hall. Warden A. J. Henderson was chairman and conducted the duties of that office in his usual happy style. He was glad to be present, as representative of Cavan Municipality on this glorious occasion. He called upon His Honor Judge Ward, of Port Hope, who gave a splendid address. He said that Millbrook was deserving of great credit for taking the initiative in the matter of welcoming her heroes, Millbrook and Cavan being the first municipalities in the United Counties to give a reception to her heroes.

Col. Earchman, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. John Hutchinson, Cavan, was the next speaker. He thanked the committee for the honor of an invitation to the happy festivities.

Col. Biggs, of Cobourg, in a strong address, told of the galantry of the Canadians in many of the big affairs at the front. He was really proud of the way the municipalities of Cavan and Millbrook had formulated and carried out this great reception to their galant sons.

Capt. Spencer gave a brief but interesting address. He takes a great interest in the men, who have returned from overseas. He called the veterans to attention at this stage and asked them to come to the front of the hall, when each one as his name was called marched up to the platform when Col. Boggs, on behalf of the Municipalities presented him with $20 in gold. There were about 160 veterans. Capt. Spencer, on behalf of the soldiers thanked the citizens of the municipality for their gift, but more especially for their kindness in providing this splendid celebration. He is confident that the Veterans of Cavan and Millbrook will do all in their power for what they consider is for the best interests of the community. The resident Ministers were called to the platform but refrained from giving addresses on account of the lateness of the hour.

Town Decorated

The decorating of the town was done by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, of Peterborough and was "bon" as the Veterans would say. Warden Henderson, on behalf of the veterans thanked the Ladies for their work in providing the splendid supper.

Dance at Night

A dance was afterwards held by the Veterans and a delightful hour or so spent. Altogether the day was a red letter one, and everyone went home happy.

The G. W. V. A. band of Peterborough, gave an excellent program at the ball grounds and also in the evening.

Thomas Thacher, aged 69, eminent New York lawyer, is dead.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

every Alderman who should seek re-election in the coming year of 1920.

In Community's Interest

A motion was also passed that this resolution be presented to the Trades and Labor Council, with a view of gaining their co-operation.

In the discussion on this question it was made clear that the object of the G. W. V. A. was not to help veterans, but to support everything which was for the best interests of the community. But they felt it their duty to use every means in their power to give the veteran a preference when the qualifications are equal. They felt that the ratepayers and citizens were looking to them for this.

WERE WINNIPEG POLICE LEAGUED WITH STRIKERS

TESTIMONY YESTERDAY THAT THEY STOOD BY AND WATCHED RIOTERS DESTROYING PROPERTY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, Aug. 7.— Direct evidence that on the first day of the general strike, the city police stood by and watched strikers deliberately maltreating citizens on their way to work, committing trespasses and destroying property, was given at the trial of strike leaders yestreday, by A. A. Riley, manager of the Canada Bread Company. Other witnesses told of threats made by strikers.

Mr. Riley said that on the first evening of the strike an organized gang forcibly entered his building shut off the machinery and prevented his men from working. A policeman was sent in response to a telephone call, and as he entered the building the leader of the gang met him saying "We have cleared the last scab out." "That's fine," said the policeman.

Riley then protested to the policeman "Thi sis pretty tough luck, they have done some damage."

"I know," said the officer, "but people are not going to stand for your business to be carried on like this you know."

IMPROVED C.P.R. TRAIN SERVICE

Conference Between Railway Officials and Peterborough Board of Trade Last Evening.

TIME FOR NORMAL CONDITIONS

Peterborough's Requirements Will Be Met Whenever Betterments Could Be Instituted by C.P.R.

A conference between officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Board of Trade was held last evening in the Council room of the Board, when fast package freight and express service was frankly and considerately discussed.

The C.P.R. was represented by its superintendent, Mr. H. J. Humphries, Mr. R. de la B. Girouard, assistant superintendent, and Mr. W. S. Dodd, local freight agent. The Board of Trade was represented by W. S. Campbell, chairman Transportation Committee, President J. J. Turner, vice-President Thomas Barrie, chairman Merchants' Association and Mr. B. H. Meyers.

Fine for Normal Conditions.

Mr. Campbell occupied the chair, and in citing specific cases of delayed service he said that the pressure of the late war upon the roads was recognized as the cause of more or less inroad upon the efficiency of the roads, but that the time had now come when shippers and carriers may work together for a resoration of normal conditions.

Faster Regular Service.

The main point brought up was the request for faster and more regular service in the despatch of less-than-car-load freight and express cars. Shipments from Montreal and Toronto to the retail merchants were, in the view of the Transportation Committee, too long a time in reaching the consignees. The causes of delays were examined in relation to schedule train service and suggested remedies pointed out.

Conference Satisfactory.

The conference was satisfactory in every way, Mr. Humphries agreeing to give the several points every attention, and promised to meet Peterborough's requirements whenever betterments could be instituted. He said the officials of the C.P.R. were anxious to act promptly and favorably upon all requests of the Peterborough Board of Trade.

Mr. Humphries said that the organization and development of the Peterborough Board of Trade had been noted by the officials of the C.P.R. and as an evidence of their interest, he requested President Turner to present his application to the Council for active membership in the Board.

HUNDRED THOUSAND MOTOR CARS IN ONTARIO PROVINCE

Industrial Leaders Looking to Manufacture of Light Cars as One of Most Important Factors In Prosperity of Reconstruction Area

The Ontario Department of Highway's annual report, which was issued a few days ago, shows that, of 101,599 passenger cars owned in the province last year, 84,018 were listed as of 25 h.p. and less.

This fact bears out the claim that three out of four persons buy light cars, a proportion that many say will increase as soon as light cars are produced with the appearance and riding comfort of the present heavy and more expensive automobiles.

Whether this proportion is maintained or not industrial leaders are looking to the manufacture of light cars in Canada as one of the most important factors in the prosperity of the reconstruction era which has been entered.

Produce More Goods.

With the passing of all war-time restrictions, Canadian industry is applying itself with vigor to producing goods for both home consumption and export. In this business stimulation, perhaps none shows more marked activity than the automotive industry. With Ontario alone possessing more than 100,000 cars and increasing faster than 25 per cent. a year—the opportunity for quantity production in Canada seems to have arrived. If this country could do proportionately as well as the United States, the automobile industry would be third in importance. That is the place it has reached in the United States, where it employs 830,000 workers.

In order for the motor car industry in Canada to approach that point where it could meet the demands of the home market, it is claimed that manufacturing stress must be put upon light cars.

Light Cars Popular.

Light cars are popular simply because of their light price. There is an attendant economy of operation, but this must be included in the price consideration. If a car embodying the riding advantages of a heavy car could be produced on a light chassis—at a moderate price—the present 84 per cent. preference it is believed would be still further increased, and the light car's place in Canada's industrial reconstruction would be unassailable. The problem is one that has been studied by engineers for many years. Considering the advances that have been made in the last few years, automobile men say it is not too much to expect a light car to be made in Canada with all the appearance of quality and luxury and with the same easy-riding and comfort-affording merits of heavy cars. When that materializes, Canada indeed may be said to have entered a new phase in its industrial growth.

Idea From Playing Cards.

Having helped many a soldier through weary hours in trench and hospital, playing cards were pressed into active war service. You may have noticed the new and neat little cloth badges on the sleeves of our men from the front, but possibly have failed to understand the designs. They were nothing but the familiar club, spade, heart and diamond of the playing card. Under the new scheme regiments were divided into packs, each company having its own symbol in a certain color scheme as an identification mark, all other badges being removed before going over the top.—London Chronicle.

National Battle Flags.

When National Guard and National army organizations have been disbanded their battle flags will be given into the custody of the states from which the majority of the men came when the organizations were formed. The war department announced, however, that title to the colors would be retained by the federal government.

LITTLE HOPE FOR C.R.A. RACE MEETS

RACING ASSOCIATION NOT LOOKING FORWARD TO EVENTS OUTSIDE OF THEIR JURISDICTION.

Toronto, Aug. 6. Mr. W. P. Fraser, secretary of the Canadian Racing Associations, was asked today what attitude his organization would take regarding the report that some of the Montreal half-mile tracks intended to race beginning August 16. Mr. Fraser replied:

"As there appears little chance of a resumption of racing this year, jockey clubs and racing associations under the jurisdiction of the Canadian Racing association have decided to relinquish any hope of holding race meetings in 1919.

"The Canadian Racing Associations have not considered taking action regarding any racing which may be held upon race tracks outside of their jurisdiction."

The Montrealers are banking on the hope that the Royal proclamation of peace will be issued by Aug. 16, but the prospects are for it being held up for one or two months longer. In case the half milers race the tracks will run in the following order: Delorimier, August 16 to 23; King Edward Park, August 25 to September 1; Mount Royal, September 2 to September 9. It is proposed to start the second series at Delorimier on September 17, and the clubs will run in the same order as before.

NEW SWIMMING BODY

American Organization Making Headway at a Rapid Pace.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—The American Swimming Association, which was organized in New York during the early spring by representatives of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the American Red Cross and the Young Men's Christian Association, is making rapid strides to obtain a firm place in the sport. Its rules have been well received by swimming clubs throughout the country, and there is reason to believe it will shortly over-shadow of the Amateur Athletic Union swimming in this country.

The association has undertaken the publication of a separate manual with the track and field athletics' manual, and it is seeking to impress upon followers of the sport that an organization whose sole object is the advance of swimming will do more for that sport than one in which swimming is still more or less of a side show.

There is no hint of open warfare between the two bodies and it would not be surprising to see a combination of forces with the A. A. U. yielding to the new organization the control of swimming much as it recently did the control of hockey to a so-called amateur hockey governing body. The union of all swimming forces would mean much for the sport.

OTTAWAS NOW PROTEST

Capitals Claim That George Anderson Was Ineligible Player.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—The Ottawa Lacrosse Club has forwarded to Jesse Brown, secretary of the National Lacrosse Union a formal protest in connection with the game, which they lost to Cornwall on Saturday last. The protest is based on the grounds that George Anderson, who played for Cornwall here, was ineligible for the Cornwall team. It is alleged that Anderson lined up with the Shamrock team in the first game of the season thus disqualifying himself from playing with any other team.

'COBOURG HORSE SHOW REVIVED THIS AUGUST

DEVONSHIRE AND RODERICK MEMORIAL CUPS TO BE CONTESTED.

The Cobourg Horse Show, one of the finest events of its kind, is to be revived this year after lying dormant for the war period, the dates being August 19 to 23. Conditions for two of the principal trophie are appended:

The Devonshire Cup—A chalange cup, presented to the Cobourg Horse Show Association by His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire, Governor General of Canada, for the best officer's charger, to be shown under saddle; 75 per cent for conformation quality and substance, and 25 per cent for pace and manners. The cup is to remain the property of the Cobourg Horse Show Association. The winner in any year to be given possession of the cup, and to return it on or before the 1st of August of the following year.

The Roderick Pringle Memorial Cup—A cup in memory of the late Roderick Pringle, Esquire of Cobourg, presented to the Cobourg Horse Show Association by Honorable Clive Pringle; to be competed for annually in a handicap steeplechase for qualified hunters to be ridden by gentlemen holding certificates from a recognized hunt club. Distance about two miles. Three horses, the property of different owners to start, or winning of the cup is void for that year. The cup is to become the property of any owner winning fame three times. A replica of the cup in a smaller size will be presented each year by Hon. Clive Pringle to the owner of the winner.

MILE AND A HALF SWIM

C. Jenkinson Winner of Harvey Hamilton Trophy in Humber.

Toronto, Aug. 6. The Humber River Race, one mile and a half, swimming free style for the Harvey Hamilton Trophy was won by C. Jenkinson. The first prize for ladies, a silver shield presented by the members of the High Park Swimming Club, won by Madeline Forster. The first prize for open competition was won by S. Mendlesohn of the Toronto Swimming Club, who set a new record for this race covering the distance in 53 min. 2 secs.

Sixteen starters lined up for the event which proved to be one of the feature swimming events of the year.

The water was warm on the start but got colder and colder as the race proceeded down the river and on this account many were forced to leave the water.

Time—C. Jenkinson, 5 4min. 3 sec. Madeline Forster, 61 min. 5 sec.; S. Mendlesohn, 53 min. 2 sec.

DEATH OF HEAVYWEIGHT

Sergt. J. Clements, C. E. F. Champion, Succumbs to Accident.

St. John., N. B., Aug. 6.—Sergt. Clements, said to be the champion heavyweight boxer of the Canadian Army Overseas who was taken to Frederickton for treatment yesterday following an accident in Gloucester County, died last night in hospital. While in swimming near Grand Anse, where he had been spending his 14 days' landing leave with his wife and five children, he dived into shallow water, struck his head, and almost complete paralysis of his whole body folowed.

CENTRAL PLAYGROUNDS WIN RETURN GAME

The Central Playgrounds defeated Queen Mary's 12 to 6 in the return game yesterday. Earlier in the summer, Queen Mary's boys were the victors on their own diamond, 14 to 6.

Whitlaw, Central's pitcher, pitched fine ball besides driving in two home runs with the bat. Wolf and McIntyre played a nice fielding game for the losers, who were handicapped somewhat by the absence of three of their regular players.

The junior teams of both playgrounds played an interesting five-inning game, which was won by the Queen Mary juniors by a 7 to 5 score. Kenneth, Graham and James Holland played best for the winners in this game.

Japanese Trade With Panama.

A Japanese consulate has been established in Panama city. This is the outcome of growing commercial relations between Japan and the republic of Panama. Although there are few Japanese residents in Panama, the prospects for trade between the two countries are excellent. Japan is now exporting canned goods, boxes, furniture, skins, willow baskets, figured mats, grass goods, earthen wares, silk and cotton goods and many other things to that country, the total value of which amounted to $18,684,000 in the year 1917, but there were practically no imports.

A New Star.

Martha, the 5-year-old daughter of W. M. Hedrick, court reporter under Judge Louis B. Ewbank, of the Marion Circuit court, listened attentively to her older sister's argument to be taken to see the second instalment of "The Cannibals," and also Catherine's emphasizing of the fact that Douglas Fairbanks was an additional attraction. After a slight pause, Martha pleaded: "And papa, won't you please take me to see Judge Ewbanks, too?"—Indianapolis News.

Jerusalem Free From Mosquitoes.

Jerusalem has been freed from the mosquito pest, it is announced by the Zionist organization, through the efforts of an American sanitarian, Louis Cantor, who is a member of the American Zionist medical unit which is now operating in Palestine. The city is now practically rid of these carriers of typhoid and malaria. During Mr. Cantor's campaign 350 cisterns were petrolized and put in sanitary condition.

ONE POINT IN HIS FAVOR

Gentle Aunt Constrained to Admit That Her Soldier Nephew Had "Thoroughness."

There are always pacifists. An unrighteous war is sure to increase their numbers; a righteous war changes the opinions of many and commands the sympathy of others in spite of themselves.

Aunt Peace, who has brought up a family of motherless nieces and nephews, is a Quakeress. She is a woman of gentle authority, and the children were good and docile, not difficult to train in the way they should go, with one exception. Dick, the youngest boy, was a charming but careless and adventurous youngster; his head was always full of so many plans and ideas that it was hard to keep him at any one thing long enough to finish it. His lack of concentration and orderliness seriously perturbed Aunt Peace, who feared they indicated a fundamental defect of character. Dick was eighteen when the war broke out, and his father permitted him to enlist. Of course poor Aunt Peace was deeply distressed, but, having once fully and frankly expressed her mind, she maintained a discreet silence afterward, and took to reading the papers and poring over maps. She freely expressed her pity for sufferers of any and all nations, but it was understood that she repudiated warfare as strongly as ever.

Then came news that Dick in the performance of a gallant exploit had been severely wounded. Later, a comrade, invalided home, visited the family and related the details. They involved hard fighting; Dick had personally slain two of the enemy and brought in several prisoners besides. Suddenly it was observed that there were pink spots in Aunt Peace's cheeks and that her eyes were shining like stars.

"Auntie," cried one of Dick's sisters, laughing, "I do believe you're just as pleased and as proud of Dick as any of us, no matter what you say!"

Aunt Peace looked startled; then she replied with dignity: "I have not said anything, Elizabeth; but I do not conceal that I am pleased. Thee knows I cannot condone combat, but I am sincerely rejoiced in spirit to learn that Richard has at last shown that he has profited by my training. There have been many times when I own I have been unjust to the dear lad. I feared he did not have it in him to acquire the habit of thoroughness. But from what this gentleman has told us Richard seems at last to have become unquestionably thorough!"—Youth's Companion.

BOY "DROPPED INTO MONEY"

New York Youngster Found Floors of Deserted House Fairly Strewn With Bank Notes.

A coal chute may be a prosaic substitute for Aladdin's lamp, but one found by a New York boy delivered the goods as satisfactorily as ever did the old oil burner of "Arabian Nights" fame, observes the Kansas City Star. Vincent Mastag'lio had been dazzling his playmates with great rolls of $10 bank notes and pockets full of jewelry for several days when the police learned of his suddenly acquired riches and took him into juvenile court, where he told of discovering his treasure trove.

He was playing in a New York East side street the other day when he fell through a coal hole. There wasn't much in the cellar to excite his interest, so he tried the upper floors of the house, which he found to be deserted. There, he told the police, he found rooms with their floors strewn with money; $5 and $10 bills had been wadded and thrown in every corner, and jewelry littered the dressing tables.

Investigation by the police verified the boy's statement. They learned that the house had been occupied by Mrs. James Sandham, a recluse ninety years old, who had died a few days before. The boy was the first person to enter the house after the woman had been removed to a hospital, and the money, thought to be rents from her tenants, had lain where she had thrown it on the floor as she received it.

FACTS OF MOST IMPORTANCE

Those Which Tell Best About Past and Future States of Object, Asserts Ruskin.

It ought further to be observed respecting truths in general, that those are always most valuable which are most historical, that is, which tell us most about the past and future states of the object to which they belong. In a tree, for instance, it is more important to give the appearance of energy and elasticity in the limbs which is indicative of growth and life, than any particular character of leaf or texture of bough. It is more important that we should feel that the uppermost sprays are creeping higher and higher into the sky, and be impressed with the current of life and motion which is animating every fibre than that we should know the exact pitch of relief with which those fibres are thrown out against the sky. For the first truths tell us tales about the tree, about what it has been, and will be, while the last are characteristic of it only in its present state, and are in no way talkative about themselves. Talkative facts are always more interesting and more important than silent ones. So, again, the lines in a crag which mark its stratification, and how it has been washed and rounded by water, or twisted and drawn out in fire, are more important, because they tell more than the stains of the lichens; which change year by year, and the accidental fissures of front or decomposition; not but that both of these are historical, but historical in a less distinct manner, and for shorter periods.—Ruskin.

GAVE TITLE TO RED CROSS

Indianapolis Man Found Pleasure in Putting His Contribution on a Business Basis.

He was a little old man, clad in the garb of a workingman. He stood back from the canteen information booth at the Union station and waited until the Red Cross women had checked the baggage of a group of men just back from overseas. Then he eased up to the desk and thrusting his arm quickly forward, laid a $20 bill in the hand of one of the attendants.

"Take $16.90 out of that," the old man said in a whisper.

"What for?" the canteener asked.

"It's my tithe," he answered. "Take $16.90 out of it. I must be going."

"May I ask you who you are and why you give your money in this way?"

"It doesn't matter who I am. I am just me. The money I'm giving is my tithe to the Red Cross and it makes me happy to give it. It really is $16.98, but you won't want to bother with pennies."

The canteener gave him his change and placed the money in the donation box under the counter. He disappeared in the crowd in the Union station. A few minutes later another canteener arrived. She was told of the incident.

"Yes, he comes regularly each month and leaves his tithe," she said, "but he won't tell who he is. He seems to enjoy giving to the Red Cross in this quiet way and always wears a smile of satisfaction after he has done it. He seems so happy when he turns to walk away."—Indianapolis News.

Worse.

Even worse than the man who borrows trouble is the fellow who gives it.—Boston Transcript.

Average Life Nearly Doubled.

From 1348 to 1350, 25,000,000 deaths from the plague or "black death," occurred, which was one-fourth of the entire population of the world at that time. In 1781, 50 per cent of the English nation died before reaching the age of 20 years.

The average length of life in the sixteenth century was only 21 years, while in this, the twentieth century, the average life is 43 years. In India, however, the average life today is only 24 years.

We are enabled to see what the science of medicine is accomplishing in our more civilized countries, where ignorance and superstition do not prevail to any very great extent.

Enormous Sea-Going Raft.

While log rafts are by no means new, the huge raft recently constructed at Haparanda, Sweden, and used to ship a large number of logs to Copenhagen, Denmark, is worthy of passing mention.

The great raft measures 397 feet long, 55½ feet wide, 10 feet above the waterline and 10½ feet below.

The raft took six months to build and contains as much wood as four big steamers. It is held together by an ingenious system of steel cables and wires, and is capable of carrying a large amount of material. The crew consists of seven men.

NORWOOD CHURCH CELEBRATES ITS FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Jubilee Services Featured by Presentation of a Bell by Thomas Shea in Memory of His Deceased Parents—Half a Century of Progress In History of Pavish.

Fifty years ago, on August 6th, 1869, St. Paul's Church, Norwood, was dedicated to the worship of God with imposing ceremony, the late Bishop Horan of Kingston officiating. Yesterday the golden jubilee of the church was celebrated with His Lordship Bishop O'Brien of Peterborough as the central clerical figure in the event. The outstanding feature of the proceedings was the presentation of a massive bell to the congregation by Mr. Thomas Shea, whose parents were among the first worshippers in the church and who himself took part in the dedicatory services fifty years ago. The bell is presented as a memorial to Mr. Shea's deceased parents, and it was blessed with the ceremony usual on such occasions by Bishop O'Brien.

Fifty years is a long span of life, but there were those at the ceremony yesterday who were present when the church was first opened and who can recall the events of that auspicious day as clearly as though they happened last week. There were those, too, who not only contributed to the first cost, but who devoted their services in the actual work of building the church. Prominent among these was Mr. John Fitzpatrick, who drew the first load of stone and gravel used in the structure. Another veteran who shows no signs of the infirmity of age was Mr. John Convey, although he lacks but a few months of rounding out his seventieth year. Both were active young fellows fifty years ago, both have fulfilled the promises they made in their youth, both are enjoying now an old age that is still bright with sunshine, with many years of life still in prospect.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH AND PARSONAGE, NORWOOD

The Spirit of the Pioneer.

Fifty years ago Norwood and vicinity were in the early stages of development. It was no light task that the pepole assumed when they undertook to build a church and have a spiritual adviser of their own. The first material was on the ground nearly three years before the work of building was actually started. The Catholics of that day worshipped in a small building. The appointment was a mission, Rev. Father John Quirk of Hastings ministering to the spiritual needs of the people. The money required for the work was borrowed from the late Thomas Bleeard, M.P., on easy terms, the members of the congregation giving their notes as security. The members of the building committee, who were most active from the first and who remained on duty to the end, were Philip Fitzpatrick, father of John Fitzpatrick, already referred to; W. M. McCarthy, Richard Welsh and Dennis Hanley. None of these are now living. The lae Wm. Coad of Hastings had the contract.

The church was originally built just as it stands today, save that the lofty spire with which it was decorated originally was blown down in a heavy storm that occurred some years ago. The edifice presents a splendid outside appearance and the interior is well appointed. The priest's residence is commodious and modern, the grounds are spacious and well laid out. The entire institution is a credit to the community that maintains it.

History of the Parish.

The following priests have had charge of the Norwood parish: Rev. P. Convey, appointed in 1888; Rev. P. J. Kelly, 1910; Rev. P. Galvin, now of Downeyville, 1914; Rev. D. A. Casey, who officiated from January to March, 1916, and left to become editor of the Freeman, Kingston, and Rev. J. J. McCarthy, the present incumbent, who was appointed to the parish in March, 1916. St. Paul's Church has made steady progress since the beginning, never more so than under its present pastorate, Rev. Fr. McCarthy being a tireless worker and a favorite with old and young, a broadminded young man in every sense of the term.

Anniversary Services.

There were religious services nearly all day yesterday in the church, and the building was crowded until late in the afternoon. Rev. T. C. Kehoe, O. C. C. of St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto, preached an eloquent anniversary sermon. In the afternoon Bishop O'Brien blessed the bell. The priests who assisted were: Rev. Dean McColl, of Ashburnham; Rev. Fr. J. J. O'Brien, of Sacred Heart Church; Rev. Fr. McAuley, of Ennismore; Rev. Fr. Maloney, Rev. Fr. Tortey, of Iowa, a native of Norwood and a graduate of the parish; Rev. Fr. McGuire, Peterborough, and Rev. Fr. Ferguson, of Warkworth.

A Handsome Memorial.

The bell donated by Mr. Shea in memory of his parents is a massive affair. It was in a place of honor in front of the platform, and Mr. Shea, the donor, had the honor of striking the first note on it. Next came Mr. John Fitzpatrick, and for a long time different members of the parish operated the cord which called for a full-toned response from the bell, which will, it is hoped, be hung in time to call the people together next Sunday. The inscription on the bell is as follows:

A. M. D. G.
Michael.

Presented to St. Paul's Church, Norwood, by Thomas Shea, in memory of his beloved parents, Michael Shea and Anne Miles. J. J. McCarthy, pastor. Blessed by Right Reverend M. J. O'Brien, D.D., Bishop of Peterborough, August 6, 1919.

The Committees.

General Convenor, J. H. Brown.

No. 1 Committee—Mrs. M. English, convenor; Mrs. Chas. O'Reilly, Mrs. John Boland.

No. 2 Committee—Mrs. E. English, convenor; Mrs. Dennie O'Shea, Mrs. E. Herr.

$12,000 Paid For Bull Owned By Fergus Farmer

Fergus, Aug. 7—About two years ago Messrs. Peter and George Gerrie, farmers in Nichol township, near Fergus, attended a sale of thoroughbred Shorthorn cattle held by Mr. Watt, near Salem, Ont., and purchased a young bull from his celebrated stock, paying $1,600 for it. Since then they took it to a cattle show in Chicago, where it received first prize in its class, and they were offered $10,000 for it, which they refused. A few days ago a breeder from California arrived at their farm and offered them $12,000 cash for the animal, which they accepted. Some kinds of beef on the hoof is worth more than port on the hoof, valuable as it is.

Belgium Is Invited To Occupy Malmedy Area

Brussels, Aug. 7.—The Government has received a telegram from Marshal Foch inviting Belgium to occupy military and administratively the Malmedy region, according to Le Soin.

The territories of Malmedy and Eupen in Rhenish Prussia are awarded to Belgium by the terms of the Peace Treaty. These territories were separated from Belgium in 1814-15, and were assigned to Prussia. As the region had been made a basis for German militarism by the construction of a great camp at Elsonborn, and various strategic railways directed against Belgium, the Peace Conference decided that the area should be returned to Belgium, subject to the wishes of the population, as expressed under the auspices of the League of Nations.

Near actors are all right in their way, but give us the old fashioned hams.

FARMERS AND THEIR WIVES URGED TO SUPPORT TEMPERANCE CAUSE

Speakers at Picnic of Local Club Applauded When They Appeal to Audience to Vote No on Referendum—Successful Outing With Even Heavy Rain Regarded as Blessing.

The members of the local Farmers' Club will know better another time. The next time they plan an excursion they will charter the entire Stoney Lake fleet for the occasion in order to accommodate the crowd. Yesterday the premier boat, the Stoney Lake, was unable to carry all those who sought to take part in the picnic down the river. Long before the boat was due to leave, Capt. Young called off the sale of tickets as the capacity load had been secured, and nearly one hundred persons were left on the wharf, including such prominent figures in the affair as G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., President R. B. Rogers, the speakers of the day, and Harry G. Webber, without whom no farmers 'outing or gathering of any kind would be complete.

There was another disappointed crowd waiting at the Locks, and still another at Rye's boat house, the Stoney Lake steaming past the latter point without the formality of stopping.

But not all those left behind were forced to miss the outing. Cars were requisitioned and launches pressed into the service, with the result that when the Stoney Lake pulled into the dock at Wallace Point there was a crowd there waiting to welcome the main body of the excursionists. The boat continued its trip down the river for three or four miles, then turned around and landed the party at Wallace Point about 4:30 o'clock.

The farmers have been hoping and praying for rain for the past month or more. They had their wishes granted in this regard yesterday in generous measure when something like a cloudburst broke over the picnic. The gratitude for the blessing of the copious shower, however, outweighed any inconvenience that was caused by the storm, even though scores were drenched, the boat not being sufficient protection from the driving storm. Those on the outer edges of the deck got the full benefit of the downpour.

The Speakers of the Day.

As soon as the party landed, a generous lunch was served from the baskets with which every farmer's wife came provided, baskets filled with such dainties as only the farmers' wives of Peterborough County know how to prepare. After the lunch came the speeches. Two distinguished visitors were on hand to make addresses, R. W. E. Burnaby, president of the U. F. Co-Operative Company, and W. L. Smith, the talented editor of the Farmers' Sun, the man whose work has made that paper an authority among the farmers of Ontario, a man whose views are progressive without being tainted with radicalism or other dangerous doctrine. R. B. Rogers, president of the club, presided, and Mr. Burnaby was the first speaker. Mrs. Webster, of Cambray, Victoria County, tnd Mrs. W. R. Morris, of this city, spoke especially to the women in the crowd. The audience stood during the speaking, and followed the different addresses with the closest attention. Applause was frequent, but it is significant that the most enthusiastic outbursts of all were heard when Mrs. Webster and Mr. Smith urged their hearers, men and women, to turn out on referendum day and vote for the perpetuation of the Ontario Temperance Act. There is no question as to how the farmers and their wives of this riding stand on the greatest of all issues before the voters today.

Mr. Burnaby's Address.

Mr. Burnaby's address was an exposition of the farmers' platform, and of the objects of the association which he represents. It is unjust, he claimed, to assert that the farmers are responsible for the present high cost of living, as people need shoes, houses and clothing as well as butter and eggs, and the cost of everything is high. Mr. Burnaby flayed both political parties with equal impartiality and told the farmers that their only hope of relief was to exert themselves on their own behalf. He asserted that Mackenzie and Mann had first bled the country white and then disposed of their bankrupt railroad for a price even though it was mortgaged to the hilt. He also assailed the Government's standing in exempting victory bonds from taxation, a policy which en-

ARCHDUKE JOSEPH PRES. OF HUNGARY NO INTENTION OF CREATING HIM KING

Surrounded By Monarchistic Influences He Declares That He Is a True Democrat—Visit to Allies Representatives Delayed as Communists Had Stolen Archduke's Trousers—Ex-Prem. Peidll and Cabinet Hand in Resignation

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vienna, Aug. 8.—There is no intention of making Archduke Joseph King of Hungary, according to advices received here from Budapest, his office being merely that of president.

Although he is surrounded by old Monarchistic influences, he had declared, in an interview, that he would attempt to work along the same lines as Count Michael Karolyi, saying, "I am a true Democrat. I tried to show this by surrendering most of my estates last fall. It is my intention to carry on government until elections are held and then Parliament will decdie upon matters."

Called on Allies.

After various consultations with Allied representatives, including General Gordon of the British army, attached to the relief administration in Budapest, Archduke Joseph and his generals called upon the Allies in a group. Reports reaching here say that this visit had to be delayed because the Archduke's trousers had disappeared, having been stolen. His attaches had to do some quick skirmishing to borrow another pair, it is said, in as much as the Communists had planned to remove the Archduke's clothing a month ago. When he visited the Allies he presented his plan for a new government which was tacitly accepted.

Representatives of the new government visited Premier Jules Peidll and other members of the Hungarian Cabinet at seven o'clock in the evening, and announced to them that they must resign, it being declared that they had been unable to keep order and were not representative of the nation. The ministers handed in their resignations within a short time, making no special protest after relinquishing office.

PUNISH EX-KAISER SAYS SEC. LANSING

Danger of His Escape is Big Objection to Military Trial For Wilhelm.

SENATORS DISCUSS QUESTION

Some Urge That Former Emperor Surrender to Military Tribunal Like Napoleon Did.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—The propriety of trying the former German emperor was discussed at some length by Secretary Lansing in testimony today before the senate foreign relations committee. He said the American commissioners dealing with the question were unanious in the opinion that a legal trial could not be had.

"Will there be a trial?" asked Senator Borah.

"I didn't say," the secretary smilingly replied.

Some senators suggested that the former emperor should be required to surrender to a military tribunal, as Napoleon did, for trial under general court-martial authority.

"That was the report of the commission with which the United States disagreed," said Mr. Lansing. "It seemed to me that in such a proceeding there would be grave doubt whether the guilt of the defendant could be established and it might let him off free."

CARDINAL MERCIER COMING

Will Leave Brussels Sept. 4 or 5 on Tour of Canada.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

BUILT AT TORONTO FOR OCEAN RUNS

Eighth Boat, "Skolma," Launched at Dominion Shipbuilding Company's Yards.

MRS. COUSINS CHRISTENED HER

Steamer Has Deadweight Carrying Capacity of 3,650 Tons and Triple Expansion Engines.

Toronto, Aug. 7.—The eighth vessel launched by the Dominion Shipbuilding Company at the foot of Bathurst street, during the last ten months for transatlantic service, took the plunge this afternoon, when a canal-size steel cargo freighter, of the improved Cunard type was christened the "S. S. Skolma," by Mrs. Edward Cousins, wife of the chief engineer of the Toronto Harbor Commission.

The ceremony was well attended by civic and harbor officials, as well as a number of business men and society people. When Mrs. Cousins completed her task amid cheers, the officials of the company presented her with a beautiful bouquet of flowers.

The Skolma has a deadweight carrying capacity of 3,650 tons, and is equipped with triple expansion engines of 1,200 horsepower, and two Scotch marine boilers of 180 pounds pressure. The dimensions given by the officials are:—Length, over all, 261 feet; moulded breadth, 43 feet 6 inches; moulded depth, 24 feet, 2 inches.

Four of the eight vessels launched by the company during the past twelve months have been delivered, and the remainder will be completed and despatched before the close of navigation this year.

At the launching an official of the company announced an order from the Department of Marine and Fisheries, at Ottawa, for two steel 'tween deck, mixed-cargo carriers, each with 3,500 ton deadweight carrying capacity, of the improved Cunard type, for delivery in the spring. It was also announced that keels had been laid for two steel bulk freighters, each with 3,550 ton deadweight carrying capacity, for delivery in the spring to private interests.

It was also stated that a foundry and boiler shop will be erected in connection with the plant as soon as conditions permit. The capacity of the plant when completed will be about 12 ships a year. Machinery devices of the latest design to reducethe manual labor occasioned in most shipyards has been installed in sympatthy with the efficiency programme common to the entire organization.

HONORS FOR THE VETERANS

Mass Meeting at Cannington to Welcome Returned Soldiers.

Cannington, August 8.—The citizens of Cannington turned out en masse and the greater part of the population of the north half of the township of Brock was in town to take part in the reception tendered by the authorities of the town to their returned soldiers. No possible effort had been spared by the several committees in charge of the various events in making preparations for a successful day, and as a result of the good sport provided and the gala appearance of the town, due to the work of the decoration committee, many travellers on the highway were added to the crowd that thronged the main streets during the afternoon and evening, when a dance was held in the town hall.

HOPES ALL EX-SERVICE MEN WILL NEVER FORGET THEIR COMRADESHIP IN THE WAR

Cable Message Received Today by Secretary Whatley From Sir Douglas Haig

The local branch of the G.W.V.A. this week cabled the following message to Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, in appreciation of his stand as to increased pensions:

"The Peterborough branch of the G.W.V.A., Canada, in regular session assembled, do hereby send their deep appreciation of and congratulations for your splendid stand for increased pensions for disabled Imperial soldiers and their dependents."

Sir Douglas Replies.

This afternoon Mr. Sydney Whatley, secretary of the local Veterans' Association, received the following cable message in reply:

"S. Whatley,
"Secretary, Peterborough
Branch, G. W. V. A.:

"Please thank all the members of Peterborough Branch, G. W. V. A., very warmly for their message of congratulation. I hope all ex-service men throughout the Empire will never forget their comradeship in the great war.

"SIR DOUGLAS HAIG,
"Field Marshal."

HON. MACKENZIE KING IS CHOSEN TO WEAR MANTLE OF THE LATE CHIEFTAIN

Wins in the Race For Leadership Over Hon. W. S. Fielding by a Vote of 476 to 438—Quebec's Support Solid For New Leader—Election Made Unanimous on Motion of Defeated Candidate.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—William Lyon Mackenzie King is the leader of the Liberal party in Canada. He was nominated by the national Liberal convention on the third ballot, the vote standing: King 476, Fielding 438.

Mr. Fielding immediately moved to make the nomination unanimous, and this was seconded by Hon. George P. Graham and Judge D. D. McKenzie.

The Candidates.

The nomninations were as follows:

W. L. MACKENZIE KING, proposed by Sir Allen Aylesworth, and seconded by Hon. Sydney Fisher.

D. D. MACKENZIE, proposed by J. A. Robb, the chief Liberal whip in the Commons, and seconded by Hon. Frank Oliver, H. T. McMillan, and J. H. Sinclair, M.P., of Nova Scotia.

HON. GEO. P. GRAHAM, proposed by W. W. B. McInnes, of Vancouver, seconded by C. J. Montreuil, of North Essex.

HON. W. S. FIELDING, proposed by Premier Martin, of Saskatchewan, and seconded by Premier Foster, of New Brunswick.

Alex. Smith, K.C., of Ottawa, was nominated by J. B. McCall, of Cobourg, and John MacAuley, of North Bruce. Mr. Smith was honored with a nomination because of his long record of service to the party and his share in the work of organizing the convention. He retired at once.

The first ballot resulted as follows: King 344; Fielding, 297; Graham, 153; MacKenzie, 153. As no candidate had secured a majority of the 949 votes cast, a second ballot was required. This resulted as follows: King, 411; Fielding, 344; Graham, 124; MacKenzie, 60.

Mr. Graham Retires.

At this juncture Hon. Charles Murphy advised delegates not to mark their third ballots at once, and immediately afterward Hon. George P. Graham came forward to announce his retirement from the contest. "In order to expedite the proceedings and for other reasons which are evident," he said, "I wish to retire."

The fact that a number of delegates had already marked their ballots for Graham caused considerable confusion for a time. Hon. George Murray, of Nova Scotia, who was in the chair, decided that ballots so marked and still in the hands of the voters might be allotted, but those already in the ballot-boxes would be counted in the total, and so would have effect in determining whether or not any candidate had secured a majority. This ruling led to a demand for the cancellation of the ballot papers provided for the third ballots. Hon. Frank Oliver, who had been supporting the candidature offered D. D. MacKenzie, rushed to the platform. "Cancel the vote!" he shouted. "Don't count that vote. Take another ballot. You have got to do it." The cry was taken up in various parts of the auditorium, and after a short consultation between chairman and vice-chairman, Premier Murray announced that a new ballot paper would be used.

MacKenzie Retires.

After this decision had been reached D. D. MacKenzie, who had secured the smallest number of votes on the second ballot, made his way to the platform. "I wish to thank my friends for the support I have received in this convention, but I now retire from the field" he said amid cheers and applause.

Made Unanimous.

The vote cast was hailed with applause and cheers, with the blowing of horns and waving of flags. Hon. W. S. Fielding, seconded by Hon.

Responsible For Epidemic of Typhus Fever Causing Death of Six Thousand Frenchmen.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 8.—The surrender of Gen. Kruska, commander of a German prison camp at Kaiser, has been demanded by the Allies as the first of the enemy officials to be tried for violations of international law during war. According to a Copenhagen despatch to an exchange telegraph company, quoting Berlin advices, General Kruska is accused of having been responsible for epidemic of typhus fever at Kaiser camp, which caused the deaths of three thousand French prisoners.

CHARGES AGAINST BOTH RACES TO BE PRESENTED AT SAME TIME

This is Question Raised by Grand Jury on Chicago Race Riots—State's Attorney Fears Jury Has Been Talking to Politicians—Two Whites are Bayoneted By Militia Patrols

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Because of a belief that racial animosities might be increased if indictments for colored race war offenders only continued to be considered without cases against whites being handled at the same time, the August grand jury adjourned and demanded of the state's attorney that cases against whites be presented at that time.

While the grand jurors were taking this action a conference of Adjt.-Gen. Dickson, Chief of Police Garrity and Sheriff Peters was held in the chief's office to consider protection for colored stockyards employes for whose return to work at an early date arrangements are being made.

Hoyne Criticizes Action.

State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne issued a statement this afternoon in which he criticized the grand jury for its action, saying that he feared that members of the jury had been talking to politicians outside of the grand jury room and said that he believed the grand jury was playing politics in making the decision it did.

"The state's attorney is doing his duty, expects the grand jury to do its duty and he needs no suggestions from any one as to how he should do his duty," said the prosecutor. "The cases will be presented to the grand jury as they are prepared."

Mr. Hoyne said he would go before the grand jury tomorrow morning and argue his side of the controversy.

Juror Halts Proceedings.

The grand jury began its third day of deliberations on the race riot prosecutions and was considering a case in which the public prosecutor was asking a true bill for murder, when one of the jurors called a halt.

"Is there none but colored cases for consideration of this body today?" he asked of Assistant State's Attorney Robert P. Rollo.

"We are preparing cases against offenders of both races," answered Rollo, "as fast as the evidence reaches us. At the present, however, there are only colored cases to consider."

The members of the jury, of which Albert Pick is foreman, talked among themselves for a few moments. Then Rollo and Assistant State's Attorney William H. Duval, who was also present, were informed of the jury's adjournment.

"Thirty cases are being prepared now," said Duval, "and this includes both white and colored. We have had the colored cases prepared first because the evidence was there in complete form first. There has been no set program."

Guard Bayonets Two; One Dies.

Although conditions as regards rioting were quiet throughout yesterday and last night, the night hours did not pass without incident, for two whites were bayoneted by a militiaman for refusing to recognize his orders to move.

As a result of this affair George Fleming, 19 years old, 4924 St. Lawrence avenue recently discharged from the navy, died this morning at the Michael Reese Hospital of a bayonet thrust through his abdomen; Thomas Fennessy, 20 years old, 543 East 43d street, a clerk, is in the Bridewell hospital with a light wound in his hip, and officials of the 4th reserve militia and the state's attorney's office are investigating the action of Private Edgar Mohan of company E, who wounded the two men.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 8, 1919

THE NEW LIBERAL LEADER.

QUEBEC STILL HOLDS the Liberal party of Canada in the hollow of its hand, dominates its every policy, and in effect elects its leader. Hon. W. S. Fielding, by long odds the strongest man the Liberals have in their ranks today, the man who was the logical successor to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the man who has the prestige of an honorable public career on which no blot can be found, the man of experience that is in itself priceless to any party at any time, has been passed over for Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, a comparative tyro in politics, a young man whose future, if it is to be judged by his past, holds out little promise. The final ballot showed 476 for King and 438 for Fielding, a scant majrity of 34. Evidently Quebec turned the scale. Quebec was unable to forgive or forget the fact that Fielding in 1917 emerged from temporary seclusion and consented to become a candidate again as a Unionist, Sir Robert Borden retiring from the constituency which he then represented in order to give Mr. Fielding a chance. The old flame of hostility between the two wings of the Liberal party is still burning. About all that can be said of the election of Mr. King is that it is a compromise.

The safe leader is the man without a record or one whose record is all to the good. Mr. King has certainly had a stirring, not to say checkered, career. He is what may be styled as a dangerous theorist, a dabbler in opinions, in the holding of which he so often finds himself alone. In the first place, his election as leader is sure to antagonize the Labor men of the Dominion. He is the sponsor of the Industrial Disputes Act, a law that Union Labor has year after year, in season and out of season, vainly tried to have rescinded. During his administration, first as deputy and then as full-fledged Minister of Labor in the Laurier Cabinet, Mr. King was in a constant turmoil with the workingmen. His handling of the Grand Trunk strike will not soon be forgotten. His attitude on the immigration of Orientals will now be recalled against him.

In a word, the Liberals have elected as leader a young man, young both in years and experience, as statesmen go, who went down to defeat in the crash of 1911, and who in 1917 was unable to find where to lay his political head, even though he had been nominated in an Ontario constituency other than his former stronghold, before the war broke out. That nomination was useless when the new situation developed, and Mr. King was still left in private life.

Mr. King's war record, too, is against him. The environments of his native place must have influenced his sympathies. He took no active part in war work. During those strenuous days he was a stranger in a strange land, holding in the United States a position with the Rockefeller Foundation. He returned to his country when the necessity for public service no longer existed. Quebec will support him for his negative virtues alone. In other parts of the Dominion it will be recalled of him that in the darkest days through which Canada has ever passed he was not at home.

Mr. King was born in Berlin, now Kitchener, in 1874, and is consequently forty-five years old. He was educated in the schools of that town and in Toronto University, taking post-graduate courses in Chicago, Harvard and European universities. He was elected to the Dominion Parliament in 1908, and was appointed Minister of Labor one year later, his constituents endorsing his appointment. He was defeated in 1911, and has been in private life ever since. From 1911 to 1914 he was president of the Ontario Reform Association.

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier made a speaking tour of Canada in 1912 Mr. King was one of his henchmen. An outstanding feature of his addresses in that campaign was his ridicule of the idea of a German menace or of the necessity for naval aid to Britain, a position which he emphasized later during the dreadnought debate in Parliament, speaking and writing from the outside against the Borden plan for increasing the Imperial Navy.

THE LIBERALS AND THE TARIFF.

THREE OF THE CHANGES which the Liberals pledge themselves to make in the tariff if they are returned to power are as follows:

To reduce the duty on woollen goods by fifty per cent.

To remove the tariff entirely from all agricultural implements.

To admit sawmill machinery free of duty.

If the framers of that resolution on the tariff had been selected for the purpose of suggesting a policy that would bring industrial coma and disaster to Peterborough, they could not have framed a document more designed to accomplish that purpose. Three of the leading industries of this city are menaced by the proposed tariff changes. The danger to this city must be apparent to every resident regardless of politics or conditions. And other sections of the Dominion are in a similar position. The lumbering business is British Columbia's chief source of wealth. The proposition to give the lumber operators of that province free sawmill machinery will avail them nothing if they are ruined by the importation of the cheaper grades of the finished material from the Western States.

Are the members of the Peterborough delegation to the Liberal convention asleep or what has prevented them from protesting against a policy that would work unutterable damage to their own city as well as to the Dominion and Province at large?

The attitude of the Liberals on the tariff question can have only one effect. It will satisfy the Conservative party on the main issue and will purge it of all elements that are likely to attempt to handicap the industrial growth of the Dominion.

MACKENZIE KING'S MISTAKE.

MACKENZIE KING, the new leader of the Liberal party, always aspired to wear the mantle of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and worked with that end in view in the campaign of 1917. Mr. King went to the constituency of the then leader and attacked the conscription policy of the Government. His work availed him nothing there, and helped to defeat him in the constituency of North York, where a conscriptionist defeated him by a majority of over seven hundred. Mr. King's record on this question is as unpopular in Ontario today as it was in 1917.

HOUSING IN GREAT BRITAIN.

IN CONNECTION wih the problem of reconstruction in the United Kingdom various housing schemes are contemplated. Variety in the model dwellings to be erected has been encouraged by the enterprise of the London Daily Mail, which offered prizes amounting to $10,000 for "designs best and most suitable in themselves and most nearly in line with the architectural traditions of the several districts."

The country was divided into four areas—the northern, midland and Welsh industrial areas, and the southern and midland counties rural area, with a prize of $2500 in each section. Over 3,500 designs were submitted. In the winning designs the need for economy in all cases was apparent.

In addition to these new model homes, a demand has arisen for furniture especially suiatble for them, the construction of which would be of the simplest, combined with the required rigidity and strength. A successful attempt to meet this need has been made by the Shoreditch Technical Institute, London, at which cottage furniture, designed in the carpentry shops of the institute and executed by the boys at the school, has been on exhibition.

PRODUCE.

(Kingston Whit.)

In fact, there is only one way to break prices, and that is to fill the market. Every hand worker, every investor in productive activities, should see the point and make an extra effort for the general prosperity. Speed up production, wipe out the shortage, push down prices. It is far easier than growling and striking.

ALLAN STUDHOLME.

(Ottawa Journal.)

Allan Studholme, Labor member for East Hamilton in the Legislature, was a sort of balance wheel in the political machinery of Ontario. Taken first as a joke because of his interminable speeches, he was found to possess sound sense and excellent judgment. The day came when his vote, one way or the other, provoked more applause than that of any ten members of the Provincial Parliament.

WIT AND WISDOM

Medicinal Diet

In a certain hospital the patients were very badly fed, and looked forward to an inspection when they could lodge a complaint.

When, one day, the inspecting officer came round, one Tommy was determined not to miss this opportunity.

"What's your complaint?" asked the officer.

"Trench fever."

"Oh! And what is the diet?" asked the officer solicitously.

"Two sucks at the thermometer daily!" was the answer.

His Turn

The chemist danced and chortled till the bottles danced on the shelves.

"What's up?" asked his assistant "Have you been taking something?"

"No. But do you remember when our water pipes were frozen last winter?"

"Yes, but what——"

"Well, the plumber who fixed them has just come in to have a prescription made up.

A Bad Guess

The dear old lady who ought to have been a novelist saw a fair your girl sitting on the quay in an attitude of utter dejection.

"Ah," she muttered "I scent a tragedy! Such beauty! Such sadness! It breaks my heart!"

She crossed to the bowed figure and, touching the moaning girl on the shoulder, she murmured.

"Crossed in love, child?"

"No," replied the girl, rocking herself to and fro. "Crossed in the Rockabout—and what a passage. Oh. dear, oh dear!"

Pretence

Senator Swanson was talking about a millionaire tax dodger.

"He pretends to be a patriot," said the senator, "but when it comes to paying his taxes well he's like O'Brien then.

" 'Cheer up, bhoy!' says O'Brien to O'Houlihan, 'Yez look as if yez didn't have a friend left in the wurrld.'

" 'No more I have nayther,' says O'Houlihan.

" 'Gwan!' says O'Brien, slapping O'Houlihan heartily on the back. G'wan! If it ain't money yez wants to borrow, I'm as good a friend as ever yez had.' "

The Finish Of State Control

The whole country draws a sigh of relief as it realizes that the telephone and telegraph are at last out from under the hand of Burleson. This experiment in Government operation has set back the cause of Government ownership almost to the starting point. No doubt the Postmaster General feels that he has been subjected to a great deal of unjust criticism for conditions that were beyond his control. Undoubtedly this is true, but he has given so many demonstrations of incompetency that he is obliged to shoulder the entire burden. No one will insist that Burleson's failure to please the public in the handling of the wire lines in any way reflected upon his good intentions, but it was simply that the job was too big for him, and therein lies the greatest weakness of Government control or operation of any of the public utilities.

Under private control the man selected for the management of any large enterprise would be one who had demonstrated his fitness in other capacities and who would be paid a salary accordingly. The Government does not pay large salaries and consequently obtains small men. Mr. Burleson's career in private life did not furnish him with the training necessary even to run the Post Office Department, a job that almost runs itself, and to have the entire wire system of the country suddenly dropped into his lap was little short of grotesque.

There has grown up a belief in the public mind that the United States Government could do things better than any private organization. Most of the time it does things worse. The men on whom these responsibilities fall are just plain human beings and most of them are a good deal plainer than those who occupy similar positions in private life. The only reason why the Government can do things better is because of its unlimited power and authority. It never has to consider the question of overhead or of taxes, or even of the restrictive laws under which public utilities ordinarily work. Anything that is bothersome is simply dropped into the discard.

In justice to Mr. Burleson it must be said that a great deal of the dissatisfaction in the telephone and telegraph service, and particularly the former, is the direct outcome of war conditions for which he was not responsible. The telephone companies under private management were obliged to exert themselves continuously in order to keep pace with the expansion of business. This they did and were wise enough to keep a lap or two ahead of actual requirements, with the result that our telephone service in this country was a matter of pride. The outbreak of the war simply stopped this development right where it was. Skilled operators and mechanics were taken out of the service and sent to France, while every item of surplus equipment and material was requisitioned for war use. On top of this the war itself increased the demand for telephone service far beyond its normal growth and the public naturally had to suffer. Some measure of patience and forbearance must be exercised for some months yet until it is possible for the companies to expand their equipment to meet these increased demands.

WOMEN CAN HELP

"The present development and the future safety of North America depend on the wisdom and poise of its women," declares Mrs. Arthur Woods, wife of the assistant to the secretary of war. Col. Woods heads the war departments work in finding jobs for ex-soldiers.

"Women the world over to-day are facing, side by side with their men, the great problem of reconstruction," says Mrs. Woods.

Mrs. Woods is watching with keen interest the war department's efforts to solve the re-employment problems of America's 4,000,000 ex-service men. She is keenly aware, in this as in other of her husband's duties, of the human factors involved in economic ond social problems. When her husband was police commissioner of New York city, she was known in an inconspicuous way for her understanding of the psychology of the men of the police department in relation to their home life and their dependents. And now she offers these warnings and vital suggestions to the wives and mothers of returned soldiers and sailors.

"In America the woman's direct power in guiding the nation has been recently greatly augmented — and with this has come a general quickening of her sense of national responsibility. She will now have to shoulder many burdens. One of these is to take a big share in the work of reestablishing our discharged service men in civil life. And when all is said and done, without the wise and sympathetic understanding which only the women can give, the men of this country, who have taken part in the great war cannot fit themselves completely and contentedly back into the life of the community.

"We all feel a sense of obligation toward the men who have fought for us and we want to do all in our power to make those men happy and successful, but do we appreciate the full significance and importance of this work?

"North America can have no stronger guaranty against the spread of insidious doctrines of revolution and upheaval than that of a contented yes, and cheerful frame of mind, held generally throughout the country.

"Every American and Canadian woman must realize this clearly, for on her will, to a great extent, devolve the duty of maintaining this attitude of mind.

The Price Of Shoes

Footwear is now costing more than it has for the past half century, if not ever before. It has been a matter of surprise that the people have paid the prices so readily and it has been a noteworthy fact that the demand has been greater for the higher priced shoes than for the cheaper grades, all of which has been a reflection of the general prosperity of the country. Nevertheless, there is a maximum to be reached and because of the predictions that prices will go still higher, dealers are now showing a more conservative attitude as to commitments for future supplies. Some of the prices asked for footwear can hardly be justified even by the high prices of raw material. An advance of say 20c a pound in leather can hardly be a justification for adding $2 to $3 more to the price of a pair of shoes. Even if there is an additional labor cost, when distributed over many pairs of shoes it cannot amount to more than a few cents, but it is apt to be reflected in an advance of a $1 a pair by the time the shoe has reached the wearer.

THE WESTERN CROPS

It is estimated that about 15,000 men will be required to work as Farm Laborers to assist in harvesting the crops in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The Canadian Pacific has arranged and is advertising usual special fare of $12 to Winnipeg, and will run special trains from Toronto, Tuesday, August 12th, and Thursday, August 14th.

Unless a man is generous he is seldom just.

"Wuch is being done to provide each man, as he is discharged from service, with a job that suits his requirements. Society Guests See Mabel Normand Act At Sea Cliff For "A Perfect 36"

Mabel Normand is the happiest star in filmland these days. It is because she is once more her rollicking self in a series of comedies in which she is starred by Goldwyn. The first was "Peck's Bad Girl." Now there is another "A Perfect 36," and it comes to the Grand Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Not only is Mabel Normand having the time of her life as she appears on the screen, but producing the plays gives her associates even more laughs than the public can get. Being funny is the easiest thing in the world for the vivacious comedienne. Not being funny is the hardest. But now she does not have to think of tears any more. She doesn't have to to listen to her directors' injunction to be serious, nor does she bother about any phase of her acting.

During the course of the production, the company spent several days at Sea Cliff, one of the popular resorts on the Long Island Coast. It was there that all the bathing scenes were photographed, for you must know that much of the action of "A Perfect 36" takes place at a bathing beach.

Mabel Normand lived during this period at a quaint hotel near the shore, where she was the center of attraction not only to the guests, but to everyone along the coast. Attired in her natty beach togs, it was her custom to emerge from the hotel for her work before the camera, only to find the hotel porch thronged with visitors eager to catch a glimpse of the petite Goldwyn star.

Women begged her to let them examine the bathing suit she wore, girls besought her for photographs and children held out their hands for lollypops, a delicacy of which Mabel Normand is really fond. In fact, she was rarely without a bundle of the suckers-on-a-stick, which her juvenile admirers looked at longingly—not for any length of time, though, for Mabel Normand loves children and does a great deal to make them happy.

Scampering down to the beach, she was invariably followed by a troop of laughing children eager to see how motion pictures were really made.

"Honestly" smiled Director Charles Giblyn, "Miss Normand is more of a child than any of these girls of ten or twelve, and at heart she is younger."

GLOWING TRIBUTE PAID TO CANADA

ONCE A COLONY NOW GROWN INTO THE FULL STATURE OF A NATION.

London, Aug. 8.—(Reuter).—The Daily Telegraph says:—

"Canada has become a nation in the very deepest meaning of the word, since the late King Edward visited 59 years ago. Now in the hour of victory the Prince of Wales is on his way to visit this vast rich region of the Empire which the war has drawn together in fresh bonds. Once it was a colony, it envolved into a Dominion and now it has grown to the full stature of nationhood. With this newly found dignity it will extend a welcome to the Prince of deeper significance though it could not be more cordial than it offered to his father and grand father. Canadians are happy in being the first of the overseas people to receive the Prince, but it may be assumed that in due course as opportunity offers his Royal Highness will visit the other Dominions and thus accomplish what may come to be regarded as his education as future sovereign of the British Empire.

FEMININE LOGIC

The young lady across the way says her father is naturally a very kind man, but he can harden his arteries when he feels he's being imposed on.

A MINISTER ON TOUR

Rev. R. W. Taylor, Omaha, Neb., visited Toronto making the journey from his home city on a motorcycle. The pastor is a veteran motorcyclist, and has made many trips on his two-wheeler. He is endeavoring to ride his car through to Winnipeg.

MAKE ENTRIES NOW FOR ANNUAL LAWN AND GARDEN COMPETITION

No Entry Fee—Prizes Are Increased—New Competitions—Make Peterboro Beauty Spot.

The annual lawn and garden competition, under the auspices of the Peterborough Horticultural Society is a factor this year as heretofore.

The competition is open to every resident of this city, and no entry fee will be charged.

Judging is to take place the third week in August, 18th to 23rd, by a competent Horticulturist from Toronto.

Increased Prize List.

As will be noted from the following list the prize money has been largely increased this year.

Class A. Open to all for best kept grounds surrounding premises. 1st prize, the F. W. Adams' cup for one year; 2nd prize, $5.00; 3rd prize, $3.00.

Class B.—Amateurs only, for best lawn and surroundings. 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd prize, $3.00; 3rd prize, $2.00.

Class C. — Workingmen only, for best back garden and surroundings. 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00; 3rd $2.00.

Class D.—Best display of window boxes, hanging baskets, or urns. 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $.300; 3rd, $2.00.

New competitions.—For the best flower bed cared for solely by boy or girl, 16 years or under. 1st prize $5.00; 2nd, $3.00; 3rd, $2.00.

Best kept church grounds. 1st prize, $3.00; 2nd, $3.00; 3rd, $2.00.

Best kept school grounds. 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00; 3rd, $2.00.

Best kept factory grounds. 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00; 3rd, $2.00.

Entries in Writing.

All entries for these competitions must be in writing and forwarded to the secretary, H. E. Brumwell, 59 Hilliard street, on or before August 15th.

Have Grounds Entered.

It is very much desired that the citizens should display a keen interest in these competitions by having every eligible property entered. During the month of March announcement was made of these contests so that everyone would have an opportunity to give some special attention to a "beauty spot" and share in this distribution of prize-money in the latter part of August. The winners will feel more pride in their achievements if the number of entries is large in each class. The attention of parents, as well as church, school and factory officials is called to the four new competitions put on this year.

Meeting August 19th.

Members of the society will please note that a meeting will be held in the Board of Trade rooms in the Dominion Bank building, on the evening of Tuesday, August 19th at 8 o'clock, for the discussion of horticultural matters and improvements in this city. Mr. W. H. Ford, superintendent of the Mount Pleasant cemetery, Toronto, will be present to answer questions and make suggestions along these lines. Many of the older members will want to meet Mr. Ford, who was at one time an energetic officer of the Peterborough society, and the new members and the competitors in the lawn and garden competitions will certainly derive a benefit by being present.

STORM MAKES TROUBLE FOR CAMPERS ON RIVER

WORST STORM OF YEARS CAUSED CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE TO CAMPS AND BOATS.

What is considered as the worst storm in years was experienced by the campers down the river yesterday afternoon. What looked like a wall of water came up the river, driven along by the tremendous wind. Along with the rain came large pieces of hail, which made it torture to face the storm.

Practically every tent along both sides of the river was either blown down or torn. Those whose tents were blown down were very fortunate, because when the storm had passed they were soon re-erected. In several cases the tents whose fastenings held secure were ripped, and in one or two cases they were damaged to such an extent as to render repairs difficult.

Small boats were nearly all blown from where they had been drawn up on shore, and cast upon the farther bank. Launches, too, were cast upon the bank by the tremendous force of the storm.

The condition of their camps was a great surprise to the campers on their return down the river after witnessing the storm as it was in the city. Those south of the city appear to be unfortunate this season in experiencing severe storms, but that of yesterday is the worst remembered by most of those whose habit it is to spend the summer months along the river.

NEW LIBERAL LEADER WILL RUN IN ONTARIO

NOT THOUGHT ADVISABLE FOR HIM TO STAND IN QUEBEC EAST.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—The Liberals of Glengarry have offered Hon. Mackenzie King the nomination for the Dominion Parliament at the coming by-election. Hartley Dewart and a number of Ontario Liberals cancelled their reservations on the Toronto train and stayed over tonight for a conference with the new leader. It is thought best that Mr. King should get an Ontario constituency, instead of running in East Quebec.

Sketch of Leader's Life.

William Lyon Mackenzie King, into whose hands has been entrusted the mantle of leadership laid aside by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, is a direct descendant upon the maternal side of William Lyon Mackenzie, a fact that has been a potent influence in winning him recognition and preferment in the Liberal party. He was Canada's first Minister of Labor, but back of his appointment were years of definite preparation for just such a post. He began his training in the University of Toronto, where he won the Blake Scholarship in Arts and Law in 1893. Later, he took a course in political economy at Chicago in 1896-7, and at Harvard from 1897 to 1900. His deep interest in labor questions led to his appointment in 1900 as Deputy-Minister of Labor, and during the eight years he served in that capacity he acted as conciliator in two score of important industrial strikes. He was called into the Cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1909, and for two years acted as Minister of Labor. In the reciprocity election of 1911 he went down to defeat with many of his colleagues, and retired from public life for the time. Some years ago he accepted service with the Rockefeller Foundation in connection with social investigations, resigning to return to Canada at the time of the general election in 1917. Hon Mr. King, confident that the country would refuse conscription, ran as an anti-conscriptionist Laurier-Liberal in North York and was buried under the avalanche of votes of those who refused to desert the men at the front by withholding the support that only the Military Service Act could give. The new leader is 44 years old, of Soctch ancestry and a Presbyterian.

HON. MACKENZIE KING.

WOMAN SAVED MUCH SUFFERING

By taking Friend's Advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

West Plains, Mo.—"I was all run down in health, had indigestion and terrible cramps every month so I was unable to do anything. I had tried every doctor in West Plains, also every remedy I could think of, without relief. One day when I was suffering greatly a friend was at my house and said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' So I did, and through it, I found relief from my suffering and I really believe it saved my life. It does not seem as though I can say enough in praise of this wonderful medicine for the health it has brought me."—Miss CORA LEE HALL, West Plains, Mo.

Perhaps it may seem an extravagant statement to say that this great remedy saved a life; but women like Mrs. Hall, to whom it has brought health, appreciate the danger and suffering they have escaped too well to doubt it! All who suffer should try it. Why risk life and health without it?

For special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

New Auto Failed to Stop Quickly and Sustained Damage.

The new McLaughlin car recently purchased by Mr. Stinson of North Monaghan was slightly damaged last evening shortly after 10 o'clock. Stinson was proceeding down Aylmer street toward Charlotte. Being unaccustomed to driving he was slow putting on the brakes when he perceived street car No. 30, coming along Charlotte street. The street car hit the front fender, tearing it from the automobile and turning it completely around. No damage was done to the running parts and the car was taken to a garage under its own power.

GEN. CURRIE HELD UP

Many ships are held up by the strike in Liverpool. General Currie was to have sailed on the Caronia yesterday but the boat is unlikely to leave immediately.

NEW GOVERNMENT BUREAU

An appeal has been sent by the chamber of commerce of Brantford to all employers to use the government labor bureau and the soldiers' re-establishment branch which works with it. It would, they hold, work out advantageously to both the returned men and the employers.

NEW COP HELD AS BURGLAR

"Rookie Squad" of Police is Short One Member.

Chicago, Aug 8. — The "rookie squad" of new policemen, beginning training today at Doolittle school, is one member short. He is Bert Dods, 26 years old, 2847 West Monroe street, who is facing grand jury indictment on a charge of burglary. Meanwhile, Capt. Thomas Cronin of the Warren avenue station, whose men arrested Dods, is preparing a complete report of the case at the special request of Chief Garrity.

Dods was arrested yesterday morning in company with Thomas Spillman, 23, 2830 Lexington street, as the two are said to have been attempting to take meat from the window of Kasper Reif's butcher shop, 433 South California Avenue. They were arraigned this morning in the Desplaines street police court. Dods is a bricklayer.

A woman's sweetest smile may hide an aching heart.

PAY OF P. S. TEACHERS

Increased Generously Throughout Whole Province.

Reports reaching the Department of Education from different rural sections of the Province are most encouraging with regard to the increase in salaries to the rural teachers. Some time ago the Minister of Education, Hon. H. J. Cody, issued a circular to the inspectors of the Province, urging upon them the necessity of getting before school boards and pointing out to them that teachers salaries should be increased to keep pace with the increase in the cost of living.

It appears that the School Boards have responded to the appeals of the inspectors and that generous increases have been made in different sections of Ontario, including Peterborough city, where the salary schedule has been fixed commensurate with the cost of living. One inspector writing from Kent County, states that each teacher's salary had been raised from $50 to $300.

DENIES BOLSHEVIKI VICTORY

London, Aug. 8.—General Ironside, the British commander on the Archangel front, has sent a despatch to London contradicting the Bolshevist report claiming a substantial advance toward Archangel. General Ironsides says that everything is quiet on that front.

Two University of California professors were shot and seriously wounded by a graduate who alleged they prevented him from obtaining a position.

SEE NO NEED FOR PROV. CONVENTION

TORONTO CONSERVATIVES EXPRESS SATISFACTION WITH LEADERSHIP.

Toronto, Aug. 8. On the whole, Toronto members of the Legislature do not seem disposed to favor particularly an Ontario convention of the Conservative party prior to the next provincial election. The contention seems to be that Ontario Conservatives are satisfied with the present leader and with the administration of affairs at Queen's Park. During the last session of the Legislature, a resolution expressing complete confidence in the Leadership of Sir William Hearst and in the administration of provincial affairs was unanimously passed at a caucus of the Conservative members of the House.

Mr. Thomas Hook, West Toronto, expresses himself as seeing no necessity for an Ontario convention. The party, he says, is satisfied with the Premier, and no serious differences of opinion exist in the rank and file. The criticism that has been levelled against the Hearst Government in connection with the Ontario Temperance Act, says Mr. Hook, is unfair and has its origin with N. W. Rowell, who embarrassed Sir William's administration by the order-in-Council prohibiting the importation of liquor into Ontario from outside points. In Mr Hook's view, 90 people out of every 100 think that Sir William Hearst is responsible for the fact that liquor cannot be imported from outside the province; whereas, it is the result of the order-in-Council. For this reason, Mr. Hook favors holding the election and the referendum votes on different days because people getting the questions mixed up would vote against the Government while voting against the referendum because they did not fully understand the issues involved.

Mr. George H. Gooderham does not favor either a provincial or Dominion convention because there is nothing, so far as he can see, to meet about. He believes that the party is satisfied with the leaders both at Ottawa and Queen's Park.

Dr. Forbes Godfrey, West York and Hon. Thomas Crawford, Northwest Toronto, express similar views on the question of a convention.

FORD CAR STOLEN

Machine Disappeared While Owner Was at Downeyville Picnic.

Lindsay, Aug 7. An automobile was stolen at the Downeyville picnic last night by some unknown person or persons. Chief Short received a telephone message this morning to that effect and immediately notified the Peterboro police to be on the lookout as the message stated that the tracks of the car lead to the east. The car is the property of Mr. Claremont, of Lindsay, and is a five-pasenger Ford, No. 92100.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat, Also Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy, the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

FARMERS AND THEIR

abled the capitalist to invest heavily and so escape his share of payment of public revenue. Daylight saving was condemned as legislation in favor of the money classes and against the interests of the farmers.

Not a Grit Dodge.

Mr. Burnaby denied the charge that the present farmers movement is a Grit dodge. Of the fourteen farmer candidates now in the field for the Legislature, two-thirds are Conservatives. The U. F. O. has a political committee of seven members, and five of these are Conservatives.

Mr. Burnaby also attacked the tariff and insisted upon free trade in agricultural implements and on a tariff for revenue only. The cheaper goods are, the more will be made, and the more men employed in their manufacture. The farmers are independent in politics, but they must enter politics or give up.

In conclusion Mr Burnaby referred to the growth of the co-operative movement and to the proposed co-operative store in Peterborough.

Women on Education.

Mrs W. R. Morris and Mrs. Webster spoke chiefly on educational topics, the former congratulating the women of the rural districts on the fact that they are now eligible to seats on school boards regardless of property qualifications.

An Editor as Orator.

Mr. W. L. Smith talks on the platform with the same incisive force as that which distinguishes his editorial work. Like Mrs. Webster, he received a perfect storm of applause when he urged the men and women present to vote for the Ontario Temperance Act. His speech was a plea for freer trade, but it would not be like him to close any address without an appeal for the promotion of a common brotherhood for all mankind.

The Sports.

After the speeches a fine program of sports was run off, with President Rogers and Harry Webster as masters of ceremony, and W. H. Petrie, W Garbutt and J. Gillespie acting as judges. The following was the program:

Girls' Race, under 10—Jean Gillespie, Edie Hudson, Minnie Hudson.

Boys, under 10—C. Hancock, P. Hancock, Ross Lillicoe.

Girls, under 15—Olive Brightmeyer, Hazel and Ethel Blodgett.

Boys, under 15—Wilfred Heffernan, Ray Gerrie, Arthur Hancock.

Ladies' Race, 50 yards — Edna Foster, Pearl Petrie.

Men's Race, 100 yards—Jim Jackson, Jack Shaughneasy.

Married Ladies' Race—Mrs. Hodson, Mrs. Huston.

Married Men's Race—John Hodson, Charles Webster.

Wheelbarrow Race—Wm. Garbutt and G. Lockington, Hodson and Heffernan.

Race for children six years and under, every contestant to receive a prize. Phyllis Moore, Fern Henderson, Eda Hodson, Minnie Hodson, Kathleen Lillicoe, Arnold Frost.

Three legged race—Clifford and Ed Sergeant, John Hodson and Geo. Lockington.

When Greek Met Greek.

The tug-of-war was the most interesting event on the program. There are four townships represented in the membership of the club, and it was proposed to have a team from each to contest, but North Monaghan and Douro failed to come to the scratch. Smith and Otonabee fought it out with ten men on a side, and the cable borrowed from the Stoney Lake for the event was returned about two feet longer than before the fray. Smith's team won the honor in a strenuous two-minute struggle. Otonabee claimed that their adversaries had the advantage as they were pulling down hill and offered to try it again with positions reversed, but the Smith men were satisfied to rest on their laurels.

A Prosperous Club.

The local club was organized about a year ago, and now has 162 members, East and West Peterborough being about evenly represented. Its meetings are held in the S. O. E. Hall the second Monday in every month during the summer, and twice a month during the winter season. The officers are: R. B. Rogers, president, Albert Armstrong, vice-president; W. Garbutt, recording secretary; C. S. Brown, financial secretary and treasurer. The directors are: William Reid, Robert Joseph Coughlin, Howard Quinn, William Stewart, R. T. Lillicoe, and Robert Shaw.

The committee that arranged the successful affair of yesterday was composed of R. T. Lillicoe, H. Webber, John Gillespie, J. T. O'Connell and E. Sergeant.

MACHINISTS WITHDREW ALL THEIR DELEGATES

STRATFORD TO SEND NEW DELEGATION TO TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL.

Stratford, Aug. 7.—A peculiar state of affairs has arisen in local Labor circles through the resignation of Mr. John Sempre, as representative on the Trades and Labor Council of the Machinists' Union. Because of his resignation and the retirement of another delegate, the machinists withdrew all six of their delegates to the Trades and Labor Council and appointed a fresh set of delegates.

This is where the troubles arises: for as well as Mr. Sempre, who is President of the Trades and Labor Council, the names of Robert Hurst, Vice-President, and Arthur Skidmore, Financial Secretary have been left off the new list of Machinists' Union delegates to the Trades and Labor Council, which means that three of the most important offices in the Council must be filled temporarily at least. New delegates to the Trades and Labor Council of the Machinists' Union are: T. Jamieson, W. Maguire, W. Long, R. Andrews, J. McInnis, R. Verner.

SHIPBUILDERS' STRIKE THREATENING—MILITIA TO BE CALLED OUT, IT IS REPORTED.

Quebec, Aug. 7.—With one of their fellow union men held in jail and ninety-one others under charges, but out on bail, the members of the International Union of Shipbuilders, employed at the Davie Shipbuilding plants at Lauzon and Quebec, were uneasy today when they officially learned the militia will be called out against them at Lauzon if they refuse to allow non-striking national union men to continue the work at the closed yards.

Sentiment runs high among the strikers and sympathizers and should the militia show any amount of aggressiveness, fears are entertained that there may be bloodshed. The Davie Shipbuilding Company whic hhas so far kept the affected plant closed, picked up the gauntlet yesterday nad advertised in the papers and on their fences that the plant would open at seven this morning calling upon all the non-strikers to report for work.

MISTAKE BY CONFERENCE

Setting Adrift of Revs. W. M. Ivens and A. E. Smith is Regrettable.

Winnipeg, Aug. 7. That the Manitoba Methodist Conference made a mistake in setting adrift Rev. Wm. Ivens and Rev. A. E. Smith, was the statement made today by Rev. Salem Bland, formerly of Winnipeg, now pastor of Broadway Methodist Tabernacle, Toronto, here for a three-week stay.

As he was not present at the conference he declared he could not pass upon the constitutionality of the action taken, but he thought it was regrettable. "Nothing seems more deplorable at this crisis in the world's history than that the Christian Church should do anything, except under clearest pressure of Christian duty, which would increase estrangement between Christian Church and organized Labor, whose cause I believe to be fundamentally Christian and whose predominance in the near future western nations seems to be unquestionable," he said.

Chas. H. Beck and wife, both elderly were beaten into insensibility and robbed of $20,000 in jewels and $150 in cash in their Atlantic City cottage.

HURON INDIANS

Champlain and Le Caron found the Hurons in advance of the other northern tribes in many erspects. They found them a nation of probably 10,000 souls distributed in eighteen villages, scattered chiefly through the townships of Tiny, Tay, Flos, Medonte and Orillia.

The villages which were fixed were composed of houses, not of wigwams, as was the custom with many Indians. Those on the frontier next to their enemies were strongly fortified by walls or palisades, the sites of these being selected with a view to protection, wood and water being also considered. Some of the houses were of great extent, ranging from fifty to two hundred and forty feet long, and their construction was ingenious. Two rows of tall saplings were planted on top until there was left an open space of a foot or two in width along the ridge, and then lashed together so as to form a sort of arbour or booth about thirty feet in width at the bottom and about twenty feet in height. Other poles were tied securely to these upright poles and then the sides were sheathed in bark overlapping to shed the rain or snow. Another row of horizontal poles kept these huge bark shingles in place. Along either side of the interior were scaffolds or bunks about four feet from the ground, which, covered with furs, furnished sleeping compartments. The place beneath was the storehouse for fuel and cooking utensils; while there was a compartment at the end of the house used as a storeroom for corn, fish, sunflowers and other articles of food. Along the upper poles were hung their bows and arrows, clothing, skins and clusters of ear corn. Down the middle were the fires, each furnishing heat for two families, the smoke escaping through the narrow opening left in the top of the house. Picture such a house, especially in the winter or festal season. "He who entered beheld a strange spectacle the vista of fire lighting the smoky concave, the bronze groups encircling each other, eating, gambling, or amusing themselves with idle gossip; shrivelled squaws hideous with threescore years of hardship, grisly old warriors scarred with Iroquois war clubs, young aspirants whose honors were yet to be won, damsels gay with ochre and wampum, restless children pellmell with restless dogs, covered with fleas." Such was the fifty to one hundred houses and homes that constituted the Huron village. As mentioned, the principal towns were fixed, but frequently the smaller, those unprotected were moved to a new site, this taking place when wood became scarce, the soil exhausted or the location unsanitary. Obviously this accounts for so many village sites being found throughout the county of Simcoe.

WHEN WILHEM IS NOT SAWING WOOD, HE IS USUALLY SULKING

A Tired Old Man, The Fire Has Gone From His Eyes, and Ruddiness From His Cheeks

(By James Dunn, in Daily Mail.)

Amerongen — The ex-Kaiser is qualifying as the champion wood sawyer of Europe. Within the last six months he has sawn up 5,000 fir trees into 20,000 blocks, and each block bears the date, number of tree and initials W. H.

No longer does the ex-Emperor give his photographs to those he desires to honor; he presents them with a block of wood nine inches in diameter and two inches thick, sawn by the imperial hand.

From ten o'clock to one o'clock every morning he saws diligently beneath his favorite fir tree while the ex-Kaiserin reads the papers aloud. For the first week or two Wilhelm did the sawing himself, but he now used a double-handed saw and is assisted by a companion, generally his doctor. The ex-Kaiser is remarkably strong in the right arm, and he takes a very human delight in the fact that he has tired out very assistant he has employed. While at work he smokes three cigaretes, one each hour.

When Wilhelm is not sawing he is usually sulking. He has periods of deep depression, and sits for hours near a greenhouse in the grounds of Count Bentinck's castle, speaking to no one. Tugging fretfully at his Vandyke beard, he conjures up memories of what might have been, and these dark hours are succeeded by fits of temper.

A tired old man is the ex-Kaiser of today. The fire has gone from his eyes and the ruddiness from his cheeks, and despite his strenuous exercise he is putting on weight.

During the day he dresses in mufti, but for dinner he dons one of his gorgeous uniforms, and with his small band of retainers holds a mimic Court, thus seeking to recuperate a glimpse of his past glory. After dinner he talks with great animation, and he has a disturbing trick of throwing all his weight in the arm of his chair, and his toll of broken chairs is mounting rapidly. All his correspondence is censored, and his haughty spirit chafes against this necessary restriction.

His dominant fear is aeroplanes. He has received the idea that he may be kidnapped from the air, and he never ventures into the grounds without first carefully scanning the sky. The other morning a Dutch aeroplane flying over the castle gave him a severe frighy, and he kept indoors for the remainder of the day.

His frequent companion is the little dachshund "Senta," which still wears the medal showing its taxes have been paid in Berlin. All the children in the village know "Senta," who has pronounced democratic instincts and a weakness for chasing stray cats.

In well-informed circles at The Hague it is believed that the ex-Kaiser will live and die in Holland. There is little probability, they think, that the Dutch will hand him over to the Allies, the Dutch laws holding that a political refugee is inviolate. He would not be prevented from going to Germany, his guards consisting only of Dutch policemen, but he is not likely to take the risk of revisiting German soil. His present intention is to buy a house in the province of Utrecht, and several suitable residences have been inspected on his behalf.

Wilhelm never ventures outside the castle grounds, the walls of which have been heightened by boards to prevent photographers from taking snapshots. The ex-Kaiserine sometimes takes tea at neighboring houses, but she is rarely away from her husband's side. She is the only one who can restrain him in his fits of passion.

Although the ex-Kaiser has contributed £1,000 to the local rates for the first three months of his residence, the local inhabitants would not be sorry to see his departure, as they fear his presence may involve their country in trouble with the Allies. This is all the more remarkable seeing that during the war the district was strongly pro-German. Throughout Holland, indeed, there is an uneasy feeling that the longer he stays the deeper will be the national embarrassment, but at the same time the people at large are against delivering him up to the Allies.

A West Orange N.J., man lost his motor license after witnesses swore he was driving with one hand while he hugged a girl with the other.

NEGRO HEAVYWEIGHT PUT TO SLEEP BY JONES

WAS SOLDIER BOY'S SCRAP ALL THE WAY—FINISH IN THIRD ROUND.

Quebec City, August 8.—Soldier Jones, heavyweight champion of Canada last night proved his class by knocking out Roger Knight, the huge negro heavyweight in the third round for a scheduled ten round contest. Jones floored Knight nine times and finally put him down for the final count with a smashing right hander to the jaw.

Jones weighed about 170 pounds while the negro tipped the beam at 216 pounds, but as soon as the first gong sounded, Jones tore into his opponent and put him down with his right to the jaw. But for his clinching and covering methods, the colored boxer would have been put out in this round.

Again and again Jones crossed his man and Knight hit the boards frequently. Finally, in the third round, he uncovered for a moment, and Jones, quick as a flash, put over his right to the jaw and Knight went down for the full count. It was Jones' scrap all the way. The soldier fought like a real champion.

THE MAYOR'S NEW MISSION

War on the high cost of living and its attendant evils, profiteering and inflated prices, has been declared by Mayor Church, of Toronto, who announces that while in Ottawa this [illegible] in connection with the application for aid from the Dominion Government for the new Live Stock Arena for the Exhibition, he would take the matter up with the federal authorities. He cited the campaign now in progress in the United States as a worthy example to follow in Canada.

BIG INCREASE FOR BREAD DRIVERS

SOME MEN RECEIVE ADVANCE OF TEN DOLLARS WEEKLY.

Toronto, Aug. 8.—The award of the Board of Conciliation investigating the dispute between the Bread Drivers and the Master Bakers provides for an increase of as much as $10 a week for some men, and the minimum wage is set at $24 a week for drivers whose sales have totalled up to $270 a week. For sales amounting to over $270 a week, ten cents is to be given for every sale to customers and five cents on $1 sales to stores. The holidays granted in the award include every Wednesday afternoon during th emonths of June July August and October, the period during the Canadian National Exhibition being excepted. The agreement operates from August 4, 1919, to May 1, 1920.

The original demands of the men were for a minimum wage of $25 a week, which was practically granted in the $25 award. The workers are said by their officials to be satisfied and realize the advisability of waiting before going out on strike, as was at one time threatened.

PACKING PLANTS EMPLOYEES QUIT

THIRTY-THREE THOUSAND ANSWER CALL FOR A GENERAL STRIKE IN CHICAGO.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, Aug. 8.—A General strike of 33 thousand employees at the packing plants in the stock yards began at nine o'clock this morning. This action followed a decision of the stock yards Labor Council last night to call a general strike unless state troops and police guards were immediately withdrawn from the plants.

The strike was precipitated by the return of five thousand negroes to work yesterday.

WOULD SHATTER RECORD

Miss Fanny Durack, Australian Swimmer, Will Meet Best Americans.

Miss Fanny Durack, the great Australian swimmer, who will meet the best American swimmers who can be secured in special races arranged for the second annual public water carnival of the Chicago Athletic Association in the Lincoln park lagoon on Saturday and Sunday, will attempt to shatter her own record of 1.06 for 100 yards. Miss Durack made this world's record in open water in Australia.

Miss Durack, writing the C. A. A. authorities stated she is swimming better than ever and she would like a 100 yard straightaway course laid out for her record breaking attempt. In addition to swimming the short races, Miss Durack will take part in the longer events, as will Miss Wylie another Australian, who finished second to Miss Durack in the last Oylmpic games in the century swim. The Australians will arrive in Chicago on Friday.

Cherry Circle officials are being swamped with requests from woman swimmers who are anxious to meet the Australians. Letters are being received every day at the Michigan avenue club from well known "mermaids" but only the best will be brought to Chicago at the expense of the club. Miss Helen Fitzsimmons of Montreal, who competes for the Detroit A. C., is the latest of known ability to enter the special races.

Finals of all the events of the Lincoln Park's annual aquatic meet will be decided on Saturday. Over 1,500 boys and girls are taking part in the preliminaries and the winners of the trials will be brought together on Saturday.

Single, double and four oared crews of the Duluth Boat Club which will meet Lincoln Park in a series of races, are training daily over the course in the north lagoonsof Lincoln Park. Coach Ten Eyck is paying just as much attention to their work as he did before the national regatta at Worcester last week.

The crews will train today at 11 o'clock.

Announcement was made yesterday that the carnival on each of the days will start at 3 o'clock.

BREAD STILL HIGHER

When a committee of ladies, chosen at the recent women's mass meeting in St. Catharines waited upon the Master Bakers with an ultimatum to lower the price of bread from 24 cents or they would start a campaign to bake their own bread, they were told with all courtesy that instead of derceasing, there would be a further early increase in the price of bread.

Provincial Deparment of Mines Declare Ore Very Rich---Mining Co. Is Incorporated.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Quebec, Aug. 8.—Gold deposits have been discovered in the Abitibi region on the shores of Lake Kienawieck, on a farm a Polish settler was cultivating. He has just sold out his claim to a British company for $850,000. Analysis of the Provincial Department of Mines declared the ore is very rich and much similar to that which was found in the Cobalt region in Ontario.

NEW LEADER CONFERS WITH THE PREMIER

SIR ROBERT BORDEN TALKS OF NEXT SESSION WITH MR. KING.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—Mackenzie King conferred with Sir Robert Borden for some considerable time this morning. It is understood the conference took place on the invitation of the Prime Minister who extended his congratulations to the New Liberal Leader. Arrangements for the coming session were under consideration with the question of issuing writs for by-elections in vacant seats. It is stated an endeavor will be made to provide for both Sir Henry Drayton, the new Minister of Finance and for the leader of the opposition at the opening of the session on Sept. 1st. Several seats are open to Mr. King, in particular Glengarry and Stormont, from which constituency a deputation waited today on the new leader, asking him to run there. Within a few days Mr. King will take over Opposition leader's office at the Capital.

BELLEVILLE HERE TOMORROW FOR FIRST GAME OF PLAY OFF

Belleville Coming Tomorrow for First Game of Championship Series.

A record crowd will see the baseball game tomorrow. Every baseball fan in the city will be on hand at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to see the first game of the play-off between Belleville and Peterborough. The two clubs have shown keen rivalry all season and it is at its height now. The Petes were defeated in Belleville in the tenth after leading nearly all the way. The game was protested, but the locals lost by 6 to 3 score in Port Hope. Two weeks ago Jake Solomon's speedy boys took their measure by a 3 to 2 score after an exhibition of baseball that would do credit to a big league game. The locals are stronger than ever and with Kirn on the mound and Swanston behind the bat the victory is almost sure. At any rate a great game is assured and no effort will be spared by either side to secure the victory.

The ~~return~~ game will be played in Belleville Tuesday evening at 5.30 p.m. The locals have the good wishes of all baseball enthusiasts in this important series as they are very popular not only in this town, but in the other towns of the league. Large numbers are going to motor from Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg and Oshawa to see this game.

Manager Solomon received a letter this morning from the Gauonoque colored team for an exhibition series. If possible this will be arranged in the near future.

DEVONSHIRE TRACK MAY CHANGE HANDS SHORTLY

BRADLEY WILSON SECURES A THIRTY DAYS' OPTION FOR ITS PURCHASE.

Montreal, Aug. 8.—Bradley Wilson, representing the Thoroughbred Horse Association of America, has been in Montreal for the past few days negotiating for the purchase of the Devonshire Park race track at Windsor. This plant is controlled by Montreal men, who gave Wilson an option for thirty days yesterday afternoon.

The option calls for the controlling interest in the Western Racing Association, which operated the track previously to the order-in-Council prohibiting betting on race tracks in Canada. The amount agreed upon for the purchase of the plant was not made public nor the amount paid for the option, although it is said to be a substantial sum.

Bradley Wilson left last night for Saratoga, where there will be a meeting of the Horsemen's Association on Sunday afternoon. In purchasing Devonshire Park, the Horsemen's Association are following out their plans in Kentucky, where they control all of the race courses. The association has the backing of several wealthy men and recently paid $250,000 for controlling interest in Havre de Grace race track which they will operate this autumn.

Mr. Duggan, president of the Western Racing Association, confirmed the story that an option for thirty days had been given by his association to Wilson for the Horsemen's Association.

Wilson is also negotiating for a track in Montreal, but which one it was not disclosed. The deal will likely be put through on a return visit of Wilson.

LOOKING FORWARD TO RUGBY SEASON

LOOKS AS THOUGH FIVE CLUBS WILL MAKE UP SENIOR SERIES O.R.F.U.

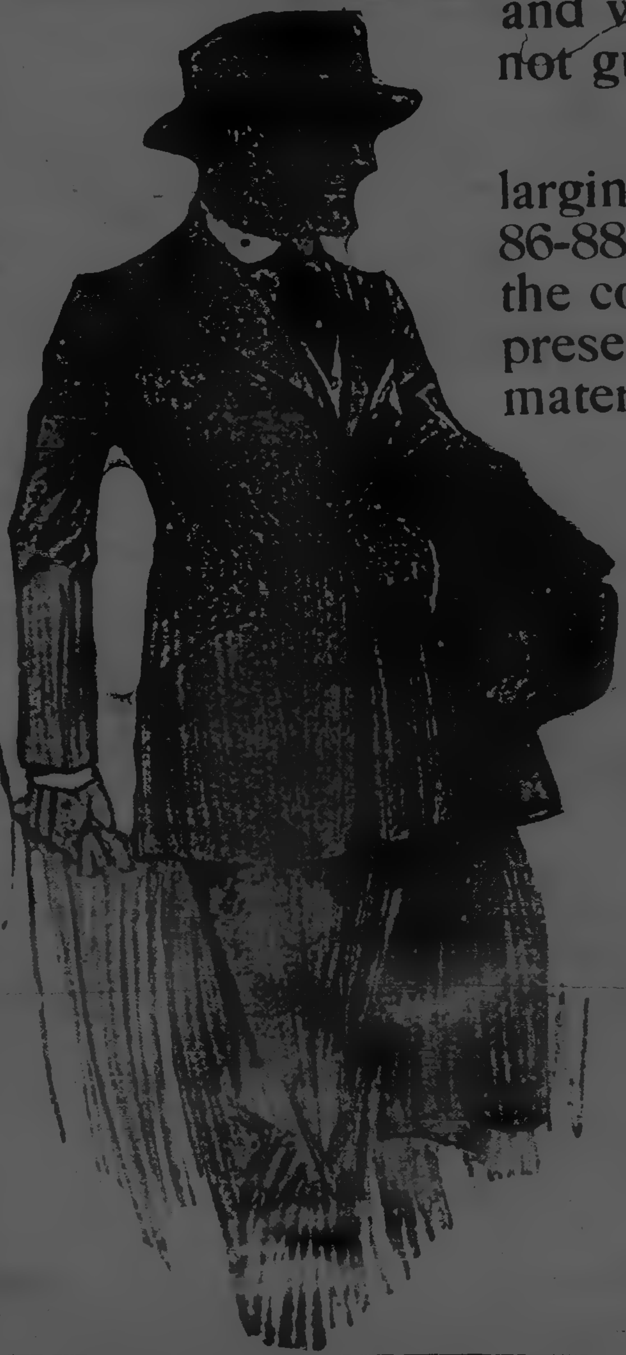
Toronto, Aug. 7.—Just at present it looks as if five clubs will make up the senior series of the Ontario Rugby Football Union during the coming fall. Parkdale Canoe Club and Toronto R. and A. A. are certainties. Hugh Gall and Charlie Gage, the old Varsity stars, will look after the Paddlers and with two such well known players handling things the West Enders should be able to gather in a strong team. T. R. and A. A. will be backed by the same officials who brought the Black and White so prominently to front in rugby prior to the war. The other clubs expected to make application to the O. R. F. U. are Beaches, Hamilton Rowing Club and London. Beaches, it will be remembered, gathered in a strong team last season to play in the O.R.F.U. intermediate series but the "flu" epidemic made it impossible to carry on the series. Beaches, however, played several games with C.O.T.C. They have many of the old Capital players and all have promised to remain with the East Enders if they have a team. Though the O.R.F.U. officials have heard nothing from Hamilton Rowing Club, information has come out of Hamilton through other circles that it is the intention of the Sailors to carry on as they did before the war. They may share the H.A.A.A. field with the Tigers, but if unsuccessful in arranging this they may play at the Jockey Club grounds. "Buster" Reid, the former McGill star, is boosting the game in London and has been busy looking into the situation to see if the Forest City has enough material for a senior team.

WARNING!

Buy Your Clothes Before It is Too Late! Prices Are Sure to Advance Owing to Cloth Shortage and High Wages

It looks almost impossible to keep the price of clothes down much longer, so we want to give our numerous customers fair warning to buy their fall and winter Suits and Overcoats at once, as we cannot guarantee the price for any definite length of time.

Our aim all the time, but especially since enlarging our tailoring plant, which is now located at 86-88 Richmond St. west, Toronto, is to keep down the cost of clothes as long as we possibly can. At present we certainly have a wonderful range of materials which we can sell at the old price, $21.00, but they are going fast, and unless you hurry you will have to pay the advance, whatever it may be.



Remember that by giving us your order you are dealing direct with the makers---no middlemen's profit to pay and every garment guaranteed to be perfectly satisfactory or you do not have to take it.

Our New Tailoring Shops

We at last have managed to get hold of the entire building at 86-88 Richmond Street West, where all Regent Tailors' Clothes are going to be made right on the premises; no more sub-contractors. Every garment will be made and delivered on the date promised. We have also arranged a special showroom in our new home where orders can be left, and where customers can deal direct with the head office if they so desire. We cordially invite the public, and especially our out-of-town customers, to inspect our new shops, without feeling any obligation to leave an order.

A word to the wise is sufficient---save money by filling your future clothing needs without delay.

If you cannot wait for Suit or Overcoat to be made, don't forget that the models in our windows and stores are for sale. We always have a full range of sizes and styles at the same price.

GIRLS WIN AT BALL

Queen Mary Playgrounds Boys Suffer Defeat—Score 8 to 6.

Many boys and girls who are employed during the day came out to Queen Mary playgrounds last evening. The rain in the afternoon settled the dust and cooled the atmosphere to the extent that all of the 150 boys and girls took part in the games and races until darkness set in.

Inspector of the Schools, Mr. Mowat, and his wife, were among the visitors, but were a little late for the races.

A feature last evening was a [illegible] baseball game between the boys and girls, which was won by the latter, 8 to 6.
